NO COMPROMISE IN QUEBEC LAW

PROHIBITION ENACTMENT WILL MAKE THAT PROVINCE BONE DRY.

Montreal, March 5.—The Quebec prohibition bill will, after all, provide a bone dry province, until the Government changes its mind again which it has still time to do before May 1. A few days ago, owing to the strenuous opposition of the brewers, the Labor party and a very large percentage of citizens who signed petitions favoring the admission of beer and wine, the Government was understood to have decided not to press for bone dry prohibition. Now, to the amazement of many members, a draft of the new bill was printed with the most drastic dry legislation conceivable, and the Premier privately announced that it would be accepted even by those Liberal members who had favored the lighter beverages being tolerated. The attitude of the Church is the cause of the change.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

SAYS WE MUST KEEP FEET DRY, AVOID EXPOSURE AND EAT LESS MEAT.

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

Because of the many positions in which they must work tractor motors are tested at angles varying up to 45 degrees.

NEW DUFFUS GARAGE A CREDIT TO LOCAL BUSINESS GENIUS

JOSEPH J. DUFFUS.

In connection with the formal opening of the new Duffus garage on Monday night the address of Mayor Duncan and Mr. Joseph Duffus, the proprietor, are of especial interest to the citizens of the city, as they contain information in regard to the new building and its construction which is important concerning as it does a structure which is an asset to the city and one of the most complete garages in the country.

After paying a well turned compliment to the character of Mr. Duffus who is an ex-Mayor of the city and had served in the council with him for many years, Mayor Duncan stated that he was glad to know that the business had grown to such an extent as to demand larger premises.

A Satisfied Customer.

As a customer of the Duffus garage for the last five or six years he was pleased with the treatment meeted out to him not only by the proprietor but by his staff and he felt sure that this would be a feature of the business which would be perpetuated.

He well remembered that prior to Mr. Duffus' taking over this present site, it was an eye sore and a disgrace to the City of Peterboro and in view of the fact that it was going to be occupied by the present owner, he knew that it would be a decided advantage to the City, not only from a standpoint of revenue but also from the viewpoint of appearance. He wished Mr. Duffus every success in his large undertaking and appreciated the privilege of officially opening the building and concluded by declaring that the premises were now officially opened.

Mr. Duffus Replies

Mr. Duffus thanked His Worship the Mayor for the kind remarks he had made and stated that he was fully qualified to say that Mayor Duncan was an extremely busy man and that it was very kind of him to consent to perform the duties of officially opening the new building.

Mr. Duffus stated that the premises were built primarily for the purpose of doing business. However one of the main features was to give more efficient service to customers. He well knew that the business had outgrown the old quarters and that it was a great inconvenience to have to do work outside. He knew that the new premises would be appreciated by his numerous customers. He stated that the building was a good and substantial one and that one of the features in building it was to eliminate as far as possible all unnecessary expense yet at the same time have a building which would be suitable for the business and likewise a credit. He also referred to the fact that being located next to Peterborough's largest hotel he was endeavoring to give the tourist traffic first class service and to treat them in such a manner as would send them away from Peterborough feeling that they had not only been properly treated but that Peterboro had first class service as far as requirements were concerned. The tourist trade to Peterborough now that the war was finished would be greater than ever on account of the attraction of the lakes adjacent to the City.

In further describing the details of the building he stated that the location was admirably adapted for garage purposes. The particular lay of the land enables access and egress without the necessity of an elevator. It has been stated by those who are conversant with the garage business that it costs at least 75c apiece to have the cars taken from floor to floor by means of an elevator, taking into consideration the investment on the plant, power for operating same and the necessary help to operate it. However, as stated before, the particular lay of the ground eliminated this expense. The building is as thoroughly fireproof as it is possible to make it. He felt sure that it would be thoroughly appreciated by car owners and the public generally both as an improvement to the City of Peterborough and also from a standpoint of revenue. In the very near future he hoped that the equipment would be most complete with ample facilities to take care of all the requirements of motorists and car owners together with getting first class service on trucks and cars used for business purposes.

Praises Contractor Hickey

Mr. Duffus stated that as the contractor, Mr. Hickey, was not present he felt that it would be quite in order for him to make some statements in regard to him, had he been present owing to his being a very modest young man he might not have taken up this feature in connection with the building.

Although a young man of between 25 and 30 years of age he would consider that Mr. Hickey was capable of assuming and carrying out to a successful conclusion any contract no matter how large or important. He was not only a first class contractor, but was also a first class mechanic as could be verified by the quality of work seen around the plant. Although it was some ten months since the building was started Mr. Duffus stated that there had scarcely been an unpleasant word uttered on the premises. He was most painstaking and careful and notwithstanding the fact that there had been upwards of $10,000 paid out in wages, there had not been the slightest accident in connection with the erection, and as far as he was concerned he would carry with him the very highest recommendations as an official builder and an honest and amicable contractor to do business with.

In connection with the opening Mr. Duffus made it plain to the citizens present that the freedom of the building was heartily extended to them for the week. He stated that while all the details were not completed he hoped to have them entirely finished within a very few days and that they would be ready to hand out to the citizens of Peterboro honest and efficient service. He thanked those present for their attendance and hoped that before the end of the week many thousands would have visited the building and that the program of moving pictures would be thoroughly enjoyed.

An Up to Date Plant

The new Duffus garage is one of the finest in the Province of Ontario and is without a doubt the best appointed and most thoroughly equipped building of its kind in the smaller cities of the Dominion.

There is not a device in general use connected with the care and repair of automobiles which is not to be found in this most complete plant.

Its luxurious show room is the latest thing in fine and tasteful finishing, comfortable furnishings and complete offices. Upon entering it for the first time the visitor is impressed with the attention to detail which appears in the artistic touches which count for so much in a big apartment of this kind.

It has the general appearance of a huge and prosperous bank with its row of offices running along one side finished in dark oak with wickets, protected with metal caging, for the transaction of business. On the floor are automobiles on exhibition, the latest models of the makes handled by the concern.

A Historic Site

It is centrally located on Water street directly across from the Empress Hotel which latter point is in its favor from the standpoint of the patronage of the tourist traffic. It is within a stone's throw of the C. P. R. tracks which makes it an easy matter to construct a siding for receiving and shipping goods.

The building itself is as nearly fireproof as human ingenuity can make it. It is constructed of concrete, steel, and brick side walls with steel sashes and fire glass wherever necessary. It is 210 feet in length and 61 feet in width.

Its floor area is approximately 25,000 square feet. It is steam heated throughout and provision has been made for the installation of an elevator if one is ever required though at the present time, as Mr. Duffus explained in his address there is no necessity for such a contrivance.

This garage has ample equipment for handling all manner of repairs on cars and doing first class work in every way. An air compressor is installed to furnish the motorist with free air; there is a re-charging plant for batteries, 6 overhead tracks and trolleys for lifting engines out of cars and replacing them and a first class washing station on each floor. The building may be termed a daylight saver in the truest sense of the term as its many windows keep the interior bright and cheerful.

The show room and offices are furnished in oak with ample provision made for salesmen, bookkeeper and stenographers. The proprietor's office is situated in the north east corner of the big apartment. The floors of the show room and offices are taraza, the walls are finished in stucco, the columns and ceilings are white and there is a marble base which runs along the partitions and columns.

There is a most complete parts department on the south side of the show room, both wholesale and retail where accessory parts for automobiles can always be had, with silent salesmen for showing the goods to the best advantage. Every provision has been made in this department for the comfort of the customer.

Mr. H. T. Hickey was the contractor responsible for the construction of the new Duffus garage. Though a young man he has acquitted himself in a most creditable manner. He is a thorough mechanic as is evidenced b ythe splendid finish of the exterior and interior of the building.

Sub-contracts in connection with the erection of the building were all let upon a competitive basis and the lowest tenderer got the job in every case. There was enough excellent gravel obtained as a result of the excavation work to fill half the requirements of the new building. 70,000 feet of lumber was purchased at a most moderate price from the Quaker Oats Company and yet there is not a board in the building. The lumber was used to make forms for the cement, scaffolding, etc. and was then sold again. The steel was also obtained from the Quaker Oats and the sash from the Henry Hope Company just before they decided to go into the munition industry.

Mr. Duffus had been considering building the garage for two years before the work began and consequently contracted for cement and glass before the raise in prices went into effect. The brick was purchased from Curtis Bros with the exception of that surrounding the show room and offices which is of the tapestry variety and was imported from Toronto.

A Self Made Man

Joseph Duffus the proprietor of the new garage is a self made man in the truest sense of the term. He was born in the country in the vicinity of Peterborough and got his start in this city. He built up his business until it has reached its present gratifying proportions and served in the city council for six years and as Mayor for two terms. He was elected to this position in the first instance by a substantial majority and was returned for a second term by acclamation. Mr. Duffus was one of the most energetic popular and progressive mayors Peterborough ever had and his tenure of office was characterized by the exercise of the same excellent business principles which he has always shown in connection with private enterprises with which he has been connected and which explains the signal success which has crowned his business life.

CONDITIONS ON ONTARIO FARMS

The following is a summary of reports made by agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The mild winter has helped owners of live stock to bring their animals along with less drain than usual upon fodder stores. There is plenty of both grain and roughage on hand, although there are some complaints that corn ensilage is poorer in feeding quality than in most years. With the drop in the price of oats, farmers are feeding more of that grain to their live stock.

Cattle are reported to be in fair conditon, and are being marketed about at usual for the time of year. A live stock shipping club in Peterborough sent out three carloads of cattle and three of hogs in the last two weeks.

The milk flow is keeping up well, and good grade Holstein cows are bringing from $100 to $175.

Horses are selling in Peterborough at from $150 to $175, but there is no great demand.

Hogs are not going to market in large numbers, and there is a tendency to turn them off somewhat light or unfinished. Prices have improved slightly, and now range from $16.50 to $17.75 a cwt. Little pigs are selling at from $6 to $8 each, but at a recent auction sale in Brant some eight-week-old pigs brought $12 apiece.

The marketing of field crops is slow, notwithstanding the large quantity of grain reported to be on hand. Hay is scarce and is selling at from $18 to $25 a ton. Alfalfa is bringing $22 a ton in Norfolk. There is an abundance of shelled corn in the southwestern counties, and Kent reports that some kept for seed is now being fed to the hogs.

About thirty cars of seed oats have been sent from Brant to the West, and eight from Norfolk through the Seed Commission.

Notwithstanding that most of the fall wheat fields have had little or no protection for the last two months reports regarding the crop are still hopeful.

Several representatives look for an increased acreage of spring wheat. Prince Edward's opinion, however, is that there is a tendency to sow less of that and the other cereals and to go more into the growing of peas and other canning factory products.

Owing to the ramarkable open weather prevailing this winter, more outside work than usual has been done.

The Huron representative states that a large number of farms are changing hands at prices varying from $6000 to $12,000 a hundred acres, according to location and equipment.

Foundation of Brotherhood.

"The doctrine of the Brotherhood of Man is a beautiful dream, but it remains forever the baseless fabric of a dream, unless it is founded upon the deepest of all realities, the Fatherhood of God. To better our social conditions we need close thoughts, careful study, a diligent application of the best methods, but at last without faith in the eternal foundations there can be no final adjustment of social difficulties, and all earthly wisdom is but as sounding brass and clanging cymbals."—Dr. Sumner Smith.

Prepared.

A train, running on a line which had achieved an unenviable notoriety for slowness and unpunctuality, after losing considerable time in a short journey, suddenly stopped in the midst of fields. "Guard!" shouted a jovial passenger, "may I get out and pick some flowers?" "Afraid you won't find many about here," said the conductor, good-humoredly. "Oh, there'll be heaps of time," replied the jovial passenger—"I've brought a packet of seeds."

Snakes in the Ocean.

There may or may not be such a thing as a sea-serpent, but there certainly are snakes in the ocean. There are numerous varieties of small snakes that live in all oceans; then there are the eels, of course, which go from the salt water to the fresh. In the waters around southern Asia there lives the banded sea snake, which has stripes around its body and broad tail, and can swim with great speed.

Prussian Military System.

During the Franco-German war, 1870-71, the armies of the various German states, though they were not Prussian, while in the field were commanded by the Prussian king and his general staff. After that war there was no difficulty in making Prussian control permanent. One after another the various states resigned direction of their armies to the king of Prussia, and for all practical purposes the German army became one. Almost immediately after the close of the Franco-German war a movement was begun to extend the imperial army, and the Prussian military system was introduced throughout the empire.

LIQUOR SHIPPED AS FRESH EGGS

TWO ENTERPRISING VISITORS AT OMEMEE LOSE THEIR TOTAL INVESTMENT.

(Special to The Review.)

Omemee, March 5.—Omemee is again in the limelight, though not in the way in which the people would most like. Last week two Jews, not in any way connected with our esteemed citizen, Mr. Stark, arrived in the village off the early morning train and made the rounds of the different stores, buying fresh eggs, also procuring a number of egg cases. During the day a large express parcel was delivered to the strangers and the "eggs" were soon re-packed and sent to the Sturgeon street station to be expressed to Toronto. The operator, on roughly handling one of the cases, was severely "spoken to" and straightway his suspicions were aroused. A bribe was offered as a silencer, but all to no avail. The egg cases were put on the train, also the unsuspecting Jews, who journeyed to Toronto, thinking they still had their prize. In the meantime the cases were taken from the train at the junction and a message sent to License Inspector Thornbury at Lindsay, who soon arrived on the scene.

On opening the five cases of "strictly fresh eggs" they were found to be particularly juicy under the top layers. Thirteen tin receptacles containing thirteen gallons of alcohol were discovered and confiscated by Inspector Thornbury.

Mrs. Fred Nugent of Lindsay paid a short visit to Omemee friends last week.

A social evening of much enjoyment was spent in the English church basement a week ago when the Sunday school anniversary was held.

One Reason Girls Steal.

This bit of philosophy of a reformed girl thief was contained in an article in the People's Home Journal on the value of the probation law: "A girl can no more live without a few pleasures and pretty possessions than she can without food. Take it from me, girls don't want to steal. If they knew how to earn things for themselves, they wouldn't be bad. Some day there'll be a way found for girls to earn what they need before they get into trouble, not after. Then the whole world'll be different."

McINTOSH PICKS DEMPSEY TO WIN IN BOUT WITH WILLARD

Former Manager of Tommy Burns Says Present Champion Will Lose Title if They Meet.

Detroit, Mich., March 5.—"If Jess Willard commits to step into the ring with Jack Dempsey, give me a ticket on Jack," commented "Billy" McIntosh, chairman of the Elks boxing committee, to a party of friends seated around him in the B. P. O. E. foyer recently.

"Billy," it will be recalled, was at one time manager of Tommy Burns, who lost the world's championship to Johnson, whom Willard vanquished at Havana.

If Tommy Burns had kept a promise he made to his Detroit manager before leaving for England, soon after defeating Bill Squires in San Francisco for the championship, Jack Johnson probably never would have been the monarch of the heavy weights and in turn Dempsey would not now be looking forward to a match for the title with Jess Willard.

Burns' Promise to McIntosh.

Burns gave his hands to McIntosh and Mrs. Burns in the Griswold hotel that he would not be ensnared into a match with Johnson under any circumstances.

When Burns arrived in London and after he knocked out Gunner Moir in the tenth round, Johnson, who had followed him abroad with Manager Fitzpatrick, started to make life miserable for the Detroiter.

Jack Palmer and Jem Roche, British scrappers, were soon put to sleep in short order by Burns, when the Johnson clamor for a championship fight became almost deafening to Tommy.

Then Burns moved to Paris and knocked out Jewey Smith in five rounds, while Bill Squires got his second quietus at Burns' hands in an eight round battle. Johnson was right on Burns' heels in the meantime, still shouting for that chance at the title.

Mr. and Mrs. Burns finally boarded a steamer for Australia and Jack Johnson and his retinue followed them into the antipodean port on the next vessel.

When Tommy Weakened.

Not until Burns had landed the knock-out punch on Bill Squires for the third time and had Bill Lang slumbering in dreamland after a six period battle did Johnson and his cohorts make an impression on Burns.

The $30,000 looked sweet to Tommy and there resulted a broken promise to his friend and manager, Billy McIntosh of Detroit.

The remainder of the story is familiar ring history.

Reverting to Willard and Dempsey, McIntosh says he doubts whether Willard will enter the ring with Jack.

"The champion is well fixed in this world's goods," he declared, "and is in the way of adding largely to what he already possesses.

"He is interested heavily in producing oil wells in Oklahoma and the money germ is deeply imbedded in his system. Then, again, he weighs closer to 300 pounds at present than 275 as he states. I know this from friends who have seen him recently.

"I doubt whether he could get down to fighting trim again if he tried, and it is a surety he couldn't reduce and retain his strength below 275. Dempsey, in the prime of his manhood, weighs about 190 and has a punch every bit as hard as the champion had in his prime.

Will Steer Shy of Jack.

"I was in New York when Willard met Frank Moran and although it is said Jess didn't exert himself, I know differently. Willard did his best every inch of the ten round route. I know Moran wanted to win by a knockout, which was necessary to attain the championship, but the best he could do was to keep Willard guessing to the end.

"Now, if Willard couldn't knock out Moran within ten rounds, what is he going to do against a clever slugger like Jack Dempsey? We all know what Dempsey could and would do to Moran in one round if they ever met.

"Therefore, I don't believe Willard will ever submit to the chance of being knocked cold by this ferocious Utah fighter."

BIG BASEBALL FIGHT OPENS

President John Heydler of the National league has come out against the proposed switch of the major leagues back to the old schedule of 154 games. The time is now too short to make the change, he declares. President Johnson of the American league refused to discuss the proposed move of certain magnates. That a concerted battle to force in the old schedule may ensue is the opinion of baseball men in Chicago. President Comiskey of the White Sox is a strong advocate of the long schedule and deplored the switch to 140 games.

Agitation for the old schedule was started this week in New York by three magnates—Harry Frazee of the Red Sox, Charles Stoneham of the New York Giants and Col. T. L. Huston of the New York Yankees. Officials of the Chicago Cubs favor the long schedule. Inasmuch as the cubs and the Giants are the big money-makers of the National league, President Mitchell and Manager McGraw may be able to force and fight against the abbreviated schedule. Comiskey, Frazee and Huston seem to be outvoted in the American league.

Toronto, March 5.— Secretary W. A. Hewit of the O. H. A. today confirmed the report that the finals in the junior series, Woodstock vs. U. T. S. or Cornwall and in the intermediates, Kingston vs. Collingwood, would probably be played in Toronto Arena, owing to the uncertainty of ice in the smaller centres.

Defaulter Given Six Months' Term

Sudbury, March 5.—For luring at the Dominion officer, Orvillo Deschene, a defaulter under the M.S.A., was given six months at Burwash Farm, and a further sentence of six months for having failed to report for military registration, both sentences to run concurrently. In giving up, Magistrate Brodie commented on the lack of uniformity in the administration of the M.S.A., and enumerated several cases in other courts where the tendency was to make the monetary penalty heavy and the jail term light, presumably to punish the parents to some extent, as they were in many cases to blame. Magistrate Brodie made it clear that while he would avoid throwing delinquents under the M.S.A. into prison with hardened criminals, his court would not implement any contempt for the act. Deschene is in poor health and since his capture has aided the Crown in several other cases. If his ill-health continues, Magistrate Brodie promised a recommendation for clemency on a doctor's certificate.

France Will Aid In Feeding Huns

Paris, March 5.—France has receded from her position with reference to food for Germany, and after an all-day session of the Supreme Economic Council a compromise has been reached whereby the French claims upon money Germany purposed to use for food payments will be satisfied in such a way as to enable her to withdraw her objections, which have been stated in these despatches.

Germany will pay for her supplies partly in cash and partly in notes and partly in materials. France's interests will be secured so that the reparation due to her will not be diverted to any other purpose. Details of the new plan are to be given to the Germans at the Spa meeting, which will be held Tuesday. The solution of the problem displays a serious difficulty, for all were agreed that grave danger lay in failure to permit the Bermans sufficient food to fight down famine and its commitant Bolshevism

MEMBER URGES PRICE FIXING

J. C. ELLIOTT SAYS GOVERNMENT SHOULD SET VALUE OF WHEAT.

Toronto, March 5.—Speaking on the debate in reply to the Speech from the Throne in the Legislature yesterday, Mr. J. C. Elliott, the Liberal member for West Middlesex, strongly urged upon the Government the necessity of using its influence to have the price fixed for the 1919 wheat crop. Mr. Elliott ably defended the course of the farmers in having asked for a fixed price for the wheat crop. He pointed out that when the price of $2.20 a bushel was fixed in 1917 it was 20 cents lower than the prevailing market price. During the next two years the price of agricultural implements increased 25 per cent. each year as the result of increased labor costs, but the price of wheat remained the same. Now that the war is over and the farmer did not benefit by a sufficiently high price of wheat during the last years of the conflict to meet the abnormal costs, Mr. Elliott urged that the price of $2.20 should be assured the agriculturists for the 1919 crop.

GENERAL SIR SAM HUGHES SCORES THE UNIONISTS

Canadian Troops, He Said, Were Needlessly Sacrificed at the Front---Scalps Sir Joseph Flavelle.

Ottawa, March 5.—If Mr Hocken of Toronto occupied the centre of the stage in the debate on the address, that place was certainly taken in the House of Commons yesterday by Major-General Sir Sam Hughes. If Mr. Hocken scourged the Union Government with whips, Sir Sam scourged them with scorpions. Mr. Hocken found nothing much wrong except the civil service commission, but General Hughes found pretty nearly everything wrong with the Union Government.

His most serious charge was that the Government had badly handled the conduct of the war, at least after the time he ceased to be Minister of Militia. Canadian soldiers, he claimed, had been recklessly and uselessly sacrificed in the taking of Cambrai, "a dirty, one horse town not worth the life of a single Canadian soldier, and filled with machine guns and booby traps." The assault upon Mons after the signing of the armistice and within four hours of the time fixed for the cessation of hostilities was roundly denounced. Sir Sam had no hesitation in saying that the commander of the Canadian Corps should have been court-martialed.

No Spoon Feeding.

Neither did Gen. Hughes believe that the Government addressed itself properly to the problem of demobilization. He did not think the stern, capable, splendid men coming back from service overseas wanted to be coddled, spoon-fed, or carried around to pink teas. They wanted a chance, he said, to build up homes, to fill many of the good positions now occupied by aliens, and to take their part in the government of the country. They were not seeking positions as village postmasters or elevator men.

The finance minister was fiercely assailed for his extravagant expenditure in flotation of the Victory loans. High interest had been paid, the bonds had been exempted from taxation, and yet it cost us nearly five dollars, and in some cases more than five dollars, for every one hundred dollars obtained, while the United States secretary of the treasury had borrowed many billions at an average cost of less than twenty cents for every hundred dollars raised.

The general had a good deal to say about Sir Joseph Flavelle, "the owner of the Government," his huge profits and his political intrigues. Sir Joseph was charged with the conspiracy to oust Sir Robert Borden from the premiership presumably to instal Sir Thomas White, and had gone so far as to open negotiations with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, but, according to Sir Sam, "that wily old statesman" refused to negotiate. He was glad to see independence growing among members of Parliament and declared that the acting prime minister would find it difficult to "cajole, butter-down, pussy-foot or side-step his followers."

The sale of seats begins tomorrow morning. O'Hara plays the role of Dick Leigh, a dashing young man whose rashness leads him into a hasty marriage which he bitterly regrets when he meets the winsome Lady Evelyn O'Connor. The play is filled with romance, amusing situations, wholesome comedy, and a delightful element of mystery, which is sustained up to the very end. Four new songs, especially written for the star's use in the play, have been provided; they are "The Kind of a Girl I mean," "Peggy McVey," "I'm Falling in Love With You Dear" and "There's a Charm of Dear Old Ireland in Your Eyes." AIDING VETERANS TO OBTAIN WORK

The Soldiers' Aid Commission is giving increased attention with the object of assisting in relieving the state of unemployment in this province, especially.

The Commission advises that they have inaugurated a system, which is now in operation, whereby the several branches in each locality will be notified each week of positions available for returned men throughout the province, and the Commission asks for earnest co-operation.

A complete list of employment opportunities will be mailed to the Peterborough branch every Tuesday morning, that the branch may be in touch with the employment situation insofar as returned soldiers are concerned throughout the province. It is hoped that by concerted effort and, diligence all returned men in this locality and out of work may be absorbed, providing, of course, that they are willing to leave their home town or city.

Returned men are asked to communicate at once with the local secretary of the Soldiers' Aid Commission, Mr. F. H. Dobbin, at the city building, when record will be made, and as soon as the list is received of places available, it will be placed at he disposal of the men who are applying.

Holiness Service At S. A. Temple

Dapite the inclement weather last night a splendid crowd gathered at the Temple and enjoyed the bright and helpful service conducted by Adjutant and Mrs. Buntin. The topic was "Spiritual Decline in the Church and Its Cause," and the lesson taken was from the story of David. The Adjutant clearly showed how the tolerance of sin in the individual heart started a gradual decline of holiness and at last led to spiritual death.

Tonight Mrs. Adjutant Buntin will speak, and her talk will be on "A Sound From Heaven." This promises to be of unusual interest, so come along and enjoy an hour of singing and the study of God's word.

Service commences sharp at eight o'clock.

CLOSING EXHIBITION YESTERDAY EVENING — PIERROT PLAYERS TONIGHT.

Dr. H. D. Girdwood delivered his illustrated address, "The Empire's Fighters," before a good crowd, considering the weather conditions, for the third time in the Grand Opera House last night.

The first pictures shown were of Palestine, very interesting and typical. Next, several maps of India were flashed on the screen, showing the homes of the brave Sikhs, Gurkhas, Jats and other Indian fighters. The audience was then shown pictures of these brave Indian soldiers, both on their way to the front and while in trenches and billets. Although the greater part of the film is taken up with showin gour brave Indian allies, others parts of the Empire are by no means overlooked, one section of the film showing the charge of a famous English regiment. The difficulty of transporting men, guns and munitions across streams was ably depicted. The pictures of two tanks in motion were well worth the price of admission alone, with the pictures of the dirigible Zeppelins, in the minds of many, being their equal.

The concluding reel shows some of the British transports camouflaged and, by permission of the Canadian Government, the Aquitania docking at Halifax with a large number of our returned soldiers, and their disembarking and entraining for their homes.

The famous Pierrot Players will be at the Grand tonight.

MOVIES AT THE GARAGE.

MRS. LEACH LOST TWO HUSBANDS

BOTH FELL IN WAR AND SHE IS GRANTED NEW PENSION.

Toronto, March 5.—An unique case and a precedent in the matter of awarding pensions has been unearthed in the case of Mrs. Florence Leach, 391 Shaw street. Mrs. Leach, for the second time, having been granted a pension as the widow of a deceased soldier. The pensions regulations state that immediately upon re-marriage the pension is cut off. This was the case with Mrs. Leach when as the widow of Pte. Harold Goodall, she married for the second time.

In marrying a disabled soldier she again forfeited the right to a second pension in case her husband died. But the Pensions Board decided that as she had shown good faith in forfeiting her first pension to marry a man from whom she could receive no pension in case of his death, she should be made an exception of and awarded a pension for the second time for herself and one child. There is no other case of a similar nature on record in the whole Dominion.

Mrs. Leach's first husband, Pte. Goodall, was a soldier in the famous 3rd Battalion, leaving Canada in October of 1914 and making the supreme sacrifice at St. Julien on April 23, 1915. Her second husband was formerly of the 23rd Battery and was returned to Canada and discharged as totally disabled as a result of having his leg broken by a shell and having contracted tubercular trouble. He died later as a result of his disabilities.

The matter of a second pension was taken up by the local G.W.V.A. last October and a pension of $600 has been secured for Mrs. Leach and her one child.

The largest attendance of this year at a meeing of the club was recorded, when about fifty boys sat down to supper. Mr. Wallace Mulligan, the leader of the club, had arranged for a capable speaker for the evening in the person of Mr. Leo Copp, a veteran of the great war. After the transaction of the regular business of the club, Mr. R. Moore, grand chief mogul, called upon Mr Copp for the treat of the evening. Mr. Copp certainly held the attention of his listeners when he spoke on the "History of Canterbury." The address lasted about half an hour, and was voted by one and all as being one of the finest delivered before the club this winter.

STOCK & SONS, has been incorporated into a Joint Stock Company and Mr. Stock will be President of the Company, Mr. James Dutton will continue his position as Superintendent and Mr. Percy Stock who has been three years overseas, part of the time in the Royal Air Service, and who was wounded and discharged, will act as Assistant General Manager.

It is not the intention of the Company to carry on any other business except bread making, but to give every attention to increasing its output and the development of the business which has already had a most striking growth.

This Company is a purely Peterborough Company and Wm. Stock & Sons, have been known for the last quarter of a century as being at the front with up-to-date methods, sanitary appliances and large and well ventilated bakeries in which the Company will continue to carry on bread manufacturing.

BOTH FARMER MEMBERS REFUSE TO CAST VOTES

Bowman and Widdifield Do Not Record Stand on Address—Discussion Carried by Government Majority of 33.

Toronto, March 6 — The debate upon the Speech from the Throne wound up rather tamely yesterday afternoon with a division upon an amendment submitted at the "eleventh hour" by Hartley Dewart, K.C., calling for a return to the old election law of the province, the abandonment of the system of enumeration and the eight weeks' interval between nominations and elections. In none of the addresses that preceded that of the SouthWest Toronto member was there any complaint from the Liberals about the Election Act, but when it came to a vote they were all lined up in support of the amendment. The division—the first of the session, showed a majority of 33 for the Government, 58 yeas and 25 nays, with Allan Studholme, the labor member voting with the Opposition. Interest in the vote centred in the attitude of the two United Farmer representatives, Beniah Bowman, of Manitoulin, and J. W. Widdifield, of North Ontario. They were generally expected to vote with the Liberals. But they upset all calculations by sitting tight in their seats, voting neither one way nor the other—and incidentally smashing to smithereens a well-established rule that members in the House during a vote must declare their position. There are precedents for abstention from voting but always there were exceptional circumstances, such as those surrounding the voting in the House at the time Mr. Proudfoot, the present Liberal leader, made his famous charges against Hon. W. J. Hanna. At that time by arangement neither Mr. Proudfoot nor Sir James Whitney voted.

When questioned later the two U.F.O. members were a little diffident about explaining their refusal to vote, but from their remarks it was evident that if they had voted it would not have been with the Opposition, though Liberal members seemed to be taking it for granted that the two Farmers would have been with them but for their disinclination to be lined up with either party so early in the session.

No Chance To Get Lakefield Dam

(Special Correspondence.)

Toronto, March 6.—No decision has been reached or is one likely in the near future by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission regarding the application from Lakefield and Peterboro interest, arguing the Commission to take over Lakefield dam for power purposes. Secretary Pope today stated that the Commission has been besieged with requests from various interests and municipalities regarding the taking over of water utilities and explained that the Board is developing as fast as possible and must accept these undertakings only when they can be handled.

BIGGEST BUDGET YET SUBMITTED

PROVINCIAL TREASURER McGARRY WILL BRING DOWN FIGURES THIS AFTERNOON.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, March 6.—Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer, will this afternoon present to the Legislature, his budget for the fiscal year. This is expected to be the largest in the history of the Province, owing to the fact that many large public works postponed during the war are included. It is said that some nine millions are provided for Hydro improvements and five millions for highways, also large amounts for public institutions. It is officially stated that the amusement tax will not be lifted at present.

Eighty men rejected for service in the Siberian expeditionary force arrived in Toronto from Victoria, B.C.

TRADES COUNCIL DECIDES TO INCREASE THE YEARLY DUES

Raises the Scale For Each Union From $6 to $8 a Year but System of Representation Remains Unchanged.

There will be no change in the representation to the Trades Council. That much was decided upon last night when the move to increase the number of delegates, giving each union representation according to the number of its members, the tax to be increased in the same proportion, was voted down. On motion of Delegate Hartley of the Bricklayers' Union, the yearly dues of each union were increased from $6 to $8 a year, and this will materially add to the annual revnue of the Council. Each affiliated union will be allowed to send five delegates as heretofore, regardless of the number of names it has on its own roll.

A request was received from the Trades Council in Brantford asking the local body to co-operate in a memorial to the Legislature asking for the removal of property qualifications for municipal office was concurred in. The city council here will be asked to use its influence to the same end.

The Price of Bread.

The question of the price of bread gave rise to an animated discussion. Some of the delegates were unable to see how it is possible for the local bakers to send bread to Campbellford and other points and sell it for less than they obtain from the Peterborough consumers. The aldermen will be asked to appoint a fair price board, as authorized by the recent order-in-council, to look into this and other questions affecting the people.

The Council also adopted and will forward to Ottawa a protest against the proposed increase of the sessional indemnity to $2500, or $1000 more than the present allowance.

The local bakers have always claimed that they are responsible for the price charged for the bread they ship to neighboring towns. Very often the dealers in those places begin a war and undersell each other. Anyway, the manufacturers claim it is cheaper to send bread to these places in bulk. The cost of house-to-house delivery, they save by so doing is more than the charge of the railways for carrying the bread.

FIELD MARSHAL HINDENBURG WARNS HUNS TO RALLY TO DEFENCE OF THEIR HOMES

Country is Threatened by Bolshevist Forces on Eastern Frontier—Strike in Berlin Likely to Collapse Owing to the Lack of Co-Operation Among Different Factions.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, March 6—The military situation on the Eastern front is painted in blackest colors by Field Marshal Von Hindenburg in an interview printed here. The Feld Marshal declares that unless the population generally rallies to the defence of their homes and families it will be impossible to ward off the attacks of the Bolshevik forces. The expectations of the Poles and the entente that the Poles will succeed to the German inheritance in the east will be blasted, he says.

I know the poles and the country in the east will belong either to us or to Bolsheviki," he adds.

Strike Reaches Climax

Newspapers here appear to be of the opinion that strike movement has reached a climax and that there are indications that the political issues involved will find an early adjustment through negotiations going on at Weimar.

The Independent Socialists seem to be backing away from the movement now and to be endeavoring to unload the responsibility for the outbreak on to the Spartacans, who are accused of having precipitated the strike before the organization plans had been perfected. The slogan "down with Scheidemann and Ebert," is no longer given prominence in the agitation.

At the preliminary session greater Berlin Socialists have rejected a Spartacus resolution aimed at the Majority Socialists and Government, and declared, instead that the strike has been aimed at the Government only because the demands made by the working men have not been met satisfactorily. The Vorwaerts, Socialist organ, states that it believes an understanding will be reached in the course of the day.

JAMES C. SHOOK DIED AT HIS HOME THIS MORNING

The city of Peterborough lost one of its foremost citizens this morning in the death of James C. Shook, secretary and managing director of the Dickson Company, Limited.

For the past five months Mr. Shook had been in ill health and this morning at 5 o'clock he passed away in the sixty-sixth year of his life.

He had been identified with the business activities of Peterborough ever since he came here as manager of the Dickson Company in 1901. He understood the lumber industry in all its branches, having been connected with it from his youth upward, and as the efficient head of the corporation in this city was in great measure responsible for the success which attended its operations and which advanced it to the position of one of the premier lumbering firms in Central Ontario.

The late James C. Shook was born in Toronto township near the city of the same name, in the county of Peel. From the first he was interested in lumbering, being connected with it in Ontario for some years before going west to British Columbia, where the industry then being opened up flourishes to a degree that is attained in few places in the world. Here he added to his experience, and when, in 1901, he came east and assumed the position of secretary and managing director of the Dickson Lumber Company, it is safe to state that there was not a man in the Province of Ontario possessing a more intimate knowledge of the business in all its phases.

During his tenure of office the firm has had a period of unqualified success which was in a great measure due to the executive ability of its manager.

Mr. Shook took no active part in public life, though interested in church work and a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church as well as being president of the Y.M.C.A. in this city for many years. He was a member of Royal Arthur Chapter, A. F. & A. M.

He was married to Katharine Hagerman who, together with three sons, survives. The sons are: Driver S. Archie, in France with the 18th Battery; Kenneth H., in Vancouver, and J. Donald, of Toronto. Mr. David Shook, of Tings, Ontario, is a brother. Mrs. E. Snider, Mrs. Pollard, Mrs. W. J. Hendry and Miss D. Shook of Toronto are sisters of deceased.

The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon to St. Paul's Church thence to Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. Robt. Pogue will conduct the services.

UNION IS LIKELY WITH AUSTRIANS

ARRANGEMENTS TO DRAW UP TREATY FOR SUBMISSION TO ASSEMBLIES.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berne, March 6.—German newspapers received here contain a semi-official communication concerning negotiated between Dr. Otto Bauer, Foreign Minister of German-Austria and the German Government for a union between German-Austria and Germany. The union, says the communicant, will be promulgated as soon as questions of detail now being discussed by various commissions set up for that purpose are settled and a treaty, it is believed, which will be submitted to two national assemblies. After ratification by the assemblies imperial laws will be arranged for the union of Austria to the Empire. In the preparation of these Austrian representatives will be asked to collaborate.

TO DECIDE ISSUE AT THE CAUCUSES

FEDERAL PROHIBITION CONTINUES TO BE LIVE QUESTION IN HOUSE.

Ottawa, March 6.—The discussion of the outlook for Federal prohibition legislation was stimulated by the announcement of the policy of the Quebec Government. The Dominion Government has laid down its general policy on the subject through the announcement in the speech from the Throne that validation would be sought of orders-in-Council "prohibiting the importation and manufacture of intoxicating beverages and the transportation thereof into any community where their sale is contrary to law."

It has been considered likely that the Federal Government would provide for a referendum on the question and make provision for the manufacture in a province of beverages of such alcohol strength legally saleable therein. It is stated that details of the legislation to be presented to Parliament have not yet been settled and will, to a considerable extent, depend upon the views put forward at Government caucuses to be held between now and the introduction of the bill.

NEW PROBLEMS FOR CUSTOMS MEN

ARE AIRPLANES FLYING INTO COUNTRY SUBJECT TO TARIFF TAX?

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, March 6.—Customs authorities have encountered the first case of an airplane imported into the United States under its own motive power. An American bought a Canadian plane and it was flown across the border near Detroit. The question then arose as to whether it was dutiable, particularly since airplanes are not mentioned in the tariff acts. Customs officials finally decided that if it remains permanently in the United States it should be taxed as a manufactured article at the rate of twenty per cent. and if it flies out of the country again within six months it will be regarded as on tour and will not be taxed. In view of the prospects that international air touring may soon be common the ruling was regarded as important.

Both Sides Lost Heavily in Fight

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Copenhagen, March 6.—Both Spartacans and Government fences lost a large number of killed in the fighting Wednesday before police headquarters in the Alexander Platz, according to a Berlin despatch. Fighting finally ended by negotiating.

CURRIE WRITES ON CAPTURE OF MONS

SPECIAL PRIVILEGE TO TAKE THAT CITY BEFORE HOSTILITIES CEASED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Victoria, B.C. March 6th.—In view of Sir Sam Hughes' criticism in the Commons alleging "needless slaughter of Canadians in the capture of Mons on the day the armistice was signed, a private letter received here yesterday from Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, is an interesting coincidence. He said "we regard it as a special privilege that we were able to drive the Boche from the historic city of Mons before we knew the armistice was going into effect. I received the news of the taking of Mons before I received a wire from general headquarters telling me hostilities would cease at 11 o'clock."

Gen. Currie mentioned that most of the third division was in England February 11th routed for home and the first, second and fourth divisions would follow in the order named all Canadians to be back in Canada by the end of June.

Millions of Money Looted in Berlin

London, March 6.—Robberies amounting to many millions' worth of property in Berlin have been carried out in the last two days, according to a Reuter despatch from that city. Jewelers' stores were looted, and also drapers' establishments where goods were taken valued at hundreds of thousands of marks. In the northeast of the town, dairy, produce and meat shops have been plundered.

BOOTLEGGER RUNS RIOT ON STREETS OF TORONTO

Assaults Policeman and Escapes Then Shoots Man Who Tried to Stop His Flight.

(Special Correspondence.)

Toronto, March 6.—Police Constable Holmes has a badly battered face, William Meade, a street cleaner, is in the hospital with a bullet wound in his arm and Basil Belinski (Russian), an alleged "bootlegger" from Montreal, is under arrest on three charges, following an hour or so of wild west excitement on down town Toronto streets this morning. The policemen suspected Belinski when he got off the train at the Union station and was escorting him to the police station when the prisoner smashed him in the face and made a break for liberty. Meade, who was working on the roadway, tried to trip Belinski with his shovel, and the fugitive shot him through the arm. Holmes finally captured and handcuffed. Belinski, who was found to have several gallons of liquor on him in a life preserver, shaped arrangement around his chest.

Retail Dealers Protest Stamp Act

The Retail Merchants' Association has adopted the following resolution, a copy of which has been sent to Capt. J. H. Burnham, M.P.:

"Resolved, that we, the members of the Retail Merchants' Association of Peterborough request the Dominion Government to abrogate the Stamp Act as far as it affects dealers in patent medicines, proprietary medicines and toilet preparations. Owing to the number of technical features in the Act, it is impossible for the dealers to tell what articles should be stamped. On this account many unwillfully render themselves liable to a fine for violation of an Act subject to such varied interpretations. Furthermore, as the war is over, the public are protesting against the payment of the tax and it leads to unnecessary disputes and misunderstandings between dealer and customer.

"We also condemn the method of the Government in carrying out the Act in seeking convictions by employing detectives who are offered a premium to hound a body of retail merchants whose veracity and honor we believe to be much superior to the instrument used to obtain convictions."

The association approved of the policy of the Board of Trade, with which it is affiliated. The members went on record as favoring a grant by the City Council to the Fair Board. It was also decided to help in the thrift movement, and these stamps will be handled by the dealers in their business.

SIX HOURS A DAY WITHOUT STOPS

HENRY FORD PROPOSES NEW PLAN FOR BENEFIT OF EMPLOYES.

Detroit, March 6.—Henry Ford's latest utopian idea for improving conditions of his employes is a six-hour working day without any stopping for meals. The plan as outlined provides for a man to have his breakfast and then go to work, remaining on the job for six straight hours, and coming home ready for dinner at, say 1 p.m., with the knowledge that his day's labor is over.

The plan is said to be another of the multi-millionaire auto magnate's for prolonging the life of his employes, he believing he can get as much work out of them on a basis of a straight six hour shift as on an eight hour working day, and at the same time the employes would have more opportunity to enjoy home life. If the new plan is put into effect workmen getting $6 a day would be paid $1 an hour.

No statement of any kind is forthcoming from either Mr. Ford or his aids, the story being credited to employes who have been cautioned not to talk about the plan until it can be tried out.

BRITISH OBJECT TO ITALY'S POLICY

IN MAINTAINING FOOD BLOCKADE AGAINST NEW DEMOCRATIC STATES

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, March 6.—British and French delegates here have been bitterly outspoken in the Supreme war council and the supreme economic council in criticism of the food blockade which the Italian Government is maintaining against Dalmatia, Bosnia, Herzegovina, Croatia and Slovenia, the new democracies built out of the old Austrian empire are relied upon by the entente as a protection against the Bolshevik wave, and the food shortage in them is increasing the chaos, while Italo-Slav crossing the chaos. While American delegates are less outspoken that British and French regarding the Italian action, they are concerned over the situation which is stopping all American relief work.

LABOR PARTY NOMINEE.

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 6. — Chas. F. Swayze, a prominent Labor leader of this city, has been nominated as candidate for the Independent Labor party for this riding at the coming election for the Legislature.

NO INDEMNITY THAT GERMANY CAN PAY WILL BE SUFFICIENT

Bonar Law Says the Allies Can Never Hope to Receive Back Money Spent in War —Urgent to Get Peace Quickly.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 6.—Replying to the debate in the House of Commons on foreign affairs, Bonar Law, Government Leader, said that few peoples now had any illusions with regard to Bolshevism. The Allies agreed that something must be done for Russia, but none would recommend despatching necessary forces to quell the anarchy there. The Government realized that country expected to get the best possible indemnities from Germany. He emphasized the point that it was Great Britain's business to get every penny it could, but it was useless to hold out the hope that the indemnities would wipe out the countries' immense war debt. He agreed that it was urgent to get peace quickly because there was real danger of Germany sinking into Bolshevism. Moreover there was the greatest necessity to get their own trade and industry restarted. Therefore, the sooner the blockade was ended with the knowledge that they could depend upon no other weapon, the better it would be for Britain and the world.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

THURSDAY, MARCH 6th, 1919

A DOCTOR OF THE OLD SCHOOL.

FOR OVER THIRTY YEARS the late Dr. McGrath practised his profession in this city, and in all that time it is safe to say that he never made an enemy. There will be genuine grief at his passing. The poor and the suffering have lost a true, unselfish friend. With the late Dr. McGrath, Christian charity was a strong virtue and human sympathy was a religion. He worked and lived to relieve distress rather than to make money, and the commercial side of his profession possessed no interest for him. He was a doctor of the old school, the members of which, unfortunately for the human race, are slowly passing from earth.

THOSE SESSIONAL INDEMNITIES.

THE LOCAL Trades and Labor Council has gone on record as opposed to increasing the yearly indemnity of members of Parliament from $2500 to $3500 or by any lesser amount. Is Labor in taking this attitude true to its avowed principle that the laborer is worthy of his hire, and is it consistent with its policy of adequate compensation for service rendered?

The payment of public officials was originally brought about by the working classes in order to give themselves a chance to occupy these very positions. If members of Parliament were not paid or were allowed only a nominal compensation, none but the wealthy would be able to serve, and the result would be a plutocratic representation, as was the case in England for so many years. If aldermen were paid for their services, more workingmen could afford to act in that capacity.

If it is true, as some assert, that there are members of Parliament not worth the salary now paid them, that would be equally true if the compensation was less than what it is. Some men in any public position are worth considerably less than nothing. But the remedy for such cases is easy. Such men can be replaced by others.

Labor is aspiring to send men from its own ranks to Parliament, and Labor should not be opposed to granting them compensation sufficient to involve such representatives in no financial sacrifice.

PROHIBITION AND POLITICS.

THE TEMPERANCE question in its local application has often suffered at the hands of its professed friends, men who have been unable to separate it as a sheep from the goats that browse in the political field. The question as it is raised now wears the same earmarks. Prohibition is being used not as a means of promoting general social and moral improvement, but as a plan of bringing embarrassment to the party in power.

It has ever been thus. It was the same in the fall of 1912, when the question of submitting the local option issue was up before the temperance executive in Peterborough. The rank and file believed that the time was opportune for a vote. Members of the executive thought otherwise, and their every step to stay the movement were a political tinge.

The situation was peculiar. There was a provincial general election in the offing, and the temperance question was to be the issue. The hope, sole and final, of the "drys" was centred in N. W. Rowell, who at the legislative session of the previous winter had announced his "abolish-the-bar-but-leave-the-shops-open policy" — a sorry compromise if ever one had been foisted upon a long-suffering public.

If local option had been carried in Peterborough in 1912 the temperance question would have lost all direct interest for the people. They would have had all and more than all that the Rowell policy, if given effect, would have brought them. The issue would not have figured in the provincial election. The one hope of the Opposition to score success in this riding was through the open bars, just as soup kitchens and other evils are made the avenues to place and power on other occasions, and in wider fields.

Some of the members of the local executive of the temperance party, men whose political affiliations were no secret, and whose fidelity to party through good and bad report had never been challenged, developed cold feet. Several meetings were called, but the sentiment was against a vote. The argument used was that the time was not auspicious. Defeat would simply set back the cause, and all the progress made by years of effort would be lost.

One member of the executive who urged an election was Rev. James Rollins, and finally he prevailed. But the executive went half-heartedly into the fray. Among the members were many seasoned politicians, men who were skilled in every campaign artifice, and yet the organization was imperfect. Little effort was made to get out the women voters, whose support on such occasions was always counted upon by the temperance forces.

Lacking a two-thirds majority local option was defeated. Two years later the provincial election was held and there was no question as to the enthusiasm with which the former lukewarm members of the executive, decked out in their true political regalia, entered the fray. They espoused the Rowell compromise, even though they had their doubts before as to the efficacy of the full measure of prohibition, bars and shops closed alike, for which they now clamor.

It is unfortunate for the cause of temperance that so many active workers are prohibitionists first and temperance advocates incidentally. As much was apparent in every bye-election held in Ontario since the Temperance Act went into effect. As much was apparent, too, in Peterborough when the agitation for Federal interference in the temperance prerogatives of the Ontario Legislature was taken up here with unconstitutional enthusiasm. The men most active in that agitation were all practically tagged with the same mark, branded with the same iron.

And now local history seems to be repeating itself. So-called temperance workers are apparently intent not so much upon fighting the forces of evil as getting political opponents into a tight place. Otherwise there would be less personal animus pervading the discussions.

SIR SAM HUGHES ON THE WAR.

SOMETHING SENSATIONAL was expected of Sir Sam Hughes in his address in Parliament on the management of the war, but no one dreamed that he would go to the extreme to which he did when he declared that the lives of Canadian soldiers were needlessly sacrificed to make glory for the generals who directed their movements on the field. It is too much to expect of Sir Sam that he would approve of the management of which he had himself been relieved.

Canadian soldiers beyond all question sacrificed their own lives when they might have saved them. Sir Sam, however, view that operation from a distance. His ideas on the method of attack are open to debate. His terrible charges against the officers in the war sound too much like campaign claptrap to be received with anything like seriousness. If he were less personally interested in the issues he raises more importance would be attached to what he says.

FARCE AND TRAGEDY.

(Toronto Telegram.)

A HIERARCHY of political favorites appointed by the working of the spoils sytem was clothed with power to abolish the spoils system.

Civil service reform merely transferred the patronage of the party's friends to the Cabinet Ministers and their friends, and their wives' friends, to the Deputy Ministers and their wives' friends, and their friends and relatives to the third and fourth generation.

The speech of H. C. Hocken, M.P., exposed the alleged shams, fraud and favoritism in the working of civil service reform. The absurdity of the whole instrumentality is illustrated in the choice of the following specialists to aid in the search for the man best qualified to serve as Inspector of Penitentiaries:

Dr. C. K. Clarke, of Toronto.
Dr. Page, of Quebec.
F. H. Chrysler, K.C., of Ottawa.
C. A. Magrath, of Ottawa.
Surg.-Gen. J. T. Fotheringham.

The Civil Service Commission is absolutely condemned by its own choice of authorities invited to help select an Inspector of Penitentiaries. Mr. Hocken's speech is an attempt to lock the stable door after the horse is stolen. The time for H. C. Hocken, M.P., to speak out was last session, when Col. John A. Currie, M.P., stood up almost alone in his attempt to prevent the exodus of the equine from the stable of justice to the soldiers and fair play to everybody in the distribution of appointments to public office.

A SOLDIER WHO SAVED MONEY

(By F. H. Dobbin)

It is a cheerful thing in these times of unemployment and general claims that the cost of living and general living expense for the last two years has been so high that people cannot make ends meet to find that one comes across a case that stands out as an evidence of what economy and decent application can accomplish.

Talking with a plumber, he told the story. It seemed to him as worthy of attention. And as standing out against the general mass of complaint and with a situation that has come and which so many are unable to meet. He said that the other night a returned soldier walked into his shop, and after greetings, asked what it would cost to put plumbing into small house. A plain bath, basin and closet. No frills. Something durable and capable.

The plumber made some figures. All plumbers make figures, whether they make use of them or not. People generally think that the plumber guesses high enough. Anyway the figures come out away up in the costly region of taking a big slice off the estimates. He quoted a price for the work and fixtures.

The soldier considered and said that the price seemed not unreasonably. That the plumber could go ahead and put the fixtures in, and gave the street and number of the house. Now the plumber happened to know of the house, and asked if the soldier was going to put plumbing into a house for which he would be the tenant, and was told that the soldier was the owner, he and his wife having bought the house the day before.

And the soldier added the interesting particulars, and it would seem that there will be few able to duplicate the narrative, that from the amount saved by his wife from her allowances of pay, separation allowance and patriotic fund, and with what he had saved from his share of the pay while abroad, they were able to get together with a little money he had before he went away, $1400.00 and settle the house matter on the spot. The owner having other uses for money let the house go at a substantial reduction for cash.

And the soldier further added, which showed a decent sense of financing, that from his War Gratuity he hoped to save enough to straighten up the plumber's bill, build a shed, put down a cement walk and generally fix things up about the house. He had a job to go to the next week and would from his earnings keep the family going in fair shape. In the family were a wife and three children. And the soldier admitted, what might have turned out to be true, that if he had not gone to the war, and made a situation that did come up, had he stayed at home he and wife might never have lived up to the income and would not have been able to secure the house. Which brings up the reflection, and a true state of affairs, that the work of the war has developed that there are two outstanding classes, so far as home economics go, among the men who went. One class where the husband was careless and possibly selfish; so far as personal expenditures were concerned. He personally used for himself more than he should of the family income. The wife never had a chance to show what she could do. Left to herself, in the absence of the husband, and relieved of the expense of his maintenance from the general family income, she hustled to and saved.

Then the other situation. The husband was the balance wheel of the family machine, steadying the expenditure, holding down a disposition to buy not wisely and well. Retaining a desire and willingness to run into debt. Living within the family income as best they might. With his discriminating influence removed the wife became careless in money matters. Possibly, as has been the case in many instances, gave way to that feminine fondness and longing for nice things and to buy not matters of utility but expedients. Having a steady income, all in real money it seemed that things would go on in the same way forever. And then when the husband came home, if it pleased the fortunes of war to so permit, that he would earn quite as much as had been at the disposal of the wife and mother in the interval of his absence. Let us hope that it may be so, that work will come in a plenty and that for his danger and part in the war service he may be ensured work and a living in future.

The motorman gazed after her rather blankly.

"Well, that sure is the first time I ever heard a stool called by that name," he said, as he turned the crank.

PREPARING FOR FARMERS' BANQUET

JOHN MAHARG, M. P. OF SASKATCHEWAN, HAS BEEN INVITED TO SPEAK.

The members of the Peterborough Farmers' Club have sent an invitation to Mr. John Maharg, M.P., from Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, to address their first annual banquet on March 27th. Mr. Maharg is a former president of the Canadian Council of Agriculture and is at present president of both the Saskatchewan Grain Growers Association and the Saskatchewan Co-Operative Elevator Company, two honors which he has held for a number of years. The Association has about 30,000 members and is the most powerful public organization in the province. The elevator company owns 314 local elevators as well as a big terminal elevator at Port Arthur, worth over $2,000,000. This company has made profits of as high as $675,000 a year.

In the event of Mr. Maharg being unable to accept the invitation it is probable that an invitation will be sent to Mr. R. C. Henders, M.P., of Cultross, Manitoba who has been president form any years of the Manitoba Grain Growers Association, and who was one of the pioneers in the farmer's movement in Western Canada. Mr. Henders came originally from Durham County, where a number of his relatives still live. Either of these men if secured should be a great drawing card for the banquet.

Change Location Of Open Air Rinks

At the meeting of the Board of Works last night Engineer Parsons made some interesting observations in connection with the open-air skating rinks of the city.

It is generally conceded that these have not been laid out with any consideration of convenience insofar as obtaining water is concerned. They are as far distant from the hydrants as it would be possible to put them, and it was with a view to remedying this condition that the engineer discussed the matter with the members last night.

He thought that it would be an easy matter to select favorable locations on city property in the summer time, level these up if necessary, and have them close to a hydrant, so that when the winter came they could be flooded with a minimum of trouble. In the summer it might be possible to use them for tennis courts.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

Cataract is an opacity—a lack of transparency—of the crystalline lens. We all wear glasses. The crystalline lens is a powerful double convex lens placed just behind the pupil of the eye and its convexity is automatically altered (at least in the first half of life) for focusing the eye for varying distances. As we grow more dignified; that is, stiff, unbending, hard of heart and hard of artery, the crystalline lens partakes of the general hardening, and in some instances it overdoes the thing a bit, so that its substances undergoes a degeneration while hrenders it more or less opaque to light, and that constitutes catarract. Cataract is not, as many imagine, a new growth or membrane that forms on the eyeball. It is simply a blurring of the eyeglasses we all wear.

Although it usually occurs in persons along in years, sometimes infants and children have cataract produced by some hereditary condition or by injury to the eye.

In the early stage of cataract the casual observer can note no change in the appearance of the eye, and the patient merely notices an increasing difficulty in reading. Sometimes the patient notices that images are doubled, a light appearing as two lights, for example. Exposure to sunlight dazzles, and the patient finds that vision is best in a rather dull light. Many cataracts do not greatly impair vision and require no treatment, especially when they happen to be limited to the borders of the lens, leaving a fairly clear central portion. It is an unfortunate popular notion that cataract necessarily means approaching blindness. This is incorrect, for we know that cataract may cause only moderate impairment of sight and never beome complete.

Persons with diabetes, or Bright's disease, or disease of the arteries are more subject to catarract than normal individuals, the lens suffering in nutrition by reason of the constitutional disease. Men working about furnaces or exposed to electric light of great brilliancy, and persons who overuse the eyes for near work without frequent intervals of relaxation are especially subject to catarract.

The cure of catarract usually requires the removal of the lens, or its absorption as the result of an operation. Such operations are practically painless under cocaine. Of course, good vision requires that the patient shall wear suitable lenses to take the place of the crystalline lenses afterward, which enable the patient to read the finest type.

It is no longer considered advisable to await the "ripening" of a catarract.

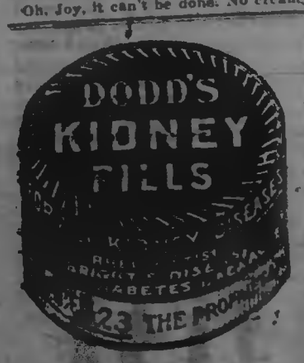
Cold Air Versus Adenoids.

* * * Two small sons have adenoids and were so restless at night I was greatly worried until I wrote you about it. You urged the importance of fresh air. Finally we began to leave the bedroom windows open all night, and there is no question that the children have slept much better and improved in health this past winter. The doctor said they were too young to operate on for the adenoids. I myself feel satisfied now that overheated houses and schoolrooms have something to do with adenoids. F. W. A."

Right you are. The warm air schoolroom is the overheated bedroom's complementary causal factor of adenoids and various other respiratory troubles of children.



Kitchener Was Trapped In Cabin of Hampshire When Ship Struck Mine

LORD KITCHENER and his staff did not even reach the deck of the British cruiser Hampshire after she struck a mine off the coast of Scotland one stormy night in June, 1916, according to a warrant officer who has just told the story of the sinking to a correspondent of the Manchester Guardian.

Questions concerning the sinking of the Hampshire have been asked in Parliament because of the persistent rumor that the vessel had been sunk by a submarine and Lord Kitchener had been carried off a prisoner to Germany. No detailed statement, however, has ever been officially given out. The name of the officer who now tells the story has not been disclosed.

Four days after the Jutland battle, according to the officer, the Hampshire took Lord Kitchener aboard on June 5, and set out with about 500 persons aboard in "the foulest weather known in that region." She was escorted by two destroyers who were unable to face the storm and returned to port. Everything on board the Hampshire was lashed down, and only one hatchway was left open.

About eight o'clock in the evening the ship was shaken by a terrific explosion and the crew scrambled for the deck. Officers quickly took their posts, but their orders could not be heard because of the raging storm and the terrific sound of escaping steam. Immediately after the first explosion there was another and all lights went out, which added to the confusion.

The officer, with a companion, cut the lashings of a life-raft, it being impossible to launch the boats in the terrific sea, and the raft was slipped over the side. It turned upside down, but finally righted and he with others found themselves afloat. Almost immediately the ship went down, not more than five minutes after the first explosion. The officer did not see Lord Kitchener on deck, and it is his opinion that as only one hatchway was open, the only men who reached the deck were those who went that way. Although much confused, he recalls trying to open a number of other hatches while trying to reach the deck and found them all battened down.

The raft drifted with the gale for five hours, during which time many of the men were washed from the raft, while others died and rolled into the net in the centre. The raft was then tossed through an opening in a rocky roof and beached on an island.

The officer scouted at the suggestion that Lord Kitchener had been saved, and was quite sure the Hampshire had been mined and not torpedoed.

Hamilton Tigers Win From St. Pats

Hamilton, March 6.—The Hamilton Tigers were all over St. Patricks in the first game of the senior O H A. finals last night and ran up a 10-to-3 score on the Irishmen. This gives Hamilton a seven goal lead to take to the Queen City on Saturday night for the second game.

There was nothing to it but Hamilton. They simply ran all over the green-shirted Toronto outfit in the first and last periods and in the last twenty minutes it was just a matter of how many goals the Hamilton outfit would collect. The Irish brigade put in their best licks in the second period. They outscored Hamilton, two to one, and were very much in the fight. Hamilton had scored three in the opener and Toronto none. The Bengals ran in the first one in the second spasm and then the Irish came to life. They scored two before the period ended.

Back came Toronto hopes with a bounce in the last period, and they were only one goal down. It was a short-lived rally. They went all to pieces and the Tigers roamed in from all quarters, bulging the twine with heartbreaking regularity. It was the end for the Irish, the final of 10 to 3 making their chances hopeless to win the title.

The Toronto delegation were not hopeful before the game, when it was learned that Moose Heffernan was unable to make the trip. He had his throat lanced again in the morning at the Wellesley Hospital in Toronto and it is even doubtful if he will be able to appear in the Saturday night game. The line up:

St. Patrick's—Goal, Crooks; defence, Hodden and Cain; centre, Dye; right wing, Muston; left wing, Patterson; subs., Breen and Eltherington.

Motion Pictures At Duffus Garage

A large number of citizens attended the openings of the new Duffus garage last night and thoroughly enjoyed the motion pictures exhibited, together with a splendid exhibit of cars, etc. Mr. Duffus is to be congratulated on the entertainment and comfort arranged for his guests at these opening evenings, which will be continued tonight, tomorrow and Saturday. The public are cordially invited, but children must be accompanied by either parents or guardians.

The Hornpipe.

The "hornpipe" is an old English dance peculiar to England. In fact one might almost say it was the chief dance of the British sailor, and is still. Modern "hornpipes" are in common time and of a more lively character than the ancient form. It is supposed to have received its name from the instrument which was played during its performance.

Goodness.

I think that most of my readers will agree with me that, notwithstanding the all-prevalent evil which in a thousand shapes haunts the footsteps of our race, good is still the mightiest power in the world, and, if its aimless strength could be concentrated and directed, would go far towards effecting a reformation of the world. Sir H. Rider Haggard.

TULLE HAT VOGUE

Headgear Classed as Newest and Most Up-to-Date.

Unexpected Creation Appears When Toques and Bonnets to Match Winter Togs Are Worn.

After all it is the unexpected and unusual little thing which seems to set the final seal of success on one's appearance. Smartly dressed women realize this and often gain their reputation for being smartly dressed by the addition of something original and pleasing—and perhaps also a bit more daring than the more conservative choose.

Nothing is more unexpected at this time, writes a fashion correspondent, than the vogue of the tulle hat, for instance. Just when most of us are reaching out after fur toques and bonnets to match our heavy winter togs the very newest, most up-to-date creation of millinery appears to be the tulle hat. It has taken on surprising shapes also, as for instance a curious, upstanding brown tulle bonnet with a crown like a Cossack's cap. Around the brim flares a band of tulle which ends in a flat, smart bow directly over the face.

As yet it is only the brown tulle hat which seems to be favored. This suggests coquetry, for long ago French women decreed that the very perfection of artistic effect was produced by a hat of so nearly the exact shade of the hair that one could hardly tell where hat left off and hair began, so clearly and softly did the two mingle. Of course the brown shades of tulle permit this perfect harmony, as brown hair is easily matched.

Along with the tulle hat come some new feather trimmings — feathers trained and curled into all sorts of designs, such as leaves, blossoms, tricorners, rosettes and cockades. A certain wide-brimmed hat of leaf brown tulle which has been much admired has its crown entirely covered with feather leaves laid on quite flat and overlapping so that nothing of the hat underneath is visible. The hem is wide and flaring and is made of several layers of tulle placed one above the other.

Another hat of the same sort, also of brown tulle, has the same wide and flaring brim of several thicknesses of the tulle, and at intervals narrow bands of the feathers appear. The only trimming is a very wide, flat butterfly bow tied just in front. This hat has the thinnest of crowns through which the hair shows prettily. Of course these frail and delicate chapeaux are intended only for the most elaborate and dressy occasions, such as matinees, afternoon teas and restaurant wear.

A variation of the tulle-draped toque of the summer has appeared in a smart model of moleskin and taupe-colored silk net. The fur and the net are cunningly draped together to form the close-fitting hat. From the back the net falls away into a long veil which ends in a deep band of the moleskin finished with a button and catch to fasten at the back, thus presenting the appearance of a fur collar.

DECOLLETE COAT AND DRESS

Vogue Among Fashionable Dressers is to Swathe Neck, Leaving Bare a Triangle of Throat.

A smart trick much in vogue among fashionable women is to swathe the neck, leaving bare a triangle of throat below the fur, writes a Paris correspondent.

This fashion will be much adopted. We shall see women, their necks and ears well muffled in furs, fortified thus against the elements, with throat left bare by the decollete of coat and dress. I have already seen several examples of this fashion, hiding the mouth and chin, but leaving uncovered a square of bare throat like a little window, opposing whiter by contrast with the darkness of the furs.

A no less piquant contrast will be the pallor of bare arms almost lost in coat of sleeves, the hands of which are warmly enshrouded in a fur collar.

Fashion's decree, then, is to hide the lower part or, rather, some part of the face, since some collars reach right up to the eyes. Those who do not fear influenza will willingly bear some minor discomforts to be a la mode. For the others there will be the smartness of fur collars completely hiding ears and neck, with a straight plastron, which will have the fascination of novelty.

Edible Alarm Clock.

It was late in the afternoon when the Scotch minister arrived at the farmhouse. The housewife suggested that perhaps he would like a cup of tea before he began the "exercises." "Na, na," said he, "I aye tak my tea better when my work is done. You can put the pan on and leave the door ajar, an' I'll draw to a close in the prayer when I hear the bairn fizzin'."

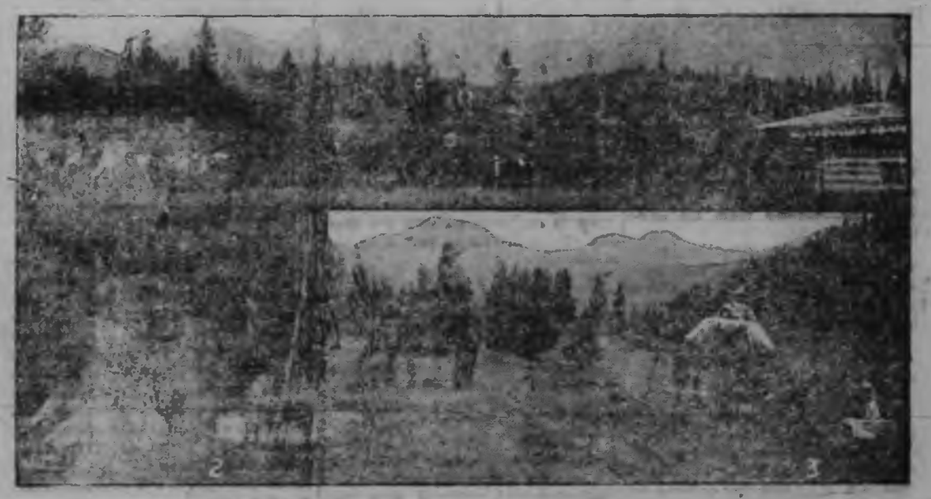
A Trail Across the Rockies



(1) Homestead on the Kootenay River.
(2) Camp in the forest of the Kootenay Valley.
(3) Summit of the Simpson Pass—line of the Great Divide separating Alberta and British Columbia.

The first trip over the Simpson Pass through the Canadian Pacific Rockies was made by Sir George Simpson, Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, in 1841, and formed part of the first recorded overland tour round the world, that is to say across the North American Continent, and by way of Siberia and Russia, occupying about nine months, and the subject of considerable literature. Jim Brewster, the famous guide and outfitter at Banff, discovered the fallen tree on the summit of the Pass on which the travellers left their record.

Fired by the ambition to cross this pass, I set out one day this summer, with two guides, ten ponies and camping outfit and supplies for six or seven days. Jim Brewster sent these over from Banff to Invermere at the headwaters of the Columbia Valley, where I had promised to wait for them. Close to Invermere are the remains of Kootenai House, an outpost of the Nor' West Trading Company established by David Thompson in 1808. Now there is a comfortable little tourist hotel, much appreciated by motorists who use the excellent Government road through the Upper Columbia Valley.

On our first day's ride we stopped off for a swim at the hot radium-water springs of Sinclair Canyon, where St. John Harmsworth, brother of the famous Lord Northcliffe, and himself proprietor of the still more famous Perrier water, built a concrete bathing pool under the springs which pours its naturally warm water out of the rock. At night we found shelter in a homesteader's cabin, the owner of which was away at the war and hospitable enough to leave the latch loose. Next day we were in the forests of the Kootenay—a wonderful resort for big game judging by the tracks we saw and the animals we even met—two black bear and a deer on the trail with moose paths worn deep like small Devonshire lanes along the meadows beside the river.

The Kootenay River had a rather bad reputation, two parties were drowned in the attempt to make the crossing at the same time last year, and we ourselves had been warned to postpone our trip. However, we found a ford where we did not even have to swim our horses, and next day were on the banks of the Vermilion River. Into the Vermilion pours the raging torrent of the Simpson, which itself is fed from the melting glaciers of the snow-clad Rockies high above. At least one cyclone seemed to have swept down its valley, and the river itself had washed away several corners so that our trail had to be made, or found anew on many a mile.

Once while Ed. Dawson, the leading guide was hacking a trail through a deadfall, his saddle pony took it into its head to cross the torrent. The packponies followed suit, and before we could stop them our camp, and most of all our food supplies were on the wrong side of the most vicious loking water I ever care to see. There was nothing to do but follow, and evidently we got across—else how could this tale have ever been told? As we approached the Summit of the Pass, one grizzly left a visiting card such as grizzlies do leave—scented—upon the trail and again we saw deer.

The Summit, according to the guides, should be ten feet deep in snow, and the description given by Sir George Simpson gave the same anticipation:—"We were surrounded by peaks and crags on whose summits lay perpetual snow; and the only sounds which disturbed the solitude were the crackling of prostrate branches under the tread of our horses, and the roaring of the stream as it leaped down its rocky course."

"About seven hours of hard work brought us to the height of land, the hinge as it were between the eastern and western waters. We breakfasted, on the level isthmus, which did not exceed fourteen paces in width, filling our kettles for this one lonely meal at once from the crystal sources of the Columbia and the Saskatchewan, while these willing feeders of two opposite oceans, murmuring over their beds of mossy stones, as if to bid each other a long farewell, could hardly fail to attune our minds to the sublimity of the scene.

"But between these kindred fountains, the common progeny of the same snow wreaths, there was this remarkable difference of temperature that the source of the Columbia showed 40°, while that of the Saskatchewan raised the mercury to 52½°, the thermometer meanwhile striking as high as 71° in the shade.

"From the vicinity of perpetual snow, we estimated the elevation of the height of land to be seven or eight thousand feet above the level of the sea, while the surrounding peaks appeared to rise nearly half that altitude above our heads."

We ourselves found the snow all gone and our horses found sweet and ample pasture on an Alpine meadow. As we looked back from the Great Divide upon the mountains of the Selkirks, we had as fine a panoramme as any artist could desire—rugged outlines capped and fringed with perpetual snow.

The Banff side of the Summit comes within the jurisdiction of the Dominion Government, and its Superintendent of Parks was good enough to provide us with a trail which really was a trail. To the right up Healy Creek we had a glimpse of Mount Assiniboine, the giant of these giant mountains—only a glimpse however, for in a minute his head was caught in a turban of clouds. Thence without adventure except for a plague of mosquitoes we reached the C.P.R. Hotel at Banff, alive with summer tourists, who found in our cavalcade a fitting subject for innumerable snapshots.

The fishing, I may say in passing, which one gets on such a trip, is of the very best. Every creek, every pool seems to be stocked with trout, all inquisitive about the nature of the fly. Brown Hackle and Gray Hackle are always deadly. The red flies such as Parmachene Belle do not seem to take so well in these waters. There were both Dolly Varden and Steelhead to our credit on the Simpson, averaging a little over a pound. In the Kootenay the trout ran up to two and three pounds and were very game, though shy in the middle of the day. J. M. G.

MRS. BROWN A WELL WOMAN ONCE MORE

WAS CONFINED TO HER BED AND CHAIR FOR OVER TWO YEARS BEFORE TAKING TANLAC

"Some strange things happen in the world and the change Tanlac has brought about in my wife's condition is one of them," said J. L. Brown, a resident of College Park, Ga.

"For over two years," he continued "my wife had so much trouble with her stomach that she could hardly take any nourishment at all but a milk diet, and she fell off until she was little more than a living skeleton. She got little rest or sleep at night, had no energy at all and was so weak and rundown that most of her time was spent in bed or in her chair. Her skin was sallow and unhealthy looking and she didn't seem to take interest in anything.

"In fact she was about as bad off as she could be to be alive when she started taking Tanlac, and just a few bottles of this wonderful medicine have made her a well woman once more. She now eats anything she wants, sleeps like a child, has gained twenty pounds and is able to do all her housework as well as she ever did."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowler's Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

GOOD ROADS CAMPAIGN IS PLANNED FOR DISTRICT

Board of Works Receive and Concur in Resolution Adopted by the G. W. V. A.—Estimates For Year Are Accepted.

Mr. W. Davis, 573 Division street was heard last night before the Board of Works in regard to removing costructions from his sewer connection.

A motion was submitted by Aldermen Turner and Garside providing that Mr. Davis be charged $8.50 and that the balance of the cost of the work be remitted.

Aldermen Edgar and Taylor at once submitted an amendment that no action be taken, which was lost.

A letter was read, last night, from C. R. Widdifield, city solicitor regarding an account from F. Barber, engineer of the Hunter street bridge, amounting to $4,000.00.

The sum of $1,000 was ordered to be paid Engineer Barber upon account by virtue of a motion introduced by Alderman Turner and Garside.

Alderman Morrison had not been present at the meeting up to this time and upon taking his place at the Board the amendment which had been submitted by Aldermen Edgar and Taylor providing that no action be taken in regard to remitting half of the amount paid by Mr. Davis in connection with cleaning out the sewer connection on Division street was again before the meeting and was carried, the newly arived member supporting it.

C. R. Widdifield, city solicitor, notified the board that he had been served with notice of a motion to quash By-law No. 2125.

Upon motion of Aldermen Turner and McIntyre he was instructed to take all steps necessary to defend the by-law.

A letter was read from Mr. E. G. Patterson suggesting that the City and County Councils get together and discuss the good roads question. Chairman Phelan stated that he had been in conversation with the Warden of the county in regard to the matter.

A copy of a resolution passed by the City Council of Kitchener was received asking for endorsation. It requested the Legislature to amend the law regarding suburban roads. Action in connection with this resolution was deferred until the joint meeting of the city and county councils.

A communication was received from the G.W.V.A., local branch, urging a good roads campaign. The resolution was endorsed upon motion of Ald. Edgar and Garside and a copy ordered to be sent to the Minister of Highways, the Dominion Government and the Peterborough Branch of the G.W.V.A.

Upon motion of Aldermen Edgar and Turner the price of a Ford car for the use of the city engineer was added to the estimates of the Board Works and his old one ordered to be repaired.

The estimates as presented were then adopted upon motion of Aldermen Edgar and Turner.

SENDS CHECQUE TO THE FIREMEN

MR. H. A. MORROW APPRECIATES WORK OF BRIGADE AT FIRE.

Yesterday Chief Grange received the following letter of acknowledgement from Mr. H. A. Morrow whose barn and outbuildings on Sherbrook street were destroyed by fire on Saturday last. In spite of the handicap arising from the lack of water, the property being situated outside of the city limits, the brigade was able to save the residence:

Peterborough,
March 5th, 1919.

Mr. George Grange,
Chief of Fire Department.

Dear Sir,—Will you please accept the enclosed cheque on behalf of some fund of your department, as slight token of appreciation for the excellent work done at the fire at our home on Saturday last?

Yours very truly,
H. A. MORROW.

Chief Grange's Reply.

Peterborough,
March 6th, 1919.

H. A. Morrow, Esq.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir,—Your letter of the 5th inst., with enclosed cheque, received. The amount of the cheque has been turned over to the funds of the Firemen's Benevolent Association.

On behalf of myself and the members of the department, I wish to thank you heartily for your kind appreciation of our services. While regretting the loss involved, we are only too glad that we were able to render assistance that prevented the fire from spreading to the house. At one time this appeared a hopeless task.

Again thanking you, I am,

Why They Are Buying WAR-SAVINGS STAMPS

The housewife is economizing in comfortable ways and investing in War-Savings Stamps at $4.02 each this month. In 1924, when these stamps are redeemed at $5.00 each, every dollar will have greater purchasing power.

The business man is cutting off small and unnecessary expenditures and buying War-Savings Stamps. He knows his money is available any time he really needs it, with added interest. $5 for $4 in five years is an excellent return on money otherwise idle.

School children are buying Thrift Stamps at 25 cents each and are filling their Thrift Cards in order to acquire a War-Savings Stamp. They are helping their country and acquiring the habit of Thrift.

Men on the farms are buying W.S.S. because the Government uses the money to finance export orders for the food raised on Canadian farms. This makes their market sure.

Men, women and children of all ages and conditions of life, are investing in W.S.S. because it is a convenient way to "build a bond". The security is absolute and the interest is unusually high. Some day they will look back with great satisfaction to the day when they bought their first War-Savings Stamps.

Have You Bought Your Stamp Today?

SURGERY MAKES ADVANCE AS A RESULT OF THE WAR

Toronto, March 6.—That medical men who have been in arm service are most seriously affected professionally in returning to civil life is the opinion of Col. (Dr.) Herbert Bruce, who has returned home after four years' service with the Canadian and British forces. Dr. Bruce explained that in England it was found that many doctors who were demobilized were finding that those who had taken their practices were refusing now to surrender them. Canadian medical men would undoubtedly have a similar experience, and man would have to struggle anew to build up a livelihood. Dr. Bruce advanced the suggestion that the public seek to patronize doctors who had had war experience.

"There is bound to be a period of industrial unrest," said Dr. Bruce, in speaking of conditions in England, "an unrest due to the attitude of the bolshevist agitators, but when the Government steps in and deals firmly with that element and expels the bolshevists from England, the good common sense of the workingman will allow him to settle down."

Surgery's March Forward.

In his opinion, one of the most wonderful of many discoveries of the war is that of Professor Putti, of Bologna, Italy, who has succeeded in developing the muscles of an amputated arm to the extent that it is possible for them to work the fingers on an artificial limb. Prof. Putti is coming to America this year.

Dr. Bruce touched also upon the wonderful successes achieved in plastic surgery, but stated that inasmuch as plastic surgery had to be dealt with while wounds were fresh, it was practically over with so far as the war was concerned.

Influenza Vaccine.

Dr. Bruce stated that among the many notable advances made in surgery and in the care of the wounded the most recent was the discovery of the organism of influenza. The doctors in Britain are now making a vaccine which is protective and which can also be used (as diphtheria antitoxin) to mitigate the effects if the disease has developed. In experiments made no pneumonia has ever developed from influenza after the vaccine has been used.

All Home By July.

Just prior to leaving England Col. Bruce spoke to Gen. Currie, who told him that all the Canadians would be back in Canada by July.

Col. Bruce witnessed the demobilization of English troops at Whitehall and styled it a "very mild affair." They were being demobilised at the rate of 15,000 per day, but as a result of their protest demobilization now embraces 25,000 men daily.

"What was called a strike among the soldiers in London recently was not really a strike," said Col. Bruce. "It was just a minor protest against the delay in releasing the men from the army. At that time the rate of demobilizing was less than half of that today."

Yes, I Intend To But Not Now

Have YOU any idea what that decision is costing you—even if you live? Of course, if you die the cost is much GREATER.

Read the following facts and then decide for yourself:

The premium you would pay for $1000 of insurance at age 60 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $4000 of insurance at age 21.

The premium you pay for $1000 of insurance at age 50 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $2500 at age 21.

The premium you pay for $1000 of insurance at age 35 WOULD BUY YOU $1440 at age 21.

Besides, while you may be insurable at age 21 you may not be insurable AT ANY PRICE at the other ages mentioned.

The one great fate that touches our lives is the verdict of NOW.

See the Sun Life agent about this.

Good Rubbers Mean Foot Comfort, Shoe Economy and Health Protection

Why are they comfortable? Because in the Dominion Rubber System brands, you can get just the size and shape of rubbers to perfectly fit every pair of shoes.

That is one advantage of having a great organization like the Dominion Rubber System to study your needs. With factories and service branches all over Canada; and with experts in constant touch with the leading shoe manufacturers, the Dominion Rubber System is able to make and supply your dealer with every style of rubbers required.

How do Rubbers economize on shoes? They protect shoes against slush and rain—make shoes wear longer and hold their shape better—and enable you to wear old shoes in bad weather.

Is it necessary to speak of health protection? With the epidemic of "Flu" so vividly in mind, and the warning of physicians to keep the feet dry, surely no one will run the risk of going without rubbers on wet days!

"Jacques Cartier" "Merchants" "Maple Leaf"
"Granby" "Dominion" "Daisy"

These trademarks guarantee quality; and behind these trademarks is the Dominion Rubber System, a power of protection to every pair of these guaranteed rubbers.

RESTORE THE NATURAL SIGHT

IF FEVERISH, BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED, GIVE FRUIT LAXATIVE

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, can't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomachache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy. Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

The first division in the Legislature in two sessions resulted in a vote of 53 to 25.

As it was he was in forward area most of the time and was seldom out of the danger zone. He returned on the Scotian. He met several Millbrook boys before going to France, among them Signallers Collins, Sutton and Shaw. He brought home a Fritzy rifle. We are glad to see him home again.

Although it was not generally known that Pte. Fallis was to arrive home on Friday night, quite a number were at the depot to welcome him. He went to England in Nov., 1917, and to France in Jan., 1918. He enlisted in the 5th Forestry Battalion and was transferred to 11th Railway Battalion. In April, 1918, his shoulder was slightly grazed with shrapnel, but not enough to put him in hospital. He returned on Empress of Britain and has no complaints to make about the accommodation thereon, but he says Canada never looked better to him.

Special Services.

The evangelistic services being held in the Sunday School rooms of the Millbrook Methodist Church are being well attended. Clarke, of Cavan, on Friday. Everybody welcome.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it, and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

SEND WORD TO COMMISSION

IF YOU KNOW OF ANY RETURNED SOLDIERS OUT OF WORK.

The Soldiers' Aid Commission is anxious to be advised of particulars of any or all in this district discharged and disabled soldiers who owing to their disabling conditon are unable to find suitable employment, or having been placed in employment are unable to retain their positions, and as a consequence are continually out of work. This feature has been found the case in other localities and may be the same in and about Peterborough.

It has developed that many men, although on their discharge to pension, their disabilities did not appear to be of such a nature as to prevent them from following their previous vocations or from securing employment. In order to prevent any injustice to these men it is intended that their cases be reviewed and the co-operation of the branches of the Soldiers' Aid has been asked in connection.

It is particularly asked that information be obtained of any who are unable to hold employment when such had been obtained, and also the class of work at which he had been employed, together with a list of those who find it difficult to obtain employment by reason of disability.

It will be helpful if any coming under the above provisions will report at the office of the branch in Peterborough, to Mr. F. H. Dobbin, who will forward particulars.

PETERBORO TO BE GIVEN FIRST CALL

NEW MANAGEMENT OF GRAND OPERA HOUSE ANNOUNCE SOME IMPROVEMENTS.

Mr. A. J. Small of Toronto, the new proprietor of the Grand Opera House, was in Peterborough on Saturday and was favorably impressed with the city generally as well as from the standpoint of his business.

His deal with the Turners was closed and he announced his intention of making some improvements to the house in the near future. He felt that a city with the excellent district tributary to it which surrounds Peterborough should make it a first-class theatrical town.

From this time forward the Grand will be served with an improved picture service. The same reels as are shown in Mr. Smalls' theatre in Toronto will appear in Peterborough. He is enabled to give this city an extensive service of first run reels of this kind on account of the immense chain of theatres which he owns throughout the Dominion and which are included in the circuit which bears his name.

Manager Dahn announced today that the feature picture at the Grand tonight is one which has not yet opened in Toronto, and this is a most propitious commencement of the new service, which should assure performances of a very high order which the public will continue to see at a nominal price.

FARMERS BUY PAPER

Toronto, March 6.—Subject to the ratification of the proposal by the shareholders of The Farmers' Publishing Company, Limited, the latter have purchased The Weekly Sun and will publish it as the official organ of the United Farmers of Ontario. If the shareholders ratify the proposal the paper will be published weekly as at present, but will be used to build the foundation for a daily paper.

Whether the present staff will continue to edit the paper has not been announced. Spoken last night, Mr. Gordon Waldron said that that matter was in the hands of the Directors of the Farmers' Publishing Company, and they were not yet prepared to make a statement. Mr. Waldron said that the present staff of The Weekly Sun was one of the best in Ontario, and that it was likely no changes would be made immediately.

WOULD TURN DREADNOUGHTS INTO REFRIGERATOR SHIPS

London, March 6.—A new plan for their disposal was suggested by representatives of Western Australia, who cabled a proposal that the dreadnoughts with superfluous fittings removed be equipped as refrigerator ships for the Australian mutton trade. They requested that this proposition be placed before the Imperial Government.

In addition to the movie portion of the program the Grand Opera House will have the largest of the road attractions touring the country in connection with the Small circuit.

"Q" Boat Terror to Hun

THE "Q" ship Suffolk of the British navy is now in St Katerine's Dock, near the Tower of London, and her mysteries are being revealed to any of the public who care to pay 1s., or, if they are sailors, soldiers, silver-badge men, or children, 6d. The money forthcoming is to be devoted to naval charities.

To look at from the quayside, the Suffolk Coast is just like a boat which carries coals or "any blessed thing." She is gray and dinky as any of her (presumed) kind. You may see a gun on her decks, but that is only the weapon which the (presumed) kind has been armed with. A veritable gun, yet no more than part of the deception. When you go aboard she still seems the most innocent craft that ever said good-day to a seagull. As a matter of fact, the Suffolk Coast can out-gun a destroyer, though she has never sunk one. Her career was—unfortunately, I had almost said—cut short by the armistice, signed the day before she put out to sea. The collier from which she was concocted was taken over at the end of August last, and for rather more than two months her captain and others were busily employed in preparing the great transformation. The Suffolk Coast is a replica, except for a few added improvements, of the Stock Force, which was sunk by a torpedo on July 30th, having sunk the U-boat before she herself went under. Stock Force and Suffolk Coast were both alike designed and fitted out by Lieutenant Commander Harold Auten, V.C., D.S.C., R.N.R., under the supervision of Admiral Sir Lewis Bayly. The wizard's wand was waved over the Suffolk Coast in Hamilbowline Dockyard in County Cork. Lieutenant Commander Auten, who commands her, commanded also the Stock Force, with most of the same officers and very nearly the same crew.

For the daring game she was to play it was essential that the Suffolk Coast should be buoyant. Timber was packed into her; you can see it clearly along certain narrow ways in the ship's interior, and this timber was protected with cork against the bulkheads. You see much more clearly on the deck a wire hawser roll; a very ordinary smokestack, two funnels equally dingy and other erections which the mere landsman, be he never so ignorant, can be quite sure possess solid wood doors. But the hawser was left in the light, and standing beneath it, in case of emergency, the captain would be enabled to make a very adequate survey of his surroundings. The most unromantic smokestack conceals a periscope, and if it were shot away another periscope could do duty through one of those begrimed funnels which resemble each other so completely.

I retain the idea that this vessel possesses "two of everything." If one wireless apparatus had been put out of action, a second would have supplied its place, and the double system is divided by virtually the length of the ship, so that if one end (to put it lubberly) was torpedoed and the wireless ruined, the other end could carry on. To understand what deception may be in a steel rope, one must examine the cordage of the Suffolk Coast. But perhaps the lay mind will be most impressed by what it takes for stovepipes and things of that sort in the officers' quarters; they are really communication tubes. On this odd boat the captain can shout orders through the heating machinery, and, indeed, can make his orders heard, and get about himself, through channels where a man would be shocked to hear or find him.

Experienced pilots have been fooled by "Q" boats; harbor authorities have been puzzled to distraction by them; a workman in dock, told to fix something to a door, has reported that he could not carry out his order since the door was wooden. This door is in that unremarkable deckhouse. The workman was hardly to blame for supposing it wooden; anybody else would think the same. But the door is of a piece with the rest of the place, and the whole is made to fall flat on a touch or two from a hatchet. It is—or rather they are, for, as I said, the vessel has two of everything — the hiding-place of big guns. In the fore-hatch is mounted a twelve-pounder, a "disappearing" gun. Where the bunker hatch should be on a well-conducted ship is a four-inch gun of the newest pattern, while a monster of the same calibre is in what used to be the engineer's quarters. Given a fairly easy target, these guns can be made to "talk" in about five seconds.

Supposing the "rattler" heralds a U-boat: The men immediately go to stations. There are forty-eight men, by the way, on this boat, which in the days of her innocence possessed a crew of fifteen. They go to stations without disturbance, because the ship is connected fore and aft, from the forecastle to the engine room (and No. 3 gun) by a passage below the decks. The bridge also is accessible by means of a concealed passage, which gives the captain complete control. Very often, you are told, it has been necessary to wait for several hours before the torpedo has been fired from the U-boat, and in such circumstances the captain finds it convenient "to go round and see how everybody is getting on." The boat is in exactly the same condition as if she were at work, save that lights have been put in to show the guns. Visitors, as they make the marvelous tour, should summon a little imagination to put themselves in the places of the men on watch, in a "panic" party, and at the guns.

The Canadian St. Andrews.

NEARLY everybody knows that golf was first played by the Scotch. A veteran devotee of the game, once said that Scotland's greatest contribution towards the welfare of mankind was the royal and ancient game.

Saint Andrew's By the Sea, New Brunswick, called after the patron saint of Scotland, is the home of many families of Scotch descent, and it is appropriate that the spot thus named should be possessed of golf courses as fine as any in the world. It is not exactly known when golf was first played at St. Andrew's, but the Algonquin Club came into existence in 1890. A club was firmly established here in 1895, and now St. Andrew's has the reputation of being the "Mecca of Golf." Hundreds of visitors from Canada and the United States flock hither annually and enjoy the glorious sport.

Golf is an invigorating game anywhere, but it is most delightful when played along the sea. At St. Andrew's there are two courses, a nine hole course 2,500 yards long and an eighteen hole course 6,000 yards long. Both overlook the sea, and are clad in a firm sward of velvet green. While resting on the course you can enjoy the view of the sea beneath, dotted with sailing vessels and motor boats, and little row boats that glide serenely over the waves. From the golf links you may watch the fishermen catch millions of sardines in their weirs that are set a few hundred yards, or less, from the shore. And old men and old women may often be seen gathering shell fish on the beach. It is a delight to listen to the continuous panting of the waves that expire on the red-tipped land—for the coast line is made of rocks and sand of rich deep red; and looking on it one might fancy that here in prehistoric times some great sea monster was killed and dyed the place with his blood. When a game of golf is ended it is pleasant to sit on one of these red rocks, or gather bunches of the lovely New Brunswick wild roses from the hedges, or rich bouquets of blue lilies in the marshy meadows. In July the fields are laden with a wealth of wild strawberries that tempt many to go berry gathering.

The climate of St. Andrew's makes the place an excellent holiday resort. The skies are seldom clouded, and the heat of the sun is tempered by the cool breezes of Passamaquoddy Bay. The most pleasant golf is not all golf; a congenial atmosphere and environment are half the delights of the game, and the various other attractions at St. Andrew's are unique. The club house on the golf grounds is equipped with all modern conveniences; you may play tennis on the admirable grounds at the Algonquin Hotel. You may ride in a motor boat to Deer Island, you may hire a row boat, or bathe in the tranquil waters of Katie's Cove; and a game of bowling on the bowling green is a joyous pastime.

The late Sir William Van Horne, one of the presidents of the Canadian Pacific Railway, built a beautiful residence on an island in Passamaquoddy Bay, and his family still lives there in the summer season. Lord Shaughnessy, the Chairman of the C. P. R. Board of Directors, makes his summer home at Fort Tipperary, St. Andrew's, and takes a special interest in the progress of the place.

At St. Andrew's there is splendid sea fishing, and a lake near at hand furnishes some of the best bass fishing in Canada. And should the weather ever be rainy the Algonquin Hotel supplies bowling alleys, pool tables, English and French billiard tables, and a beautiful large casino for dancing. Those who make St. Andrew's by the Sea their holiday resort once will do so a second time, for when you go away from it there is an allurement about the place that brings you back again.

CLOCKS STRIKE AGAIN.

Another of the Wartime Bans Removed.

Perhaps in no instance was the great release brought about by the signing of the armistice, more immediately signalized in London than in the quick removal of the ban on the striking of the clocks in its many towers, steeples and public buildings, says the Christian Science Monitor. For four long years and more the bells had been silent, and although London needed nothing in armistice week, and, indeed has needed nothing since, to remind it that the fighting was over, yet it is to be imagined that, during the last few weeks, many thousands of citizens have hailed the sound of some well-known clock striking again with a special warmth and gratitude.

Not that, in these past years, London has ever been at a loss to know the time. Never, indeed, in the course of its long history has it been so well supplied in this respect as in these days of wrist watches; but London has an obstinate attachment for its institutions, and one of London's institutions is its bells. Its church clocks, picking up the hour from one another, now near and now far away, with, maybe, the boom of Big Ben as a kind of hum note in the distance. It is an attachment stretching a long way back into history, for, indeed, there was a time when London, like most other cities, was largely dependent upon its church bells to inform it as to the hour of the day or night. As far back as the days of Alfred the Great the two ideas of a bell and a clock were so closely connected that Alfred, in making a translation of a passage in which the Venerable Bede speaks of campana, renders the word clugan, or clock.

The clock, however, which recorded the hours by striking a bell was a comparatively late invention, dating, in England at any rate, from about the fourteenth century; whilst for centuries before that time the ringing of the church bells had recorded certain hours of the day. Wherever there was an abbey, for instance, the bell rang out every three hours, and in many towns and villages special bells were rung at certain times of the year or on certain days of the week. Thus there was the famous "Washerwomen's bell" at Nottingham, rung at four o'clock in the morning to rouse the washerwomen to work; the seeding bell, the harvest bell, the gleaning bell, and so on, rung in many different places. But the best-known bell in London, as elsewhere, was, of course, the curfew. The formal act of William the Conqueror was repealed by his son, Henry I.; but, for centuries, the curfew was rung, as a matter of course, in London as in other towns and villages, and is still rung in many places. The usual time was eight o'clock, but in London and other large towns it was often rung at nine. And Bow Church rang the curfew for the City, whilst St. Bride's and St. Giles' also were authorities as to the hour for closing in their districts.

Then, as time went on, the custom of having a certain bell rung in a certain district to mark the time for beginning or ending the day's work became a recognized practice. There was, for instance, a certain Mr. Doune, a wealthy mercer and citizen of London, who bequeathed two tenements in Bow Lane that their rents might pay for the daily ringing of "the tenor of Bow bells" as a signal of this kind to the apprentices of London. The bell was rung at six in the morning and eight in the evening, and the story goes, according to one authority, that the London 'prentices, having good cause to complain of the clerk's carelessness in the performance of his duty, sent to him the following warning:

Clerk of Bow bell,
With thy yellow locks,
For thy late ringing
Thy head shall have knocks.

To which the offending clerk hastened to reply in the words of the utmost conciliation:

Children of Cheap,
Hold you all still,
For you shall hear the Bow bell
Rung at your will.

As, however, public clocks became more common, the ringing of special bells fell more and more into disuse, and then, as "grandfather" clocks and watches became more plentiful, people, especially in the great cities, became less dependent on the public clocks. In London, however, as elsewhere, the striking of the clocks in tower and steeple was ever a welcome and convenient sound, and London to-day counts it amongst the greatest of her smaller blessings that they are striking again.

Children of Great Men.

Shakespeare had children from whom the world never heard. So it was with Dickens. None of his children came anywhere near his standard. Owen Meredith was a mediocre writer as compared with his father, Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton. Lytton, while a very voluminous writer, was also strong and fine at all times. Alexander Dumas fils could not at any time compare with Dumas the elder. Nathaniel Hawthorne was head and shoulders above his son, Julian, in the power to produce books worth while.

SOME SUSPICION EXISTS AS TO HEAVYWEIGHT BOUT

Willard Will Make Fortune Whether Match Goes Through or Not.

"Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey will clash in a titular bout in July," the news despatches say. Probably they will—but there is a possibility that they won't. The old saying about there are many slips between the 'mustache region and the foaming beverage holds good in pugilism as it does in everything else.

Some natives consider Willard a booh. He is—to a certain extent. But Willard is shrewd enough to recognize the splendid publicity acquired by agreeing to fight Dempsey. The articles doesn't mean that he has to go through with the fight. Just the same, while the match is "on," Jess can gather together many shekels through press agenting.

Already the fact that Willard has agreed to fight again has aroused the interest in his oil schemes. A clever bit of publicity work could be engineered—if Willard so willed—and some of the stock could be sold. Furthermore, Willard, having been pushed back into the spotlight, doesn't lack offers to go on the vaudeville stage. He could command headline prices.

It is a safe thing to say that through the medium of theatrical engagements and through the sale of oil stock, Willard could accumulate $75,000 to $100,000 within the next three or four months. Then he could go into real severe training, and, if he decided that he could whip himself into fighting condition, he could go ahead with the bout and collect Rickard's $100,000.

But when Willard learns about the first of June that he had skidded so far from his once-time wonderful physical shape that he couldn't put up a satisfactory bout, what is there to prevent his slipping out of the match? He probably would have to sacrifice a $10,000 forfeit—in case he actually did post it—and meanwhile he would still retain the money received through theatrical ventures and sale of oil securities.

Fair enough, isn't it—from Willard's viewpoint?

Can Willard Get in Shape?

"Can Willard come back to anything near to his Havana form?" is the moot question of pugilism.

He can't—that's the answer. Idleness, added years and loose living—as far as an athlete's standards go—have made an indelible impress upon the champion. He can shear away some of the surplus fat—but he cannot shake off the years that are his. Nor can he regain the vitality that belongs to youth—and which Willard has lost.

"Willard is so earnest about his plans to get into shape that he already has quit drinking," asserted Rickard, soon after signing up the champion.

"Quit drinking"—get it. There you have an admission from Rickard that the great temperance orator has been drinking. If Willard had been drinking only occasionally Rickard would not have considered it worth while to comment upon the quitting. But when Rickard decided it was a bit of news to say that "Willard has quit drinking," isn't it safe to assume that Jess has been drinking considerably?

Not long ago a famous fight promoter from the Pacific coast, discussing Willard, said:

"I saw Jess before I came east. He was in a saloon—and he was drinking quite earnestly. A few days before a fellow of my acquaintance said he had been out with Jess and some others, and that they engaged in a drinking bout. They wanted to see who was the champion drinker. Jess won."

Just how much harm has been done to the powerful Willard physique and the once-time amazing endurance by the drink habit of the past few years is something that Willard better can determine when he buries himself with conditioning work.

"How much does Willard weigh at the present time?" is another big question.

"Over 300," said Jimmy Coffroth. not so long ago. And Jimmy is good at guessing the weights in pugdom.

"Around 270—and he'll train off nearly 40 of that," is the statement attributed to Walter Monohan, former Willard trainer.

Willard's Weight.

Any intimation that Willard will go into the battle in July beaming less than 260 must be regarded in the light of an absurdity. The chances are that Willard will beam 265 or 270, no matter how hard he trains.

Willard was drawn as fine as a needle when he met Jack Johnson in Havana. His condition was superb. There wasn't an ounce of extra bulk on his whole frame. Yet when he stepped onto the scales that day his true and accurate weight was 247 pounds—and not 238, as Jack Curley announced.

Nearly a year later Jess took on Frank Moran in New York. Even though Jess had continued in light training through 1915 and worked hard to condition himself for two months before the Moran clash, he notched 259 when the gong sent him into action against the blonde Pittsburger.

And now some folks are attempting to make the hoi polloi believe that Willard will weigh only 230 or 240 for Dempsey. It sounds just as plausible as would a statement that Mike Gibbons will make the bantamweight limit for Pete Herman.

Meanwhile, it doesn't behoove anyone to get too excited about the billed Jess Willard-Jack Dempsey match. It may be "pulled off"—and it may not.

DOG SHOW AT WESTMINSTER

FRANK F. DOLE WRITES ENTERTAININGLY OF THE PETS HE SAW THEREON EXHIBITION.

(By Frank F. Dole.)

The first Westminster Kennel club show that I attended was in 1885, and I have only missed one show since that date. There are only a few of the old guard left; in fact, the only people that I remember seeing at the 1885 show and saw again last week at the 1919 show were W. T. Payne of Kingston, Pa., and the well known handler, B. S. Lewis of Lansdowne, Pa. These two old exhibitors are still showing dogs and are as active as they were in 1885.

The man who was most missed at the recent show and has been since his death three years ago is the late James Mortimer, who for thirty years was the superintendent of these exhibitions. The show has never been quite the same since Mr. Mortimer passed on, though the present superintendent, George W. Gall, was an understudy for Mr. Mortimer for twenty years

Mr. Mortimer was a man who judged dogs from coast to coast, and was known by ever dog lover and exhibitor. He had a magnetic personality, and to that I attribute a great deal of his success as a judge and superintendent of shows.

What impressed me most of the late show was the improvement in the American bred dog. Heretofore, several months before a New York show every champion dog in England of any breed was sought by American buyers. But this year, as England was quite out of dogs on account of the war, the American and Canadian breeders brought north their home bred stock, and it was a great tribute to their breeding to find such a wealth of prize winners and excellent dogs among the American and Canadian champions. I even think that the Canadians deserve more credit than the American breeders, for the reason that the war has hit them a great deal harder than it has us.

A great many of the breeds have improved since the old days and some of them have gone back. J. Wilby Mitchell, one of the judges at the late show, made this prediction:

"In ten years the show will be confined to twenty-five or thirty breeds of dogs and all other breeds will be thrown into what is known as the miscellaneous class." I hardly think that this will come to pass, but I believe the prophecy should be given serious consideration by the powers in the dog world.

The breed that has shown the most rapid improvement is the wire haired fox terrier. When I first attended the Westminster Kennel club show no wire haired fox terrier was ever seen. At that time they had just begun importing the smooth haired fox terrier from England and the competition was not strong. But it is no wonder that the wire haired fox terriers have come on so fast as up to this year every good fox terrier that has appeared in England has been purchased by the Yankee buyers.

Out of the wealth of this magnificant blood anad breeding with clever men like G. S. Thomas to knick the different dogs so that they would produce the best results, America now can go anywhere and win., The wonderful success of the wire haired fox terrier bitch Gallaich Gip, owned by Maj. Herbert Hughes of Detroit, illustrates the point. This youngster went from puppies to winners and was judged the best fox terrier in the show, defeating a lot of champions, smooth and wire.

Collies also were a splendid lot and the three first winning puppy bitches, which was the best puppy class ever seen at the New York show, were three litter sisters, 10 months old, owned by the Alstead kennels of Rahway, N. J.

The American dog, the Boston terrier, had the largest entry of any breed in the show. There were more of these dogs sold than of any other breed. If some of the prosperous purchasers of Boston terriers who write to kennels, asking for perfect marking, but do not want to pay over $25, could have seen some of the Boston terriers that sold at from $500 to $1,000 they would realize why their letters have not been answered.

This is the victory years and I want to predict that dogs are going better this year than ever before. My advice to my readers is to buy a thoroughbred dog of good breed, from a reliable kennel, bring him up like a child and do not expect him to thrive if he is tied up in the back yard without any attention. Treat the dog as you would like to be treated yourself. Remember the dog is man's most faithful friend and has been since he entered Noah's ark. I am for a good dog and for his advancement, no matter what breed, and I want to see a good dog in every American home

The special for the best dog in the show was won by the Airedale terrier, Briergate Bright Beauty, owned by Mrs. A. M. Davis, St. Louis, Mo. She is a high class animal, perfect in size and conformation, though on this occasion she did not show in her usual spirited manner. The bull terrier Haymarket Faultless, which was champion last year, was not in as good form as then, having thickened a bit in cheeks and shoulders. The dog in my estimation which should have won on the day was the Pekinese champion, Phantom of Ashcroft, a midget among giants, who outshowed every dog in the class.

The shield is one and a half feet in diameter consisting of a solid oak backing. The centre of the shield bears a smaller shield in bronze finish and in itself bears the design of a bowler in the act of playing the ball and over the design is engraved the "De Laval Bowling League." Grouped around the outside of this shield are name plates on which are to be engraved the names of the winners.

This shield is to be won three times in succession before the wining team permanently holds it.

The teams and the individual players are deeply indebted to Mr. Breyfogle for this shield and the interest and enthusiasm shown are the results of the above prize.

PRESENTED WITH PARLOR CHAIRS

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE SHIELDS HONORED BY THEIR NEIGHBORS.

Franklin, March 6.—On Friday evening, February 28th, a large number of the friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. George Shield gathered at their home at Franklin to bid them farewell before leaving for their new residence near Peterborough. To show the high esteem in which they were held they were made the recipients of two beautiful parlor chairs, accompanied by the following address, which was read by Mr. Maxwell Sandy, the presentation being made by Mr. Howard Windrem:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Shield:

It is with mingled feelings of regret and pleasure that we have assembled together this evening, regret that we are soon to lose you and Jim from our midst. We have come not only to spend a pleasant evening but to show as best we can our appreciation of the part you have taken in the life of this community during the years you have spent with us. Those of us who know you best have found you splendid neighbors, ever willing to lend a helping hand, and possessed of that spirit of kindness and thoughtfulness that has given you a permanent place in our high regard. Hence we take this opportunity to present you with these chairs, not for their intrinsic value, but as a token of our love and good wishes. We trust that, whatever ups and downs life's calendar may have marked out for you, this gift may serve as a link between the past and the future.

As the time draws near when the pleasant associations of the past must be severed, we assure you each and all that our sincere desire is that the future has many good things in store for you and that happiness and prosperity may follow your footsteps where'er you go.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors,

MAXWELL SANDY,
HOWARD WINDREM.

Though taken completely by surprise, Mr. and Mrs. Shield both made very suitable replies, expressing their appreciation of the kindness shown them, after which a dainty lunch was served and a most enjoyable evening spent in cards and dancing.

PROTESTANT BISHOPS ASK POPE TO UNITE CHURCHES

Commission of Three Has Left for Rome to Urge League of Denominations of the World—Greeks and Russians Are to be Invited to Co-Operate.

New York, March 6.—As a climax to nine years of unremitting effort to bring the Christian churches together, Bishop Reginald Heber Weller yesterday announced the designation of a committee of three prelates of the Protestant Episcopal Church to wait upon Pope Benedict and solicit his co-operation. This will be the first time since the reign of Henry VIII that Anglican bishops will have supplicated the Holy See.

The announcement was made at the Church at St. Mary the Virgin, on Forty-Sixth Street. It was startling even to the communicants of that parish who have been taking an active part in the pan-Catholic movement.

Bishop Weller told of a plan to form a league of churches, whose organization will be patterned after the tentative covenant of the league of nations. The league is intended to embrace all the Catholics—Roman, Anglican, Russian and Greek and all Protestantism.

It is understood that Bishop Weller's proposal for a league of churches involves no surrender of autonomy on the part of any bodies represented. It is expected to result in many administrative readjustments and to effect economies in missionary effort.

Protestant Episcopalians even in the so-called Catholic party see nothing in the proposed visit to the Pope of an ultimate recognition of his authority as the vicar of Christ on earth or per se as the titular head of all Christian churches.

The personnel of the commission will be as follows:

Bishop Weller, of the Diocese of Fond du Lac, Wis., acknowledged leader of the high church party in the United States.

The Right Rev. Charles Anderson, Bishop of Chicago.

Speak for Anglican Church

The three bishops will represent the Protestant Episcopal Church in this country. In addition, it was learned last night, they will present the views of ranking prelates of the Church of England with their express approval. Also they will speak informally for several Protestant denominations.

The commission sailed today on the Acquitania.

The movement for a league of churches antedates by several years the proposal for a league of nations. The visit to the Pope was projected long before the outbreak of the war, but the plans had to be abandoned.

Now it is purposed to have the commission visit the ranking clergy of the Greek and Russian churches and to enlist their co-operation. It is expected that Bishop Charles H. Brent of Western New York now acting as senior headquarters chaplain of the American Expeditionary Forces, will accompany the delegation to the Pope and to the Petriarch of the Greek Church as well as to the head of the Holy Russian Church. He will make clear the capacity of churches for working side by side of widely differing politics. His statements will be predicated on his experiences in the field.

The Real Object

A thorough reexamination of Christian belief is, according to Bishop Reginald Heber Weller, the immediate object sought by the Protestant Episcopal deputation which set out on the Acquitania today on the first stage of its mission to the Vatican and the Eastern church.

"The formation of a world league of Churches has been spoken of as our purpose," said Bishop Weller, who has been prominently identified with the movement for Christian unity since its inception in this country. "That, though, is not, strictly speaking, correct. Our immediate object is to call a conference of all the christian churches. Our hope is for an ultimate unity among them. But the form that such unity may take, the plan for its active initiation, rests with the conference to decide. Our duty is simply to see that the conference comes together that a basis for action is established."

The Final Obstacle

Alone among Christian sects, Bishop Weller said, the Roman Catholic Church and the Holy Eastern Church have thus far failed to accept invitations to a world conference. If the present mission can secure their co-operation, the last obstacle will have been removed.

"Already," said the Bishop, "in this country the Baptists, the Congregationalists, the Methodists, the Presbyterians, the Moravian Brethren, the Old Catholics of Europe, the Disciples of Christ, the Methodist Episcopalians, as well as other Protestant sects including Nonconformists throughout Great Britain and all English-speaking dominions of the British Empire are definitely committed to the world conference plan. It is true that certain factions among the Lutherans have so far held aloof, but I do not thing they will do so much longer. Certain other Lutheran bodies on the other hand, have agreed to join us.

"These sects already have appointed their commissions. These commissions are ready to attend a conference. Once we have secured the adhesion of the Catholic Churches, there remains only the task of appointing a time and place for the gathering and the work of sending out the announcements."

BROTHERLY LOVE PROVED FAILURE

WHEN MEMBER OF FRATERNAL SOCIETY FELL BEHIND IN PAYMENT.

A masterly address was delivered last night in the Bethany Tablernacle by Mr. Armstrong, of Newark, N.J., one of the speakers who is taking part in the series of meetings being held in the church this week. Mr Armstrong took as his text the first five verses of the twelfth chapter of Romans, which he pointed out, make clear what are man's relationship to God, to himself, to the world and to the church. He showed that man having been saved by faith in Christ's antonement should give himself unreservedly to God. Not until this has been done will a believer know what the full power of God in his life will be able to accomplish for him.

Mr. Armstrong said that one of the reasons why Christian Endeavour Societies have monthly conservation meetings is because they do not consecrate themselves at all, as consecration is a giving of oneself up to God fully, once and for all God not only offers to save us from the guilt and penalty of sins that are past but to break the power over us of the daily sins that constantly beset us and over which we are powerless to obtain victory without God's aid. He said that on one occasion he belonged to a fraternal organization whose members called themselves brothers. One day one of the brothers fell ill. It was the duty of the organization to pay him some sick benefit dues but they found that he was thirteen weeks in arrears with his payments so their brotherly love ended there and they did not pay him anything. Later he died. His family was supposed to receive several hundred dollars in benefits, but their love for him was not quite sufficient to overcome the thirteen weeks in arrears on his payments, so they sent the family a wreath instead. Men libeled the brotherly love set forth in the Scriptures when they called themselves brothers and acted like that. True brotherly love is created by the indwelling Holy Spirit, and loves those in need no matter how unthankful and undeserving such people might be. This was the love that Christ showed when he died on the cross for a sinful world.

AT THE GRAND

The Pierrot Players put on an excellent entertainment at the Grand Opera House last night, the program being made up from the most successful musical productions before the public. The singing, in quartet, chorus or solo was all that the most exacting could ask for. A violinist and pianist on the stage furnished a steady offering of music during the play. One of the features of the performance was the work of Eugene Lockhart imitating the gestures of a politician in the throes of a speech.

Britain To Draft Troops For Service In Germany; Labor Opposes Measure

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 7.—Captain F. E. Guest introduced a bill in the House of Commons yesterday which proposes compulsory service for the British army of occupation. This army, according to the bill, would be composed of 900,000 men and the enlistment period would expire on April 30, 1920. Alexander Shaw, Laborite, moved the rejection of the measure because the Labor party is opposed to a continuance of conscription.

Colonel Winston Spencer Churchill defending the bill, argued that the Government in providing for an army to insure peace pursuing a part toward universal voluntary service. The bill passed the second reading 304 to 71.

"There is not the slightest truth in the suggestion that this bill be designed to raise troops to be sent into Russia," said Churchill.

"No one would be so foolish as to suggest intervention in Russia with conscription troops. Our army along the Rhine and on the approaches leading up that river numbers about 430,000 men, which is no larger than the United States army there and much smaller than the forces France is maintaining in the occupied area."

GERMANY REFUSES ALLIES' DEMAND

NEGOTIATIONS WITH REGARD TO MERCHANT FLEET ARE BROKEN OFF.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 7.—Negotiations at Spa relating to shipping questions have been temporarily broken off, according to a German wireless message received her today.

The Allies, the message says, demanded that all remaining German merchant ships be handed over unconditionally, without being willing to undertake the obligation of supplying Germany with foodstuffs. The German delegates, it is added, received instructions from the government that the questions of shipping, finance and food must be dealt with only as a whole.

GIVE UP THOSE GUILTY OF WAR

CLAUSE IN TREATY OF PEACE WILL PROVIDE FOR THIS.

Paris, March 7.—The report of the Commission on Responsibility for the War, now nearly finished, contains a mass of evidence of startling character, incriminating German generals and other high officials, both civil and military, on specific charges of atrocious cruelty and crimes of every description.

The conclusive nature of this evidence is felt to warrant the proposed inclusion in the preliminary peace demands for guarantees that the individuals incriminated shall be at the disposal of the Entente as already mentioned. It is understood that no names are mentioned, but it is intended to draft a comprehensive clause which will include all the alleged criminals within its purview.

It is proposed that these shall be made amenable to jurisdiction, but if for any reason they should escape trial, then the whole evidence affecting them will be published to the world.

The Committee on Responsibility for the War follows:

Robert Lansing, United States, chairman; Sir Gordon Howart, Great Britain; Capt. Andre Tardieu and Ferdinand Lernaude, France; Vittorio and Deputy Raimondo, Italy.

EX-CONSTABLE IN JAIL.

Toronto Man Convicted of Stealing a Box of Cigars.

Toronto, March 7.—For stealing a box of cigars from Wm. Davenport, Gordon Ellis, formerly of the Toronto police force and prominent as an organizer of the Policemen's Union, was convicted and sentenced to five days in jail by Magistrate Kingsford in yesterday's police court. The magistrate said he had come to the conclusion that the evidence of Archie McPherson, who claimed to have seen him steal the box of cigars, was correct, as no amount of cross-examining had shaken his testimony.

Since the dismissal from the police force last August, Ellis has been employed by the Canadian Transfer Co. as a truck driver, and it was while carrying some trunks to the Union Station that he is alleged to have stolen the cigars from the seat of a truck where they had been left by Wm. Davenport.

SENATOR LODGE ON THE LEAGUE

ALL HE ASKS IS FREE DISCUSSION ON MOMENTOUS MEASURE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Boston, March 7.—The position of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge on the proposed League of Nations and its constitutions is outlined in a signed statement made public here today.

"My desires," Senator Lodge said, "is simply to have constitution for the League, proposed by a commission of the Peace Conference, thoroughly and carefully discussed and considered. If it will not bear discussion it is not fit for adoption. If it is what it ought to be, discussion will only strengthen it. There must be no haste and no rashness in determining the most momentous question ever presented to the people of the United States or to the world."

Money Rolls Into State Treasury

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 7.—Heavy revenues continue to roll into the Finance Department. For the eleven months concluding with the end of February current revenues totalled two hundred and seventy-two millions, being an increase over the previous year's corresponding months of forty-two millions. February's revenue was two and one-half millions over that of February 1918. The Dominion's budget estimate for the year, two hundred and seventy millions, has already been exceeded.

NO WORD OF DELAY.

Princess Pats Are Now Likely on the Way Home.

Ottawa, March 7.—The Militia Department has received no official confirmation of the press despatch from London stating that the return of the Princess Pats to Canada has been postponed for a week owing to a lack of transports. According to advice received at the department, the Pats should now be on their way across, having sailed on Wednesday. It is possible, however, that there has been a delay, and that the official advice is slow in coming. The militia authorities have cabled for information on the matter and will probaly know definitely today.

Turner announces that the annual meeting of the Board of Trade, usually held the second Tuesday in March, will be postponed until a later date owing to the new rooms not being ready for occupation at the present time. These rooms now being decorated and furnished, are to become the common meeting place of the several sections and of various conferences relating to the city's social and material welfare.

As soon as everything is in readiness, announcement will be made of the date of the annual meeting for the election of officers and such other business as is usually transacted.

MADE NUISANCE OF HIMSELF

Russian Annoyed Ladies on the Street Last Night

Stephen Ytazker, a Russian, appeared in police court this morning before Mr. H. Rush, the acting police magistrate, charged with making a nuisance of himself last night upon the streets.

He frightened several young ladies whom he followed some distance and who were bound for the theatre last evening and made himself conspicuous in other ways. He finally attracted the attention of the police with the result that he was relieved of $10 and 4.10 costs by order of the court this morning.

THREE ALLIES ARE UNABLE TO AGREE

BRITAIN, FRANCE AND UNITED STATES DIFFER ON MILITARY CONDITIONS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, March 7.—Premier Lloyd George, Premier Clemenceau, and Col. E. M. House conferred for an hour before the meeting of the Supreme Council today in an effort to try to iron out the difference of the three nations over the military, naval and economic questions connected with the preliminary peace terms. The army and navy experts of several countries, it is said, have been unable to agree on terms.

CHAPLAIN URGES CHURCH UNION

MEN WHO FOUGHT FOR ONE CAUSE SHOULD WORSHIP TOGETHER.

St. Thomas, March 7.—Capt. Rev. Lawrence Skey, pastor of St. Anne's Church, Toronto, made a strong appeal for one strong Canadian Protestant Church in Canada in concluding his address to the Waterloo County Canadian Club here. He stated that one of the lessons he learned overseas was that it was possible for men of all denominations to fight for the same cause and he saw no reasons why these denominations in Canada could not sink their theological differences and work for a common end in solving the problems confroniing the Canadian people. He maintained that to bring this about was the job of the business men when they attended their respective congresses, synods and conferences, and also admitted that there would have to be a good many first-class funerals before the Church forces would finally be brought together.

LIGHT IN WINDOW; LARDER IS EMPTY

RED MICHAEL TREATS AS JOKE LEADERS INVITATION TO RETURN.

Ottawa, March 7.—The floor and gallery of the House of Commons were filled yesterday with members and spectators eager to hear the speech of Dr. Michael Clark, Unionist member for Red Deer, in the debate on the address. Dr. Clark is in the foremost rank of parliamentary orators and there was much curiosity as to the position he would take; the former Liberal and the most outspoken free trade member from the West. The tariff issue is becoming every day more acute, and the Opposition hope by skilfully using this issue to drive a wedge between the eastern and the western supporters of the Union Government.

They received, however, but little satisfaction from the eloquent member for Red Deer. Dr. Clark treated jocosely the invitation from the new leader of the Opposition to the Liberal-Unionist to return to the party fold. He can see the light in the kitchen window, but only an empty larder within. The Liberal party, led by Judge McKenzie, had, in Dr. Clark's opinion, nothing to offer in the way of constructive principles. Their professions of free trade principles made no appeal to the member for Red Deer, who found that the Liberals in the past had preached free trade when out of office and had practised protection when in power.

Warns Regarding Tariff.

At the same time Dr. Clark warned the Government that the tariff issue must be dealt with and should be fully discussed on the floor of Parliament. Building houses and constructing highways were mere palliatives. The Government, in his opinion, must go deeper and deal with the fiscal policy of the country.

45 VACANT HOUSES IN CITY

At the meeting of the committee of the whole last night Mayor Duncan the chairman informed the members that having been aware that the Ontario Government's Housing Bill was to be discussed upon that occasion the precaution had been taken to obtain information in regard to the local housing situation.

After some thought it had been decided the most thorough way of accomplishing this end would be to enlist the aid of Postmaster Edgar and have him request his mail carriers to make a note of every vacant residence upon their beats. This was done and the report as compiled by the postmaster shows that there are 45 houses at present in Peterborough untenanted.

This information was not of a nature likely to simulate the Aldermen in considering the housing proposition very favorably at the present time.

LABOR IS DOWN ON AGITATAION

WILL CALL CONVENTION OF PARTY TO EXPLAIN THE PLATFORM.

Brantford, March 7.—Mayor MacBride, who has just returned from Ottawa, reports that the general executive of the Labor party is calling a conference of the several representatives in the different towns to make a clear and well-defined declaration of the principles of the party to the people. He said, "We are unalterably opposed to the revolutionary outbursts of certain individuals who represent themselves as Labor men. Every recognized spokesman for the several Labor organizations of Canada has gone on record emphatically for constitutional methods and the use of the ballot as a means of reform. At the same time we take strong exception to government by order-in-council, and particularly to the order curtailing free speech and supervision of literature. From the present outlook of things in Ottawa and Toronto there is no telling what may happen. Party affiliations seem to be very much disorganized and only the future can tell what the attitude of the Independent Labor party may be.

Fire Chief Smith of Guelph has made a successful test of a gas mask for the protection of firemen from smoke and fumes.

Coxey Will Lead Aaother Big Army

New York, March 7.—"General" Jacob Coxey declared here last night that he proposed to lead another "army" to Washington as a protest against National prohibition. He has decided, however, that he will not go on foot, but will travel in a touring car, and motor transportation will be provided, he said, for all his cohorts.

"General" Coxey, who is at the Waldorf Astoria, said he had discussed the project with many business men in this and other cities and that most of them have volunteered to enlist in his "army".

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

FRIDAY, MARCH 7th, 1919

THE LATE J. C. SHOOK.

EVEN HAD THE LATE James C. Shook been spared twenty years longer he would not really have grown older, for the spirit of such a man always remains young and his eyes are kept upon the future instead of dwelling upon the past, as is the vision of so many whose usefulness and interest in life have departed. No man had higher civic ideals, no man was a more beneficent source of inspiration to his associates, no man was readier with saner counsel, no man had a firmer faith in the future greatness of his city and nation, and none were more optimistic as to the final triumph of right, than the man whose passing is mourned by so many sincere friends.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM.

OUR ESTEEMED contemporary over on George Street should by this time be sufficiently blase not to give way to alarm on the slightest occasion, but should endeavor to preserve its professional soul in more complacency. Why rend the editorial shirt with a brave show of holy horror and righteous indignation? Times are hard and prices for garments, even for journalistic togas, still stick to the top rung of the ladder.

There is not a charge, however flimsy, made against any public man in Canada, but what is taken in all seriousness by our neighbor, who from the midst of its sackcloth and ashes at once sets up a clamorous din for a government investigation. Using its standing slug, it ventures that it "is sincerely to be hoped that the Government will probe these charges. Canada is waiting for action," laboring under a delusion similar to that which has made the name of the Toole street tailors a household word. Recent events in Parliament, an impassioned address dealing with military affairs, has set our contemporary clamoring and hoping again.

But why dignify an address, that would be regarded as slanderous if delivered outside the House, and is defamatory in any case, by appointing a committee to investigate the charges made? That would be simply helping on the schemes of the man who is seeking notoriety. The answer to those charges will be given by the men whose reputations have been so brutally attacked, backed up by their associates in the conduct of the war, and by the verdict of the gallant young fellows who served under them. Rumors will be quieted. If every flamboyant member of Parliament is to have his outbreaks taken seriously, then Parliament may as well abandon itself to the sleuth work of investigating charges.

Our timid contemporary should shelter itself behind the bulwark of selfrighteousness of which it is given to boast. The fabric of society, of representative government itself, is in no danger from the parliamentary incident that has aroused our neighbor's fears. Providence is still watching over the affairs of the world, and everything will come out right in the end. Truth and worth will triumph. Verbal flatuency will eventually exhaust itself. Anyway, the people have about lost faith in governmental investigations, resulting as they so often do in another boom in the kalsimine industry.

WHY NOT A LEAGUE OF CHURCHES?

IT IS NOT GIVEN to individuals, communities or nations to work out their several destinies alone. Co-operation is essential to progress. The farmer cannot prosper if he isolates himself or holds aloof from his neighbor. The capitalist and the laborer cannot maintain an individual prosperity. No city makes progress if the Board of Trade and the City Council, consumed by petty jealousies are constantly fighting or balking each other.

"Mon Dieu!" exclaimed a perplexed French visitor to the United States—and finding himself in Canada he could have said the same—"fifty religions and only one soup!" Perhaps the visitor was considerable of a materialist. Beyond question both of his deductions were out of the way of actual fact, but there was a germ of truth in what he said with regard to the denominations.

The present tendency of the times is in the direction of fuller co-operation. Labor and capital are combining for their mutual advantage and breaking industrial bread together. Workingmen and millionaires are being elected to the same law-making bodies. Royal crowns are being cast into the discard, and the people, pooling their interests, are assuming the management of their own affairs. Most significant and momentous of all, races and nations are entering into a league to preserve the peace for all time and to make the world a safer and better place in which to live.

And human effort is to assume a new task. There has been started in the United States a well-defined movement to bring the different denominations of the world into closer and more harmonious relations. Three dignitaries of one of the most powerful denominations on earth are now on the high seas, their mission being to visit the headquarters of one of the most influential churches to invite co-operation.

None of the countries that becomes a party to the League of Nations will surrender its national characteristics by so doing. Each will retain its language and its ideals as formerly. The object of the League is to promote harmony. There must, however, before this can be attained, be some recognition of the principle of give-and-take. It will be the same in the event of a league of churches. Such a union will mean harmony where there has been discord, understanding where there has, perhaps, been jealousy; co-operation where there has been strife, that weakens the best effort of either; a clear field for one where there has been overlapping by two, three, or more. All of us firmly believe that the various denominations are sincerely intent on bringing the light of the Gospel to the world, each after its own ideas. The nations in the past have been the victims of such a system of separate endeavor. With an agreed policy, a recognition of the rights of the powerful and the weak, the large and the small alike, the object aimed at in vain for centuries is likely to be attained.

The proposed league of churches would remove one obstacle to national advancement in Canada by uniting the several elements in the nation as they have never before known harmony or singleness of purpose. Union can be effected without a surrender of principles or ideas. The League of Nations does not imply one universal dominion under a single head, but a community of interests animated by a common ambition to attain still higher ideals.

NOT EVER THUS.

TIME WAS, and not so long ago, either, when a man who kicked himself out of the party traces and assailed those he was supposed to support, was hailed as a hero, a bold and independent spirit, by the Opposition papers, that crowded each other in their struggles to enfold the bolter to their individual bosoms.

But the world do move. Gen. Sir Sam Hughes' recent outbreak in the House brings him nothing but hard raps from such erstwhile stalwarts as the Toronto Star and Globe.

BLATHERSKITES IN PARLIAMENT.

THE MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT, once he sets his figure head inside the sacred precincts of the House, is at once hedged about, if not with a divinity, at least with immunity from such vulgar processes as suits for slander. He is free to say anything he chooses without the risk of being held to legal account. This privilege, designed to foster the independence of Parliament, is grossly abused on occasion. The vindictive member can wreak a terrible verbal vengeance upon his enemies on the outside. He can give expression to his personal animosities and vent his jealousies upon men, infinitely superior in everything that goes to constitute manhood, who hold high place, the higher the position the greater the fame—or notoriety—for their ambushed assailant. No public or private citizen is safe from the poisoned shafts of such terrible examples of popular laxity in the selection of representatives to Parliament and of the evils of deifying some man whose outstanding qualifications are those of a demagogue. Even the law protects these assassins of private character and public reputation from the horsewhipping they so richly deserve and from other physical punishment which they would likely receive if they discharged their bombastic tirade at close range.

Such men bring Parliament into disrepute and the ideals of honor into contempt. They should not be afforded protection upon which they presume, or allowed privileges which they cannot appreciate. Such men are hardly safe to be allowed at large. They should at least be taken out of public life. They are a constant menace to the harmony so desirable in any community, and are a detriment to any political party with whom they are now or have been at an other time identified.

THE CAPTURE OF MONS.

THE CANADIAN TROOPS crowned their glorious career at the front by the capture of Mons, an important strategic point, four hours before the armistice was signed. Up to the last moment here was no assurance that hostilities would cease. The armistice came as a joyful surprise to the entire world no less than it must have been to the contending armies. From a military standpoint, the Allies, Canadians included, would have been no more justified in anticipating peace by resting on their arms on that memorable November day any more than they would have been wise in ceasing to fight with the same hope at any stage of the conflict. It was not such inactivity, such sanguine dreams, that won the war.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE with the German fleet? And, by the way, what disposition is to be made of the uniforms of the honorary colonels?

* * * * *

IT MAY BE ALL RIGHT to give Germany a chance to organize before peace terms are insisted upon, but Germany gave the Allies no time to prepare for the war.

* * * * *

LENINE PROPOSES to appoint a commission to "investigate" the democratic nations. With Lenine, investigation appears to be as much of a fetish as with our local contemporary.

* * * * *

A DEVOUT EXCHANGE compares Hartley Dewart as a leader of men with Lloyd George. Mr. Dewart may wear his head and his feet in the same relative positions, but otherwise——

* * * * *

IF SIR SAM HUGHES is not laying wire for the leadership then the country has missed its guess. To lay wire is the right of every Canadian, but other than the barbed variety could be used.

* * * * *

SIR SAM HUGHES should be more charitable in his judgment of the work of others. It was impossible, as no one should know better than himself, to carry on Canada's home part in the war without occasional mistakes.

Sublime Cruelty.

(Rochester Democrat-Chronicle.)

One way to stop Bolshevist propaganda, it is suggested is to stop the importation of paper into Russia. Certainly such a move would be a cruel blow to the literary group in that country.

There is no doubt, remarks a contemporary in discussing the recent provincial bye-elections, that the Government has done its duty to the very best of its ability. Exactly. But the country is not satisfied that its ability is worth bothering about.

BEST EXERCISE FOR WOMEN

(By Anna Louise Shaver.)

Let each individual ask herself, "What is the purpose of muscular exercise?" Having obtained an answer to that question let her compare the amount of muscle use which her daily duties permit, or demand, with the amount required for properly and economically running the machinery of life, and the deduction would give a working standard, which could be varied according to changing conditions.

First, to the muscles themselves—which you must remember constitute ordinarily more than one-half of the body's wieght—"exercise is the necessary condition of their best development. A muscle which is unused degenerates and is absorbed, little finally being left but the connective tissue of the organ and a few muscle fibers filled with oil drops." You cannot discriminate as to which muscle you will exercise—they must all be exercised every day.

The immediate and most marked effect of exercise of the muscle functions is on the circulation. The blood vessels within the working muscles dilate and the flow of blood is quickened. Resting muscles contain about one-third of the blood of the body. Thrown into activity they take two-thirds of the blood, and start this in the exchange journey through the highways and byways of the body. Without the aid of muscles this journey of the blood is slow; and combustion or transformation of the body's substances, known as metabolism, is retarded. 1. Because of poor circulation; and 2. without exercise (which includes respiratory exercise), there is a lack of atmospheric oxygen; and great quantities are needed so that combustion may take place at the different cells, and the life of the body be renewed.

Muscular exercise hastens the separation of the used up parts of the body and increases the functional activity of the organs of excretion—the kidneys, lungs, skin—so that waste is more promptly disposed of.

And unless the blood is made to circulate through the skin, as well as through the deeper organs, how is the underlying tissue to be kept normally fed and free from wrinkles? There is a normal metabolism of the skin tissue which no "skin food" will replace. It takes place where circulation is free.

Of course the muscles is carrying the increased supply of blood draw it from the deeper organs and glands so that there is less danger of congestion where the muscular habits are good.

You all know the signs of poor circulation—that tired feeling on rising in the morning, cold hands and feet, languid lack of interest; the nerves constantly complaining of lack of nourishment, asking for renewed life, or giving warning of congestion in some part of the body or the other through their language of pain. While perhaps all the time an oversupply of nourishment has simply been stored as fatty tissue.

The nerves as well as the muscles are strengthened by muscle use. And even the invalid or convalescent requires some muscular exercise (always under a doctor's instruction, of course) in promoting the normal functioning of the different organs.

Those whose work is sedentary should find great pleasure and certainly will find much profit in a system of rather stiff muscular exercises. Whether they are thin or whether they are fat, they need it just the same. Muscle use and metabolism cannot be separated. They work as a team for the body's upbuilding.

In no case must exercise be carried to the point of exhaustion. It is to be followed by relaxation.

Those whose work is rather active—housework, etc.—will find rhythmic exercises with deep breathing (taken after a rest) helpful and exhilarating to nerves and mind.

A helpful suggestion in solving the question, "What exercise shall I take?" would be: Begin by establishing good body balance, good standing position, poise based on the body oppositions, which has so frequently been explained in this department. This in itself constitutes a gentle and ever present activity of the muscles when in standing position. It will keep them from "becoming absorbed." Because when the body is held in proper oppositions there is always present slight resistance to the muscular contraction—due to the fact that the muscles are arranged in antagonistic groups, and this resistance gives more power to the muscle itself and also gives what is known as "co-ordination" in muscular movement. It therefore develops grace of carriage.

LADIES, PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

The next fancy dress ball in Peterborough should see some one disguised as a War Savings Stamp! !

The chairman reports that out of fifty stores who have so far been asked to serve the country by becoming vendors of Thrift Stamps only two have refused, these with grievances fancied or real will be conspicuous by their absence of W. S. S. signs. A district organizer who was in town today tells us that Peterboro is far heads the list throughout Ontario as having the greatest percentage of stores to come forward and offer their services to further the savings stamps sales.

Savings Societies are to be a feature of the campaign, several of the larger retail organizations are forming these Societies, members of which pledge themselves to save so much per week or week or month as the case may be in some instances employes anxious that their staff shall avail themselves of the opportunity to save at a good rate of interest and become the backbone of the Dominions finances have presented each with a small thrift account.

In two banks it is reported that the sales of Tuesday equalled the totalled soles of the previous two months.

To those who do not understand the Savings Plan the following information may be useful.

A Thrift Stamp can be purchased at almost any Patriotic Store in Peterborough, where you see the sign: "Will you take your change in Thrift Stamps." A stamp costs 25 cents, With every first stamp you may obtain a Thrift Card on which to attach to stamp, free of charge; the card has space for 16 stamps. Four dollars hayed. When this card is filled take it to a bank or Post Office and exchange it for a War Savings Stamp and Certificate. This stamp will be purchased from you January 1st, 1924 by the Dominion Government for the sum of $5.00, one dollar profit.

Several of our prominent citizens are now carrying around Thrift Cards it is interesting work ,actually seeing your money grow month by month.

A prominent member of the Board of Trade asked the Retailers Association at their meeting Monday night for a recipe for Prosperity, his answer is now in every store, spend wisely, save wisely. The War Saving started out as a war measure, it is now and will continue as a peace measure, gaining strength every day. Educating the young to save, helping the middle aged to save and making the older generation wish that it had been instituted fifty years ago.

Apologies are due to any stores who have not been asked to become vendors, and they are asked to get in touch with the chairman's office, Mr. Bradburn will have a representative call on them at once.

In conclusion we would suggest that the American Gentlemen who asked if War Savings Stamps were a dark secret in Canada had better come to Peterborough.

PRESIDENT'S GRANDFATHER

(From the British Weekly of London)

To the Editor: As the name of President Wilson is held in such repute at the present time I venture to send you part of a letter dated February 23, 1835, from the Rev. Thomas Woodrow the president's grandfather, to Robert Williamson (my grandfather), whose daughter Marion, he had married. Mr. Woodrow was born in Paisley in 1793 and, after graduating in Glasgow university, became the minister of a Congregational church in Carlisle. After a pastorate there of sixteen years he emigrated, with his wife and their family of eight children and a sister of Mrs. Woodrow to the United States, sailing from Liverpool on Nov. 10, 1835, and arriving in New York on Jan. 12, 1836.

The burden of the letter referred to is a sorrowful intimation of his wife's death on February 16 of that same year, while he was absent preaching.

After some pathetic details, he write of their arrival in New York "after a long and perilous voyage of sixty-two days. During the latter part of it we were out of many things and had been for nearly seven weeks on an allowance of water, part of the time two quarts a day and later on only one.

"During most of the voyage my dear partner was sick, and lay in bed. We often gave one another and our dear children to the Lord, expecting a watery grave. One dreadful night especially I shall never forget; a mighty sea broke over us, carried off our hatch, and poured down on us in torrents."

It may just be added that after his wife's death Mr. Woodrow served a short ministry in Brockville, Ontario, afterward removing to Chillicothe and subsequently to Columbus where he died on April 27, 1877. His daughter Jessie—her name was changed to Janet, the other being a more common male name in the states—married Joseph Ruggles Wilson, who became, in 1855, pastor to the Presbyterian church in Staunton, Va., Here their son, Thomas Woodrow, was born.

Yours faithfully, R. W. HENRY.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

Composite condensed abstract of an endless chain of letters from readers who are too dignified, too dependent on splints and other supports, to stiff, too genteel, too lady-like, too timid—in short, too old for their years:

"A somersault is too much for me. I don't know whether it is fear of breaking something or whether I simply don't know how. But I have cold feet(literally), poor complection constipation, a tendency to mental depression or gloomy spirits and everything that so many of your readers report cured by turning somersaults. I wish I might bring myself to try it, but at my age (43) it seems rather a desperate chance."

Poor old thing. Good gracious! At 43 a woman is in her physical acme she is if the atmosphere about her bright. High, narrow heels and corsets, and other appurtenances of the dignity of fashion or style cause a whole lot of unhappiness in the world.

I know of any number of men and women over 60 years of age who are turning six somersaults every night and morning and telling wonderful stories of the beneficial results. And sometimes I believe their stories. Seeing is believing.

In the case of one who has indulged for many years in the follies of custom and dignity I suppose it is difficult to muster sufficient courage to do a childish thing like turning a somersault.

All danger of breaking anything may be avoided by first spreading on the floor sufficient mattresses or bedding or pillows to protect the floor against vicious impacts.

When all is ready you kneel, and your husband or the hired man holds your hand and endeavors to cheer you. If you happen to be a man, send for the cook or somebody else. Now duck your head and place it inverted on a pillow of your palms, fingers front, on the floor side a bit behind the place where your head. Next rise off your knees, give a push with your feet, curl up tight and flop. Any contortions you may now discover are wholly imaginary; the stars are not there. Sit still and things will presently quiet down again. Then go right around and repeat the stunt. Keep at it until you can do it as well as a 4 year old child.

Do no confuse six somersaults each night and morning with exercise. It would be as sensible to call riding in an automobile or driving one "exercise."

Words Versus Thoughts

"I consulted a physician, who examined me and said I had an extreme irritation of the spine. I took twenty-four treatments without apparent benefit. What would you advise for such a case? C.D."

"Irritation of the spine" is a doctors' humor ,a way of excreting words from the mouth without secreting any thought in the brain. It is a safe diagnosis, for it would cover one disease about as well as another. I would advise you to give that particular doctor a prolonged rest and consult a real physician.

FEMININE LOGIC

The young lady across the way says her contributions to the magazines have all been returned so far, but even at that she feels considerably encouraged, for the editors always go to all the trouble of having their letters to her neatly printed instead of merely writing.

ONTARIO WAR TAX OF MILL ON DOLLAR IS ABOLISHED

Treasurer McGarry Makes Announcement in Budget Speech---Province Has Surplus of Nearly Two Millions.

Toronto, March 7.—In making his Budget Speech in the Legislature Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer, announced the abolition of the municipal war tax of one mill on the dollar. This was the most important, as it will prove the most popular of all the statements made by the Minister in the course of a highly satisfactory financial pronouncement.

A surplus of $1,869,719.66 the largest in the history of the Province, was announced. No portion of this money was derived from the War Tax which has been sufficient during the past three years to carry all special war expenditures and leave a balance on hand exceeding $250,000.

The position of the Capital Account is considered most satisfactory and while the gross debt has grown the increase is equalled by a commensurate advance in the Provincial assets. The Minister mas in excellent form and spoke amid the hearty and enthusiastic applause of the Government supporters. No more satisfactory Budget has been expounded for many years.

The Hon. the Treasurer pointed out that October 31st last completed four years of administration by the Government presided over by Sir William Hearst. He thought it well to review the financial record of that period and in pursuance of that plan submitted the following table:

Ordinary Receipts.

For 1915	$12,975,732.19
For 1916	13,941,339.64
For 1917	18,269,597.23
For 1918	19,270,123.71
A Total of	64,356,792.77

Ordinary Expenditure.

For 1915	$12,704,382.16
For 1916	12,706,332.90
For 1917	16,518,222.64
For 1918	17,460,404.05
A Total of	59,389,321.75

Surplus.

For 1915	$ 271,370.03
For 1916	1,135,006.74
For 1917	1,751,375.59
For 1918	1,809,719.66
A Total of	4,967,471.02

Thus, the average annual surplus during the four-year period reached the handsome figure of $1,241,867.75.

The War Tax Abolished.

It is to be understood that the receipts from the War Tax do not appear in this statement. The Minister pointed out that the war expenditure of the province for the year ending in October, 1918, was $3,645,619.77. The proceeds of the War Tax for the same period were $2,054,212.78, leaving an amount of $1,591,406.99 which was paid out in excess of the amount received from this special source. That sum was carried into capital expenditures. and Mr. McGarry set forth the reason as follows:

In 1915 the Province received from War Tax $1,942,520 and paid out $1,346,478. The surplus was carried in Capital Receipts — an amount of $596,042.67. In like manner the figures for 1916 were: War Tax Receipts, $1,997,146.19; War expenditures, $749,218.22. Surplus carried to Capital Receipts, $1,247,927.97.

The total excess receipts for two years were $1,843,970.64. This year the excess expenditure on war account is set against that sum, still leaving available for war purposes in the Treasury $252,563.65. Mr McGarry reminded the House that this tax had been imposed only for the duration of the war. Therefore he was glad to say that the time had come to abolish it.

FISKE O'HARA

When Fiske O'Hara appears at the Grand Opera House tomorrow, matinee and evening, in his new play, "Marry In Haste," the special orchestra which he has carried for the past several seasons, and which adds so materially to the enjoyment of his performance, will again be heard in a selection of charming melodies. This season's play is a wide departure from the offerings of other years, and the role of Lord Richard Leigh, played by Mr. O'Hara, is said to be the best part the popular singing star has ever had. The play is a three-act romantic farce and is the work of Anna Nichols, who provided his offerings of the past several seasons. A splendid company appears in support of the star, and the scenes, which are laid in Ireland during the last century, are unusually picturesque. Mr. O'Hara will be heard in a number of new songs.

Interest Grows At the Temple

The interest which has been shown in the special meetings at the Temple still continues to hold, and the crowds nightly are getting larger.

Last night, owing to the absence in Toronto of Adjutant Buntin, Mrs. Buntin conducted the service, and it proved to be one of real inspiration and help. The service took the form of a fellowship gathering, and although there was no address, the short talks of different members were most interesting and helpful.

Tonight the adjutant will speak on "The Light That Went Out, and Why." If you have not yet attended a service, come along tonight for this will be one of the best.

The week-end services will be conducted by Envoy Alward of Toronto, and a treat is in store for those who hear him. Watch the papers tomorrow for further announcements.

COST $217,000 TO ENFORCE DRY LAW

PRIVATE DETECTIVE AGENCY IN U. S. WAS PAID $807.

Toronto, March 7.—In the public accounts of the province presented to the legislature yesterday some light is thrown upon the cost of enforcing the Ontario Temperance Act, but the most interesting fact in connection with the board of license commissioners is Auditor Clancy's protest that there has been no audit by the audit officer, as provided for by section 117, sub-section 2, O.T.A. From such information as appears on the face of the public accounts, however, it would appear that the enforcement of the act ran away with $210,828.58 for salaries and travelling expenses alone, with $2176.24 for expenses not itemized in the districts of Huron, Manitoulin and Peel; $2995.56 for postage and stationery, in all $217,000. J. D. Flavelle, chairman of the board of license commissioners, draws a salary of $6600. W. S. Dingman $6000, Geo. T. Smith $4000 and J. A. Ayearst $4000 for part of the time commissioner and part chief provincial inspector. All these gentlemen have liberal travelling expenses, J. A. Ayearst's amounting to more than 100.

A particular item reads: "W. J. Burns, services and expenses of operatives, $807." This apparently refers to the Burns Detective Agency of the United States.

SEARCH FIELDS FOR THE MISSING

FRENCH ARMY WILL UNDERTAKE A THOROUGH EXPLORATION OF TERRITORY.

Paris, March 7.—On the casualty lists of the French army the word "missing" is written in opposite the names of 314,000 men. Investigations which have been conducted have resulted in establishing the fact that of this nurber all hope for approximately 120,000 must be abandoned.

In these times of intensive warfare it is, of course, possible for a man to be literally "blown to atoms," but a minute examination of No Man's Land, it is hoped, may still yield indications by which it is possible to missing men.

An army of 12,000 searchers will subject all the trenches and dugouts along the whole battle line to a most careful scrutiny for any evidence that may lead to identification. That this is no light task is evident. Nearly 17,000 square miles of ground must be explored. In all cases approaching definite identification, a proper burial certificate will be issued to the families of the fallen.

There is talk of cemeteries being laid out on the battlefields, to be "Plains of Silence"; others prefer that the fields should be planted with trees to grow into mighty forests, as an everlasting monument to the dead of the great war.

The British Army of Occupation at Cologne will have a daily newspaper. All arrangements for editing and publishing it have been made.

Firemen were called on to fight fires in the Standard Stock Exchange building, and in the laundry room of the Harris Abattoir, Toronto.

A UNIQUE EVENT AT TURNBULL'S

The Week Beginning Monday, March 10

The Fifth-floor Given Over To A

"Better Bedding Exhibition"

One of the First of it's Kind in Canada

The Outstanding Event of Our merchandising program for March, will be a "BETTER BEDDING EXHIBITION" which will open on our Fifth-floor on MONDAY, MARCH 10th, at 2.30 p.m.

This is not exactly a selling event, but really what the name implies, an EXHIBITION OF BEDDING, to which the leading Canadian manufacturers contribute their best and most desirable lines.

The object of the Exhibition is to allow the people of Peterbirough and its surrounding country to become acquainted with modern Bedding in all of its phases. The manufacturers have forwarded large consignments of Beds, Springs, Mattresses, Pillows, etc., which will be arranged on the Fifth Floor for convenient and easy inspection.

Representatives from the factories will be on hand to explain the good points of their respective lines.

Each day there will be a prominent window display as well, but the best place to see the Bedding will undoubtedly be on the large, roomy Fifth Floor.

More and more the public are demanding definite assurance from the manufacturers that their Bedding is clean, pure and sanitary. One reason that manufacturers co-operate in this Exhibition is that they may demonstrate direct to the public the absolute purity and the cleanliness of heir product to-day.

We wish to emphasize the fact that it is an "Exhibition," not a selling campaign, and that you are cordially invited to visit it any day and every day of next week. There will be no solicitations on the part of the salesmen. You will find everybody willing to give you al lthe information you desire, but you will not be asked to make a purchase.

This Exhibition provides an opportunity that should not be missed to get an insight into the manufacture of modern Bedding, that cannot be had in any other way.

A visit to the Exhibition will be as good as a visit to the factory, and can be made without any expense and much less inconvenience. There will be Mattresses, Beds and Bedding in the various stages of manufacture, from the raw material to the finished article.

A NEW AND EXCLUSIVE BEDDING DEPARTMENT

With the "Better Bedding Exhibition" we will open what will be one of the largest exclusive Bedding Departments in Ontario, or in Canada, for that matter, in the roomy Fifth Floor of our big store. The entire floor, with the exception of the stock room, will be used for the display and sale of Bedding of all kinds. The Department is unique, for very few stores, even in the larger centres, carry a department confined to Bedding alone; as a rule it being combined with other lines.

In devoting this much floor space to the sale of Bedding, we are following the example of the larger American stores, which all the time are giving a more prominent place to Bedding in all its branches.

ENTERTAINMENT PROVIDED

We have provided for our entertainment while visiting the Exhibition, with a first-class orchestra of five pieces from the Local Federation of Musicians of Peterborough, which will render a select program eac hafternoon from 2:30 to 5 o'clock. This music in itself will make a visit to the Exhibition worth your while.

The program for each afternoon will be announced in the papers the preceding day.

FREE PRIZES

One prominent feature of the Exhibition is that a large number of prizes have been donated and are to be given away on the various days in which the Exhibition is in progress. These range from a Baby's Mattress up to a beautiful Brass Bed, which is donated by one of the leading manufacturers of Canada.

The method of awarding these prizes will be announced on Monday and at the Exhibition.

PETERBOROUGH'S GREATEST STORE

At The Grand

A Peterborough audience enjoyed the distinction of witnessing at the Grand Opera House last night a program of moving pictures that was presented for the first time in Canada, an arrangement that is passible under the new management, which practically controls all the leading theatres in Ontario. The exhibition which will be repeated tonight opens with a vivid illustration of the lure of the moving pictures house for the straight-laced people in a small town. Another film records the history of a New York girl given to romantic dreams, "The Foolish Virgin," not an isolated example by any means, but simply one of a million or more who made a marriage in haste to become later acquainted with her husband's true character and record, to her bitter disillusionment.

One of the most novel features in the bill is an electric posing act, in which a number of attitudes and figures are represented as if by magic.

Fiske O'Hara will be here tomorrow with a new Irish play, "Marry in Haste," one of the very best, in which he has ever appeared, and with an entirely new list of Irish songs.

NATIONAL WAR SAVING SOCIETY

LOCAL BRANCH FORMED BY EMPLOYES OF R. FAIR & CO.

The employees of Robert Fair & Co., Ltd., remained at the close of business last evening and formed a society to be known as the "We're In It" War Savings Society. Officers were duly elected as follows:

President—Miss B. Thompson.
Secretary—Miss Alma Morrison.

Mr. Jones, of the National War Savings Committee and organizer for this district, addressed the staff outlining the objects. He stated this was the first of many individual societies that would be formed in Peterboro. The movement is national, but only in its infancy here. The staff of this company are to be commended for the initiative in taking up so enthusiastically this commendable, patriotic undertaking.

Meeting Tonight At Murray Street

A meeting of unusual interest will be held in Murray Street Baptist Church tonight when Rev. D. Brown and Rev. John Galt will assist the pastor in giving the people some facts and impressions from the unique conference held in Toronto covering two days last week. The most remarkable gathering held for many years was convened in Jarvis Street Church on Tuesday and Wednesday. Over five hundred out-of-town persons went up to the spiritual feast.

Three meetings were arranged for this week covering the three Baptist Churches of Peterboro and already the contageon of the spiritual atmosphere has been felt. All are welcome tonight.

FARMER MUST NOT "TAP" SILO

Bill Provides Prison Penalty for Thus Obtaining "Wet Goods"

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—Woe be unto the farmer who steals out behind the barn and taps the silo before sun up. He is going to be a marked man if he resorts to such method to get his alcohol after the "great drought."

The prairies of the state abound in silos wherein the fodder is fermented that cattle may have food. Illinois has farseeing statesmen in its halls of legislation and they are on the job. They know that after July 1 when the country goes "dry" because of the national food conservation act there will be a mad rush for anything that smacks of alcohol.

Representative William P. Holaday of Georgetown is fearful that the tapping of a silo may bring dire consequences in the farming communities and he put in a bill that is going to forestall any such catastrophe. The farmer caught tapping his silo may go to penitentiary and the Holaday bill stipulates not even civil service low would save him. Such are the stipulations of the big freak bill of the session.

AT MARK STREET CHURCH

The Epworth League service at Mark Street Methodist Church tonight will be of unusual interest, "A Mock Parliament." Everybody welcome.

Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer, announced in his Budget speech that the special Provincial war tax would be discontinued.

ATLANTIC SUGAR REFINERIES Ltd., MONTREAL

COL. PECK, V. C., TAKES ISSUE WITH GEN. SIR SAM HUGHES

Says Latter's Sensational Charges Are Unwarranted—Will Make Detailed Reply in the House.

Ottawa, March 7.—The sensational charges of Sir Sam Hughes of unnecessary losses among Canadian troops at Cambrai and Mons and the attack, which is regarded here as aimed at General Sir Arthur Currie, the Canadian Corps commander, will not go unchallenged by the soldier members of the House.

Lieut.-Col. "Cy" Peck, V.C., D.S.O., who has just returned from the front, where, as commander of the 16th Battalion, he was in the forefront of the fighting from August 8, when the big Allied advance began, will be among the early speakers who will refute these charges and point out how deplorable they are, especially at the present time.

Needs No Defence.

"General Currie needs no defence as to military ability or the care he took in all engagements to conserve the lives of the soldiers under him," said Col. Peck, "but such wild charges as Sir Sam Hughes must be answered. I was aghast when the former Minister of Militia made his statements. It is deplorable that such unconfirmed allegations should be made, when there are thousands of mothers and wives with sorrowing hearts still far from healed whose wounds will be opened again by the ill-considered words of Sir Sam Hughes. General Currie, in my opinion, and in the opinion of most of the soldiers I have come in contact with, is one of the finest leaders in the war, and the care and safety of his men always took first place in his mind.

"We Did Go 'Round'."

"As for Cambrai, sometimes perhaps it is better to 'go round the durned place,' and it was done here. The Canadians were two miles beyond Cambrai before the first Canadians entered the streets of the town. It was friendly rivalry between Imperial troops and the Canadians that caused the rush through the streets. There were more prisoners alone taken than casualties occurring to us in this fighting.

"As to 'booby traps' few, I believe, no, not one Canadian soldier was caught by these. The Canadian infantryman is far too wise a bird to be trapped, and any prisoners we had gathered in were quickly used to clean them up.

"The attack on Mons, I am sure, was at the direction of the higher command and was well carried out. Our casualties were light and had the Germans not carried out the armistice terms, we gained a fine strategic position by its capture.

Colonel Peck will probably be one of the speakers on the address this week. It is his intention to meet the 16th Battalion, which he commanded, and to accompany them to Winnipeg, where they will be demobilized. It is possible, if the First Division's return is delayed, he will return to England to join them.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation of Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or as you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having good kidney flushing at any time.

The Allure of the New Suits

THEIR COATS EITHER BLOUSED OR MADE WITH VESTS A LA DIRECTOIRE, OR CUT UPON THE LINES OF THE LOUIS SEIZE SURTOUT, WITH SOMETHING OF A REDINGOTE EFFECT.

Countless are the variations that Fashion plays upon these three themes, not forgetting the claims of the severely simple tailor-made, with notched collar, braid bound edges, and smart flare from the waist. The skirts are, for the most part, plain, though in some cases a cuff bottom strikes a remarkably new note. One and all, they retain the narrow lissome look to which we are growing accustomed.

Navy blue remains the color of first favor, then tan and brown shades, with an occasional midnight blue taupe, or pewter grey shade.

Millinery a la Mode

YOUR SPRING BONNET AWAITS YOU, MADAM. AND NEVER, SURELY, IN ALL THE CHRONICLES OF FASHION WAS SUCH DIVERSITY IN MODISH SHAPES.

The brims turn up and down; scarcely a model is without some little unexpected line. There's the Directorie poke, the bicornes and tricorns, exact copies of those worn in the 1790's; the turban, the quaint little close-fitting Mid-Victorian hat, the big picture hat, frequently of transparent horsehair braid or lace, and ever so many other forms are to be seen.

Among the new straws, pineapple braid, and metallic braids may be noticed, while lisere, Milans, and Leghorns are well represented, and the first favorite in the fabric hat is georgette, with silks and satins being much to the fore.

As for colorings, they are many indeed, and the brightest we have seen for a long while. Perhaps the most favored are tete de nigre, the new blues, Victory red, navy, dust and apple greens.

Curled ostrich feathers nod from the fronts of the Directoire hats, or curve along the brims of the Victorian, while no fantasies can be too strange to adorn any kind of shape. Big flat flowers, little bunches of fruit, piquant bows and wings, all have a part to play in the modish scheme.

MINIMUM FINE IS IMPOSED UPON THOMAS COLLINS, DEFAULTER

First Case Disposed of Under New Order-in-Council---F. D. Kerr's Masterly Plea for Leniency Has Effect.

One of the first cases in the Province of Ontario in which the court in arriving at a decision considered the Order-in-council amending the military service regulations which received the approval of the Governor-General on Tuesday, ended at 9.30 last night in the police court here, when Justices of the Peace H. Rush and F. Adams after hearing argument in the case of Thomas James Collins of Omemee, who admitted being a defaulter under the Act, was ordered to pay the minimum fine of $250 and costs or go to the jail farm for a term of one year as an alternative.

Collins, a young farmer who works a rented farm near Omemee and is 22 years of age was arrested some time ago by the Dominion Police charged with being a defaulter. He appeared in police court once and was remanded upon the representations of the Crown until such time as the flat, acquiescing in his prosecution, should arrive.

The next hearing was before Magistrate Dumble and after considerable persuasion, the young man's counsel, Mr. F. D. Kerr, of the firm of Peck, Kerr and McElderry, succeeded in obtaining a further enlargement of the case until he could produce witnesses from the accused's native township.

Last night before two justices of the peace Messrs. Rush and Adams, the case was resumed and resulted as described above.

Witnesses called by Mr. Kerr for the defence included men who had known the young man from his childhood days. They stated that he had been a steady worker, a law abiding citizen and had continued to work his farm to the last without attempting to hide from the officers of the law whether he knew or realized the gravity of his offence in refusing to obey the summons of the Deputy Registrar at Kingston or otherwise.

James Callaghan, Dennis Scully and John Curtin gave character evidence which went to show that long after the time Collins received the order to report for service he continued to visit the town of Lindsay on market days and transacted his business as usual in Omemee.

In cross examining these witnesses Mr. Kerr brought out the lack of information which seemed characteristic of the farmers in the townships of Opps and Emily concerning the war and the application of the Military Service Act. All the witnesses agreed that the idea was prevalent in the district that the farmers would not be taken as long as they remained on their farms, and Mr. Kerr produced a circular which had been sent out at the time of the last election in which assurances were made, over the names of several prominent public men, that farmer's sons would not be conscripted so long as they were engaged upon the land and urged them to support Union Government.

These statements in the press and such circulars Mr. Kerr's witnesses showed had resulted in a general belief that farmers enjoyed an automatic exemption so long as they remained upon their farms and aided in production.

Mr. J. Fordyce Strickland, the acting Crown Attorney by a series of questions showed clearly from the answers that he obtained from the witnesses that most of the people of that locality were not interested in the war and had never noticed the March offensive and what it portended nor had they at any time felt anxious as to the success of the Allied cause.

Several of those who gave testimony admitted without any apparent embarrassment that they could not read nor write and were not in a position to acquire a knowledge of the events of the world as described in the papers.

Patrick Collins, the father of the prisoner stated in the witness box that he was a farmer of Opps township and had a family of ten children eight of whom were boys. The eldest worked with him upon the homestead, the second eldest had a rented farm nearby and the prisoner was on a rented farm near Omemee.

Next the prisoner testified. He stated that he could write his own name but could not read the papers. This statement was received with surprise as the young man was intelligent looking but it only corroborated the testimony of the father and other preceding witnesses who had admitted illiteracy of as deplorable degree themselves.

Collins stated as a result of Mr. Kerr's examination that he and his brother had batched it upon the farm for some time and that he had then determined to have a housekeeper and had accordingly married a young woman with whom he had been keeping company for several years, a degree themselves.

the certificate of exemption which was given him as a farmer would protect him against being called upon to serve in the army.

Upon receiving the order to report for service he had paid no attention to it assuming that if he was wanted very badly the officials would come after him. He stated that had he been refused exemption in the first place he would undoubtedly have enlisted but with his wife to take care of and the farm to work he felt averse to entering the army especially in view of the fact that his wife was not in good health, a child having been born soon afterwards.

Collins stated that he knew very little about the war, in answer to questions of Mr. Strickland. He had gone to school until he was thirteen in a desultory manner but could show nothing more for his time at the institution of learning than an ability to sign his name.

Mr. Kerr's Masterly Effort

Mr. F. D. Kerr's plea for leniency for his client was a masterly one. He did not seek to detract unduly from the gravity of Collins' offence but in an eloquent and convincing manner related the salient points of the case which were to be considered by the court. He made a touching reference to the condition of the young man from the standpoint of social disadvantage. He was an ignorant country boy who had in common with the other people residing in the district grasped the erroneous impression that as long as he remained upon the farm he was exempt from military service He had been denied the advantages of education, and knew nothing whatever of the history of his country or of the British Empire.

To begin with he submitted that the information and complaint charged had not been proved and especially maintained that there was no proof that the Governor in Council had directed orders to report for duty on the part of the class to which the accused belonged under the Military Service Act.

This was a fine point which has not been raised as far as is known in a case of this kind before and Mr. Strickland objected upon the grounds that it would be ridiculous for the Government to be put to the necessity of proving that every proclamation had been issued in such a manner as to be read by everyone. A proclamation is a matter of common knowledge. An argument involving technicalities of a complicated nature followed between the Acting Crown Attorney and Mr. Kerr in which the famous Lewis case of Alberta was referred to.

Mr. Kerr stated that he would not press this contention but submitted it for consideration of their Worships. He then commenced his plea for the prisoner.

At the outset he reminded their Worships that throughout the conduct of the case he had not aimed to have the prisoner acquitted of the charge so much as to bring out the extenuating circumstances which undoubtedly existed and which should be considered in deciding upon the punishment to be inflicted.

The Government had recently recognized the fact that cases were deserving of individual consideration by setting a maximum and minimum fine to be levied in accordance with the degree of the offence

The minimum set by the new Order-in-Council is $250 and the maximum $5000. Mr. Kerr stated that he could conceive of instances where the maximum levy should be made and he could just as readily understand that at other times the minimum would be none too light. He agreed that the two magistrates had a great responsibility resting upon them and one which he would not desire to share.

He drew attention to the fact that his client had carried on his work openly after he had been notified to join the army. He had made no attempt to hide and had believed as did his fellows in the district where he lived that so long as he was engaged in farming he was exempt from military service.

Believing this, he had married a girl with whom he had been keeping company for years previous to the outbreak of the war. He had undertaken to support her and soon after commencing married life had found himself in a terrible predicament. His exemption had been cancelled and he was ordered to leave his young wife who at that time had not given birth to her child and was in delicate health.

In refusing to comply with the order of the Registrar, Collins had been guilty of an offence, the gravity of which his counsel did not endeavor to minimize but he did state that in remaining inactive he had obeyed a natural impulse in one who had not enjoyed the advantages of education and enlightenment which are vouchsafed to the average individual

It was impossible for their Worships to view the matter from the standpoint of such a man, who was intensely ignorant and knew nothing whatever of history; could not read the papers and knew nothing of their contents except what little his wife read to him. In addition to that the quite naturally believed in the widespread idea that so long as he was producing he was performing a most creditable service for his country and that the exemption which he held entitled him to freedom from military service so long as he remained at agricultural work.

He did not dodge when he had refused to join the service but had remained with his wife and child endeavoring to care for them to the best of his ability.

Passing on from this phase of the case Mr. Kerr reminded the court that this young man was one of thousands who had failed to do their duty. While not in any way be-

WHAT ITALY DID IN WORLD'S WAR

FAMOUS GENERAL EXPLAINS WHAT HIS COUNTRY ACCOMPLISHED IN THE STRUGGLE.

Toronto, March 7.—Major-General Emilio Guglielmotti made an excellent impression at the Empire Club yesterday in his admirably moderate and lucid statement of Italy's part in the war, and her attitude towards the claims of the Jugo-Slav nation.

He made it clear that Italy had been an essential factor in the victory over Germany. The battle of the Marne could not have been won but for the release of French troops from the Franco-Italian frontier, and the subsequent tying up of Austrian troops on the Austro-Italian frontier when Italy declared war against the Huns, saved the situation.

Italy, he said, asked no more than France did when she required the restoration of Alsace-Lorraine. The provinces wrested from Italy by Austria in 1866 were on a similar basis.

The claims of Jugo-Slavia on the Adriatic were not denied by Italy, he stated, that had been recognized by her. Italy admitted the justice of the Jugo-Slav demand for an outlet to the sea, and was willing to let them have two-thirds of the Dalmatian coast and the best port on the Adriatic. Italy, moreover, was quite willing to leave the case to the allies, to whom Italy had been loyal, and he believed the allies would be loyal to Italy.

A large audience, including many prominent citizens of Italian birth, was present, and General Guglielmotti was frequently and heartily applauded.

MINIMUM FINE IS IMPOSED

Extolling his offence he maintained that his client had not been a leader amongst those who had become defaulters and has up to this time been a civil, hard working and law abiding citizen.

The Government said Mr. Kerr, recognizes as is shown by the recent Order-in-Council that to impose an excessive penalty upon these men is to create a circle of ten or twelve of his relatives or descendents who consider the law tyrannical and unjust and do not sympathize with it.

He felt that to impose too trivial fine would bring the law into contempt and to imprison the men for too long a period would have a tendency to go to the other extreme and bring contempt upon the law from the other standpoint, and cause this man's descendents who might grow up to be useful citizens with opportunity of education such as, unfortunately, he had not received, to be law haters and enemies of society.

Collins' counsel then referred to the splendid spirit of fair play which had always characterized the British Law. He illustrated his meaning by a reference to the treatment of the Boers after their defeat when instead of resorting to harsh measures the British Government had dealt generously with the rebels and had transformed them into loyal citizens. Grant had advised his beaten foes of the south to take their horses back home as they would need them on the plow; Lincoln said he would treat the Confederates as if they had never taken up arms against the union, and the same attitude should be adopted in Canada to a certain extent today. To send these thousands of men to the penitentiaries of the land, to take them away from the farms at this crisis would not be serving the best interests of this Dominion.

His client had not done his duty. He was an ignorant fellow from the backwood district but would his child be a better citizen of Canada for knowing that shortly after her birth her father was sent to prison? Was it right that this little one's first impressions of her father should be of such a nature? Mr. Kerr maintained that under the circumstances it would place a stigma upon the daughter which she would always carry and would mar her chances of becoming a good and useful citizen in her native land.

While not allowing a man such as Collins to escape punishment Mr. Kerr appealed to the magistrate for leniency in dealing with him. The penalty should suit the offence and should be measured according to his worldly possessions and standing.

He is a tenant farmer, continued the counsel for the defence, with a farm of 100 acres most of which is under cultivation to a limited degree. His father owns a farm which is not of great value and there are at least seven members of his family still dependent upon him for support. These things should enter into consideration when imposing a fine.

If it appeals to your judgment, continued Mr. Kerr, to impose a penalty in money that this man will have to work out with the sweat of his brow I trust that you will not make it so large as to be impossible of payment in which case it will do neither the prisoner nor the State the good it should accomplish.

In conclusion Mr. Kerr stated that he realized the responsibility which rested upon the court. They were called upon to use their discretion in a case where a law had been violated which exacted a penalty ranging from $250 to $5000 and various terms of imprisonment. He asked that they would not send the young man to prison but would impose as moderate a fine as their judgment permitted and in default a term in prison. He hoped that they would deal as lightly and mercifully with Collins as the unerring but merciful spirit behind the British law demands.

J. Fordyce Strickland, the Acting Crown Attorney presented the case tersely for the Crown when he asserted that his learned friend had expressed his own sentiments very eloquently and thoroughly and complimented him upon his attitude in not seeking to minimize the seriousness of the offence. The Government as Mr. Kerr had stated had given magistrates the option of imposing a fine or of sending a defaulter to prison. The man was guilty and he as prosecutor had no objection in pressing for a maximum fine but was quite content to leave it with their Worships whom he felt sure would mete out such punishment as they deemed sufficient.

Mr. Adams stated that the most lamentable feature of the case to his mind was the deplorable lack of education and enlightenment which existed in the district from which the young man came.

After conferring together for a [illegible] into and making some enquiries into the financial status of the prisoner and his family the magistrates decided to impose the minimum penalty of $250 and in default of payment a term at the prison farm of one year.

In announcing the sentence Mr. Rush stated that he and his colleague did not wish to send Collins to the prison farm without the option of a fine. He hoped that the young prisoner would remember that day as long as he lived and that it would serve as a lesson to him to obey the law. He was guilty of the charge preferred against him as he admitted himself and as his counsel admitted and in imposing the minimum penalty permissible His Worship felt that they were dealing with him very leniently and at the same time carrying out the spirit of the law as set forth in the most recent order-in-Council dealing with this difficult question.

CIVIC EMPLOYES GIVEN INCREASES IN SALARIES

Generosity of Council, However, Will Cost City Only $590 a Year---Move Toward Abolishing Property Qualification Defeated

Last night the city council in committee of the whole met and considered salary increases. The result of their deliberations is $590 increase in the civic pay roll which was apportioned in the following manner:

Increases made in the salaries of the city officials:

Official	Salary	Increase	New Stipend
Tax Collector Greene	$1400	$150	$1550

James Finney of Court of Revision	50	25	75
H. Morrow of Court of Revision	50	25	75
Engineer's Office Miss Jackson	480	120	600
City Clerk's Office:—
Miss Mabel Young	540	60	600
Miss Florence Johnston	480	60	540
Total	$3150	$590	$3740

Grant to Exhibition

Last year's grant of $500 to the Exhibition Board was doubled last night when a motion was introduced and passed recommending that $1000 be the amount of this year's grant.

Alderman Hamilton felt that this was not enough and was in favor of voting more. Alderman Gainey thought that $1000 was quite sufficient and as much as the city could afford this year.

Labor Day Grant

Alderman Gainey asked for a grant of $100 for the Trades and Labor Council to help meet labor day expenses. The Labor Council would in all probability have a deficit to deal with unless the city Council assisted them in this way.

Alderman Hamilton advised waiting until such time as the deficit was really found to exist before making such a grant.

A motion granting the $100 was introduced by Aldermen McIntyre and Phelan and was carried thus ending the discussion upon this question.

Equal Grants to Bands

The question of how to apportion the band grants was considered and settled last night. Last year $350 was granted to the 57th Regiment band and $150 to the Salvation Army band.

Last night it was decided to recommend an appropriation of $600 and a motion introduced by Aldermen Edgar and Morrison stipulated that each of the bands of the city which played 13 nights in parks as designated would receive a grant of $200.

Housing Bill Discussed

In accordance with the promise made Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A. at the last meeting of the Council the Provincial Government's Housing Bill was discussed fairly thoroughly in committee last night.

The most important clauses of the proposed legislation were read and considered and a resolution was passed requesting the clerk to write Mr. Gillespie thanking him for drawing the attention of the Council to the matter and informing him that if it was thought advisable in the future to enter into the agreement with the Government action would be taken.

What was wanted by the Legislature was a statement from the municipal councils of the province as to whether or not they would become parties to the project.

Property Qualifications

A copy of the resolution passed by the city council of Brantford urging the Government to abolish property qualifications in the cases of candidates for municipal office, and asking for an endorsement from the various councils of the country was read at the meeting of the committee last night.

Mayor Duncan, the chairman suggested that it might be received.

Alderman Gainey, however, did not want to see it shelved and was of the opinion that the Committee should make a recommendation to the Council that it be endorsed, and forwarded as directed.

He announced the usual arguments in its favor, maintaining that property qualification was unfair inasmuch as it prevented many good and able men from seeking election to the councils of the cities and towns of the country.

Alderman Hamilton took issue with him at once. He said that he was sorry to know that such a plan had been incorporated in the Labor platform for he felt that its adoption would not be in the best interests of municipal government. He did not favor endorsing such a resolution and said so quite plainly.

Mayor Duncan agreed with the stand taken by Alderman Hamilton. He thought it would be a mistake to give every man who resided in the city but had nothing at stake in it an opportunity to enter the Council and participate in the handling of money which did not come out of his pocket in the form of taxes.

Alderman Hamilton could not see why the local labor Aldermen favored such a proposition. They had four good representatives in the Council now and Alderman Gainey himself admitted that there were fifty more in the Trades and Labor Council just as able to represent the electors as the ones who had been successful and everyone of whom could qualify for the position.

A motion recommending the endorsation of the Brantford resolution was submitted by Aldermen Gainey and Garside and an amendment was proposed by Aldermen Phelan and Hamilton. The result of the division was four-four, the chairman voting for the amendment.

Division: Motion—Gainey, Garside, Morrison and McIntyre.

Amendment— Phelan, Hamilton, Edgar and Mayor Duncan.

Both were declared lost and the matter will be revived in the Council if the sponsors of the move see fit to act further.

SAVE YOUR HAIR! A SMALL BOTTLE STOPS DANDRUFF

EVERY BIT OF DANDRUFF DISAPPEARS AND HAIR STOPS COMING OUT

TRY THIS! YOUR HAIR APPEARS GLOSSY, ABUNDANT, WAVY AND BEAUTIFUL

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight— now — any time— will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance, an incomparable gloss and softness; but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

STORIES OF CHAS. VAN LOAN AS RELATED BY HIMSELF

Late Writer Was One of the Most Literary Figures That the Baseball Game Ever Knew.

(By George S. Robbins.)

Baseball lost one of its best boosters in the death of Charles Van Loan. This big hearted fellow had countless friends who will mourn his departure, but his writings will live on. Van Loan became one of the world's greatest short story writers and some of his articles on baseball and racing are classics of their kind. Former Trainer Buckner of the White Sox furnished the plot for many stories written by Van Loan when he labored for newspapers and after he entered the magazine field. Buck was the central figure around whom a series was woven. Van Loan was a great humorist, and told several corking good ones on himself. One of these had to do with Jeffries.

In Los Angles, Cal., Van Loan's home until recently, when he went east to work for the Saturday Evening Post, he became a close personal friend of Jim Jeffries, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world. The big ex-pugilist furnished a subject for many stories just as did other famous sporting characters Van Loan had met. Van frequently dodged into Jeff's place to kill a little time and pick up a few ideas for fresh hits.

Jim Jeffries' Great Dane.

It happened that Jeffries owned a Great Dane that was certainly huge in size and some eater. The dog wasn't good for anything much but to eat lie around and sleep.

"Boys—that dog's got my goat — I'm going to sell him or shoot him," said Big Jeff. "He's afraid of his shadow and is eating his head off."

Then Jim had a brilliant idea. He knew Van Loan liked dogs and that he certainly would fall for a big present like that. Van was "pie," he figured.

"Van you've been a friend of mine a long time," said Jeff, meeting Van Loan for a fanning bee soon afterward. "I've something else I could get you to show my appreciation of your many favors. I've got the biggest Great Dane at home the natives out here ever saw. He's a darb. Furthermore, he's yours, if you like dogs."

No time was lost by Van in assuring the ex-pugilist that he was very fond of dogs, especially of great Danes. Although he had never been fortunate enough to own one. He thanked Jim profusely.

"How About That Dog?"

"How about that dog?" phoned Van Loan the next day when the present hadn't arrived.

"Don't worry, old man; he'll be on his way soon," replied Jeffries.

It required a truck to deliver the present, but Jeffries didn't care if it took a whole flock of trucks. He was mighty glad to be rid of the big animal with his huge appetite and lazy disposition.

Van Loan was highly elated over the receipt of the big canine. He decided he would show his present to the boys at the next ball game in Los Angeles. Van decided to do the thing up brown. He decked himself out in a brown suit, a brown derby hat and dark tan shoes. His dog was fixed up with a bronze collar on which was inscribed: "Gift of James J. Jeffries to Charles Van Loan." A carefully chosen chain connected this collar with a bronze band ring around Van's left hand.

"Look Out for Spider-"

Decked in this regalia, and swinging a cane, Van Loan entered baseball park. He went to the clubhouse to warn Hap Hogan, manager that he had better keep Spider, his little fox terrier, in the clubhouse, as he was going to visit the boys on the bench, and didn't want his Great Dane to damage his little canine.

Van Loan was the talk of the stands and bleachers when he strode in, leading his big dog, looking like a million bucks. He waltzed up to the home bench and sat with Hogan and his ball tossers. Everything was all right except one thing. One of the ball players forgot to close the clubhouse door and Spider leaped out and sprinted down to see the game.

Spying the overgrown interloper seated down in the rathskeller where he ruled dogdom, Spider became exceedingly jealous. With a piercing bark he leaped toward the big Dane. The big dog saw the little one coming and started to leave. Spider sprang at Van's dog, snapped at his hind legs and showed no respect whatever for size or strength.

It Advertised Charlie.

Out of the rathskeller leaped the big Dane dragging Van Loan with him. The chain was strong and the big Dane was scared and Van was the victim. On sped the scared animals toward the gate dragging his new master along the ground until he was stopped by some obstacle near the exit. It was a sight the fans hadn't paid to see, but it advertised Charlie in a way he hadn't figured on.

It is safe to say Van Loan made no further experiments with his gift from Jeffries. He learned that size doesn't always count with dogs any more than with human beings. Another story is told about Van Loan when a baseball writer in New York. He had been especially critical one week in picking out faults of ball players on the Gotham teams. In a game between the staffs of two New York papers Van made the "boner" of trying to pilfer third with the bases loaded. The ball papers never forgot to mention it to him often.

Out in Los Angeles Van had kidded the cowboys frequently about their stunts in the movies. William S. Hart and other friends of the writer decided they would cure him of his ideas. So one day when Van was out watching some cowboy stunts one of the boys lassoed Van "by mistake." He was dragged along the ground several yards before being released. It was easy to see from the mirth of Hart and others than Van was the victim of a practical joke. After that he had more respect than formerly for the cowboys of the movies.

Final O. H. A. Game Is Postponde

Toronto, March 7.—With the consent of the Hamilton hockey club the senior O. H. A. final scheduled for tomorrow night at the Arena between Tigers and St. Patricks has been postponed until next Wednesday night. St. Patrick's came out of the Tiger game in pretty bad shape, as Jimmy Eltherington yesterday developed water on the knee, while Patterson was pretty badly mussed up. Then Hefternan would not have been able to play tomorrow night.

Arrangements were being made last night to have Tigers and Kitchener meet here tomorrow night in an exhibition game, and as both clubs appeared to be willing the final arrangements will likely be completed today.

EDITOR'S MAIL

CAPT. BURNHAM EXPLAINS

Editor Review: As you seem a little perplexed in your remarks upon my letter in reply to Mr. Cunningham, let me add this one word: "God established a national and a moral order and 'prohibits' nothing he furnishes. For us to seek to improve upon His plan is an attempt to cast reproach upon Him, and no matter how much we are pleased with our own superior schemes for the uplift of mankind they can only end in disaster. We are bidden to rely upon Him, not to substitute our own order for His order. Many are carried away with their own conceit but underlying it is atheism and nothing less. It is as tempting as any other toy of the devil and more dangerous."

THE KING-JARVIS RECITAL ATTRACTS HUGE AUDIENCE

Delightful Evening of Vocal Melody—Mrs. King Could Not Appear Owing to Illness—Miss Scott and Miss Parker Contributed to the Program.

A capacity house attended Mrs. George H. King's recital last evening when Mr. Harold Jarvis, of Detroit, a gifted tenor, exceedingly popular in both Canada and the United States, assisted in a select and refined program.

Unfortunately, however, Mrs. King suffered keen disappointment in not being able to be present owing to illness. But Mr. King took her place in a delightful duet, "When Thou Art Near," in which Mrs. King was to have accompanied Mr. Jarvis, and acquitted himself so admirably that the applause, which followed, was enthusiastic and persistent. Mr. King also earned, on this occasion, a full measure of commendation for his talent as accompanist to a program of high-class vocal numbers composed by world-famed authors.

As to Mr. Jarvis, he is no stranger to Peterborough, is ever welcomed by the elite, and last evening was in magnificent form, and generously responded with an encore to each of his numbers. He also, request, sang one of his old-time record songs, "The Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," a sweetly, pretty composition, which brought down the house, so to speak. "Crossing the Bar," together with that colorful and spirited English piece, "We Come Up From Somerset," which in Mr. Jarvis' hands so vividly portrays British loyalty to British sovereigns, were also his star offerings.

Mr. Jarvis is equally at home in sentiment and humor; he sings with feeling, and irresistibly communicates to his hearers the conception the authors of his songs wished conveyed. As sung by Mr. Jarvis his offerings are in truth musical pictures. His beautiful tenor voice, clear as the notes of a violin, with touches at times, where consistent, of baritone are an unfailing source of pleasure wherever heard.

Miss Scott and Miss Parker were acceptable additions to the program in the unavoidable absence of Mrs. King. The former was warmly received in several soprano numbers, delivered in commendable voice and expression, while the latter was heard to good advantage as an elocutionist. Miss Parker's recitation of that charming composition, "Little Baptiste," was a pretty story, in which she faithfully impersonated both sentiment and dialect of the French-Canadian habitante.

Both ladies were tendered bouquets by little Eleanor Malott, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. F. E. Malott.

The recital was enthusiastically appreciated by all present, and unqualified thanks are due the Misses Scott and Parker for kindly stepping into the breach caused by Mrs. King's illness.

The program was no easy one for an accompanist, and Mr. Geo. H. King, who filled that duty, is to be congratulated on the excellence of his work

ADDRESS AND ARMCHAIR PRESENTED TO M. N. CLARK

On Tuesday evening last the teachers and friends of Knox Sunday School met in the Church parlors, to spend a social hour, but also to give a pleasant surprise to the superintendent, Mr. M. N. Clark. A short but excellent program was carried out under the direction of Mr. Thomas Carpenter, assistant superintendent, at the close of which Mr. Clark was presented with an appreciative address and a handsome armchair, the presentation being made by Mr. Andrew Mackenzie and Mrs. Hunter.

Mr. Clark replied in suitable terms disclaiming the credit which, in their kindness ,they were ascribing to him and thanking them for their handsome gift and for the kindly spirit of which it was an expression.

The pastor, Rev. J. A. McKenzie, and other gentlemen added their expressions of good will, and then after partaking of dainty refreshments served by the ladies, the gathering was closed with the benediction. The address is as follows:

Mr. [illegible]com Clark, superintendent of Knox Church Sunday School:

Dear Mr. Clark,—There are occasions in a man's life when acquaintances and even friends will essay to tell him candidly what they think of him. We have for some time been manoeuvring to get you in a corner, to run our finger through the button hole of your lapel and pointing at you with our other finger for emphasis, to tell you certain things that have been on our minds for some time.

You have acted as our superintendent for seven years. We cannot adorn the greatness of this service by any words of compliment and appreciation. We shall not attempt to. We beg leave, however, to tell you of a few of the many good qualities you have revealed in the conduct of our Sunday School work.

First in order, we place your faithfulness, Sunday after Sunday, you are at your post. Hot weather or cold, wet weather or dry, is all the same to you as far as your attendance is concerned. Our Lord in one of his parables teaches us that faithfulness is a quality singled out for special reward and honor. We wish you to know that your faithfulness to this task has won our unanimous admiration and in not a few cases our earnest emulation. We wish also to say that we esteem very highly your good judgment. You bring to the work of our school that judicial poise that inspires confidence in the justice of your administration, while your genial humor excludes the atmosphere of the law courts. We always feel that we can freely consult you about the various problems that crop up and be certain of sound advice and kindly justice. We are reminded of the old professor who told his class that they required grace, grit and gumption, and who went on to say that the Lord could give them grace, and they could develop grit but if they didn't have gumption there was no source where they could make that want good. We congratulate ourselves that you have gumption. We attribute your marked success in this work, however, to the fact that in all things you are a Christian gentleman. Your great desire is to link up our boys and girls and our grown folk too, with our Lord. For the diffusion of this spiritual atmosphere we feel deeply indebted to Our Father in Heaven.

Much more could be said by way of genuine appreciation, but we feel somewhat awed by your Scotch personality. We are not at all at ease in the presence of such a gift as you have given us, but our silence might be with others. But our silence is filled with thoughts that are golden. We ask you to accept this gift from your staff of teachers, officers and other friends, as a visible token of your services and personality. As one teacher happily expresses our purpose in presenting it, "It is not for retirement, but for rest." We picture you on your return from Sunday School sitting down in comfort to enjoy a quiet hour with your family.

May we ever be welcome guests of your memories in such hours, and may the happy and blessed associations between yourself and our school continue by God's grace through many years yet to be.

Signed on behalf of the Sunday School—

TROUBLE IS LOOKED FOR IN SIBERIA IN EARLY SUMMER

Omsk Government is Unpopular With Masses of People and Foreign Element Have Lost Prestige—Allied Help is Needed to Enable Russians to Reach Agreement.

(By W. E. Playfair, Canadian Press Correspondent.)

Archangel, March 8.—A careful review of the situation in Siberia, now in possession of Canadian intelligence officers, predicts much trouble in the spring and early summer, due to the fact that the masses of the people are unsympathetic to the present Omsk government. The foreign elements supporting the Omsk government share in the unpopularity. The nations approving the proposed Princes Island conference have lost prestige among the Russians. It is suggested that the proper Allied attitude would be to assist various Russian parties to reach an agreement, leaving sufficient troops here meanwhile to maintain stability. The leading newspaper of Vladivostok was suppressed on February 24 for criticizing the Omsk regime.

British Naval Forces Now Control The Caspian Sea

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 8.—Naval forces under British command now dominate the situation in the Caspian Sea according to official information secured by Reuters' Limited. For some months past there have been British naval forces on this sea, the official account states. They were originaly sent to prevent the Bolsheviki from dominating the situation. This naval force seized certain armed steamers, which are now manned by Russian crews, which marched up by land from Mesopotamia with a British force as a nucleus. These steamers were commanded by British naval officers. The original Russian flotilla in the Caspian Sea, it is added, consisted of two gunboats, two dispatch vessels and three steamers. These have also just been taken over by the British-Russian naval forces.

VETERANS FAVOR PENSION RAISE

DRASTIC CHANGES ARE ADVOCATED BY EXECUTIVE OF THE ASSOCIATION.

Ottawa, March 8.—That the Government neither encourage nor subsidize immigration into Canada for the year 1919 and that drastic changes be made in the existing naturalization laws, was probably the most important reform advocated by the Dominion executive of the Great War Veterans' Association which has been in session in the city during the last week.

Many other notable issues were also dealt with, such as land settlement, pensions, education, the civil service commission, and the war service gratuity problems. All the foregoing questions were taken up by the executive with the repatriation committee of the Government and it is expected as a result of the executive endeavors that the difficulties and complexities attendant to these problems will be easier to solve both to the soldiers and to the Government.

A long memorandum was presented on the subject of pensions which advocated many drastic changes in the present system. The most important reforms contained in the memorandum are:

That the pensions paid under schedule "A" and "C" should be increased. That the increase should be fixed in accordance with the present cost of living, to arrive at the amount required to secure for the pensioner a generous living wage. That the increase should apply proportionately to the allowances for dependencies. That the discrepancy between the allowance for a totally disabled single man and the allowance for a widow or dependent without children should be removed.

That the pension granted to orphan children, as provided in section 17, is inadequate and should be increased. That equal provision should be made for children who become orphaned through the death of their mother, who was a widowed pensioner, and that the pension should be continued until they reach 21 years of age.

That the Board of Pension Commissioners should be empowered, subject to the authority of the Governor-in-Council, to revise the basic rate of pensions from time to time in conformity with the increased cost of living, ascertained by reliable and expert investigation.

That the pension continue to be paid to the pensioner while taking vocational training and that the present practice of discontinuing pensions to men taking such training is detrimental to the best interests of all concerned.

That the attention of the Government be again directed to the fact that constant agitation is being made by a large number of the members of the Great War Veterans' Association for equality of pensions for all ranks of the C. E. F.

FIRE IN GARAGE AT NOON TODAY

THREE CARS BURNED IN PLANT OPERATED BL EVANS AND APPLEBY.

At five minutes to twelve today fire broke out in the Service Garage on Charlotte street across from the White House as a result of a gasolene explosion. Three cars were burned and the building badly damaged although the fire brigade was on the scene in record time and soon had the fire under control. The business is run by Messrs Evans and Appleby.

Automobiles belonging to Messrs. Fred Hall, Charles Rishor and Dr. King, as well as several others, were badly damaged and the interior of the building thoroughly gutted. The explosion was caused by a lighted match thrown accidentally into a can of gasolene by one of the car owners who was waiting while his motor was repaired.

SOLDIERS FROM CANADA ARE KILLED IN RIOT IN CAMP IN WALES OVER EMBARKATION

Long Service Men Claimed That Men Only Short Time in Army Were Given Preference in the Matter of Returning Home and Started the Trouble—From Eight to Twenty-Seven Are Reported Killed.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, arch 8.—From eight to twenty-seven persons are estimated to have been killed and from twenty-five to seventy-three wounded in rioting during the past three days at Kinmel, the military camp at Rhyl, Wales, according to Liverpool despatches received today. Great property damage was caused, the despatches add.

from Liverpool, the riot was started from Liverpool, the rio wat started by about two hundred malcontents. There were 25,000 Canadians in camp awaiting demobilization and embarkation. The men who caused the trouble were war casualties who had served for three years or more in France. They complained that their embarkation had been postponed while other men who had seen less service were being sent home.

After the destruction of stores of all kinds on Tuesday by the discontented men, the situation took a more serious turn on Wednesday when the cavalry was called out, but was forbidden to use its arms. Troops from Chester intercepted the rioters in their march upon Abergele, near Rhyl, and also prevented a threatened raid on the latter place. Five men were killed and forty injured in the course of this fighting, it is reported.

There was further promiscuous shooting early Thursday morning, but at no time was there organized fighting by any armed party. Most of the deaths were due to crushing, it is said. An unnamed major, holding the Victoria Cross and believed to be from New Brunswick, is reported to have been virtually trampled to death while attempting to defend the officers' quarters against great odds.

CANADIANS RESTORED ORDER.

The Daily Mail says that Canadian authorities restored order without the assistance of British troops, and declared that the matter is solely one for Canadian disciplinary action. The Canadian officials have informed the War Office that theyq do not desire any increase in shipping facilities as a consequence of the outbreak, as they do not intend to be coerced by the action of the rioters. It is stated that twenty or thirty of the ring leaders, mosly of foreign extraction, have been arrested by the Canadian authorities, co-operating with the civilian police. It is understood that these men will be brought to London and lodged in Bow street station.

Later on Thursday numbers of men paraded Rhyl. They made noisey demonstrations, but committed no damage. The outbreak began Tuesday night, with the signal cry, "Come on, Bolsheviki," uttered by a man said to belong to the Canadian force. A large number of men then wrecked the stores building and thousands of loaves of bread were trampled in the mud. The women's auxiliary quarters were then rushed and women's clothes carried off. The rioters seized stores of ammunition, fired on the officers' quarters, and then began a march in the direction of Abergele, but were held up. A staff officer flew from the War Office in London by airplane, and addressed the men, undertaking that their grievances regarding demobilization and pay, which caused the outbreak, should be immediately removed. He declared that ten thousand men would be away by the week after next and that four transports would be at the disposal of the colonials.

STATEMENT FROM HEADQUARTERS.

Canadian military headquarters in London today issued a statement with reference to the riots by soldiers at Kinmel Park. The statement says the disturbance was entirely due to delay in getting the men back to Canada. It was impossible to keep the promises given the men, the statement adds, owing to the shortage of vessels to carry them home. The authorities however, the statement continues, do not regard the rioting as justified, and the offenders, many of whom are already under arrest, will be vigorously dealt with. A number of civilians took part in the disturbance, and twelve of these have also been arrested and handed over to the civilian authorities. In the courre of the trouble three rioters and two sentries were killed and twenty-one persons were wounded, including two officers, according to the statement.

DISCUSSED IN PARLIAMENT.

In the House of Commons this afternoon William Tyson Wilson, M.P. for Lancashire, asked Lord Edmund Talbot, representing the Government, for a statement regarding the incident reported at Kinmel Camp, Rhyl, Wales. Lord Edmund replied that he had no further information. The gravest view was taken of the news when it reached Canadian headquarters in London. General Turner, chief of staff, went immediately to Kinmel Camp, where he addressed the men, returning to London today.

Good Progress At Pacific Ports

G. T. P. OFFICIAL MAKES TRIP OVER THAT LINE

Winnipeg, Man., March 8.—Mr. W. E. Duperow, general passenger agent of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, on his return here from the Pacific Coast, reports good development in the industrial and agricultural territory served by that railway and its steamship lines. On the North Pacific Coast Mr. Duperow states that there is unprecedented activity, many new industries having been established, particularly sawmills. At the big Granby copper property at Anyox, one hundred miles north of Prince Rupert, arrangements are being made to increase the output to three thousand four hundred tons of copper per day.

The Grand Trunk Pacific steamship "Prince John" has just left Stewart, B. C., on the Portland canal, with the first cargo of high grade gold and silver ore from the Bush Mine, the cargo consisting of about twelve hundred tons, valued at $250 per ton. Great shipments of canned salmon, halibut, whale meat and other fish products are being handled at Prince Rupert. It is estimated that the halibut industry at Prince Rupert will eventually support a population of fifteen hundred people.

Regarding the question of immigration into the farming areas of Central British Columbia, prospects were never brighter, Mr. Duperow said. In fact, last year more people than ever before took up land in this territory, most of them coming from the United States. The areas in the Bulkley and Nechako valleys in particular, which are especially suited to mixed farming, are rapidly filling up.

ROUMANIA CRIES OUT FOR BREAD

QUEEN SAYS FOOD IS NEEDED TO WARD OFF BOLSHEVISM.

Paris, March 8.—Queen Marie of Roumania declared that in spite of the plight of her country and the sufferings of the people in the war, there is no danger of Bolshevism there if supplies of food can be secured. Speaking of conditions in Roumania during the war, the Queen said:

"We suffered even worse than did Belgium. She had Great Britain and France by her side and behind them stood America, while we had only Russia to depend upon. When the Russians came to assist us, all they did was to eat our food. They were never of any real aid. German plotters saw to that, and when Russia broke we were absolutely isolated.

Engines Badly Needed.

"I have no fear of Bolshevism in Roumania if food is provided immediately. We are used to being shabby, and can go without clothes and shoes, but must have food, it is very difficult to distribute food in my country because of the wholesale destruction of railways and the theft of locomotives, cars and horses. We have no iron to rebuild ruined bridges, but are using wood to repair these structures. The imperative need is locomotives. Our oil fields are producing oil for engines and for export, but we have no means of moving it.

In Bower of Flowers.

"Hunger produces revolutions and Bolshevism. The Bolsheviki are cowards. They will not stand before an organized force. We do not fear them, and they have failed in their efforts to ruin Roumania. I have gone about in perfect safety in my war work."

Queen Marie expressed confidence that the Supreme Food Council will aid Roumania. The Queen, whose beauty enhances the charm of her forceful personality, received callers today in a room filled with gifts of flowers from representatives of the Entente nations.

Strike Called In Printing Bureau

Ottawa, March 8.—The pressmen at the Printing Bureau were out on strike at noon yesterday. One hundred and one men are affected and they left work as a result of a unanimous vote taken by the men at a meeting Wednesday afternoon.

Their demands are for a minimum wage of $20 a week or press feeders and $26 a week for pressmen. Formerly the scale was $18 for press feeders and $24 for pressmen. The men have issued a statement of their case, reviewing the events leading up to the strike, and are leaving their work regardless of the report concerning conditions at the Printing Bureau tabled at the House of Commons.

BRITISH MARKET FOR BRITISH COLUMBIA TIMBER

Ottawa, March 8.—Acting Prime Minister Sir Thomas White has received satisfactory advices as to the progress of negotiations with the British timber controller for the purchase of British Columbia timber.

OTTAWA EXPLAINS CAUSE OF TROUBLE AMONG CANADIANS

Some Men With Long Service Records Were Overlooked Owing to Plan of Sending Battalions Home as Units—Five Killed and Twenty-One Wounded.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 8.—In an official statement today from the Ministry of the Canadian Overseas Military Forces, the riots of Canadian soldiers at Kinmel Park, Wales, are attributed to the shipping situation. The statement admits that owing to the system adopted of sending troops home by units, many men who have seen years of service and are concentrated at Kinmel Park and who were to go home in February had to step aside because ships were withdrawn and such as were available were needed for complete units.

The statement says "it is not attempted in the slightest degree to excuse the conduct of the men who took part in the disturbance. Many officers are under arrest and will be vigorously dealt with. It is hoped there will be no re-occurance of the delays which have hitherto taken place. Five were killed and twenty-one wounded, including two officers. There is no foundation for the report that a New Brunswick Major and V. C. was either killed or injured." Brigadier-Gen. McBrien is president of the court of enquiry.

Why Shipping is Scarce.

London, March 8.—An official statement issued by the Canadian Military Headquarters in regard to rioting at Kinmel Park say it is regretted that some accounts of the fighting, in which Canadian soldiers took part, exaggerate the seriousness of incident, but gives no details of what happened. It is explained the lack of shipping facilities to take the Canadian soldiers back home is due partly to the strikes and it is said that dissatisfaction of the soldiers over alleged preferential treatment in embarkations may be attributed to the fact that many have been divided into sections, according to the Canadian military districts, from which they come. By this means some shorter service men were sent home ahead of some who had been under arms for a longer period. A special court of inquiry has been ordered to conduct an investigation.

CONFERENCE DECIDES TO DESTROY GERMAN SUBS

Huns Will not Be Allowed Under the Final Treaty of Peace to Keep an Army of More Than 200,000 Men.

Paris, March 8.—The "big five" of the Peace Conference, took up the proposition of sending food into Bohemia and German Austria. Means of getting supplies into the districts which most urgently need them were to be discussed.

Naval terms which will be incorporated in the final peace treaty have been thoroughly gone over by the "big five" and, it was learned, the decision to destroy the German submarines stands. Decision was reserved, however, with regard to the proposal that the Kiel Canal be destroyed and the fortifications of Heligoland reduced. The fate of the German fleet is also still undecided.

Britain Yields Point.

Premier Lloyd George was disposed to have England take part of these ships, but he yielded this view when shown that it would involve an increased naval building program in the United States.

As a result of the British and American view in agreement, and as a means of harmonizing the French and Italian views, it is possible that some of these ships will be apportioned to France and Italy, instead of being destroyed.

Aside from the actual military and naval terms under consideration, an important question has arisen as to whether these terms will be temporary as incident to the close of the war, or permanent, holding Germany in subjection for an indefinite period. The actual terms as finally considered, though not yet made publil, are summarized as follows:

Disarmament down to 200,000 men, consisting of 15 divisions of infantry and five of cavalry, divided into five army corps.

Arms and ammunition are restricted to a force of 200,000 men, and the balance to be delivered or destroyed.

The naval terms provide similar disarmament by a reduction of the German fleet down to a limited basis sufficient for police defence, but it will not figure among the navies of the first or second class.

The aerial terms of disarmament are definite in period, as a limited number of hydroplanes with an aerial force of a thousand men are to gather mines until Odtober 1 next, when the entire establishment is to end.

Premier Lloyd George, finds his return to Paris, has added his weight to speeding up proceedings, not only toward the early signing of the peace treaty, but also toward quickly meeting the food situation in Central Europe

Wounded Canadians Reach Portland

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Portland, Me., March 8.—Wounded Canadian soldiers who arrived here on the hospital ship Essequido late yesterday, were on their way home to all points in Canada today. The Ontario contingent were the last to leave the ship, leaving for home at 10 o'clock this morning. The men were in much better condition physically than those on the first ship to arrive here two weeks ago. There were only four serious cases. Less than a score were confined to cots, and there were no deaths on the trip across.

GAS MASKS FOR FIREMEN.

Guelph, March 8.—The fire brigade is to be equipped with army gas masks to enable the men to defy smoke.

Berlin Workmen Are Protected

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Basle, March 8.—German government troops have suppressed the armed revolt at Berlin, according to a despatch from that city, and are now assigned to the task of protecting the workmen who want to return to Berlin to their labors. The popular marine division and two detachments of republican guards have been disbanded, it is reported.

MAY BE SENT IN PEACE

Ottawa, March 8.—Upwards of ten thousand masses have been offered from all parts of the Dominion for the repose of the soul of the late Right Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

ILLITERACY AND PATRIOTISM.

ONTARIO BOASTS of its up-to-date educational system and prides itself on the fact that it has a compulsory plan under which every boy and girl is given a chance to read and write. It must be admitted, however, that more than occasionally some young Canadian evades the provisions of the Act and slips through the system unaffected by its operation.

This was shown at the recent police court hearing of a defaulter. That the young man's parents were illiterate is sufficiently deplorable. That the defendant himself could not read and was barely able to write his own name, is infinitely worse, seeing that it was really his illiteracy that got him into conflict with the law and subjected him to a fine of $250.

The young man could not read about the war. He had only a hazy idea of what it was all about. Some one told him, however, and truthfully so, that so long as he was engaged in farming he would not be called upon for military service. His agricultural lot was not an easy one, struggling as he was on a rented farm, the main portion of the income from which went to the owner as a yearly toll. But the Union Government changed its plan of action, and a promise made before the election was broken. All or practically all exemptions were cancelled.

Illiterate as he was, this young man could realize without the aid of book learning that there was a breach of faith somewhere. A pledge once given should be regarded as sacred, whether made between individuals or between the State and the people. Still, education would have helped that young man, and others in the same position, to realize that they were threatened by a common danger and that extraordinary conditions called for measures that would otherwise be inexcusable.

The young man is punished for evading the draft. The same careful attention paid to his national morals earlier in life would have been of infinitely more benefit to himself and the State. His parents, by not keeping him at school, broke the law with impunity, for all the records show. The young man defied the Educational Act to a certain extent off his own bat, and no authority laid hands upon him. He was permitted to grow up in ignorance, and the result was made painfully apparent later in his career. Called upon to render his country a service, he failed in his duty. He recognized no responsibility, it seems, beyond that of taking care of his wife and raising money for the rent.

Ontario always appears to have jail room for its offenders save for those who make light of the laws that have to do with education. Ignorance is not accepted as an excuse, but if this State paternalism were exerted earlier in the lives of the young there would be fewer derelictions in duty, the offenders failing simply because they were unable to realize what was required of them. Better a term in the public schools than this egregious blunder of making jails and penitentiaries so many universities for instructing citizens in the duties of citizenship, the graduates as a rule coming out tenfold worse than when they entered.

THE ALARMIST.

A TORONTO CORRESPONDENT in a recent issue of the New York Tribune sounds a note of alarm when he declares that Canada is seized with fear of the American peril, as he calls it, and that something must be done to keep the Union Jack above the Stars and Stripes, which is displayed so much in this country these days and which is always greeted with enthusiasm by the populace either in theatre or on the street. The correspondent also hints at an existent uneasiness that an increase of the naval strength of the United States may be but a preliminary step to the annexation of Canada.

There is always some pessimistic individual who is marring the gaiety of nations and taking the inherent joy out of life. Why imagine vain and foolish things? Why spread alarm among the masses or do anything to break the present amicable relations between the two countries? The fact that the Canadian people cheer when a picture of the American President or of the United States flag is flashed on the screen at the movies or that they applaud rapturously at the sight of marching American troops, is not to be accepted as evidence that the patriotic spirit of the Canadians, their devotion to their own land and to the Empire, is on the decline. Rather, such enthusiasm shows a broader spirit on the part of the Canadians, something that is altogether commendable. The man who has a smile and a pleasant word for the strange children whom he meets on the street is not necessarily on that account likely to be neglectful of his own offspring. The citizen who loves his own home is usually one who lives at peace with his neighbors. The cosmopolite can easily be as intense a patriot as the man who has seen nothing and who dreams of nothing beyond his own immediate neighborhood.

Many a nervous person has fretted himself into an early decline by imagining that his house is haunted, that the cellar of his abode is the home of a bogey man. There are Canadians who have been worried to the point of death by the unfounded fear that the sum total of the American national ambition is to acquire Canada by force of arms if annexation cannot be consummated by peaceful negotiations. All the Yankees, in the estimation of thes alarmists, are waiting for is the psychological moment to make a move. The Toronto correspondent referred to, if he does not share in this foolish fear, at least appears to know that it exists.

The United States and Canada have lived at peace for over one hundred years, and their relations today are more friendly than ever. The national creed of the Americans is against the acquisition of territory by conquest. Canada is safe from armed aggression from that quarter. Annexation could be effected only with the consent of a majority of the people on both sides of the border, and this puts it beyond the range of possibility. Even the American flag in Alaska is no menace. Canada can set its hand to its own household affairs undisturbed. The annexation bogey is simply the creature of a disordered brain. This country is comparatively secure, with at the north a Pole which even American enterprise has not been able to locate to popular satisfaction, a vast ocean on either side, and a friendly nation of one hundred million people to the south.

Of course, there are disturbing elements in either nation that will occasionally mar the international harmony. There are the alarmist newspaper correspondents and the brazen-throated and leather-lunged politicians whose alleged patriotism has degenerated into an acute case of jingoism.

THIS VAIN WARFARE.

"THE WAR has not been fought in vain" is becoming a hackneyed phrase in current literature, the writers citing as a reason such national events as would have occurred even if the world had not been drenched in blood for the past four years. Humanity is getting closer together, nations are acting more like individuals, Capital and Labor are in unity as never before, and so on. The idea which such writers seek to inculcate is that an all-wise Providence permitted the stupendous evil of war that good might follow.

The mole catcher in the famous story by Sir James Barrie had really a revered conception of the Creator, when, to the pious horror of his hearers, he declared that Providence did not need to devastate a whole community with a flood in order to drown one clergyman for contracting a matrimonial alliance with a gypsey.

Why attempt to fix the responsibility for mans' sins upon the All Power that has granted His creatures the freedom of their own wills? Why not own up that the late war was started by the insanity of a few men who mistook their mission, and was made possible by the people who, like sheep, were ready to do the will of the diplomats?

Good may come, and undoubtedly has come, out of the evil, but this good was possible of attainment without the travail of war, had man been true to the teachings of the Nazarene's teachings that have been dinned into human ears for over two thousand years, unfortunately to little practical purpose. The reforms that are coming to the world could have been brought about without the sacrifice of seven million human lives, without the creation of an army of cripples, a residue of the fighting forces of the world, without the vacant chairs and the badges of mourning on so many portals, without so many graves decked with wooden crosses and poppies in Flanders. War must always be regarded as a punishment for the sins and insanity of mankind. If man emerges chastened from the ordeal, he is not justified in blaming Providence for the cataclysm brought about by his own delinquency, any more than the punished child can with reason blame the stern parent for the offence that brought the penalty upon it.

The world may be better and likely to become still better since the war, but nothing of good is coming out of the tempest that could not have been attained long ago and without the sacrifice of a human life had the myriads of earth learned the lesson taught by the Judean missionary twenty centuries ago, a lesson which cited the Golden Rule as the highest earthly duty of man.

THIS COUNTRY bore the agony of war and the dangers of the "flu" epidemic as inevitable afflictions without a murmur. But from the parliamentary alarmist the nation looks now for relief.

THE FACT THAT there are eighty or so divorce cases before the Senate demonstrates nothing quite so clearly as the fact that there are still eighty families of affluence in Canada. In the meantime the poor who are domestically unhappy continue to suffer without prospect of relief.

WELCOME TO SOLDIERS' BRIDES

Second only to the welcome given our returning men is the welcome accorded to their wives and families upon their arrival in Canada.

A special department of the Repatriation Committee has been created for this purpose. As a result, through a wonderful co-operation between different federal and provincial governmental departments, municipalities, voluntary organizations, local committees and private citizens, Canada is doing herself proud in the way in which she is receiving the soldiers' families as they arrive from England.

Women who have recently returned have repeatedly said that if their own friends had been there to meet them, they could not have had a more cordial or more pleasant welcome than that received from the womens' committees at Halifax and St. John.

Quite recently considerable extra hospital accommodation has been arranged for any of the passengers who are too ill to proceed on their journey. A number of cases of influenza developed on the last voyage over, and through the good offices of military headquarters staff at St. John a hospital of fifty beds was opened, to be maintained at the Government's expense, and the nursing staff is supplied partly by the Military and partly by the Red Cross.

On account of the shortage of rolling stock, the railways have only been able to supply colonist cars, but these have been fitted up by the immigration department with mattresses, blankets and pillows, borrowed from the Department of Militia and Defence. The returned soldiers are particularly pleased with this extra comfort for their wives and children.

On each train there is a Red Cross nurse, and when there are one hundred and fifty women and children on board an additional nurse is provided. Every assistance and courtesy is given by the conductors and trainmen and the two immigration officials who travel on each special train.

Arrangements have been made with the local caterer at St. John and with C. P. R. restaurants to provide attractive, wholesome lunches at moderate prices. For instance, supplies sufficient for two persons for two days can be purchased for $1.70 either at St. John or Montreal.

In each city or town there is a local reception committee composed of representatives of local organizations, such as the Canadian Patriotic Fund, Red Cross, Y.M.C.A., I.O.D.E. Wires are sent ahead to these committees by special immigration officers. In most cities one day's accommodation is provided free of charge.

TO-DAY'S STORY

"I" said a young lieutenant, "am going to be a smuggler. That will be a paying game."

"And I," said a captain, "shall be an aerial policeman. It will be very nice to catch you at it, and see you sent to gaol for a few years."

"I shall have plenty of time to make my fortune before you catch me" remarked the lieutenant with some asperity.

"I should fly on dark nights at ten thousand feet or so. I should carry no lights, my 'pals' would be waiting for me in a large field, where they would show a certain arrangement of lights.

"I glide down to two thousand feet and flash my signal lights. The people on the ground answer. My goods are arranged on something like bombracks under the machine, with parachute attachments so I fly low, pull a lever and off they drop and float down into the field, whence they are taken away with great rapidity. Then I buzz off and become a respectable citizen once more—until the next time.

"That's the scheme roughly. You'd have to be pretty sharp to see me doing things like that in the dark."

"There is one thing at least which you have overlooked," replied the captain. "It is certain that all machines flying at night will be required to carry plenty of lights and a large illuminated number. If you are heard flying about without lights you will soon have dozens of searchlights on you. You won't be 'Arched' — that would be dangerous to other machines and to people on the ground.

"But I, who would be in the air looking for bold buccaneers or anything else Hunnish, seeing you challenged, would proceed to investigate. Finding you without lights or a number, I should signal you a command to land on the nearest aerodrome, where you would be arrested and I should have the mortification of seeing my old comrade-in-arms sent to gaol."

"But suppose I don't obey your policemanship's command to land?"

"then I shall have much pleasure in proceeding to shoot you down. There won't be many opportunities of shooting anything down in the piping times of peace," said the captain, with a shade of regret in his voice.

Then he continued, "And if you tried it with your lights on—well, I don't think I'm too blind to notice a machine flying off the usual routes signalling to the ground, and generally behaving suspiciously. No, if there is a good aerial police force, I don't think there will be much smuggling."

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

(Dr. W. A. Brady.)

Cardio-vascular disease is the medical term for the heart, artery, brain and kidney manifestations of the degeneration or mortification that makes forty the saddest year in all your life. You are sad, that is to say, if you suspect you have it. For it is so, it is not, that one who detects incipient cardiovascular degeneration creeping upon him is a sadder but wiser—with emphasis on the wiser—man than the poor mortal who blithely ignores the early warning signals or trifles with the early symptoms by self-drugging?

If cardio-vascular degeneration only had a sudden and painful onset, like an attack of the "flu" or something, the disease would no doubt frequently recognized in its incipiency and coped with in the stage when coping is worth while. But there is nothing sudden about it. It develops as insidiously as flat feet or adenoids. It sneaks up on you like baldness. You know, a man never realizes he is bald until some kind friend suddenly calls his attention to the denudation. Just so the victim of apoplexy. Bright's disease, hardened arteries, high blood pressure, almost always fixes all the blame on his liver, his stomach, his work or his nerves, until some doctor or insurance agent suddenly breaks the bad news that cardio-vascular degeneration is an accomplished fact.

To most minds, until quite recently, it has always seemed silly to go to a doctor before actual illness made the visit obligatory. "Not sick enough to consult my physician" is a phrase only too familiar. The grand old idea seems to have been to give an illness a good running start, then call in the doctor to "break it up"—and the old-timer really liked to have folks think he could "break it up."

More and more people are learning the wisdom of visiting doctor and dentist at least once a year whether they think they need any treatment or not. It saves money for the wise ones who do this. The annual physical examination is growing constantly more popular with men of affairs, and their example is being followed by the little fellows. It pays to know how you stand with life. It is even worth the physician's fee to know positively that the kidneys, the heart, the blood pressure, and other organs or functions are all right, notwithstanding your own little doubts about them.

Handed a Lemon.

"I am 51 years old, 68 inches tall, and weigh 175 pounds stripped. I attend gymnasium regularly. I am rather fat around the middle. Am advised by friend to take the juice of half a lemon in water each morning to reduce girth. What effect will this have A. T. H."

No effect. Lemon juice is a wholesome beverage. The secret of girth control is less fodder and more exercise.

Making the Neck White.

"What can I do to get rid of dandruff? Would it do my hair any good to have it cut off? What do you advise to make the neck white?

Send me a stamped, addressed envelope for suggestions about the care of the scalp and hair. A girl's hair should never be cut for any reason whatsoever. I find an occasional application of soap and water whitens the neck some. It's the best thing I know of.

Frequent Nosebleeds.

"I am 42 years old and have frequent nosebleeds. Please let me know the cause of this. E. R."

The most frequent cause of frequent nosebleeds is a minute ulcer on the septum near the forward entrance of the nose, and a physician with headlight and speculum to look in the nasal cavity can touch the bleeding spot with a caustic, heal the ulcer and so prevent the nosebleeds.

ANOTHER DEFAULTER IS TAXED THE MINIMUM FINE

Leo Alfred Forbert of Lindsay Pays $250 and $26.50 Costs For Evading the Military Service Act.

Leo Alfred Forbert, of Lindsay, was fined $250 and ordered to pay $26.90 costs when he pleaded guilty in police court yesterday afternoon before Justices of the Peace H Rush and F. Adams to the charge of having been a defaulter under the Military Service Act.

Mr. Joseph Wearing defended the accused, and presented his case in such a favorable light as to lead to the imposition of the minimum penalty provided by law.

Several days ago the young man, who is a well-dressed, attractive-looking fellow, appeared in police court before Magistrate Dumble, and upon his counsel applying for an enlargement of the case, his Worship acceded to the request after some persuasion.

Yesterday afternoon at the trial, two doctors of Lindsay gave evidence which indicated that the family history showed insanity and that the prisoner was of such a nervous temperament as to make him scarcely responsible for his actions. The medical men claimed that he was of little use on account of his nervous disability.

The cross-examination of the acting crown attorney, J. Fordyce Strickland, showed that Forbert had originally held an "E" certificate; that he had been re-examined and placed in A2 category by a competent medical board sitting at Kingston, and upon receiving an order to report for duty on May 7, 1918, had taken refuge in the woods, where he had remained for some time.

On October 19 he had been arrested while employed in a restaurant at Scotia Junction. He escaped from the officers, however, but gave himself up a few days later in accordance with the advice of his brother-in-law. Immediately after, he was taken ill with influenza, and before anything further could be done in his case the armistice had been signed.

Mr. Wearing, in his plea for the prisoner, drew attention to the extenuating circumstances and expressed the opinion that it would be unreasonable to punish a man severely when Nature had left him in a state where he was scarcely responsible for his actions.

Forbert was fined $250 and ordered to pay $26.90 costs, most of which arose from the efforts made by the Dominion Police to capture the man.

STERN REMINDERS OF RHEUMATISM

COLD OR WET WEATHER MAY START THE PAINS, BUT THE TROUBLE IS IN THE BLOOD.

Every rheumatic sufferer should realize that rheumatism is rooted in the blood and can only be cured by a treatment that will cleanse the blood of the rheumatic poisons. The old time belief that rheumatism was caused by cold- damp weather, is now exploded. Such weather conditions may start the aches and pains, but is not the real cause. Liniments and outward applications may give temporary relief, but cannot cure the trouble, because they do not reach its source in the blood. The sufferer from rheumatism who experiments outward applications is only wasting valuable time and good money in depending upon such treatment, the trouble still remains, and it is all the time becoming more firmly rooted—harder to cure when the proper treatment is applied. Treat this disease through the blood and you will soon be rid of the pains and tortures. As a cure for rheumatism Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are unequalled. They act directly on the impure, weak blood; they purify and strengthen it, and so root out the cause of rheumatism. Mr. D. Lewis, postmaster at Escuminac, N. B., says: "I was attacked with rheumatism, which settled in my elbow, shoulder and knee joints, and at times caused me great suffering. The trouble was particularly severe last spring and I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After taking the pills for some time the rheumatic pains and stiffness in the joints disappeared and I have not since had any return of the trouble."

If you are suffering from rheumatism, or any trouble due to poor blood and weak nerves, you will find a cure in a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You can procure these pills through any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Telephone Team To Play Gas Men

Those who drift into Brock street rink on Monday night between seven and eight o'clock will see one of the greatest hockey matches ever played when a pick-up team from the Bell Telephone Company and the Gas Works will clash.

Frostle, of the Bell Trouble Department, will not be allowed to play, the Gassers claiming that he is too fast a man and that they want real amateurs and not men whose fame extends from Port Hope to Lindsay and who would grab all the credit.

Upon hearing that Frostie was not going to take part in the battle, Dick Lush, of the 'Phone Brigade, at once secured his services in an advisory capacity for the team, and for the past week they have been practising upon a home-made rink in the yard of the American Hotel, under the supervision of the ex-Junior star.

The Bell lineup have talked themselves into a win several times since it was decided to play the game and the other fellows are gassing a good deal about what they will do when they get on the ice and the only way to settle which had the contest doped out the best will be to attend the game.

A STATION AGENT KILLED.

H. Coughey, of the G.T.R. at Utterson, Struck by Train.

Huntsville, March 8.—H. Coughey, G. T. R. agent at Utterson, eleven miles south of here, was killed by a train while crossing the tracks to deliver orders to another engine. He was 33 years of age, married, and had two children. He came here from Barrie.

Quebec Province offers 100 acres of land absolutely free, with no red tape or "strings" to the deed, to any returned and honorably discharged soldier or sailor of any of the allies.

Piping Over the Side.

When the Hun Admiral Meurer came aboard Admiral Beatty's flagship to arrange for handing over the German ships to be interned he was "piped over the side" by the Queen Elizabeth's boatswain.

This curious custom is a survival of the old days of sailing ships when officers holding flag rank, instead of having to clamber up the rickety rope ladder dependent from the vessel's side, were hoisted on board in a "bosun's chair."

In those primitive times the boatswain took up his position by the rail where he could see over the side, and by means of his "pipe" gave the signal to the sailors to haul away as soon as the great man was comfortably seated in his "chair."

Nowadays, of course, gangways are fitted to all men-of-war. Nevertheless the old custom is still kept up, the various whistle signals denoting "hoist away," "high enough," "lower away," and so forth, being played by the boatswain upon his pipe.

Dyeworkers' Wages.

At a recent conference held in Bradford, England, there was granted an increase in wages of employees in the dying and finishing trades from $5.58 to $7.14 in the case of time workers, from 65½ per cent. to 83¾ per cent. for piece workers and from 50 to 62⅝ per cent. for pressers.

Diseases Spread by Wars.

In the nineteenth century, during the Russo-Turkish wars, typhus spread from Turkey up through Wallachia into Austria. The French suffered from it during the Crimean conflict. In the Franco-Prussian war, the French, being poorly clothed and fed again suffered. The Balkan war seems to have been notable more for cholera, a summer disease, than typhus, which flourishes best in winter.

Paid for Listening.

For 123 years a sermon has been preached in Hendon (Eng.) parish church on the text, "Human life is a bubble." Richard Johnson, who died in 1795, left the masters and wardens of the Stationers' company trustees of his estate, and out of the interest the vicar of Hendon was to receive one guinea for preaching this sermon, and two wardens of the company a guinea each for listening to it.

Toad's Good Service.

The toad is useful because of its diet. No less than 83 specimens of insects, mostly injurious, have been proved to enter into its dietary. George W. Hunter says: A toad has been observed to snap up 128 flies in half an hour. Thus at a low estimate it could easily destroy 1,000 insects during a day and do an immense service to the garden during the summer. It has been estimated that a single toad may, on account of the cutworms which it kills, be worth $19.88 each season that it lives.

Aleppo an Ancient City.

In the center of the older section of Aleppo stands the ancient citadel, a deep moat encircling it. The great mosque is on the site of the tomb of Zacharias, the father of John the Baptist. If alleged Egyptian monuments can be accepted as an authority, the first settlement dates back close to 2,000 years B. C. The city at one time had a trade connection with Venice, as well as with Bagdad, and its name and importance became famed throughout Christendom.

Start Tomorrow and Keep It Up Every Morning

We're not here long, so let's make our stay agreeable. Let us live well eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, and look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet, notvery easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of theinternal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quickly extracting a large volume of waste from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on thesubject of inside-bathing before breakfast.

SPECIALIST SAID HE MUST OPERATE

She Took "FRUIT-A-TIVES" Instead, And Is Now in Perfect Health.

MME. F. GAREAU

153 Papineau Ave., Montreal.

"For three years, I suffered great pain in the lower part of my body, with swelling or bloating. I saw a specialist, who carefully examined me and gave me several tonics to take, which did not help me. Then he told me I must undergo an operation. This, I refused to permit.

I heard about 'Fruit-a-tives' and the wonderful results it was giving because this medicine is made from fruit juices, so decided to try it.

The first box gave great relief; and I continued the treatment, taking six boxes more. Now, my health is excellent — I am free of pain and swelling—and I give 'Fruit-a-tives' my warmest thanks".

The Succulent Plepiant.

The plepiant has a recorded history of over four centuries. It was first cultivated in the white-walled gardens of Morocco and Algiers, amid fruits and flowers and fountains and was brought thence by the Moors to Spain. Not until 200 years later did rhubarb really become known to English gardens, whence in due time it was brought to those of America to be employed first as a tincture, then as a sauce and to attain a final apotheosis in pie.

Appealed to Novelists.

Fully a score of novels have been written round the case of Lesurques, who was wrongfully executed in France for the robbery of the Lyons mail and the murder of the courier; the real criminal was one named Dubosco, to whom Lesurques bore a striking resemblance. The crime also formed the subject of several stage dramas; in one of them Sir Henry Irving scored a success in the dual part of Lesurques-Dubosco.

ONE-THIRD OF A PERSON'S LIFE IS SPENT IN BED

One-third of a person's life is spent in bed—or should be—and consequently it is of the utmost importance that during that portion of the average human's existence bed and bedding and surrounding conditions should be of such a nature as to assure the fullest measure of sanitation comfort and health conservation.

First of Its Kind.

Realizing this truth the J. C. Turnbull Co., Limited, are devoting their spacious fifth floor exclusively to bedding and will next weev inaugurate the opening of this new dept. with a "Better Bedding Exhibition," one of the first of its kind in Canada. At 2.30 p.m. Monday next the exhibit will be thrown open, and the general public welcomed to the largest Exclusive Bedding Department in Ontario, outside Toronto.

How And From What?

Now this event is to be a demonstration of how and from what mattresses, bed and bedding are made by those who manufacture for the J. C. Turnbull Co., and will be an interesting object lesson in exemplifying the high degree of care taken to comply with twentieth century demands that cleanliness and sanitary precautions shall have a place in all household accessories.

Leading manufacturers are heartily cooperating in the "Better Bedding Exhibition," where operatives will be on hand to show mattresses, beds and bedding in their several stages of manufacture from the raw material to the finished article.

Interesting Feature.

An interesting feature of this new department is a section set aside for children's beds, bedding and accessories, including baby carriages in all of the latest approved modern designs.

Five-piece Orchestra.

This is not a sales campaign, but an exhibit offering instruction and information, and none should miss the opportunity of gaining an insight into the modern construction of those beds in which men and women spend one-third of their lives. The exhibition will continue all week, and a five-piece orchestra will offer an entertaining program of select music each afternoon from 2.30 to 5 o'clock. This in itself should be "worth while."

A Unique Event.

Additional interest will be centred in this unique event by reason of one of Canada's leading manufacturers having donated many prizes, ranging from a baby's mattress to a valuable brassbed, to be awarded during the exhibition. Watch Monday's paper for the manner in which these prizes are to be distributed.

Very few stores in Canada have an exclusive department for bedding, and Mr. Hodgins, in devoting so much floor space to this all-important feature of home needs, has again demonstrated his modern business acumen, so very much in evidence since he assumed control of the J. C. Turnbull Co.

VETERAN SPEAKS TO HIS COMRADES

SERGT. BRERETON, V. C. GIVES SOUND ADVICE TO RETURNED MEN.

Sergt. Alex Brereton, V.C., who stormed single-handed a German machine gun nest, captured the gun and its crew of nine and thus saved the lives of many in his platoon, is conducting the "Veterans' Corner" of the Winnipeg Tribune.

In an editorial utterance in his column he says: "The Canadian troops made good overseas. We showed them over there the stuff we're in us and that we knew how to fight. Now let us veterans show the people back home here we still are real Canadians.

"Let's get into Civil Life with a vim and a vigor that will keep the name of Canada in the limelight at all times. We soldiers, better than anyone else, can give Canada the proper kind of advertising she deserves. The advertising that is necessary to make her the better and the more prosperous country she should be.

"Our boys proved it was a good country to fight for; now let us demonstrate it is a good place for other people to grow up in. Canada showed her spirit during the war; continue that spirit now in helping to bring greater returns in manufacturing, industry, farming and commerce."

This statement of Mr. Brereton epitomizes the spirit that actuates the returning men, and if the people of Canada will co-operate with this spirit repatriation will be comparatively easy and a complete success.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

SAYS WE MUST KEEP FEET DRY, AVOID EXPOSURE AND EAT LESS MEAT.

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

FREE SERVICE

CARRY GOSPEL TO THE JAPANESE

THAT COURSE RECOMMENDED BY MOCK PARLIAMENT AT MARK STREET

A successful Mock Parliament was held last night in Mark Street Methodist Church at 8.15 p.m. The leader of the Government was Mr. C. G. McKillican, ably supported by Mr. Jno. Speers and Mrs. Speers. The Government side was also supported by the bible class and the boys of the Sunday School.

For the Opposition Mr. N. Gamble was leader, and the other speakers were Miss Whattam, Miss Harding and Miss Hiscot. These were well supported by the girls' classes of the Sunday School. The efficient speaker of the House was none other than Rev. R. A. Whattam. The following bill was brought forward:

"Resolved that our missionary societies should spend a greater proportion of their funds in China rather than Japan."

The Opposition brought forward the point of Japan's prominent position in world affairs, and that she, if Christianized, would eventually Christianize China.

The chief point of the Government was that national prominence was not a sure guarantee of a profitable mission field, and that the Chinese mind was more open to the gospel. The Government lost the motion.

At the close of this part of the program a resolution which has been before all churches, was read asking the Government at Ottawa for better prohibition laws. It was moved by Mr. C. G. McKillican and seconded by Mr. N. Gamble that the petition be forwarded to Ottawa.

MR. GUNDY DENIES

Hughes' Charges "Without Foundation," He Says.

Ottawa, March 8.—Mr. W. P. Gundy, of the War Purchasing Commission, made the following statement:

"I learned from the press that in his speech in the House on Tuesday, Sir Sam Hughes told of a meeting in Ottawa between Sir Joseph Flavelle, some other gentlemen from Toronto and myself, and of a subsequent interview which we had with the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

"I know of no such meetings as those described, and have had no part whatever in them. I had no consultation with Sir Joseph Flavelle, no interview with the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and no conference with the other gentlemen named. So far as I am concerned, the whole statement is without foundation."

SEEK TARIFF REVISION

Western Constituents Telegraph to Members.

Ottawa, March 8.—A more acute situation in respect of the tariff appears to be developing at Ottawa. Members of Parliament from western constituencies are being bombarded by telegrams from their constituents who are demanding that action be taken at once to bring before Parliament the farmers' platform as adopted by the Canadian Council of Agriculture at Winnipeg on November 29 last. Particular mention is made in the telegrams of the tariff, and it is insisted that western members unite in compelling a downward revision immediately. One Alberta member states that since yesterday he has received over forty telegrams.

It was promised by the Government to Western members at the caucus that a special caucus would be called to consider the tariff question.

At the end of 30 minutes, I was entirely free of pain and experienced no more throughout the period. I suffer a great deal at these times and feel grateful that I have a remedy which affords quick relief. Every woman in the land should know about Zutoo Tablets and what they will do."

Don't Drug Kidneys! Rub the Pain Right out with Old "St. Jacobs Liniment"

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now, listen! That's lumbago, sciatica, or maybe from a strain and you'll get blessed relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacob's Liniment!" Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on and out comes the pain. It is perfectly harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer. Get a small trial bottle from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years. Stop drugging kidneys. They don't cause backache, because they have no nerves, therefore can not cause pain.

WONDERFUL FILM COMING

"The Better 'Ole," Producers Send It to Allen Theatre

Those people who have appealed for more British films will rejoice at the coming production of the initial offering at the Grand Opera House, soon, of the British Films, Limited. For the Welsh Pearson Films, Limited, London, which gave such a notable production of "The Better 'Ole" have outdone themselves in this new offering ;"The Kiddies Among the Ruins."

It is like a magic letter from the men overseas during their triumphal march through the devastated districts. It shows them in a moment of victory and the overwhelming joy of the families they have rescued. In it appears the "Alf" of "the Better 'Ole." An incident shown in the London production of that film has been developed into a charming story that mingles Briton and Frenchman in a blood brotherhood. What their heroism has meant to their children is there portrayed by a wonderful collection of French and English artists, including some children who have been models of the great Poilbot himself. Grown-ups will revel in this great picture but few films have been more fascinating to the kiddies. Every child in Peterboro should see it, but like "The Blue Bird" the adults will read in it a message that will fire them anew in hope and courage for the new era.

REV. B. F. ARMSTRONG OF NEW YORK AT THE TABERNACLE

Delivers Eloquent Sermon Last Night on the Second Coming of Christ.

"The Second Coming of the Lord Jesus Christ," was the theme of the splendid address given by Rev. B. F. Armstrong, of Nework, at Bethany Tabernacle last night.

The subject was based on Titus 2:13, and the audience was held in close interest as the speaker carefully and ably presented this all-absorbing truth. He emphasized the remarkable space given to this truth in the word of God, pointing out that the first prophet, Enoch, and the last prophet, Malachi, both spoke of the second coming of Christ.

In the New Testament it is mentioned clearly over 300 times or once in every 25 verses.

This event is the blessed hope of the trut church, and has in it a mighty transforming power as well as the grace "that bringeth salvation."

A Korean minister speaking at a Princton conference, said, "We people who are without an earthly king, look with a peculiar joy and expectation to the coming of the Lord Jesus as the King of Kings.

Gibbon, the infidel historian, testified that it was the power of this wonderful and glorious hope that steadied and held the mortyrs under the trying ordeal of death. Mr. Armstrong said we are coming to darker days when as Christian who love His appearing we will be put to greater tests than we have yet realized.

The prevalence and increase of crime was also spoken of as a sign of the imminent coming of Christ. One express company reported its losses by thefts, etc., to have increased from $50,000 to $3,000,000 in one year. Even in cafes and churches one must keep an eye on hat and coat or they will be stolen. The great host of non church-goers was said to be another evidence of the last days.

Only 16 per cent. of people of Chicago go to Church. The largest churches of New York Citi are only partly filled and then mostly with women. Referring to a Toronto minister who had been noted for his orthodoxy and upright living upon, returning from the front said, "The first thing a man has to do at the front is to learn to smoke so I learned that. Then you must cuss if you would be popular, so I learned to cuss." This is the spirit of the times in which we live, fall in line with the crowd and do as the rest do.

The speaker closed his stirring address with a dramatic rehearsal of the revelation of the Boy King hidden in the temple and the slaying of the Queen unsurper, and saying that as the true man of Israel had seen the young King's face and were filled with a new hope and courage to visit for the day of his coronation so we are waiting for the coming and crowning of our King the Lord Jesus Christ.

Mr. Armstrong will speak again in the Tabernacle at 11 a.m. on Sunday, and in the evening Mr. Garrison from India and Mr. Armstrong will both speak.

CHILD'S TONGUE BECOMES COATED IF CONSTIPATED

Children love this "fruit laxative" and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is harmless; children love it, and it never fails to set on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

It Wasn't the Cat.

"Vile creature!" roared Smith, the new boarder, as he gazed at the four ounces of butter, then at the cat, and then at the landlady, who, with the air of injured innocence, was holding out for his inspection the microscopic portion of the luxury referred to.

"Yes, sir," said the good woman, "that's all that's left of the pound o' butter as I left on the table this mornin' an' on comin' into the room I saw that thievin' animal a-sittin' comfortable on the mat a-lickin' his chops."

"Vile creature," cried Smith to the cat again, "to steal my butter. Yes," he went on, "and so ah to make me suspect poor Mrs. Snaggs you cut it with a knife!"

BROOKS SAYS TANLAC HAS OVERCOME HIS TROUBLES—FEELS LIKE A NEW MAN.

"My wife obtained such satisfactory results from Tanlac that I tried it myself and I have gained ten pounds and feel like a new man," said J. W. Brooks, traffic superintendent for the Western Union Telegraph Co. at Dallas, Tex., and living at 1732 Hickory street, that city.

"When I began taking Tanlac," he continued, "I was suffering from a stubborn case of stomach trouble, the result of an attack of acute indigestion I had several years ago. I had an awful pain across my back, and was so nervous and worried about my kidneys that I could hardly sleep at all. I suffered from rheumatism in my legs, my feet would swell, and I was tired and languid all the time. I was badly run down, lost weight, strength and energy, and none of the medicines I took did me any good.

"After using Tanlac for a short time I began to pick up and kept improving till now my rheumatism is all gone, the pains have disappeared from my back, and my kidneys don't worry me like they did. I have a fine appetite and can eat anything I want without suffering at all from indigestion, my sleep is sound and restful, and I get up in the morning feeling fine."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

SHOW CANADIAN FILMS

Motion Picture Theatres Complying With Request.

Motion picture theatres throughout Ontario are complying fairly well with the request of Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer, that they show at least fifty per cent. Canadian or British pictures among their news films. Some months ago, when Toronto and other cities throughout the Province were being deluged with American films, which gave the United States practically sole credit for winning the war, Mr. McGarry issued an edict that at least fifty per cent. of news reels must be of Canadian or British make.

PROPOSED DANCE IN COLLEGIATE

BOARD OF EDUCATION TO BE ASKED FOR NECESSARY PERMISSION.

At a meeting of the Executive of the Boys' Athletic Association of the local Collegiate Institute, held yesterday, a committee of two was appointed to communicate with the Board of Education. This committee will ask the Board to allow the Executive of the B. A. A. to hold a dance in the Assembly Hall of the school during the Easter holidays.

In Belleville the scholars are allowed to hold one dance a year in the Collegiate Institute. Recently a dance was held in the Ottawa Collegiate Institute. But there the Board of Controllers of the High School prohibited the young men who attended from wearing dress suits and the young ladies, before they entered the hall, had their dresses inspected by a group of Ottawa women.

This dance will probably be by invitation, and will not be a money making scheme. It will have to end by 12 o'clock midnight, this necessitating its beginning at 8 o'clock.

The board of education therefore may expect to be interviewed by this committee of two, who will be "loaded for bear," at their next meeting.

30 MILLS FOR TORONTO

Although the smoke of the "Battle of the Estimates" has not yet cleared away and there is still considerable heavy work ahead for the Board of Control, it is practically certain that the tax rate for 1919, in Toronto will be somewhere between 30 and 30½ mills on the dollar. In other words, there will be very little change, if any from the rate for 1918.

ANTI-CANT CLUB HOLD BANQUET

MR. W. R. BREYFOGLE DELIVERED ADDRESS ON "BRICKS AND MORTAR."

The members of the Anti-Can't Club of George Street Methodist Church held their first annual class banquet last evening in the Empress Hotel. About thirty members bedecked in their class colors and making things lively with song and parody, partook of the usual good things that Empress service, printed on a neat card, supplies. A menuand toast list reflected credit on the ingenuity of the committee, who compiled it and gave dignity to the occasion. Mr. Jack Renwick and Clifton Carruthers rendered mandolin duets. Mr. Herman Hunter, chairman of the social committee, acted as toast master and did himself proud. The different toasts were proposed by Mr. Freemont Doan, president of the club; Mr. Earl Barrie, Mr. Fred. Rutherford and Mrs. Charles Elliott and were replied to by the pastor, Rev. A. J. Thomas, Mr. C. C. Parsons, superintendent of the Sunday School, Dr. J. E. Middleton, the class teacher, and Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, who had been asked to deliver the address of the evening. The young men will not soon forget this interesting and able address on "Bricks and Mortar," which was replete with advice so helpful to men in the character buildin gstage. All pronounced the evening a most profitable and interesting one.

A telegram was received from Mr. G. L. Galley, of Toronto, a former teacher and the organizer of the class, expressing his regrets at being unable to attend.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS

There was an extra large attendance at the market this morning on account of the fine weather. Prices have not varied much from those prevailing last week. Eggs remain at 40 cents a dozen and butter is back again to 60 cents. The offering of beef was light compared with other weeks, and the price was up a cent or two, selling from 18c to 21c. Pork, too, was going at a slight advance over last week, but there was not a great quantity on sale. The ruling prices were 28c and 29c.

"Why are you so interested?"

"I haven't forgotten the way we were treated at the beach last summer. I don't believe anybody has a right to rope off the ocean and then charge you 50 cents for the privilege of bathing in it."

Bolsheviki Are "Raskols"

It may not be generally understood that the Russian Bolsheviki are, for the most part, religious schismatics. Open the question with a priest of the Russian Greek church, and he will declare firmly that this is true. He seems to say "Yes, they are the rascals!" Concerning this there can be no question; but that which he really says is, "They are the raskols!" Raskols, or Ras-Kolniski, is the name that the national church of Russia gives to all the dissenters who have renounced her communion, and for that reason are considered capable of such acts as characterize the Bolsheviki.

By the few writers who have mentioned these schismatics, their origin has been ascribed to the alterations made in the church books by Patriarch Nikon in the seventeenth century; but according to Russian annals they were known within less than five centuries after Christianity entered Russia. The first Raskol is said to have been a Jew, named Horie, who, in the reign of Ioan Vasilovitch I, mixed the observances of Judaism with the doctrines of Christianity. Two priests, Denis and Alexie, were the first to embrace his opinions. Alexie changed his name to Abraham, and called his wife Sarah. He and Denis were over two churches in Moscow and lost no opportunity of spreading their doctrines. Among their converts was Zosimes, metropolitan of Moscow. His defection led to a persecution of the dissenters who had adopted the name of Strigolniki; but the more the severity of fire and sword, the more the heresy grew. Karp, a deacon, joined the sect, drew away more people that Denis, Alexie and Zosimes had done; and the national church rekindled the flames of persecution and did not rest until the remnant that was left had fled to Poland and Sweden.

The Raskolniks divided early in their history into Popoftskins, who admit priests from the Greek church, and Bezpopoftskins, who have no priests at all, or priests of their own ordination.

Like the national church the Raskols hold to the Nicene creed. But instead of the corrected church books, ceremonies, and pictures, they exploit the ancient manuscripts and pictures as the only genuine. The dissenters of the present day have laid aside many of the old absurd and ignorant opinions, and are usually better versed in the Scriptures than the orthodox neighbors. They declare that their morals are exemplary, but the authorities do not incline to agree in this. Their opposition to the church is held to be tantamount to opposition to civil authority; and although some of the most opulent merchants of Petrograd are Raskols, and above reproach, the stigma obtains.

The great body of Raskols are Popoftskins. At the lead are the two churches—at Staradubofsk and Vetka, which are said to comprise more than 100,000 members. They have been persecuted and exiled to Siberia in large numbers at different times, but in spite of this treatment are prosperous. After these come the Diaconoftskins, an offshoot of the Vetka church; the Peremaznoftskins; and the Cernabolts. These sects will not take an oath, refuse to shave their beards, decline to pray for the civil authorities, and declare that the end of the world is drawing near.

The Bezpopoftskins are also divided into several sects. The Duhobortsi, better known as Dukhobors, stand first. They throw aside all the orthodox rites and ceremonies, and reject baptism and the Lord's supper. They said that their name signifies "wrestlers with the spirit," and call themselves "Christians" and all other people "world men and women." They declare that they are descendants of Shadrach, Meshech and Abednego, the Jews who would not worship the golden image of Nebuchadnezzar. They are widely scattered in the provinces, and are also found in Germany and Canada. They never enter an orthodox church or bow before the pictures, protesting that the church is a den of thieves. They have worship, singing, praying, and reading the Bible, but without priests and external rites. They believe in the Trinity, and say that regeneration and baptism are all the same thing. They respect departed saints, but do not pray to them. Death is called "the change." Marriage is not a sacrament, but simply an agreement. After the Duhobortsi are the Pomoryans, who say that Antichrist has come and put an end in the church to all that is holy; the Theodosians, who say the church preaches up Antichrist under the name Jesus; the Philipoftskins, who are severe in fasting; the Netoftskins, who have the Pomoryan idea of Antichrist; the Pastushkiks, who declare fasting sinful; the Novajents, who say Antichrist is reigning in Russia, the Samokrestkis, Molokans, Ikonobortsi, and several other minor sects.

In the eyes of the orthodox believers the Raskols are capable of all the crimes in the calendar; but while their identification with the Bolsheviki is beyond question doubtless, the underlying reason is to be found in their age-long grievance against ecclesiastical and civil authority, which they consider as one.

Origin of Lace Making.

The origin of lace making is so far lost in the dark ages that it is impossible to know in which country the process began. It is certain, however, that the Italians were making most elaborate and beautiful laces soon after America was discovered.

Suffered Since Childhood

Kidneys at the Root of the Evil

Think of it! The joys of youth marred by agonizing pains, and all hopes of a bright future blotted out by thoughts of a life burdened with Backache and other sufferings.

Such was the case of Mr. A. Cail until a good friend advised him that there was a remedy for his trouble and he would find it if he used Gin Pills. Read what Mr. Cail says:

"I was troubled with my Kidneys since childhood and spent a large amount of money on doctors trying to get cured. Instead of getting better I kept getting worse until a friend of mine advised me to try Gin Pills. I did so, and after taking one box I was able to get out of bed and walk around. Two more boxes relieved me completely and since then I have had no return of the trouble."

This remarkable testimonial was written by a man whose statement cannot be doubted. Mr. Cail's reason for writing this history of his case was—gratitude for the relief that Gin Pills brought him. Wouldn't you do the same if your case was similar? If you suffer now—don't suffer any longer. Use Gin Pills and obtain relief from Kidney or Bladder Trouble, and the pain, suffering and inconvenience that they cause.

Perfect Engineering Feat.

At Omaha, Neb., a brick chimney 202 feet high and weighing 237 tons was made to fall exactly where the engineer who performed the feat wanted it to fall, between two buildings, without marring either one of them. The bricks on one side of the base of the chimney were removed and replaced with hardwood timbers, which were burned.

Born Before His Mother.

A celebrated actress invariably claimed to be eighteen years younger than she really was. She was called to the witness stand one day, and even there she did not break her rule. It happened that her son was called immediately afterward, and on being asked his age he replied: "Six months older than my mother."—Boston Transcript.

Fish Attacks Ship.

An attack made by a swordfish on a ship which arrived at a port in India resulted in considerable damage to the vessel. The ship was entirely stripped of her metal sheeting in the encounter. The creature made a hole on the port side penetrating through a mass of copper and ten inches into solid oak plank and timber.

Largest Volcano.

The largest volcano crater in the world is that of Haleakala in Hawaii. It is 20 miles across and in places, 2,000 feet deep. New York city could be dropped into the crater with all its skyscrapers intact, and it would be completely hidden from any person beyond the rim of the crater.—People's Home Journal.

THE LOST INVENTOR.

The Mysterious Case of Dr. Rudolf Diesel.

Shortly before the war broke out, writes Edwin E. Slosson in the Independent, but when a war was regarded as imminent if not inevitable, Germany's greatest inventor, the man who had inaugurated a revolution in the world's motive power likely to be as important as that achieved by Watt, left Germany for England. But he never arrived.

Dr. Rudolf Diesel took passage at Antwerp on the channel steamer Dresden the night of September 29, 1913. When the vessel arrived at Harwich next morning he was missing and the annual meeting of the Consolidated Diesel Engine Manufacturers at London, which he was to attend on the following day, was held without him. So much the world knows. Everything else is speculation.

Naturally speculation has been abundant. Diesel's disappearance has given rise to as many wild theories as Kitchener's. These theories, each of them as I have happened to hear of, may be classified in the following way.

Accidentally fell overboard and drowned.

Seized by heart disease and fell overboard.

Pushed overboard by German agents.

Alive and in the service of British Government.

Jumped overboard because of mental breakdown due to insomnia, financial worries, domestic troubles or lack of proper appreciation.

The reader may take his choice of these hypotheses, for there is no proof of any of them and there is evidence against all of them. One other point must be mentioned, though it adds to the mystery instead of clarifying it. That is, that his family at Munich received a telegram announcing his safe arrival in London—but the telegram was sent from Geneva, Switzerland.

Against the hypothesis of hypochondria is that when last seen he appeared cheerful. His family life is said to have been happy. He had broken down from overwork 13 years before, but had apparently recovered. He had suffered from heart failure, but seemed to be all right again. He had not made as much money out of his inventions as he hoped, but he had accumulated a comfortable competence of two and one-fourth million dollars. He had not received all the credit that he deserved, but the original Diesel engine was installed in the place of honor in the Munich Museum and he had just given to the museum all his drawings and models.

Against the rumor that he is still alive in England is the fact that it is the Germans and not the British who, during the war, as well as before, made greatest use of his inventions. As for the remaining hypothesis, that he was killed or kidnaped by order of the German Government, that rests upon no firmer foundation than our natural inclination to ascribe any devilry to the Germans and the fact that if Diesel's inventive genius had been transferred to the other side it would have been worth more than an army corps to the Allies.

Bank Holidays Are Many.

Because of holidays, civil and religious, throughout the different countries, there are only 84 days out of a year in which banks are open in every part of the world at once.—People's Home Journal.

Length of Night.

The length of the night at any time of the year may be found by multiplying by two the time of the sun's rising. Doubling the time of its setting will give the length of the day.

NEW USE FOR AVIATION SHEDS

AFTER many years of waiting a covered skating rink has been secured for the Gentlemen Cadets at the Royal Military College at Kingston, and the acquisition of this building will give a great impulse to our national game — "hockey." Hitherto the Royal Military College hockey teams have had to get along the best they could, using the open ice on the lake and occasionally the city rink at Kingston. These limitations interfered materially with the quality of the game. On the demobilization of the Royal Air Force in Canada and the abandonment of the aviation camps at different points some suitable buildings, originally designed for and used as flight sheds (or aeroplane hangars) became available, and through the kindness of Sir Joseph Flavelle, Bart., Chairman of the Imperial Munitions Board, under whose direction these aviation camps were originally established, two of the flight sheds, each 120 feet long by 68 feet wide, were secured to form the basis of the new covered skating rink. The many friends of the Royal Military College were not slow in taking advantage of this opportunity nor in coming forward to assist in carrying out the idea. The Canadian National Railways, through the courtesy of Mr. D. B. Hanna, its president, and the Grand Trunk Railway System, through the courtesy of its president, Mr. Howard G. Kelley, have undertaken to free-freight the material of the sheds from Camp Mohawk to the point nearest to the Royal Military College, to Kingston. Sir Herbert S. Holt, who is deeply in everything that makes for the welfare of the Royal Military College, has generously financed the undertaking, and a contract for the removal and reerection of the flight sheds above referred to, has been let to the Kingston Construction Company, who now have the work in hand. The Minister of Militia and Defence has approved of a site within the college grounds on which the covered rink will be erected. Mr. F. L. Wanklyn, General Executive Assistant of the Canadian Pacific, who is also deeply interested in the welfare of the college, has taken charge of all the work in connection with the carrying out of the scheme. The rink, when completed, will be substantially as shown in the above illustration. The main building will be 240 feet by 68 feet wide, and the height from the underside of the roof trusses to the ice level will be 18 feet. Commodious dressing and locker rooms, 26 feet square, will be provided at one end, over which a gallery for spectators, capable of seating 300 persons, will be provided. The main sheet of ice will be 215 feet by 68 feet wide and this will, in the opinion of well known hockey experts (Messrs. "Riley" Hern and Col. Walter Maughan) make a most satisfactory hockey rink. The building will be well lighted by windows all round and with electric lights for the evenings. The outside will be neatly finished in cement rough-cast and present a generally attractive appearance. The originators of this project have received many congratulations from a host of friends interested in the Royal Military College.

CAN THE HORSES OF LAST YEAR MAKE GOOD IN 1919?

Interest is Centered in the Veteran Racers Roamer, Rosebud and Johren.

There are many interesting questions to be answered in racing this season. It has been many a long year since there have been so many noted horses about which there was a doubt as there is at the present time. There always is a great deal of curiosity to see how the track two-year-olds of the season before will perform. This season there also are an unusual number of older horses that will try to come back.

Andrew Miller's popular old gelding Roamer probably is the most prominent of the lot. Roamer did not actually break down last year after his remarkable feat of running a mile against time in 1.34 4-5, but he lost much of his form and became so mean tempered that he had to be retired for the season earlier than was intended. Racing followers are hoping that the old fellow—who is about to begin his sixth year of racing—will have regained all his remarkable speed and stamina. Reports from Gravesend, where he has wintered, are that Roamer is looking better than ever, and promises to round into form quickly.

Old Rosebud, that other famous gelding, will make an attempt to come back this season. Old Rosebud did not race last season, having broken down badly early in the spring. He was fired and turned out for the year, and now he is reported to be ready to resume training.

Omar Khayyam did not break down last year, but the winner of the 1917 Kentucky Derby and three-year-old champion was away off from all season. Just before he was retired for the year late in the fall Omar Khayyam began to do better and his trainer declared that he had located the trouble with his son of Marco, and that he would be as good as ever during the season of 1919.

Johren, last season's champion three-year-old, pulled up lame after each of his last three races, and when he again makes his appearance on the track he will be watched closely to see whether he has overcome the trouble with his legs. Johren will be a hard one to beat in the big handicaps if his legs stand up under the strain of carrying the weight that will be packed upon him.

Dempsey Was Once A Light Weight

Comparatively few fans know that "Nonpariel" Jack Dempsey, famous as the middleweight champion of the world at one time held the lightweight title.

Jack won the lightweight championship of the United States 35 years ago when he defeated Billy Facey in nine rounds at Coney Island. Jack got $4000 for the bout. His claim to the American lightweight supremacy was soon disputed by George Fulljames of Toronto, then Canadian champion and the men fought on a beach near New York in the summer of 1884. The Canadian was a game and clever fighter but his seconds had to toss in the sponge in the twenty-second round to save their man from being mauled beyond repair. Two years later Jack entered the middleweight lists and fought his way to the top.

U. T. S. Settles Case Of The Cornwalls

Toronto, March 7.—By the score of 11 to 2 University Schools eliminated Cornwall from the junior O. H. A. race at the Arena last night, and qualified themselves to meet Woodstock in the finals next week. As U. T. S. beat Cornwall on the latter's ice by one goal, they won the round by ten goals.

The game, while devoid of any unusual excitement owing to the one-sided score, was nevertheless interesting enough. The locals excelled in team play and shooting, but if anything the visitors had the edge in stickhandling and individual efforts. Munro and Rowell were in fine fettle and easily broke up the one-man attacks of their opponents. Rowell rushed better than usual, and his marksmanship was accurate.

Joe Sullivan handled any and all shots with apparent ease, and his clearing could hardly be improved upon. Jeffrey was always in position to take a pass and he scored five of the counters. Aggett worked tirelessly, and by telling back-checking broke up many of the Cornwall attacks, while Greey and Gunn were also much to the fore.

Jim Belcher's First Appearance in Ring

Jem Belcher defeated Bob Britton in thirty-three minutes at Hanham, England, in 1898. This was the first ring battle of Jem Belcher, afterward champion and perhaps the greatest pugilist England ever had.

Jem was only 16 years old, while Britton was a veteran and a famous pugilist. Belcher had been engaged in an impromptu bout with a youngster of his own age, and had all the best of it, when Britton interfered, as the beaten lad was a brother of his sweetheart. Angered by Bob's action the youngster challenged Bob to meet him in the ring. Britton was at first amused, but Jem was so much in earnest that Bob agreed to the lad a "bellyful o' fightin'." Vastly to the surprise of everybody, Belcher showed himself more than a match for the old ring general, and gave him a thorough lacing. By his victory Jem became famous and graduated from butcher boy to professional pugilist.

If the donkey were the king of the brute creation some men might truthfully boast of their royal blood.

PLAYING BASEBALL ON SUNDAY

(New York Commercial.)

Sunday baseball is the rule in most of the states in which the game receives sufficient support to keep good teams in the field. It takes the people out into the open air on the only day when those who work for a living have a chance to enjoy themselves. It does not interfere with attendance at church morning and evening, and it does not disturb those who wish to spend the day in quiet repose or study. Communities that frown upon it exclude it by refusal of patronage, and other places that desire such amusement should have it.

New York City is overwhelmingly in favor of Sunday baseball, and the only opposition to it in the state Legislature comes from small cities, towns and rural communities where the games receives little patronage. Local option should prevail and cities like New York and Buffalo should be permitted to choose for themselves. Baseball is the cleanest sport we have. When it is played on Sunday the people who attend the games on that day are superior in general character to those who patronize it on week days. The week day crowds contain a large proportion of idlers, whereas the Sunday patrons are chiefly engaged in gainful occupations and have no time for it in working hours. Such people have a right to enjoy their day of rest in any harmless way they choose and should not be deprived of liberty of action by those who live in rural seclusion.

Sunday baseball in communities that desire it should be legalized by the state Legislature. No ball ground or amusement park in Greater New York is located where Sunday sports can annoy or interfere with churches and Sunday schools or disturb the rest of those who prefer quiet. In this free country nobody should be forced to attend church or to stay at home on Sunday. Laws interdicting Sunday baseball represent the wishes and prejudices of a minority of persons who seem to take pleasure in depriving others of it, and they violate the spirit, if not the letter, of the first amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which forbids the establishment of religion. The only reason given for opposing Sunday baseball is a sectarian one. By forbidding everything that a particular religious body opposes it would become an established church in fact if not in name. It is time for the Empire States to slough off the relics of the blue laws of past centuries.

Removing Ink Stains.

To remove black ink stains, the article should be washed immediately in several waters and then in milk, letting it soak in the milk for several hours; the stain will disappear. Washing the article immediately in vinegar and water, then in soap and water, will remove all ordinary ink stains.

Beginning of Pittsburgh.

November 25 is the anniversary of the raising of the English flag over the ruins of Fort Duquesne in 1754. The place was then named Pittsburgh, in honor of Britain's famous prime minister. It owes its great growth to its proximity to coal and iron fields of vast magnitude.

WILL CICOTTE BE UP TO RECORD?

WHITE SOX MANAGER IS ANXIOUS ABOUT FUTURE OF PITCHER.

Manager Gleason of the Chicago White Sox admits that he is in doubt as to the ability of his star pitcher, Eddie Cicotte, to maintain his effectiveness this year. Cicotte will celebrate his thirty-ninth birthday in June. When the White Sox won the American league pennant in 1917 this veteran was the mainstay with a record of twenty-eight victories and thirteen defeats. He took part in forty-nine games and still was as fresh as a daisy when he tackled the Giants in the world's series. Last years, with his team of champions shot to pieces, Cicotte disappointed Chicago fans. He won twelve games and lost nineteen, which was his poorest showing for several years. The White Sox will begin the coming race with the same team that defeated the Giants a year ago last fall. Perhaps, with heavy batting and smart fielding to help him, Cicotte may return to winning form.

What Will Eddie Collins Do?

Eddie Collins is another veteran whose playing will deeply interest Gleason. The $50,000 second baseman will be 32 years old in May and will take part in his fourteenth consecutive big league engagement. Collins took a slight header in his batting average last year, his record being .276 for ninety-seven ames, whereas in 1917 he batted .289 for 154. These comparative figures would seem to indicate that Collins is slowly but surely sliding down hill, and they are backed up by his record in 1916 when in 155 games he batted .308, while in 1915 he rolled up a percentage of .332 for the same number. Prior to 1915 Collins, according to the records, gradually decreased his hitting power, for in 1911 his average was .365, high water mark, while subsequently the figures were .348 in 1912, .345 in 1913 and .344 in 1914. If the famous Chicago star has another slump with the stick this year the pennant chances of the White Sox will not come up to expectations.

"The man who can meet emergencies, who can rise to the occasion, is the man who will succeed," declares Charles M. Schwab. "like the chap who was one evening suddenly confronted by a discontented wife. She said:

"'Before we were married you used to bring me flowers every day, but now you never think of getting me even a bunch of violets.'

"'But, my dear,' he protested, without a seconds' hesitation, 'the pretty flower girls don't attract me now as much as they used to.'

"And, of course, she told him that on second thought she really didn't care for flowers."

"SHAUN RHUE" TO BE GIVEN AT THE GRAND ON MARCH 17

St. Peter's Dramatic Club Will Offer for Their Yearly Attraction on St. Patrick's Day, Famous Old Irish Drama.

On Monday evening, March 17th, the members of St. Peter's Dramatic Club will present Joe Murphy's Famous Irish Comedy Drama—Shaun Rhue.

A clever cast has been rehearsing for this production during the past month and excellent results will be assured at the Grand Opera House. The play is undertaken by the following cast:

Morris Donavan—Mr. T. J. Dineen.
Patrick Kavanaugh — Mr. E. P. Kelly.
Gerald Kavanaugh—Mr. Wm. Collins.
Peter Callaghan—Mr. Jas. O'Brien
Bryan Callaghan — Mr. Cecil Wolffe.
Waddy—Lawyer—Mr. Earl Judd.
Tim—Mr. Dan White.
Wm. Sommerfield—Mr. James Sharpe.
Teddy Regan — Mr. Maxwell Murty.
Larry Donavan — Mr. George Lynch.
Kate Donavan—Miss Genevieve O'Hearn.
Dora Kavanaugh—Miss C. Shevlin.

The following are the executive staff.

Business manager — Mr. Egbert Kelly.
Stage Manager—Mr. Cecil Wolffe.
Property Master—Mr. Earl Judd.
Electrician—Mr. Jas. O'Brien.
Musical Directress—Miss Adaline Doris.
Director—Mr. Geo. F. Lynch.

The play consists of four acts, each having a clever culmination which amalgamate in making the grand final a rich and happy ending.

Throughout the entire play many situations occur which present true Irish wit.

The selection of music and songs have been ably chosen by the Musical Directress, and nothing has been left undone to make this undertaking a huge success.

The Play

To Morris Donovan, a poor farmer around whom the play circles, the opportunity is presented of giving either his daughter, Kathleen to Byran Callaghan in marriage or wait for the future to evolve means by which he can obtain sufficient money to preserve his lands from being devastated by water. The father has chosen the first way as his best plan but to this his son Larry objects and through his ingenuity he saves the situation giving his father the peace and happiness which he had long endeavored to attain.

Peter Callaghan, father of Byran, being aware that the Donovan's were soon to have possession of a relative's money, goes to Ireland from England, and prepares to offset the preparations for the executors of the money, Mr. Somerfield who is more than perturbed over the climatic conditions of Ireland on his arrival.

Callaghan has met with two great difficulties, he must have a man to impersonate Morris Donovan's son and must also put Gerald Kavanagh, the true lover of Kathleen, out of the way.

Unknown to all, after Larry's banishment from his parental roof, he assumes the role to impersonate Larry himself through the instrumentality of Tim, Lawyer Waddy's office boy. Through this means he obtains full information concerning his father's wealth and also discovers the plot formed by Bryan Callaghan against Gerald Kavanaugh.

Having made the attempts of the Callaghan futile he succeeds in winning his father's lasting friendship and the hand of the colleen, Dora Kavanaugh, whose brother's interest he protected.

MR. CUNNINGHAM WRITES AGAIN

CAPT. BURNHAM RECEIVES FURTHER INSTRUCTIONS AS TO PROHIBITION BILL.

Mr. A. B. Cunningham, representing the social department of Trinity Methodist Church, has sent the following letter to Capt. Burnham:

Dear sir.—Your letter of the 3rd received. there was no occasion for you to be annoyed at the reply to your inquiry, as our resolution gave you specific information regarding the action we desired.

Your question was altogether too indicative of either a lawyer's quibble or a politician's evasion to be taken seriously. No one would accuse you of not knowing what the order in Council referred to meant.

The day for successful evasion of great questions by mere technical procedure is past, and issues must be met squarely. Your argument about interference with the Diety is merely a repetition in kind of the old pleas for the continuance of slavery.

Your peculiar theological theories are not a matter of public import. You are elected to represent in a legislative capacity a constituency that is overwhelmingly in favor of the prohibition of the liquor traffic and you are expected to represent their repeated verdict on this question.

Yours truly,
A. B. CUNNINGHAM.

WE were among the first to put up tea in sealed packages.

We were the first to use automatic electric weighing machines so as to insure accurate weights.

We were the first to make known the qualities of the now world-famous ASSAM teas.

And we are now the first to adopt a new package for the better protection of these fine quality teas.

The lead package has served its purpose well for generations, but it was easily broken or torn, allowing not only a loss of tea from the package but exposing the tea to the air, odors and dust that it was so necessary, to protect the tea against.

Our new package—the waxed board carton—is stronger; more secure and more completely air tight; altogether the best container for tea that has yet been devised.

GAVE ADDRESS ON TAXATION

CITY CLERK ARMSTRONG TALKS TO THE LIFE PROBLEM CLUB.

Mr. S. R. Armstrong, city clerk, an office which he has capably filled for over twenty-five years, addressed the Intermediate Life Problem Club of the Y.M.C.A. at their regular weekly meeting last night.

Mr. Armstrong had chosen as his subject, "Taxation." In his opening remarks he stated that all people grumbled when they received their tax bills, and the reason that he chose "Taxation" as his subject last night was that when his hearers got to that stage where they would receive tax bills, that they could grumble intelligently. Mr. Armstrong showed how taxes first had become necessary in Peterboro. When Adam Scott started his grist mill in Scott's Plains, at the foot of what is now King street, taxes were unnecessary. But as a village grew up, money was needed to build roads, then later sidewalks, and still later for lights, sewers, fire and police protection. There was some discussions as to what to tax to raise this money, but finally it was decided to tax the value of the land and buildings owned by the residents, who benefited by the orderly Government of the city. This tax still remains today, but there has been added a business tax and an income tax.

The business tax is levied on all buildings that have a business conducted therein. The assessor takes 30 per cent. of the value of the land and buildings, on or in which a business is conducted, and the business tax is levied on that.

The income tax is a tax levied on all voters who have an income of $600 a year or more, but only that amount above $600 is taxed.

Mr. Armstrong also stated that the taxes were levied in Peterborough the same way as levied in the rest of the Province, but that in the other Provinces, taxes were raised by other means also.

The speaker also explained in what way Peterborough revenue from taxes was expended. He also told what was meant by Courts of Revision, Assessor's Rolls frontage taxes, how the assessment is determined, etc.

At the conclusion of the address the speaker was plied with many questions such as "How do you tax a corner building, frontage tax," "How would you tax Le Brun's store, frontage tax," etc.

The address was certainly an interesting one, and judging by the questions asked the members of the club were thinking.

Mr. Armstrong stated after a vote of thanks had been tendered him, that he vote of thanks did not please him so much as the fact that, while he was speaking, he could see the interest in the address in the boys' faces.

Premier Borden At Peace Conference

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, March 10. — The Herald this morning publishes the following special correspondence from Paris, dated February 8: Sir Robert Laird Borden, Premier of Canada, and one of the great leaders of the Peace Conference, it flatly opposed to secret treaties and just as strongly in favor of complete co-operation on the part of the United States and Canada in working out the problems and policies of pacificism.

The imperfection of both these statements can only be appreciated by those who grasp one outstanding fact that, period of its purposely bewildering bark, the Paris conference is a contest between secret schemers seeking special advantages at the expense of the world at large and men who have really learned the lessons of the war and are bent upon setting up a really safe and just "government of the world under law."

"Every grain of gossip that I have heard has been favorable to the Canadian delegation. Once or twice it was Sir Robert Borden who intervened to keep the consideration of far eastern matters along safe, smooth and satisfactory channels. He has a remarkably complete knowledge of many details that are not understood by all our own delegates. I am quite sure that he has the full confidence of President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George."

IS SINN FEIN COUNTESS A POLE OR SUBJECT OF GREAT BRITAIN?

Interesting Question Will Arise When Irish Lady Elected at Last Election Attempts to Take Her Seat in Parliament—Irish Prisoners Released.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 10.—Sinn Feiners who have been interned in England have been released in batches during the past few days. A score returned to Dublin on Sunday. Among those recently released from Holloway prison, London, was Countess Georgina Markievics, who, according to the Daily Sketch, is likely to attend the meetings of the House of Commons today and claim the seat for the St. Patrick division of Dublin, to which she was elected at the recent general elections. It is pointed out that the question of her eligibility to the seat will arise, as her husband is the Polish count who was never naturalized. She, therefore, is said to be legally a Pole.

Ministers Favor Plain Funerals

At the regular meeting of the Ministerial Association this morning the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, that this association regrets a marked tendency to increasing and extravagant expenditure in connection with the burial of our dead.

"The showy, luxurious and massive caskets (too often considered necessary) would seem to savor of human pride, and are inconsistent with prudence, reason and Christian principles.

"If simplicity is a virtue to be cultivated in life, surely it is even more strongly called for in connection with death. One indication of this unhealthy development we notice is an expensive metallic outside case, suggestive of an effort to prevent the remains from disintegrating and mingling with their kindred elements, which would seem to be the Divine intention.

"We call upon the wealthy, as well as the poor—upon those whose business calls them to our assistance in times of bereavement, and upon all whose influence must mean so much to the community—to use that influence in the direction of a healthy and reasonable economy.

"We feel sure that the free showing of less expensive goods on the part of those in our country who serve us under these trying circumstances, would result in a saner deportment on the part of those who quite able to pay for whatever they order, and fewer depressing debts on the part of those who involve themselves in seeking to do as well for their beloved dead as do those of larger means.

"We would express ourselves as confident that we may depend upon our local undertakers to co-operate with us in this as they do so cheerfully in other matters in which we are associated with them."

BORDEN NOT BACK FOR TWO MONTHS

IMPRESSION PREVAILS HE WILL BE DETAINED AT PEACE CONFERENCE.

Ottawa, March 10.—Lack of definite information as to the return to Canada of Sir Robert Borden is strengthening the impression that the Prime Minister will not be able to come home as soon as was expected. The idea prevailed ten days ago that he would arrive in the Capital before the middle of April. It is now understood that it may be a month and perhaps six weeks later before he will be able to sail for Canada In other words, it may be the middle of May or even early in June before Sir Robert is back. Returning Canadians all agree that Sir Robert is extremely busy, and that his early departure from Paris would be a matter of extreme regret to all delegates to the Peace Conference.

GOVERNMENT TO TAKE OVER G.T.P.

COMPANY GIVES NOTICE THAT IT CANNOT CARRY ON LONGER.

Ottawa, March 10—Acting Premier has announced that the government by an order-in-council under the war measures act has taken over the possession control and operation of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and has placed Hon. J. D. Reid minister of railways and canals in charge. The system includes the trunk line between Winnipeg and Prince Rupert, together with some branch lines in Saskatchewan and Alberta, some steamships and hotels and the Grand Trunk Pacific Telegraph Company. The official statement of the acting prime minister follows:

The official Statement

Hon. J. D. Reid, minister of railways has been appointed receiver of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway System. The appointment follows an official notification which Sir Thomas White received on Thursday from the vice-president of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, a notification that in view of the fact that the increased rates applicable to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway have not been sufficient to meet the increased operating expenses it would not be possible for the company, owing to lack of funds to continue its operations beyond March 10.

In view of this notification it became necessary that the government should, in the public interest, take immediate steps to ensure the continued operation of the system. Under existing legislation this could not be accomplished by an application to the courts for the appointment of a receiver. The war measures act, however, was found to provide adequate authority for action by the government and consequently an order-in-

MUSICAL CLUB AT THE QUEEN MARY

PARENTS' CIRCLE MAKES A NEW DEPARTURE IN SCHOOL WORK.

On the afternoon of Thursday, Mar. 6th, several members of the Parents' Circle of Queen Mary School assisted a number of the pupils in organizing a musical society, to be composed of pupils of the school and to be known as "The Twilight Musical Club of Queen Mary School." The following officers were elected:

Hon. Pres.—Miss Buck.

Pres.—Jean Wilgar.

Sec.—Margaret McKeen.

Critics—Miss Caldwell and Miss Grieve.

Program Committee—Isobel Connelly, Harold Peace, Irene Breckenridge, Dorthy Clarke, Henerita Brown and Doris Donnelly.

The following musical numbers were then very capably rendered:

Piano—Gavatte-Handel, Isobel Connelly.

Piano solo—Spring Serenade—Fabraurose—Edna Berbridge.

Vocal solo—Doris Donnelly, accompanied by Gwen Donnelly.

Piano—Les Sylphides, Paul Wachs—Agnes Lowden.

Piano—Manuet, Paderewski—Jean Wilgar.

After deciding to meet again on Thursday, March 25th, the meeting closed by singing the National Anthem with all present standing strictly at attention. The society is very fortunate in having among their members such an efficient accompanist as Gwen Donnelly, a little girl of thirteen years of age.

MR. GREEN'S PAY IS $1,250 A YEAR

THAT IS ALL LEFT HIM WHEN HIS EXPENSES ARE PAID.

The list of salary increases of civic officials published in the papers recently made it appear that Tax Collector Green is now receiving $1550.00 a year. While correct the figures are somewhat misleading as the net salary of Mr. Green in a year will not amount to more than $1250 when his expenses, which must be paid out of this amount, are deducted.

Mr. Green is underpaid in comparison with men holding the same position in other cities of the same size as Peterborough. For instance in Brantford the collector is paid $2900 for collecting $643,743; in Kingston where $438,012, less than that of Peterborough, is the amount of the collection, the official's salary is $2400, and in Sherbrooke, Que., where $333,167.70 is the total tax collection, the collector gets $2800 per annum. The amount collected in a year by Mr. Green in this city is over half a million dollars and he receives only $1020, which with expenses, such as stamps, and the salary of a girl in the rush season deducted, amounts to $1250.00. In other cities these extra expenses are paid by the corporation.

TWO YOUNG MEN IN POLICE COURT

JOHN WATSON AND JOHN McKNIGHT CHARGED WITH BEING DEFAULTERS.

John Thomas Watson, of Haliburton, and John Albert McKnight, of Minden Township, appeared before Justices of the Peace H. Rush and V. Eastwood this morning and had their cases remanded until Friday next. Watson is charged with having failed to report for service at Kingston on May 14 and McKnight who was registered in Toronto, did not obey the summons on Aug. 7th. Capt. Widdifield appeared for McKnight and Mr. V. J. McElderry appeared on behalf of Watson.

In the case of Watson Inspector Ward, who was representing the Crown, asked that the case be proceeded with as he already had the fiat from the Department of the Attorney-General. Their Worships decided, however, that in fairness to Mr. McElderry, who had not sufficient evidence prepared, there should be an enlargement of the case.

McKnight is a small man and when arrested by two Dominion policemen was leading a cow from the barn to the trough at the well. He was dressed in a wolf skin coat and for a moment startled the officers who claim they mistook him for a bear. Watson is a big man of six feet or over and would have made a fine soldier.

CANADIANS AT CAMP KINMEL PLAY FOOTBALL AS USUAL

All Traces of Recent Riot Have Disappeared —England Still Cordial to the Canadian Troops—Enquiry in Progress.

(By Thomas Champion C.A.P. Correspondent.)

London, March 10.—My visit to the Kimmel Camp Saturday showed that the holiday afternoon was being spent in the usual fashion there with football and baseball games proceeding. For seventy hours previously the camp had been normal, and a new comer would have difficulty in discovering that it had recently been otherwise.

There is no desire in any part of England to magnify last week's regrettable incidents at Kimmel beyond their true perspective. The utmost cordiality is still shown to Canadian troops everywhere. People generally are awaiting a report of the full enquiry with great interest and concern. It may be added that there have been demonstrations among English troops during the last few months that received just as much publicity in proportion as that given the present matter.

CURLING SEASON FOR THIS CITY IS REGARDED AS OVER

Ice is About Gone and Temperature Offers no Hope—Skip Kay's Rink Wins in Schedule Games Saturday.

Skip Alex. Kay's rink won out in the schedule games of the season at the curling rink when he defeated Skip Hicks and his rink in the final contest on Saturday night by a score of 8 to 27

The rinks:

F. Bartlett	C. Hall
A. L. Killaly	B. McNeely
A. Moore	W. H. Taylor
R. Hicks, skip	A. C. Kay, skip

This practically ends the curling in Peterborough for this season as far as fixtures are concerned, although the Lindsay-Peterborough competition; the Orillia contest and the W. J. Dell-Capon Cup games with Toronto have not as yet been played.

In the Lindsay contest three rinks in that town played the Lindsay end of the game but as it is an eight rink contest the Peterborough men may have to return to the neighboring town and play over, although this inconvenience could be overcome if the Lindsay club would consent to send three rinks to this city to play the end here and balance the standing. Lindsay now leads in this event by 20 points.

It is not by any means probable that the Toronto games will be played and the Orillia contest is also very doubtful as the season is far advanced. A late spring with plenty of frost might of course see plenty of curling yet, but as the old standbys sat in the rink this afternoon gazing out onto the sticky ice they were not in a particularly hopeful frame of mind and bowling was the topic of discussion which would have been ruled out of order a few weeks ago had any member had the temerity to introduce it.

There were a few members of the club who were considering the possibility of constructing curling stones mounted upon castors or ball-bearings which might be used in the summer time but Archie Moore frowned upon the project and stated that he was sure such new fangled contrivances would not respond to the fancy twists like the real old-fashioned stones.

FARM LANDS FOR SOLDIERS.

THE QUEBEC LEGISLATURE sets an example for all the other provinces in the Dominion in dealing with the returned soldiers. Every veteran who wants to go on the land is to be given a free farm and equipment and the province attaches no string to the arrangement. All that is asked of the soldier is that he remain at his agricultural post and demonstrate his ability to make good.

Some more liberal provisions should be made for the veteran who elects to farm than any the Federal Government has yet devised. The men have, many of them, spent four of the best years of their lives in the service of their country, at nominal wages. The members of Parliament and the civil service employes insist upon fair compensation for their work, which is carried on under shelter and in perfect personal security, unlike the duty of the soldier, which was performed only at the imminent risk of his life.

The opportunity to reward him presents itself. Something more than war gratuities is required. Special inducements have been offered civilians and aliens to settle on lands in Canada, every farmer being regarded as a national asset, and the soldier is entitled to something more generous than is granted others who have not the same claim upon the public.

Starting a man on a farm saddled with a debt of $5000, which he is required to pay back at the rate of $500 a year—$400 of principal and the balance in interest—is really not much of an inducement. Perhaps the returned soldier, even though inexperienced in agriculture, may be able to make a success of such a venture, but few farmers skilled in the vocation would care to assume such a burden, and no other business could be carried to success if launched under such a financial handicap.

LABOR AND MACHINERY.

"THERE IS SO MUCH machinery used today that the profits of the manufacturer are excessive. There is less work for the mechanic. For that reason Labor must agitate for shorter hours in order to make places for more men forced out of employment by the introduction of machinery, and insist upon higher wages, so that all the profits shall not go to the manufacturer."

The above, in brief, is the creed of a good many Labor agitators. A local disciple of this school of thought made a speech to his fellow workers last week in which he emphasized the points enumerated above. A machine in some departments of industrial plants may easily do the work of five men when operated by one mechanic. As a result, four men are turned into the streets and the non-employment thus created becomes a menace to the man who is kept on at the machine.

Conditions are not really as bad as that. Not all the men who are displaced by machinery are forced into the bread line nor are they likely to become patrons of the public soup kitchens. The loss of one job may mean a better class of employment for them. It requires mechanics of skill to manufacture the machinery that is taking the place of so many men.

When the farmer did all his work by hand before there were binders or even mowers and reapers thought of, he did for more than two months every year give employment to a comparatively large number of men. But once the harvest was over these men were turned adrift. There were no large industrial plants those days in the cities in which men the year round were engaged in the manufacture of farm machinery at good wages and under working conditions that protected them from the weather. Making binders and mowers is a vastly higher class of employment than using a scythe, swinging a cradle in a wheat field or binding by hand. Each of the machines referred to may do the work of five men, but the man who operates the machine and the men who build it are better off under modern conditions.

Ask any farmer of experience and he is likely to tell you that he cannot see how his profits are any higher in the age of machinery than in the days when he depended entirely upon hard labor. In the first place, the initial cost is higher. Modern machinery is expensive, but it cost nothing under the old regime to secure a force of workers. If one of the latter fell ill or met with an accident, he was dropped from the payroll. A machine requires constant expert attention and the annual bill for repairs is also considerable. In former days the harvest hand shifted for himself between seasons. The farmer was not required to put up a building to shelter him during the period of enforced idleness or to pay the premium on an insurance policy as he does in the case of his machinery. The life of a machine, too, is brief as compared with that of a member of the human race. The great trouble with the farmer is that he finds it difficult to find the fifth man to act as operator, the majority of the men preferring to crowd into the factories where the man-supplanting machines are made.

It is the same way in the big city factory. It costs more to equip a modern plant with machinery than it formerly did to hire a staff of human workers. The machine is a constant source of expense. If a factory worker falls a victim to an industrial disease or to an accident while on duty he is entitled to free medical treatment for thirty days and to receive fifty-five per cent. of his wages, the Government and not his employer paying the bill. If a careless workman drops a monkey wrench into the machinery the firm are out the cost of the repairs and loss of time. If a worker perishes in a fire in the factory, his wife and young children draw a pension from the State. If the machinery is lost through the same catastrophe, the only redress is the insurance policy, the premium on which the manufacturer pays.

The modern linotype machine does as much work as five old time hand compositors, requiring only one operator. It is true that this marvel of mechanical ingenuity has thrown a number of men out of work in the printing trade, but it has created employment for an army of men in other lines. In all classes of industry the same is true. The new employment begins with the miner who digs the raw metal out of the earth, and rises step by step until the final stage is reached, that of putting the machine together and installing it for service.

New inventions may disturb established conditions, but such disturbance is only temporary. Man is not likely to be forced into want by the spread of machine power. Such machines will always require manual and mental skill to fashion as well as to operate them.

FARMERS AND DAYLIGHT SAVING.

ONE OF THE LOCAL champions of Organized Labor and a devout advocate of shorter hours, stated in a public address the other night that the farmers were opposed to daylight saving because it meant shorter hours for their hired help.

The farmers have no such object in view. Daylight saving, they claim, is no injury to their business because it calls for starting work one hour earlier in the morning, and that such an hour is not suitable for farm duties, especially in the harvest season, when work is halted to a great extent until the dew is dried up by the sun. No matter when the hired man starts, he insists on quitting for the day at the same hour as the city worker. The farmer can thus very easily be deprived of one hour's work every day. The contention of the farmer is not without justification. Their claim is logical from their own standpoint. City employers would urge the same objection to daylight saving if it affected them as it does the residents of the rural sections.

THE COST OF ENFORCEMENT.

DURING THE YEAR 1918 the fines collected for violations of the Ontario Temperance Act amounted to $200,000. To collect this amount cost $217,000. As a business proposition this will not appeal to the public generally. There must be some methods for cutting down the expense of operation, and the pruning knife should be first used to lop away some of the top branches of the system. If at the coming plebiscite the Ontario Temperance Act is defeated by the people, it will not be because the majority of the electors of the Province have changed their views on prohibition, but will be due to the justifiable objection to having the temperance cause made a matter of political exploitation.

There are at present three members of the License Commission, the number having been reduced at the session of the Legislature a year ago. Chairman J. D. Flavelle draws a salary of $6500 a year, Vice-Chairman W. S. Dingman $6000, while Commissioner George T. Smith is paid $4000 a year for his services. J. A. Ayearst, who acts part of the time as commissioner and part as provincial inspector, draws $4000 a year. All of these officials are allowed liberal travelling expenses and other perquisites besides their salaries.

There seems no more reason why there should be three license commissioners in Ontario any more than that there should be three Ministers of Education, three Ministers of Agriculture, or three Attorney-Generals. Each of the departments of the Government have, of course, their clerical staffs, but the same is true of the license commissioners.

The electors have a right to insist that the same economy be exercised in the transaction of the public business as is shown in the conduct of private affairs. The administration of the Temperance Act should be in the hands of an elected representative of the people. The Government cannot hope to shift the responsibility for enforcement by placing the management in the hands of an independent commission. The educational affairs of the Province are as important as any reform legislation ever enacted, and a separate educational department has long since been abandoned.

Amendments to the prohibitory law are promised at the present session, and there is certainly room for them. One of the most popular would be a reduction in the cost of operation by placing the management of the measure in the hands of one responsible commissioner. All suspicion of patronage should be removed from the administration.

GOVERNMENT EMERGENCY BRAKES

(New York Commercial.)

America's great industrial machine, speeded up to maximum capacity through the exigencies and hurry call of a great world war, now stands almost completely stalled. Mechanically termed, it is a case of "hot-box," aggravated somewhat by the too sudden application of the Governmental emergency brake. President Wilson has wisely stated that the most pressing question at this time is the economic problem, and industrial mechanics from all over the nation have been called into consultation for the purpose of again starting the wheels of this great industrial machine moving. Undoubtedly the first step should be the release of the brakes. If the Government would loosen or release the firm grip it now holds on this great industrial machine the wheels would doubtless begin to turn largely of their own power and momentum, and through the initiative, energy and force of American business men would soon redevelop the former smoothness, speed and power.

Indissolubly interwoven into the general business fabric as they are, the railway, telegraph and telephone lines must be unthrottled and permitted to function normally if this great, ponderous business machine of America is to speed ahead unhampered and unafraid.

Indiscriminate lassoing of American industries by the Federal Trade Commission and exhibition of the prizes in the public ring for the gratification of a certain gallery element and the personal aggrandizement of office seeking politicians must likewise be halted if disaster to innocent industries is to be avoided. Labor is here no less interested than capital. Not even the most radical will deny that whatever adversely affects industry must inevitably react unfavorably on labor.

Artificial, idealistic, theoretical and visionary means, which have been substituted with the usual disastrous results for the time and tried natural and practical forces of law and nature, must be immediately and forever abandoned if further disorganization is to be avoided.

War revenue tax measures, framed during a great war and in anticipation of its being long prolonged, must be revised to meet the new conditions. Certain provisions of these measures are diametrically opposed to the new situation and new needs, such as taxes on luxuries and semi-luxuries, originally purposed not as a revenue raising measure but to discourage production and consumption of certain commodities. And most important of all, Congress should rack its brain not for new and novel means of raising more revenue, but to curtail expenditures and get out of the habit of thoughtlessly and indiscriminately making reckless and needless appropriations.

Business today stands in a hesitant and uncertain position, hampered by Governmental restrictions, official attacks and restraints, artificial impositions of theory and a Congress completely out of tune with the business situation.

There is nothing radically wrong with America's great business machine. It is only necessary for the dreamers in power to come back to earth from their heavenly flights. Let only the Government take its hands off, turn the machine over to its old and tried engineers, leave them unhampered in the work of reconstruction and the great machine will soon throb with life and leap forward to new fields and accomplishments.

THE THREE R'S AS AN ASSET

(New York Tribune.)

Complacent Americans who have been wont to look upon their country as the best educated and most enlightened nation of the world have been sadly shaken by some of the revelations that have been made as a result of the war. One bit of information that has caused Americans to open their eyes was the announcement that 24.9 per cent. of our draft army was illiterate. Such revelations have given great impetus of such causes as the Americanization movement and should be a great aid to the most recently launched of remedial enterprises, the stay-in-school campaing of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor and the Council of National Defence.

The purpose of this drive is to persuade to return to school many of those children who dropped out to engage in war work and to convince others to remain at their books as long as possible. The Children's Bureau declares that, as by experts, it is in a position to announce that the children of America are not getting the education that they should have and that is in reach of them. In the Central Northwestern states three of every four children between the ages of six and eighteen go to school, but that is the very best record attained in any part of the United States. It scales down from that till in the South Atlantic states only one child in three goes to school. Only one-fifth of the boys and girls of the country are still in school at the age of eighteen.

The dollars and cents argument is being stressed with both parents and children in the stay-in-school campaign. The United States Bureau of Education has prepared figures extending over a period of years and using two groups of children for purposes of illustration. The children of the first group quit school at the age of fourteen and went to work at $4 a week. These children were gradually increased in wages until at the age of twenty-five they received $12.75 a week each, these being pre-war figures.

The children of the other group remained in school until they were eighteen, when they went to work at $10 a week. At twenty-five they were receiving $31 a week each. This meant that from the time he went to work till he was twenty-five he had been paid $7,387.50 in wages. The child of the other group, although he had gone to work four years earlier, had received at twenty-five only $5,112.50 in wages.

The climax of the argument of the stay-in-school campaign is that the child who leaves school at fourteen must as a rule go through life on a day labor wage basis, while the child with a more complete education will continue to increase its wage earning power throughout its life.

PROPERTY QUALIFICATION

Editor Review: Alderman Hamilton(from The Review report on this matter) says he cannot see why local labor aldermen favored such a proposition as the abolition of the property qualification for the aldermanic office. This, Sir, is one of the planks in the labor platform, and that is why the labor members stood true to their cause, and, it is inserted in the labor platform, because democracy is our watchword. Government for the people, by the people. If the electors are restricted to a certain class, from which to select their candidates, then it is autocracy on the part of that particular class. If the candidate, by reason of not having property, is not suitable for that particular office the electors will certainly say so, at the polls on election day. That is democracy.

Mr. Mayor, there are other interests besides money interests that confer a city's welfare. Also I wish to states that the non-property owner does pay the property tax. They may not hand it to the tax collector, but they pay it all the same, and therefore have an interest at stake. I personally do say they should not pay it, perhaps, that the present form of municipal taxation may be unjust in many ways, to the non-property owner, by not having direct non-property owners representation on the Council.

Therefore, I suggest that the taxes for the city be paid by a municipal income tax, to be collected from all, whose income exceeds seven hundred dollars a year. I see no objection to this if the worker does not pay the taxes, and has no interest in the city's affairs.

Why were four labor aldermen elected? Because the worker has an interest in our city's affairs, and we do not want a cheap Hunter street bridge at the expense of the workers' wages, thanks to the fair wage clause.

THOMAS TOOMS.

Editor Review: Russia went dry in 1916 and completely crazy in 1917. Religious agitators made Ontario dry in 1916. From anarchy to national insanity is but a short step.

JUSTICE.

SESSIONAL INDEMNITIES.

Editor Review: Members of Parliament plead the high cost of living as a reason why their yearly allowances should be increased. They say that the hotelkeepers and boarding-house proprietors in Ottawa have formed a combination in restraint of cheap existence, and that it takes about all a member draws to pay his actual expenses while on duty at the Capital.

Why not form a combination to fight this trust? Members of Parliament should adopt the community system of living, go into the boarding house business on their own account, hire their own help, buy supplies at wholesale, and all live together. This plan would tend to foster a democratic and fraternal spirit among our lawmakers, besides saving them from the voracity of which they now complain. It would simply be a development of the bunk-house system that has been devised for the benefit of large forces of workingmen engaged in construction work.

So angels from the starry height,
Beneath soft, sheltering pinions white,
In tenderest love
Bore it to a serener clime
Beyond the bleak, frost winds of time,

Transplanted in that sunny land
And tended by a Father's hand,
No dire decay
Nor breath of sorrow shall it know,
But fairer, lovelier, will it grow,
Fadeless, for aye.

What though our hearts so sorely miss
Thy clinging baby hands, and kiss
Our precious one;
Submissive, still our hearts would say,
The dear Lord gave and took away:
His will be done.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

Dr. Osler, bless his good, honest soul, mentions in his "bible" that certain slumbering or quiescent maladies, as tuberculosis or syphilis, may be lighted into activity by vaccination. In other words, the development of a comparatively trifling infectious disease (cowpox or vaccinia in this instance) in one who already has some other infectious disease. The same thing is sometimes observed in a young victim of tuberculosis who happens to contract measles or acute tonsillitis.

Low grade chronic infections of the nose or throat are well known to postpone or prevent the recovery of persons with tuberculosis, syphilis or other chronic infectious disease. Even chronic furunculosis (recurring crops of large pimples or boils) often proves obstinate until an infection of the tonsil or an infected tooth is eradicated.

Ah, the same old focal infection theory! Still determined that every invalid shall lose his teeth and tonsils!

No. No. This is something new. We doctors have to keep about one jump ahead of our more experienced patients. This here idea is the bi focal theory, if you please. And it is just grand.

Given one or two infected tonsils and a state of uncertainty whether to remove them or not, and also one or more infected teeth, and a similar state of doubt as to surgical relief. What is to be done?

Perhaps eradicating the infection from the mouth will bring about a marked improvement or complete recovery from the trouble in the tonsils. At any rate the diseased mouth requires proper dental treatment — the teeth are not necessarily doomed, for the dentist may be able to overcome the infection about the roots by conservative treatment. But remember this: A good dentist often cures diseased tonsils without realizing that he is doing it. Also a good doctor removing a bad tonsil or two, often enables the dentist to accomplish the happiest results, for the beauty of this bi-focal idea is that it works more than one way.

When a presumably guilty focus of infection anywhere in the body is attacked surgically, and soon afterward the dependent condition, whether joint trouble or gall-sac disease or what-not, grows temporarily worse, with evidences of increased inflammation, that is a most favorable sign which should cheer the victim considerably, for it indicates that the real cause has been found and that very definite improvement, at least, is likely to follow the temporary setback.

Treatment of Cancer.

"In an article on cancer you spoke of surgical treatment. Is radium treatment considered surgical treatment? Does not radium when properly applied blot out the disease more thoroughly and with less danger than the knife?

T. F. B."

No, radium is not surgical treatment. Radium may be helpful in preventing recurrence, after a radical operation has been done for cancer. It has its place in the alleviation of inoperable cancer—cancer which has progressed too far for operation to offer a reasonable hope of saving life. But it would be a tragical error to resort to either radium of X-ray treatment in a case of cancer which is still operable.

Blood Pressure.

"What are the symptoms of excessive blood pressure What causes it?

"MISS C. E. G."

Excessive blood pressure is itself merely a symptom of various conditions. Send a self-addressed 3 cent stamped envelope for monograph—but do not send stamps in any quantity in lieu of the aforesaid essential.

Experiments with the use of electricity to stimulate the growth of oats in Wales increased the yield of grain 35 per cent. and that of straw 17 per cent.

DRESS SUGGESTIONS

A blouse of cream-dotsed net is charming when trimmed with platinum gray ribbon.

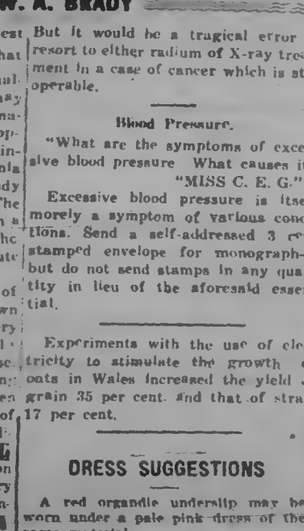
An afternoon dress of gray and rose brown marquisette, trimmed in red-brown satin and crisp white organdie, is tightly draped and pulled around the ankles to fulfill the effect of tapering.

CHIC SMOCK OF WHITE LINEN



This smock of white linen which is embroidered in attractive shades of blue, brown, yellow and red, is of the latest design and is a good-looking and comfortable early morning gown.

Presidential Succession.

The law of the presidential succession, passed in 1900, expressly states that in case of the death of both president and vice president the succession shall go to the members of the cabinet, beginning with the secretary of state, but only "such as are eligible to the office of president under the Constitution." If the secretary of state was foreign born, therefore the succession would pass over him and go to the secretary of the treasury.

Spies Were Hunted Down

By Sir Reginald Hall, Who Let Very Few Escape

"THE Hun could keep no secret from him," says the London Daily Mail. "The efficiency with which he organized and directed his staff has been one of the Silent Navy's triumphs. His emissaries were everywhere; the Germans at last became fearful even of themselves. Whatever they schemed was known in very short time to the little keen-eyed admiral in Whitehall, and duly countered."

Rarely does "the Voice of Northcliffe" unload itself of such eulogism, and then the object of its attentions must be something in the way of a genius. Though certainly claim may be laid to that much misused synonym with regard to Rear-Admiral Sir Reginald Hall, British navy.

As Director of Intelligence Division since June, 1914, he passed from a command in the British Grand Fleet to the Admiralty. A typical sailorman, the admiral is not unlike the popular figure of Punch; short, thickset, with remarkably sharp eyes, rosy cheeks and a directness of manner that is at times apt to be disconcerting. But never was there a British official more obliging, more frank and courteous in his manner; who went so far out of his way to oblige a bothersome newspaper man with some "unessential" detail. And now he has retired.

How the news would have heartened the German navy a year ago, for the D. I. D.—Director of the Intelligence Department — has been their bete-noir of the war. Did they send out their spies he appeared to gather them into his plainly furnished room in Admiralty Buildings. To mention but a few who had the "pleasure" of a personal interview with the admiral, there were von Rintelen, the spy paymaster, spending millions in America, who was captured at a British port trying to return to Germany in a neutral ship; Von der Goltz, the associate of von Papen and Boy-Ed, and Kuppferle, who committed suicide in Brixton jail. They left Admiral Hall as a witness leaves the box after being turned inside out.

Nothing can show his character better than the story of how he saved the Queen Mary in the Bight in the early days of the war. He had taken her into the thick of the fight, when his keen eye spied the wake of a torpedo coming broadside on. He seized the wheel and with a nicety of judgment swung the vessel around so that the torpedo ran side by side with the Queen Mary until spent.

That quickness of thought and action is typical of Admiral Hall's naval career; particularly of his work at the head of the Intelligence Department. During the war the German spies in England were both numerous and exceedingly crafty.

One day there arrived in London from Switzerland a man who produced American papers purporting him to be a representative of a large New York forage firm. He had bags filled with stationery and order books all properly printed with the name and address of the New York firm. But his papers were afterward found to have been forged and he was a German spy.

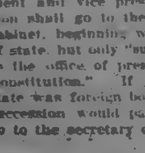
He escaped detection for some time, but owing to the number of orders which the man kept sending to America and the similarity of them, he was suspected and the D.I.D. began to get busy.

One evening he was dining with a woman in a Strand hotel, when the police walked in and quietly tapped him on the shoulder. He was subsequently shot in the Tower.

Another of Hall's "friends" was a man who came to London from Sweden. He said he wanted to buy port in large quantities. Owing to the delay and shortage, he said, he had been sent over to buy direct.

It was not long before he was suspected of being what he was—a German spy. ... pany of ... watch was ... was arre...

Early ... of the y... In a ... Piccadilly ...



smartly dressed women and two naval officers dining. In an unguarded moment — at least one of those apparently unguarded moments of the little admiral's conception—one of the officers happened to mention that on a certain day an extra lot of officers would be leaving a British port for France.

But the British secret service were already on their way. As they left the restaurant the arrest of these women was effected and the secret got no further than Piccadilly.

Another German agent has in his employ a remarkably pretty women who mixed in the best society in London.

She was introduced to all kinds of people—military and naval officers and even members of the Government.

For a time this fascinating woman succeeded in worming secrets out of her admirers. One day an officer whom she had met on several occasions accidentally saw the woman having lunch with an obvious German in a quiet little restaurant off the beaten track. The pair were deep in conversation and did not notice the officer's entrance.

He at once withdrew and met the woman by appointment (the same evening at a house in Mayfair. When she began to ply him with certain questions he gave replies purposely intended to mislead and trap her if she was as he now strongly believed, a German spy. She fell into the trap so neatly arranged for her, with the result that both her employer and herself were caught. The man will not trouble this country again, while the woman received a term of imprisonment.

One man who was employed in the British Secret Service was discovered after a lot of trouble to be also acting as a German agent, said the D.I.D. "We caught him first and saved the Germans from shooting him."

Yet another instance was that of an employe at a certain airdrome near London who was caught loosening the bolts in a new machine. The Intelligence Department got busy. When arrested he confessed he was in the employ of a German agent.

Perhaps the best of all incidents related of the little admiral and enemy spies is that of a German naval officer who was trying to get back to Germany through London and Holland.

It was at the Admiralty where the admiral interviewed the man, and the sudden ferocious manner in which he shouted in German to the spy, "How dare you stand like that when you are speaking to a superior officer!" startled the man into clicking his heels together. He did not raise his hand to the salute, but he had done enough to make his arrest advisable.

Growing Mistletoe.

Why not? Mistletoe commands good prices at Christmastide, and to cultivate it artificially is a by no means difficult job.

Choose a young bough with fresh, smooth bark, and rub fully-ripe mistletoe berries on the under side gently until most of the substance of each berry is rubbed away, leaving only sufficient to enable the seed to adhere to the bark.

The latter end of February or early March is the best time for this operation, and once performed the graft may be left to look after itself, no further care or attention being needful. In about 12 months the radicle will have taken a firm hold, and the green leaves will begin to show themselves.

As regards the choice of the tree, this matters little within certain limits. There are in England about 34 species of trees capable of producing mistletoe, including such common ones as the apple, pear, ash, lime, willow, almond, fir and oak. But care should be taken not to select for the experiment a too valuable tree. For the mistletoe is a parasite, and lives by sucking up the juices of the tree to which it is attached. The mistletoe plant, if left to its own devices, will not infrequently kill the tree which nourishes it, thereby itself committing suicide.—Tit-Bits.

Wealth of Africa.

The wealth of the resources of Africa is thought equal to any two of the other continents of the world. For instance, she has "800,000 square miles of coal fields, 95,000,000 acres of fertile farm lands, iron ore equal to five times the output of North America, 90 per cent of the world's diamonds, $10,000,000 worth of rubber yearly, and uncounted millions in ivory, nuts and oil, copper and gold."

TRETTURE OF CAFE AU LAIT

Cafe au lait forms this smart tretture that should appeal to many women. The surplice waist has a large collar of beaver and the bell sleeves are edged with the same fur. Tassels of brown silk add an effective touch.

TO DETECT IMPURE MATERIAL

Silk, Linen, Leather, Among the Various Articles That Are Being Cleverly Counterfeited.

The "beware of imitations" line so common in advertisements is really a piece of good advice, observes a correspondent. An almost limitless amount of ingenuity is devoted to producing cheap substitutes for popular articles. In appearance they must rival the genuine, so it is well to know how their real quality must be tested. Nothing, for instance, is more satisfying to eye and touch than pure linen and most woman shoppers believe it has a distinctive "feel."

It has, but mixed with the linen of the next tablecloth you examine may be mercerized cotton, treated with magnesia so that it counterfeits this "feel." An easy test is to hold the fabric up to the light. Along the threads of good linen tiny knots will show. Cotton threads are smooth. An infallible method is to soak a corner of the napkin in glycerin. If it becomes translucent it is pure linen; if it remains opaque it is cotton.

Short skirts make stockings a distinctly conspicuous feature of woman's dress, so the demand was greatly increased for silk substitutes. Some are made of wood pulp, others of artificial silk. Cotton, of course, is mixed with good silk, and a poor quality product is given weight by treating it with oxide of tin. Small particles of the metal are scattered through the fabric, which cut tiny holes or cause the garment to crack along a folded edge.

The sure test for silk is to burn a bit of it. If pure scarcely a trace will remain, but a poor quality will leave one-third to one-half its weight in ashes. Beware of silk that has a hard feeling, or if it has a transparent look when held to the light. This means it is a mesh, filled in and weighted with metal.

Wool will disappear if boiled in a solution of caustic soda. If the fabric be mixed with cotton the latter will remain undissolved. This is a valuable test, for it is hard to tell what goes into some articles guaranteed as "all wool." Blankets offer a good field for the imitator, sheep furnishing but little of the fiber in some of those labeled "half wool." Specimens of such have been found to contain but 10 per cent wool. These are made of a mesh cotton, filled in by means of an air blast with scraps of waste wool. The result is a soft, fluffy covering, but little of it will remain after a first or second washing.

Shoe soles are made of ground leather scrap mixed with paper pulp and rubber. Cowhide is split into half a dozen layers and the source of many an expensive alligator handbag or pigskin leggings once wore horns—perhaps was the pride of some dairy.

The Greatest Name in Goody-Land —

THE BRITISH GUARDS.

Wonderful Discipline of Famous Storm Troops.

St. John Ervine contributes a brightly written article in a recent number of the London Daily Chronicle on that historic body of British troops, the Brigade of Guards. Amongst other things, he says:

The Brigade of Guards is a permanent body of storm-troops. Most battalions during the last two years of the war became storm-troops of a sort, but the Guards were always storm-troops. They were not always in the line, but when they did go in! These specialized men were held in reserve for desperate situations, and whenever trouble was particularly acute the Guards, somehow or other, got to it.

I have called them specialized men, and some may quarrel with the adjective. It may be said that regiments like the Highland regiments or the Irish regiments are specialized, too, because they are used in situations where reckless courage is needed—and that is certainly true; but I do not think that any soldier will seriously dispute my statement that the Guards are specialized in a very special manner. Their specialty is discipline. I was going to write that their specialty is imperturbability, but discipline is a better word. The whole of a Guardsman's training—and it is a very hard, almost heart-breaking training—is devoted to making him act in the field as quietly and unhurriedly as he acts on the barrack square; that he shall move as steadily through the mud of the Salient—there are many salients, but only one Salient—Ypres—as he moves on the asphalt at Wellington Barracks.

I was told once that the candidates for the Italian Arditti are subjected to a very severe test. A heavy stone will suddenly be flung straight at a man, and if he flinches he is turned down. "No good for the Arditti!" Its may be a fine soldier otherwise, but if he is not able to stand up to some sudden assault without flinching—he is "no good for the Arditti!" The story may be a legend, but it indicates the training and tradition of that great Italian regiment. The drill-sergeants at Caterham do not hurl stones at their recruits, but they "put 'em through it." The result is that when they come through it they can stand almost anything.

And the Guards have had to stand much in this war. They have fought not only up to, but far beyond, their tradition. From the days of the Retreat from Mons, when the line was composed of little isolated groups of men, two or three here and two or three there, until those great days of victory, the Guards have been in the thick of the fighting, suffering nearly, but also causing heavy suffering.

It was always a pleasure to "take over" trenches from the Guards. One felt that their stores would be in order and that a certificate of cleanliness might be signed quite safely, without the bother of going round the trenches to see that they were clean. There was a story in France that the Guards used to sweep their trenches with brooms, and their boast was that no rubbish was allowed to lie in the trenches, not even a burnt match. They had their reward in a singularly low sickness rate.

No Need to Be Alarmed.

James brought his pet bulldog to the store. As the dog looked vicious, I moved away from him. James looked up quickly, then said: "Never mind him; he ain't ferocious."—Exchange.

American Travellers Want Private Ownership

The Traffic Club of New York, with a membership of eleven hundred, of which the majority consists of users of the transportation systems of the country, has adopted the following resolution:

That Government ownership, management or operation of railroads is not conducive to economic efficiency, and that private initiative, enterprise and responsibility in the creation, extension, improvement and operation of the American railroads should as a matter of national policy be fostered and preserved.

That the extension of the present system of Federal control for a period of five years, or any extension beyond the limitation now prescribed by law of one year and nine months after the proclamation of peace, is earnestly opposed as prejudicial to the public interest.

That the recognized impracticability of continuing the Government operation of the railroads for twenty-one months after peace under the present law is a conclusive reason why the properties should be relinquished, and, that in view of the termination of hostilities, it should be the policy of the Railroad Administration to restore the integrity of individual properties and prepare for their return to the respective owners.

That the principle of reasonable, responsible and adequate Governmental regulation of transportation facilities is recognized and accepted, but that such regulation should provide for the encouragement, protection and development of the railroads.

That the Congress should promptly enact such revised legislation as will provide a uniform system of regulation in essential matters, safeguard the public interest, ensure adequate revenue to provide for equitable treatment of all questions affecting wages and working conditions of employees, and attract sufficient capital to maintain and develop transportation facilities which shall meet the necessities of the commercial manufacturing and agricultural interests of the country.

That energetic efforts should be exerted to accomplish the early return of the transportation systems of the country to the control and management of their owners, and the enactment of suitable legislation for the protection of the shipping and traveling public, the carriers and their employees, and

Two Prominent "Ideal Lines

Here are two of the "Ideal Manufacturing Co.'s" prominent lines which will be strongly featured at the Exhibition.

To see this Spring will tell you more than columns of reading matter the great advantage of this great Duplex Spring.

The strong point about it is the fact that it is absolutely impossible for it to sag in the middle. If you have had a sagging bed spring, you will appreciate this. Come and see it at the "Better Bedding Exhibition."

The Dixie No Tuff Mattress

This is another Ideal "Big Line." Here are some of its good points.

This Mattress will not spread. It has no tufts to weaken and give way. You are sure of a "Handsome Bed Insurance" when you use the DIXIE NO-TUFT COMPARTMENT MATTRESS.

Tufting takes up 25% of the elasticity of ordinary mattresses. The Dixie No-Tuft retians 100% resiliency because it has no tufts. ALWAYS comfortable.

CALLS WILSON A DICTATOR

Idaho Legislature Accuses Him of Defiance Toward U.S.

Boise, Idaho, Mrch 10.—By a vote of 42 to 16 the Lower House of the Idaho Legislature adopted a memorial to Congress assailing President Wilson for his "defiant and dictorial attitude in which he has attempted to force his personal views and opinions on the people of the United States," and calling upon the United States Senate to reject any treaty of peace which includes the present [illegible] for a League of Nations.

MUNITIONEERS GOT MOST

Over $2,900,000 Paid for Injuries in 1917, by Compensation Board.

Of $2,913,085 awarded by the Workmen's Compensation Board in 1917, $600,000 was in compensation for injuries received by munition workers, according to an estimate made by Hon. W. D. McPherson, in a return which he has made to the Ontario House. He estimates that the board dealt with 7,600 such cases in the year. The percentage of assessment under the Compensation Act has been higher on munition makers than on any other manufacturers on account of the increased risk attending such work, and a diminution of industrial risks is looked for in the future as a result of the experiences learned during the war.

Many men who got credit for keeping their tempers have none.

FARMERS OFFER $40 A MONTH

THIS INCLUDES BOARD — MANY MEN PLACED ON FARMS BY LABOR BUREAU.

Saturday was one of the busiest days in the history of the officials of the Peterborough branch of the Provincial Labor Bureau on Charlotte street. Farmers looking for men for the spring are filing applications in great numbers, and many of them were at the office on Saturday and succeeded in getting a man to suit them.

Work is being done for employers of labor out of the district which the branch here was formed to serve, and applications have been received from towns and villages and from farmers in other counties.

On Saturday a farmer from Mariposa filed an application for a man and also asked that help be obtained for two of his neighbors. Mr. Hugh Robertson, superintendent of the local bureau, states that the wages offered in these cases are as a rule $40 per month with board and other expenses thrown in. Under these circumstances he claims that a man who knows anything whatever about farm work has no excuse for walking about the city with his hands in his pockets.

Mr. Robertson says that one of the most satisfactory adjustments made by the bureau was in the case of a married man who was placed in a good house three miles from Omemee which had been untenanted for some time. It has in connection with it a barn, chicken coops, three-quarters of an acre of ground for garden purposes and a fine orchard. The place is owned by a butcher in Omemee and is let to the man at a nominal amount on condition that he looks after the cattle which are kept there. In addition to other concessions he is allowed a milk cow for his use, and can obtain employment in a mill in the immediate vicinity for several months in the year, and will not have trouble in obtaining work during the remainder of the time.

There are applications from Belleville for molders and one for a garage mechanic. A returned man with a third-class teaching certificate is wanted to relieve in a school quite close to Peterborough for a couple of months. The secretary-treasurer of the Cataraqui golf links at Kingston is after a returned man to keep the green in condition, and there are many other applications for men which are most encouraging.

Mr. Robertson is of the opinion that no trouble will be experienced in placing men who are willing to go onto farms or those who have regular trades

UNION PARTY MAY BE PERMANENCY

TALK AT OTTAWA OF CALLING A GENERAL CONVENTION SOON.

Ottawa, March 10.—An early announcement that it had been decided to form a Union Party

The formation of committees to commence organization.

The calling of a national convention of Conservative and Liberal Unionists in the autumn to draft a platform.

These three things are being advocated by those who desire to see a permanent party cemented.

It is understood that H. H. Stevens at the Government caucus advocated this plan and was well received. The first two proposals seem certain as soon as Sir Robert Borden returns from overseas, if not before. As for the convention, this would have to be settled later, and if organization was completed and a platform drafted it might not be necessary. H. M. Mowat, Parkdale; General Maclean, Sudbury; Queen's, and F. B. Stoacy, Westminster, spoke along the same lines.

Desired by Majority

One thing is certain, the Union sentiment is solidifying daily. There are certain ultra-Conservatives who are not enthusiastic and there are a few western Unionist grain growers who have doubts on the tariff, but the majority of the Government supporters ,east and west, show an almost intense desire to have union perpetuated.

The Government has so far given no indication of its tariff proposals and will not likely for some time. There will be a caucus in two weeks, when the tariff will be under consideration. The Government will simply listen to the views of the members and secure the opinions of the East and the West.

TAKE PLEBISCITE ON PROHIBITION

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT THAT QUESTION WILL BE SUBMITTED TO PEOPLE.

Toronto, March 10. — The announcement was made by Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer at a meeting of the Ward Three Conservative Association in St. George's Hall, that a referendum would be taken on prohibition early in the fall of this year. The exact date could not be determined until all the soldiers were home, he stated, but it would probably be in September or sooner.

"A wide open referendum on the prohibition question will be taken in Ontario," he said, "possibly in September next or possibly sooner, for the people want to determine what measure they want. I believe the people will be able to vote on the question in a very open fashion, and when the boys come home they will be able to decide the question for themselves. The reference will be wide open, as this is desired by both the temperance people and the liquor interests.

He said the Government had decided on the measure long before the Committee of One Hundred waited upon it, and he had publicly announced at the time that there would be a referendum on the subject, but the liquor interests had objected on the ground that it would be very unfair to take a vote when so many of the soldiers were overseas.

"Whatever the verdict of the people may be, it will be upheld by the Government," he said. "The people will be given every opportunity of expressing in the fullest possible manner their desires on this important question. Mr G. H Warburton and the Committee of One Hundred were not a factor so far as the Government was concerned in the passing of the Ontario Temperance Act, and they will not be a factor in determining the issue of permanent prohibition. We are not going to have Prussianism in Ontario, but the people are going to rule."

Two Questions

Implementing Provincial Treasurer McGarry's announcement last evening that the assured referendum on the repeal or continuance of the Ontario Temperance Act, would be taken about September next, when all of Ontario's soldiers, it is expected, will have returned from overseas, it was intimated at Queen's Park today that the form in which the referendum will be offered will afford clear opportunity for recording the desire of the majority of the electorate on this question.

It is proposed that the first question shall be as to whether the electors favor the repeal of the Act with its present machinery. A second question may be asked as to whether the elector favors the allowance of the sale and use of beer and light wines under certain restrictions. As an affirmative answer to the first question, if the second were not approved by a majority, would automatically bring into existence again the open bar and license system it is believed that only these two inquiries will be necessary.

RUBBERS Will Help Your OLD SHOES to Last Through the Bad Weather

A new pair of rubbers will make the old shoes waterproof—will give you new, springy rubber heels—and prevent you from slipping on the slushy or icy sidewalks.

Rubbers are an absolute necessity during the next two months, to keep feet dry and prevent you from taking cold.

There's a double reason for you to look for these Trademarks when buying Rubbers —

are the Dominion Rubber System brands that enable you to get just the style and shape of rubbers to perfectly fit each pair of shoes you wear.

The Trademarks guarantee the quality. Look for them whenever you buy. 23

SUGGESTIONS TO LEGISLATORS

Resolutions adopted at the annual convention in February of the Rural Municipal Association of Ontario have just been presented to the Government by a deputation of officers of that organization headed by President C. H. Claus. The resolutions offered for Cabinet consideration and possible legislative action relate exclusively to municipal affairs under Provincial jurisdiction, and suggest among other things:

The holding of biennial instead of annual elections in rural municipalities after 1920.

Provision for the licensing of peddlers in unorganized districts.

Provision for the restoration for municipal taxation purposes of farming lands exempted as educational interests inclusive of Upper Canada College, which lands have not been in use as designated.

Provision for licensing tobacconists, liveries, garages, etc.

Question of Taxation

Requests that the Government adopt no precipitate action on the report and recommendations of the Natural Gas Advisory Board and proposed legislation changes, so that in final adjustments the contract rights of consumer may be fully protected.

Registered opposition to direct taxation either Federal or Provincial.

Legislation for the removal of conditions under which municipalities in which are children's homes, sanataria, etc., are saddled with hospital expenses of inmates who may be taken ill, regardless of the fact that these come from other sections of the country.

Extension of authority to municipalities to pass by-laws prohibiting or regulating coasting or tobogganing or to prohibit spitting in public places.

Desirability of non-action on certain requests of the Ontario Municipal Association providing for a Provincial contribution of 40 per cent of the cost of suburban road extensions within all countries, cities and towns alike, and to authorize suburban road commissions to spend such moneys only upon approval by city and country councils.

Strongly approving Federal grants for Provincial main roads.

TIMES NOT SO HARD.

Unemployment Is Much Less Than Four Years Ago.

Ottawa, March 10. — The unemployment service of the Department of Labor reports that for the week ending February 22 employment returns were received from 1,561 firms in Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. The most marked reductions in number of employes were in the vehicles division of the manufacturing industries, in building and construction.

Reports from trade unions for January 31, which have been received by the employment service, indicate that while there was a considerable volume of unemployment on that date—3.9 per cent.—the country is still far from the hard times of the winter of 1915, the percentage of union members reported unemployed on December 31, 1915, being 8.7.

May Close Ottawa Printing Bureau

Ottawa, March 10.—If the striking pressmen continue to tie up the government printing bureau, it is possible that the government will close down the institution. The government, apparently, has no intention of giving in to the demands of the pressmen. The cabinet ministers claim that in view of the drastic report just issued, which reveals scandalous inefficiency, and shows that the men are as well paid as in Montreal and Toronto, so-called for by the Act, it would be absurd for the government to capitulate to the men.

The report has only been in the hands of the cabinet for a few days and a sub-committee was appointed to deal with it two days ago. The government asked for delay until the sub-committee had time to take action, but the men issued an ultimatum and refused to delay.

On Friday night electrical mimeographs were installed in the House of Commons debates office and the historic Hansard is being thus printed. Sufficient copies are being run off for the members and officials. This system will be followed until the strike is over or until some other arrangements can be made.

RELAXES FOOD CONTROL.

British Prices of Tea and Margarine To Fall.

London, March 10.—Food Controller Roberts, speaking at Newcastle, discussed the question of removing certain commodities from the controlled list. He said:

"We are de-controlling margarine and are about to de-control tea, because, owing to the foresight of the ministry, the supplies of those articles are now so abundant that, on de-control taking place, we are as certain as we can be that prices will tend to fall."

MAJOR GORDON SAYS WAR ENDED JUST THREE MONTHS TOO SOON

Toronto Officer Believes That Allies Should Have Penetrated German Territory—Nothing in the Charges Made by Sir Sam Hughes.

Toronto, March 10. —"I do not believe the war is over by any means, in fact, it would not surprise me to see trouble break out again within sixty days, but in any case hostilities stopped three months too soon as we should have invaded German territory for at least 100 miles, devastated the country and given them a taste of their own medicine. . . let them appreciate what 'Ypres' means to the allies," declared Major C[illegible] this week, today in an interview. The Major is a member of the original Fifth Battalion and famous as the recruiter and commander of the 124 lumbermen from the Northern Ontario mining and lumber camps who were organized into a forestry unit in 1917 when he was sent back to Canada for that special purpose.

War Ended Too Soon

When asked for his opinion on the charges made by Sir Sam Hughes former Minister of Militia and Defence, against the Canadian High Command at the Front, especially in the tactics pursued, in attacking Mons on the day the armistice was signed, when, it is alleged by the former Minister, the objective might have been taken four hours later without a struggle, Major Gordon meets the charge with a strong rebuttal. For one thing, he asserts, never has he heard of any complaint being made by the Canadian troops themselves, who as a matter of fact, were most irate, incensed that they were not permitted to go further.

"Every man," he declared, "felt that the fight was stopped at least three months too soon. What should have happened was to keep after the Huns once we had them on the run, as they have devastated entire countries while their own have suffered nothing that can remain a permanent object lesson to them and even now the German mind is showing itself in developments of the Peace Conference."

Germany's Attitude

"They do not yet believe that they are vanquished," he added, and their attitude of friendliness towards the Army of Occupation is, to my mind, most hypocritical. Another serious menace is the fact that they still have under arms more than one million men, whereas the allied nations are gradually demobilizing."

Major Gordon expresses the soldiers' views on the Peace Conference in a striking manner: "The entire deliberations are being blanketed in a maze of ponderous orations and no real action is being taken. Were the matter left to be dealt with by the military commanders instead of a body of politicians who are jeopardizing the success of the allied arms, a satisfactory conclusion could be reached in as many minutes as the conference will require in days. They ought to get down to business and do their work in a business-like manner"

EXTEND ARBITRATION TREATIES

Washington, March 10.—Acting Secretary of State Polk, with the Spanish ambassador, and the Minister of the Netherlands, renewed five-year extensions of the general arbitration treaties between the U. S. and Spain and Holland.

FISKE O'HARA AT THE GRAND

Fiske O'Hara, always assured of a hearty welcome on the occasion of his yearly visits to Peterborough, filled the Grand Opera House to capacity on Saturday when he appeared in his new play, "Marry in Haste," one of the best of the many he has ever produced. The great comedian, the best exponent of the Irish character, since the days of the immortal Scanlon, is losing none of his powers either as an actor or a singer, with the passing years.

The new play, "Marry in Haste," is a romantic farce in three acts. It sparkles with Irish wit, always as clean as it is bright, abounds with fascinating dialogue, touching Irish love scenes which are tender without being mushy. It gives Mr. O'Hara an opportunity to sing several characteristic Irish love songs, and singing has always been one of his greatest gifts.

In the play Fiske O'Hara is the rollicking, large hearted son of a stern old Irish lord who insists that he marry in order to perpetuate the family name. Nothing if not impetuous, the young fellow proposes to the first woman he meets and who happens to be a French maid. He hurries his bride before a clergyman and the deed is done. But the veiled bride is not the woman he intended to marry, and to establish the identity of this important personage gives the real zest to the story, the audience being kept

The play is admirably presented by a capable company, among whom there are many old favorites who have been with Mr. O'Hara for years. Coming before the curtain at the end of the second act, the famous comedian established still closer relations with his audience when, after returning thanks for their enthusiastic appreciation, he spoke of his support. There are three leading ladies in the company, Miss Louise Milloy, as Susette, Miss Gertrude Ritchie, as Lady Evelyn O'Connor, and Miss Patsie Cluty as Lady Peggy McVey, and, contrar to theatrical tradition, they all speak to each other in private life. J. P. Sullivan, the devoted valet of the young nobleman, has been with Mr. O'Hara for eleven seasons, J. E. Miller for nine, and W. T. Sheehan for eight, and the three veterans are pleased to call themselves "Fiske O'Hara kids."

"They are good kids, too," concluded the actor.

Mr. O'Hara sang one song which had no connection with the play but which possessed a peculiar sentimental interest. It was "My Little Irish Girl," written by the late Capt. Horne, himself an actor of note, who lost his life at the first battle of the Marne.

Special musical numbers were rendered during the performance by the augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr. Karl F. Kelsey, musical manager for Mr. O'Hara.

The next road company billed for the Grand will on Saturday next present that funniest of all farce comedies, "Some Baby," with Zella Cannington in the leading role.

GOVERNMENT TO

council was passed, appointing the minister of railways receiver of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway System which includes the branch lines, telegraph, steamships, hotel and development and other companies. Mr. W. P. Hinton, general manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway System, has agreed to conform to the requirements of the order and to facilitate the carrying out of the powers and duties required of the minister as received. The immediate object of the order, viz., to prevent interruption in the operations and management of the system has, therefore, been already attained.

An important feature of the order-in-council is that which preserves to the government any other and ultimate remedies which it possesses under the provisions of trust mortgages in securing issues which it has guaranteed or otherwise as creditors of the system. Similarly, the rights and remedies of other parties are not interfered with by the order.

The acting prime minister will, today, make a full statement to the house respecting the matter. He will lay upon the table a copy of the order-in-council and read the correspondence leading up to and connected with the action taken by the government. Legislation will be at once introduced for the purpose of obtaining the sanction of parliament to what has been done.

In February the government informed the officials of the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific Railway companies that it was not the intention of the government to ask parliament to provide a further vote for the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway while the negotiations with the Grand Trunk Railway Company remain in their present unsatisfactory condition.

STUNNING FROCKS WORN BY METRO PLAYERS

The gowns worn by May Allison and the many beautiful girls who are seen in the great ballroom set of the forthcoming Metro play, "The Testing of Mildred Vane," which will be the attraction at the Grand theatre today for a three day engagement, will prove a source of delight to every girl and woman who sees this delightful play which is a unique combination of comedy and mystery.

Miss Allison is seen in a creation of cream and silver which sets off her perfect blend beauty while the many other charming and attractive girls to be viewed in this scene are all clad in exquisite frocks of the most approved "evening" shades—those colors which show up to the greatest advantage under soft or brilliant evening lights.

HOW "Y" OFFICER HANDLED BAD MAN

TOOK AN OFFENDER TO HIS HOME INSTEAD OF TO PRISON.

The crowd in front of the Y.M.C.A. Kiosk in Leicester Square drew hastily back when a big Maori private began throwing his six shooter about He tossed the gun up to the ceiling and caught it as it fell.

"I can plug a sixpence with this thing across the street. I'm the roughest of the rough!" he shouted, picking up the gun when he missed the "catch" and it fell clattering to the floor.

Empire relations should not be endangered by the statement that the man was a New Zealander, for the Y.M.C.A. officers of that Dominion have also done their bits in looking after "rough" Canadians and the positions might easily have been reversed in this case.

A few minutes before this the excitement began. When the Y.M.C.A. patrol officer attached to the Kiosk was making arrangements to send the pair of revellers where they wanted to go, he suddenly found himself looking into the muzzle of a six-shooter.

"My pal stays right here. Don't you dare to move him," order the big fellow.

But when the officer—he happened to be one of the Canadians on the Street Patrol Force—assured him that the more helpless pal wasn't being removed to the "klink" the man put up his gun.

"Just keep that thing out of sight," said the officer, when the Maori again began toying with the weapon, "and we'll look after you both."

A taxi-cab soon carried the three of them, patrol officer and his charge, to the address furnished by the soldier where he had reserved a room, and the men were left there to sober up and make a better attempt to spend their leave in the morning.

The patrol man now carries a souvenir of the incident in the form of a 45 calibre cartridge which slipped out of the cylinder during the excitement. He is glad that it entered his pocket as such, instead of by scorching its way through his garments as at one time seemed probable.

This same officer had a scarcely less exciting experience a few nights previously, though gun play was not part of it and a Canadian lad happened to be the principal. After taking the boy out of questionable company during which operation some thing like a small riot occurred, the officer, on the plea of following one of them who had disappeared down the street, had conducted his almost unmanageable man straight into the Beaver Hut of the Canadian Y.M.C.A.

When the soldier's money was taken from him and checked, and he was advised to drop off to sleep, like a good boy, he raised a storm of protest. But his tune changed the following day when he found what had happened him.

Then he sat down and wrote a letter to the patrol officer in terms like these:

"I can just remember you and that is all. But I know you're the man who took me in tow. I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart. I tell you I was mighty glad to see my money and watch again for they might easily have gone to somebody who wouldn't think twice about returning them. You sure did me a good turn and I hope I can repay you some day."

ITALY'S STAND IS JUSTIFIED

HAS RIGHT TO CLAIM TERRITORY THAT ONCE WAS HERS.

(The Milwaukee Sentinel.)

"We think of the victory on the Marne as the symbol of the preservation of democracy against the onrush of the Germans. None the less in importance, however, is that glorious victory of the Italians on the Piave, when Italy with her back to the wall and at the expense of 10,000 lives daily for ten days, drove back the flower of the Austro-German army, forever crushing the Austrian hope of Italian possessions and incidentally bagged 900,000 prisoners, the greatest capture of all time."

That is the story of a part of Italy's great work in the war as related to the City Club, Wednesday night by Prof. Charles Lipson Clark, American Academy in Rome.

"Italy has been accused of imperialism because of her desire to obtain territory to the east, especially since the majority of the inhabitants of that district are not Latin speaking. That accusation is entirely unjust," said Prof. Clark. "Italy is no more imperialistic in its endeavors to recover land which once was hers than is France in desiring to recover Alsace-Lorraine whose population is only one-tenth French speaking compared to nine-tenths German speaking.

"Furthermore, the reason for such a small number of Latin speaking people there can be placed at the doors of the former controllers of the territory, whose policy it has been to exterminate forever the Italian population.

"Italy's policy is not one of greed. A strip of seacoast sixty miles long is all she desires, while she leaves thirteen excellent harbors to the Jugo Slavs."

In discussing the problems facing the country in the future, Prof. Clark declared that the greatest source of worry would be Albanis.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre To Hair

That beautiful even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred fold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at [illegible] cost all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

Flights Across the Ocean Are the Next Experiment That the English Will Try

IF New Yorkers almost at any time in the future suddenly see a colossal British airship sedately gliding in shore from the Atlantic they need not feel great surprise, for the Britons ardently covet the honor of the first flight between England and the United States. Moreover they have at this moment the craft necessary to make the flight. Further, their knowledge of the technique of flying is second to none if equalled by any. The war probably taught the British more aerial secrets than it taught any other nation. This was so because when these islanders all at once realised that their immemorial steamboat had lost its complete efficacy as an element of defence they began with all their might —the might of inventive genius and of constructive energy — to add to their warships the complement of an overwhelming array of fighting machines in the air. They built seaplanes, airplanes and airships.

They not only built such weapons but studied their effective operations with immense concentration. "If we are to survive," they reasoned, "we must have air supremacy as well as sea supremacy." Some persons fancied that the British experts held a low opinion of the Zeppelins. They did not. They refrained from shouting from the house tops their high opinion of the Zeppelins but they seized the earliest opportunity to inspect the Super-Zeppelins and then to build an airship excelling it. This airship was not only larger and faster than the largest and fastest Zepplin but mechanically equipped as no Zeppelin ever was. At no time did the British regard the gasbag as a satisfactory weapon of actual attack. They were not long in demonstrating by means of their own airplanes that the Zeppelin in such a role was worse than useless. But the British immediately grasped the importance of airships, big and little, for scouting purposes and rushed their construction. Long before the war was over British home waters everywhere were under the eyes of skilled observers in cars slung beneath airships and British craft of this type cruised with Admiral Beatty's men of war from end to end of the North Sea.

Then, too, the Briton who is a long-headed man never forgot that the apparently interminable war at last would terminate and he was always thinking of what the situation would be then. It was his view that progressive peoples as time passed would take more and more to the air. He pictured air liners and air freighters of hugh proportion not only going back and forth between the eastern and western hemispheres but swiftly and regularly circumnavigating the globe and in this wonderful drama of travel and commerce he gave first place not to the heavier than air but to the lighter than air pattern of flying machines. The airplane's lifting power is directly proportional to its dimensions. Double the size and you double the life. It does not follow however that the whole of this additional lift is available for engines, fuel, passengers and cargo for as the size increases the strength and weight of the necessary structure become greater.

Scotch Criticism.

Musical criticism in the far north is sometimes rather outspoken. At an annual concert of a certain northcountry friendly society, the members of which were for the most part pitmen, a piper had been engaged to discourse "sweet music." After his performance there were mingled feelings among the audience. The chairman, however, declared the piper had received an encore. "Aa's not gan to play ony mair," said the piper. "What for not?" asked the puzzled chairman. "Aa hord someone cari me a fule." "Nonsense, man," said the chairman. "Naebody said owt o' the sort." "Onyway, Aa's not gan to play onny mair," replied the obdurate piper. He held to his decision and the concert had to proceed without him. At the conclusion a pitman arose to move a hearty vote of thanks to the performers. "An include the piper," said he. "It wasn't me caried the piper a fule, and Aa divvent see why ony one should cari the piper a fule." He paused for effect. "What Aa want t' know is, who caried the fule a piper?"

Canadian Coins Issued.

According to a statement issued by the Royal Mint at Ottawa, Canadian coins to the value of $3,176,221 were issued during the year 1918. Coins to the value of $245,000 for Newfoundland, comprising 620,000 silver pieces, were also issued. The total number of Canadian pieces coined during 1918 was 30,904,468, and the total number of coins of all kinds was 32,187,429. During the year 4,435,200 shilling blanks were produced and shipped to the Royal Mint in London.

Bullets That Missed Him.

A soldier who had fought in the war with conspicuous valor obtained after his return home a situation in the service of a lady in the south of Ireland. One day his mistress was talking to him about his military career, and asked him: "In all your experience of the war, what struck you as the most wonderful of all?" "Well, ma'am," he said, "what struck me most was all the bullets that missed me."

British Workers.

Trade councils composed of representatives of employers' associations and of trade unions in a particular trade or section of an industry are suggested as the first court of appeal in the case of disputes which may arise among workers in England.

DOGS AIDED WOUNDED

Many Soldiers Owed Lives to Trained Canines.

Britain's dog army rendered gallant service in the war. Many a soldier owes his life to some poor, uncared-for, stray dog. For nearly two years dogs were employed by the British as messengers, as sentries and as guards.

Early in 1917 a war dog school of instruction was established by the British War Office, and Lt.-Col. Richardson, who has devoted his life to training dogs for military and police purposes, was appointed commandant of the school. Gamekeepers, hunt servants and shepherds were called up from the army to assist in the work of instruction.

After a thorough training in England the dogs were sent to France, and on the battlefields their skill, courage and tenacity amazed the army. Often wounded in the performance of their duties, they never faltered while strength remained to carry on. The official record of their heroic work tells of successful message-carrying through darkness, mist, rain and shell-fire over the most difficult ground. In a few minutes' time dogs have brought messages over ground that would take a soldier runner hours to cross.

During the great German advance, last spring part of the British line in front of a famous French town was cut off by severe enemy barrage. A messenger dog was released with an urgent appeal for reinforcements. It ran two miles in ten minutes. The result was that a French colonial division was sent up and prevented a disaster. The messenger was a Highland sheep dog.

Another dog with a message ran nearly four miles in twenty minutes, and still another in the same time carried back from the front a map of an important captured position, when a man would have taken an hour and a half to bring it in.

The dogs which have been found most successful in war work are collies, sheep dogs, lurchers and Airedales, and crosses of these varieties, while in a number of cases Welsh and Irish terriers have given excellent results.

The work of sentry dogs has been valuable, especially in the Balkans. One gave warning of an enemy scout 300 yards away. On many occasions dogs have given warning of enemy patrols long before the soldier sentries were aware of their presence.

Corduroy Kimonos.

Some new kimonos shown in some of the shops are a strange combination of style and fabric. They are Japanese kimonos made of corduroy. But when you come to think of it, wouldn't they be delightfully comfortable? Think of wrapping one of them around you some cold winter day when the necessary restrictions in coal make the thermometer lower than comfort calls for. That is probably what their makers thought of. And so although kimonos of blue and rose corduroy embroidered with silk chrysanthemums seem a bit of a strange combination and contrast still they are a delightful concession to the cold that is coming.

Eraser Hint.

When the eraser becomes well worn it is apt to smear the paper when it is used to erase a letter. To avoid this, simply rub a little chalk on the edge of the eraser and no smear will occur; and the erasure of the letter will be done much more quickly as well as more neatly.

Peers on Honor Roll.

Contrary to popular belief, only two British peerages have been extinguished by the war — through the deaths of the third Lord Kesteven and second Lord Llangattock. But these signify really the loss of one hereditary honor only, as Lord Kesteven, who held an ancient baronetcy dating from 1642, was succeeded in that by his kinsman, now Sir William Trollope, tenth baronet.

During 1918 no peer actually fell in battle, but the deaths of the Earl of Rosse from wounds received early in the war, of Earl Poulett, after long service in France, and of the Marquis Conyngham, extend the already long roll of honor of the peerage. These are the names:

The fifth Marquis Conynham, the sixth Earl of Annesley, the eighth Earl de la Warr, the second Earl of Faversham, Field Marshal the first Earl Kitchener, the fifth Earl of Longford, the seventh Earl Poulett, Field Marshal the first Earl Roberts, the fifth Earl of Rosse, the eleventh Earl of Seafield (thirtieth chief of the Clan Grant); the seventh Earl of Shannon (a minor, aged 19); the nineteenth Earl of Suffolk, the sixth Viscount Hawarden, the fifth Lord Ammger, the third Lord Brabourne, the fifth Lord Congleton (first peer who fell in the war, and the head of the family from which the late Irish leader, Charles Stewart Parnell, a descendant of the first Lord Congleton's only younger brother, derived); the fifth Lord de Freyne (three of whose brothers have fallen and of whose family Viscount French of Ypres is a cadet; the second Lord Gorell, the third and last Lord Kesteven, the second and last Lord Llangattock, the eighth Lord Lucas (Lord Dingwall in the peerage of Scotland, and a Cabinet Minister at the age of 38); the fourth Lord Newborough, the sixteenth Lord Petre and the eighth Lord Vernon.

Seven of the foregoing twenty-four peers—Lords Conyngham, Annesley, Langford, Rosse, Shannon, Hawarden and Newborough — were Irish peers; three others, Lords Roberts, Congleton and de Freyne, were Irishmen, and Lord Kitchener was born in Ireland.

Pershing Knighted.

The British "Who's Who," a copy of the 1919 issue of which has just been received, lists the commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary Forces in France as "Gen. Sir John Joseph Pershing, G.C.B." On July 17, 1918, King George awarded the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath to Gen. Pershing, and in August King George, while on a visit to France, personally gave the decoration to him. The award of the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath makes a knight of the recipient, and gives him the right to prefix "Sir" to his name. The decoration given Gen. Pershing, however, was an honorary one, and it was said at the time that he would not receive the title of "Sir," as he was not a British subject.

Timber in Burma.

Burma grows over a hundred varieties of every sort of timber. Yet up to last year she exported her rubber in packing cases made of wood imported from Japan. It has now been found that they can be made locally at about half the cost.

Accounting for It.

Young Fitznoodle (to dentist)—Isn't it rather strange, doctor, that at my age I haven't cut my wisdom teeth yet?" Dentist (calmly)—"Oh, I don't know. Perhaps there isn't enough wisdom back of them to push them through."

THE FIGHT IS ON FOR SUNDAY BASEBALL IN NEW YORK STATE

Bill in Legislature Will Be Opposed Chiefly by Country Members—Some Clergymen Favor Relaxation of Present Blue Laws

(By W. O. McGeehan)

The campaign for Sunday baseball for New York will open this week, when Colonel T. L. Huston, half owner of the New York American League Baseball Club, will head a delegation to the state Legislature. The delegation will ask for the repeal of the law which prohibits the playing of professional baseball on Sundays. Considerable encouragement has been held out to the advocates of Sunday games and those interested have become hopeful that they will carry their point.

This is the first concerted effort that has been made to secure Sunday baseball for this vicinity. The delegation has the approval of representative citizens, including high army officials, judges and clergymen. Labor leaders also have indorsed the application on the ground that working men and their families have only Sunday afternoons to see baseball games. These leaders resent the idea that Sunday games would lead to disorder of any sort.

As I predicted, most of the opposition to Sunday baseball will come from upstate legislators. I have received an anonymous letter from an upstate correspondent in which he denounces the advocates of Sunday baseball as conspirators to make of New York city a modern Babylon. This is one of the favorite hallucinations of a few of the more bucolic upstaters, that the godless inhabitant of New York City would slide straight to perdition if it were not for the beneficient legislation forced upon the metropolis by the upstater.

I'll back Colonel Huston against my anonymous correspondent, who, no doubt, remained safely at home plotting the super-salvation of New York City, while Colonel T. L. Huston spent a year and a half in the field of Flanders and the trenches of France. They fought on Sundays there and they played baseball on Sundays. But I don't think that the Colonel has any Babylonian ideas. Never knew that Babylon had a ball club on any circuit. Don't think that it did. A good ball club might have saved Babylon.

Will Hear Plea For Boxing

The suffering Solons are also slated to receive a visit from the advocates of boxing next week. Senator Gibbs, whose boxing bill probably will be substituted for the Malone bill wants to get an earful as to how to rehabilitate and conserve the sport that made Jim Corbet an actor and Jess Willard a gentleman framer.

The Senator is getting more advice than the league of nations, as it is, but a little more will not hurt. Even a body as sagacious as the New York Legislature cannot legislate boxing into respectability. There are no laws tight enough to keep the old game together if the element which once predominated in it is permitted to get hold again.

The boxing game seems to have come out of the world war considerably whitewashed and with some advocates who formerly opposed it violently. This is not because professional prizefighters saw the necessity of fighting but because the men who did the fighting took a liking to boxers and to boxing.

With its restoration, boxing will have all the chance in the world if the promoters will behave themselves. Public opinion will be the judge and jury in its case. If the same old fakes that were perpetuated under the Whitman commission are staged again, no laws and regulations can save boxing. The game will be cast into the discard forever. The personnel of the new boxing commission will be the main thing. Men are wanted who have the courage and the independence to keep out the crooks.

The Appointing of Judges

The provision for leaving the decision on bouts to two judges and the referee seems wise. It will depend upon the calibre of the judges. It is crtain that there will be betting on prizefights. There was betting even on the no-decision contests under the old law, the bettors leaving the decision to a newspaper or newspapers agreed upon before the fights.

With fights of any consequence the professional gamblers will try to put across some sure things. Unless the referees and judges licensed under the law are men beyond suspicion there will be decisions that will cause scandals. There are always scandals where the professional gamblers break in. Poolroom manipulators of prizefights caused the Legislature of the State of California to abolish boxing.

There should be plenty of men willing to act as judges of boxing matches without expense to the state. Boxing, prizefighting, or what ever you care to call it, has some celebrated patrons, and many of them are keen judges as to points in matches. Some of these should volunteer to act as judges, if they really are interested in the preservation of the sport. Boxing need friends in this come-back, for this is positively its last chance to be decent.

WOMEN OFFER TO BUILD A RINK

UXBRIDGE LADIES RECOGNIZE THE NECESSITY OF ATHLETIC GAMES.

Uxbridge, March 10.—The women of Uxbridge are impressed with the fact that sport is a necessity in this community as in any other. Husbands, sons, brothers and lovers must be provided with the means of clean amateur competition, and, so far as winter sports are concerned, they will have it.

The local chapter of the Daughters of the Empire, together with other women's organizations, were represented at the meeting of the Town Council by Mesdames Gould and Hepburn, who stated that the women of the town would undertake to build a suitable hockey and curling rink at a cost of $7,000. The rink will be built on the municipally-owned athletic grounds, the Council having agreed to remit the taxes and give free use of the building for concerts etc., It is proposed to have the place ready for use next winter.

HOCKEY ON THE PRAIRIES.

The Patricias, Saskatchewan's junior champions, and the Lutherans, junior champion team of Manitoba, contest the final game of the round in Winnipeg tomorrow night. The winners will come east to Toronto to meet the O. H. A. junior champions.

Sporting Gossip

University of Toronto lacrosse team will tour the Eastern States, playing the teams of the larger colleges.

Idaho Falls, Idaho, has offered the sum of $165,000 for the Willard-Dempsey bout. Pocatello, in the same state, offers $163,000.

Jack Johnson arrived in Havana from Spain, en route to Mexico City. He wants bouts with Willard and Dempsey.

Joe S. Jackson, of Detroit, was elected president of the Michigan-Ontario League at Flint, Mich. The league will have Class B rating.

Rome, Amsterdam, Antwerp and Berne have applied for the Olympic games of 1920. The matter will be decided at a meeting of the International Olympic Committee on April 5th.

Some persons think a ball player doesn't know a whole lot, but along about this time of year he shows quite a knowledge of mathematics.

If the ball players had their way it would cost about as much to run a club as it costs to widen a boulevard or build the Hunter street bridge.

Jim Corbett says the best time to take your exercise is immediately after rising in the morning. However it's such a physical strain on most of us to get out of bed these mornings that we haven't anything left when it comes to the exercises.

Lambert G. Sullivan, the great Celtic automobile editor, says many a man who would holler his head off about an "L" train not being properly heated will freeze his feet riding around town in his car these days and think nothing about it.

Matty may go back to the Giants. He evidently thinks about as well of the Cincinnati Reds as the rest of us think of the Petrograd Reds.

"A boxer's feet are of as great importance to him as his hands," says Pal Moore. Yep, yuh don't win if the other fellow is the first to get the sporting editor on the wire.

Major League players have whims. One of them is to retire from the game every fall. Art Fletcher of the New York Giants fell in line with the whimsical tribe last fall, but this spring he was the first of McGraw's clan to sign a contract.

Manager Wilbert Robinson of Brooklyn was asked to name the five best pitchers in baseball. He said that it was almost impossible to do that because there were so many good ones. In commenting on the twirlers he said Jim Vaughn would have to be chosen, as his speed makes him a great pitcher and no better could be found.

"John McGraw and his Giants are a menace to the National league," said an eastern fan. What he has achieved in the last five years does not prove it. He won the pennant only once in that time. The Braves won in 1914, the Phillies in 1915, Brooklyn in 1916 and the Cubs in 1918. McGraw's club won in 1917.

Managers always fall for the old time players when trying to build up a club. Pat Moran has grabbed Harry ("Slim") Sallee in an effort to reconstruct the Cincinnati Reds' pitching staff.

Brooklyn is still trying to lure Trainer Fed Hart from the Cubs. President Ebbets has offered him a big salary and a bonus to sign, but Hart has accepted terms with President Mitchell and is going to the coast to take care of the champions.

Tigers Defeat The Kitcheners

Leaving no doubt as to which was the better team the Tigers in an exhibition game in Toronto on Saturday night defeated Kitchener 6 to 2. The winners were without the services of Malte, their star defense man, but nevertheless they showed marked superiority over the 1918 champions and easily earned the verdict. Kitchener tried hard, but they were away below last season's form. The Hiller-Parkes combination was missing, and it was noticeable that the latter repeatedly tried to beat the defense alone when Hiller was waiting for a pass and was in a better position to score.

Although the game was only an exhibition affair, keen rivalry existed between the teams and each was eager to win. Nearly 5,000 spectators were on hand, and it was easily seen that their sympathies were with the fallen champions. Kitchener, by their splendid playing and good sportsmanship have secured a host of supporters in Toronto.

Veteran Players With Collingwood

BELCHER AND FRYER CAN QUALIFY FOR LONG SERVICE MEDAL.

Toronto, March 10.—Collingwood intermediates who play Kingston in the O.H.A. finals in Toronto this week have three players who qualify for the long service medal. Two of them Belcher and Fryer, are veterans of fourteen seasons, while Cook broke in in 1909. Despite the handicap of age, these are still capable performers and have been showing good form to date.

Tonight Kingston and the Shipbuilders will meet at the Arena in the first of the O. A. H. intermediate finals and an exciting game is expected. Both teams are confident of victory and will send their strongest lineup into action. Collingwood won the title last season and are out to repeat but they will encounter stiff opposition from the Limestone City aggregation.

McLeod and the Foulis brothers are the younger members of the Collingwood team, and all are fast and tricky. The first named is conceded to be the star of the team and is expected to prove a great factor in the series.

Kingston, led "Rube" Millan of Dental fame, are a team to be feared. They are coming here full of confidence and every fan in the Limestone City believes that they will win the title. The forward lines composed of the millan boys, Smith and Derry has been showing good form all season, while Brown, Elmer and Hagerman are a strong defense. Walsh in goal is away above the average, and the Collingwood sharpshooters will have to be on their best behaviour to beat them.

In an exhibition game played in Cleveland last night the Cleveland team defeated Aura Lee juniors of Toronto by 2 to 1.

Tennis championship games between Canada and the United States which have been dropped during the war will be resumed this season.

David McAndless of the Chicago Athletic Association won the national amateur balkline billiard championship in Chicago Saturday night by defeating Percy Collins of the Illinois Athletic Club 300 to 109 in 16 innings.

How efficiently a first baseman fields does not seem to make much difference to some pilots. Ed Konetchy led the National League first sackers 1 ast year, but George Stallings has supplanted him with Walter Holke, a less experienced player and inferior batter.

American Yacht In English Event

(Canadian Press Despatch)

San Diego, Cal., March 10.—Miss America, a Detroit-owned motor boat will be entered in the Royal Motor Yacht Club of England regatta in the race for the Harmsworth Trophy, according to announcement made here by Garfield Wood of Detroit.

WIT AND WISDOM

Submarine Travel.

An Irishman had just landed at Liverpool after a terrible voyage, on which, as someone had said, he first feared he was going to die, and then feared he wasn't.

As he crawled on to terra firma his lack-lustre eyes fell upon a diver coming out, glistening from the water.

"Och," he muttered, "if I'd known it was going to be so rough I'd have walked meself."

Willing To Learn.

"Do you think you could ever learn to love me?" he asked, as he gave her a squeeze.

"I don't know," replied the summer girl, "but go on with the course of instruction."

A Case in Point.

"What an aggravating habit Jones has of answering one question by asking another."

"I've noticed that. Last night I asked him if he'd lend me $50, and he replied by asking me if I took him for a darned fool."

Horrid Man!

She sighed. "I saw the loveliest lace curtains!" she murmured. "I did want them so badly!" She sighed again. "But I knew you wished to economize, my dear, so I didn't get them."

Then he spoke. "That's too bad, dear," he said, generously. "Anything that adds to your happiness and brings gladness to your eyes; anything that brightens your domestic cares and gilds the lowering clouds; anything that borders with flowers the thorny path of duty and appeals to your aesthetic nature, you are welcome to—if it doesn't cost more than a quarter."

Yes, I Intend To But Not Now
Have YOU any idea what that decision is costing you—even if you live? Of course, if you die the cost is much GREATER.
Read the following facts and then decide for yourself:
The premium you would pay for $1000 of insurance at age 60 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $4000 of insurance at age 21.
The premium you pay for $1000 of insurance at age 50 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $2500 at age 21.
The premium you pay for $1000 of insurance at age 35 WOULD BUY YOU $1440 at age 21.
Besides, while you may be insurable at age 21 you may not be insurable AT ANY PRICE at the other ages mentioned.
The one great fact that touches our lives is the verdict of NOW.

MILITARY HONORS TO DEPARTED HERO

PRESTON GRANGE BURIED YESTERDAY WITH IMPRESSIVE MARTIAL CEREMONIES.

The streets of this city were lined with people yesterday afternoon in spite of the inclement weather, as the funeral procession of the late Preston Grange passed on its way to Little Lake Cemetery, where the remains of the young man who had died while in his countrys' service in a military hospital in far-off England, were finally laid to rest.

Preston Grange was a son of Fire Chief Grange of this city, and had been in the army since the early days of the war. He was stricken down with influenza while in camp in England some months ago and passed away and was buried in the old land.

The father, naturally wishing that the body of his son should rest in his native land and in the family plot in the cemetery at Peterborough, made arrangements for the remains to be brought to Canada, which were carried out, and yesterday they were deposited in their last resting place.

A military funeral was arranged by the local branch of the Great War Veterans for their late comrade and one of the largest attendances of the members in the history of the association in this city was the result.

The street railway snow plow had, fortunately, cleared away the snow from the centre of Charlotte and George streets and made a passage for the long cortege, which formed at the family residence, with the G. W. V. A. and Salvation Army bands leading, and passed on to the cemetery.

Following the bands marched the firing squad and members of the G. W. V. A. in uniform. Then came the hearse with the six khaki-clad pallbearers walking three on either side, followed immediately by the mourners and a long procession of vehicles filled with friends of the family.

To the impressive strains of the "Dead March in Saul" the cortege passed on to the cemetery, where the firing squad's volley was fired over the grave and the solemn burial service carried out.

Captain McGillivray, who had been chaplin of the 3rd Reserve Battalion in England, and who was acquainted with the late Preston Grange and was present during his last illness, is now in Toronto and had intended coming to Peterborough to conduct the service at the grave, but as he was unable to get away, he asked the representative of the Salvation Army in this city, Adjt. Bustin, to officiate in his place. At the house the services was conducted by the Rev. Robt. Pogue.

At the funeral the members of the City Council were present, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., and the off-shift of the Fire Department.

Among the many beautiful floral tributes was one very fine one from the Fire Department, representative of a harp with a broken string.

REV. POGUE PAYS ELOQUENT TRIBUTE TO LATE J. C. SHOOK

Sermon Preached in St. Paul's Church of Which the Deceased Had Been an Esteemed Member and Faithful Elder.

At the funeral of the late J. C. Shook on Saturday, the casket was taken into St. Paul's Church, of which the deceased had so long been a member and elder.

Rev. R. Pogue, the pastor delivered the following eloquent tribute to the departed, before a large gathering of friends and mourners:

"Mark the perfect man and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."—Ps. 37 : 37.

Dear friends:—I have already held a brief service for the relations and more immediate friends of the deceased at his home. As he occupied a large place in the life of our city and in the church of which he was an honored elder and member, I have decided to avail myself of the opportunity afforded by this service of paying a tribute to his memory, his work and his worth, and of drawing such lessons from his life as may serve as an inspiration to the citizens who knew him and are gathered here to do him honor.

The words which I have taken for my text are singularly appropriate to the life and death of our departed brother. He was a perfect man, he was an upright man, and hence his end was peace. We can give no higher praise to a man than to say that he was perfect. Of course the word cannot be used in an absolute sense of any man. The only absolutely perfect Being who ever lived was the man Christ Jesus. The perfection, therefore, of a little child, or the perfection of a young Christian, or of an old saint, is a very different thing to the perfection of God.

A man may be perfect in his faith. We read, "Ye are complete in Him." In Christ Jesus ye are complete, filled full, perfect. It is only in Christ that any man's life can be complete. The soul was made for God, and it reaches perfection only as it is united to God. Separated from Him it is like building without a foundation. This is the meaning of the coming of God into the world and into life in the person of His Son. As one human life is the complement of another, as in the union of husband and wife, so the union of the Divine with the human completes and perfects the human.

J. C. Shook's life was perfect in Christ Jesus. In early manhood he prided himself on his morality, his integrity. He was not then a church member. He would frequently compare his life with those who were, and often, as he thought, to his own advantage. But the day came when he felt his need of Jesus Christ, and of His saving grace. His experience then was the experience of McCheyne when he wrote.

"When free grace awoke me, by light from on high,
Then legal fears shook me, I trembled to die;
No refuge, no safety in self could I see,
'Jehovah Tsidkenu,' my Saviour must be."

He saw himself then as without hope. All his morality and superior goodness seemed to count for nothing. He saw that in Jesus Christ and Him alone, was salvation to be found. He came to Jesus as he was, cast himself upon His mercy, and entered into the peace of His pardoning redeeming love. From that moment he was a new man. Never again did he put any confidence in the flesh. A favorite scripture of his was: "We glory in Christ Jesus, and have no confidence in the flesh."

He had a very clear grasp of the doctrines of grace. He was endowed with unusual mentality and strength of intellect. He brought these fine gifts to the study of his Bible—for he was pre-eminently a man of one book—and aided by the Spirit of God, who inspired the sacred scriptures, he arrived at a knowledge of the great doctrines of Redemption possessed by few. Especially precious to him was the doctrine of the Blessed Hope of our Lord's return for whose advent and revelation he was looking with a new ardour during the closing years of his life.

But a man may be perfect in his service as well as in his faith. A life is complete when it has accomplished its appointed time and its allotted task. Our Lord's life was complete at thirty-three. From the first He saw clearly the task which His Father and given Him. "I must be about my Father's business," He said as a boy of twelve. In that thought his life continued. "I must work the works of Him that sent me while it is day." In that thought He laid down his life. "I have finished the work thou gavest me to do." In the garden He said: "The hour is come." On the cross He said: "It is finished." Because His life was complete and His task done He could bow His head and yield up His spirit to God who gave it. He was immortal till His Work was done.

So may we think of the life that is just closed. He was not an old man, only sixty-six. Some men have done their greatest work after that age. But though he had not lived ten we must not think that his life the allotted span of three score and was a failure, or that his task was not complete. Death does not break God's plan for us, or snatch away a precious redeemed life before He has need of it in another and brighter world.

A life that is spent in doing the will of God is always complete. Few men sought to know and do that will as did J. C. Shook. I am sure there are those here today to whom he has spoken more than once about their personal interest in the saving work of Christ. Nothing seemed to please him more than when he heard of souls being won to Christ through the preaching of the Cross. He was a true friend of the minister. No minister ever had a truer one. He was a member of the committee that invited me to become minister of St. Paul's Church. He has been my constant friend and counsellor ever since.

Before his sickness he always spent a half hour with me in the vestry before each service in conversation about the work of the church and in prayer for the power of God on the message about to be preached. He was deeply interested in the work of evangelism, it mattered not by what church or preacher advocated. The Laymen's Missionary Movement had in him a warm friend and supporter. He was for years a director of the Y. M. C. A. It was just since his death that I was in a home where I was told that he paid the annual fees of the boys of the home who belonged to the Association.

I should like to have referred to the place that he occupied in civil life, to his interest in the future development of the city, to the strong force which he was for civic righteousness, and to the part which he took, as a member of the Committee of One Hundred that supported the Hearst Government in the splendid temperance legislation which prohibited the traffic in strong drink during the period of the war. Time forbids me to do more than mention these things. No finer tribute could be paid to him as a citizen than the brief article in the Review of yesterday written by his friend, Mr. McGregor, the editor, in which he says:—"Even had the late James C. Shook been spared twenty years longer he would not really have grown older, for the spirit of such a man always remains young and his eyes are kept upon the future instead of dwelling upon the past, as is the vision of so many whose usefulness and interest in life have departed. No man had higher civic ideals, no man was a more beneficient source of inspiration to his associates, no man was readier with saner counsel, no man had a firmer faith in the future greatness of his city and nation, and none was more optimistic as to the final triumph of right, than the man whose passing is mourned by so many sincere friends."

It is just because his life was lived in the will of God and devoted to the service of God that we can speak of it as perfect. Any life, whether young or old, whether lived in comparative obscurity or under the gaze of an empire or of a world, if lived in the will of God is a complete life, a perfect life whenever the call of death may come. It is this fact that enables us to comfort those who lost their splendid boys in the recent war just when their lives were ripening out into the joy and beauty of young manhood. There was an appointed service for them on earth an appointed time, just as there was for our friend whose loss we mourn today. They played their part; they performed the tasks assigned them; then, their life complete, God called them to Himself, just as He called the one of maturer years to himself. "Our times are in his hands.

"I know not where God's islands lift,
Their fronded palms in air;
I only know I cannot drift,
Beyond his love and care."

Tennyson puts the same thought in slightly different form:—

"For though from out the bourne of time and place
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my Pilot face to face,
When I have crossed the bar."

James C. Shook has already seen his Pilot face to face. The end of such a man as he, my text says, is peace. "Now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace," said the aged Simeon. That is the prayer of all the righteous. And it is thus all the righteous depart. "Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his." I saw his last conscious moments. One of the last words he spoke to me was: "It is a solemn thing to live, and it is a solemn thing to die, but Jesus died for me." I quoted for him the hymn, "Just as I am," and he seemed to find special comfort in its message. That hymn embodied his whole creed in a nutshell. His hope and trust were in the shed blood of the lamb of God. Being justified by faith in Christ he had peace as a constant and permanent possession, and his end was peace, and he now knows the peace of God. And so we say:—

"Sleep on, beloved, sleep and take thy rest:
Lay down thy head upon thy Saviour's breast:
We love thee well, but Jesus loves thee best.
Good-night! good-night! good-night!

Calm is thy slumber as an infant's sleep,
But thou shalt wake no more to toil and weep;
Thine is a perfect rest, secure and deep.
Good-night!

Until the shadows from the earth are cast,
Until he gathers in his sheaves at last;
Until the twilight gloom be overpast—
Good-night!

Until the Easter glory lights the the skies,
Until the dead in Jesus shall arise;
And he shall come, but not in lowly guise,
Good-night!

Until made beautiful by love divine
Thou in the likeness of thy Lord shall shine.
And he shall bring that golden crown of thine—
Good-night!

Only "good-night" beloved, not farewell—
A little while and all his saints shall dwell
In hallowed union indivisible—
Good-night!

Until we meet again before his throne,
Clothed in the spotless robe he gives his own,
Until we know as we are known—
Good-night!

Revival Service Held at Thedford

EVANGELIST H. D. KENNEDY CONDUCTED A HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL CAMPAIGN.

During the month of February Evangelist H. D. Kennedy of Peterboro held a very successful revival at Thedford, Ont. Such manifestations of God's power, as are seldom seen these days were witnessed in the meetings. Many of the oldest citizens claimed they had never seen the community so stirred before. One night, the fourth week, the town was billed for a public dance, which was attended by very few of the town and the evangelist that night had his largest crowd and several white headed men were seen that night among the seekers.

On March 2nd Mr. Kennedy opened in Oshawa and the first Thursday and Friday nights, fifty persons sought the Lord and publicly confessed having found the Saviour. Mr. Kennedy expects to conduct a month or six weeks in Peterboro this summer, in a large tent.

Presentation By Lakefield Choir

TO MR. AND MRS. ALLEN, WHO ARE LEAVING FOR PETERBOROUGH.

Lakefield, March 10.—The members of the Lakefield Methodist choir congregated at the home of Mr. Bert Allen, to spend a social time prior to their departure for their new home in Peterborough.

After a few hours of social enjoyment, Mr. Elmer Milburn received and ably filled the position of chairman. A suitable program was then given consisting of duets, solos and readings after which Mr. Madill, choir leader, read an address to Mr. and Miss Allen who for some years have been members of the choir. Mr. Higgins and Miss Down made the presentation of gold initialed cuff links and a brass jardiniere. The address was as follows:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Allen:

We, your friends of the Lakefield Methodist choir, have learned with regret that you are about to sever your connections with us. In our long association with you we have had splendid opportunity to appreciate your many good qualities. You have been very faithful and efficient members of our choir. We hope that your personal friendships gained during your years among us, will ever remain to you a pleasant memory.

Our fondest wish is that this friendly relationship may ever exist in the future.

We ask you to accept the accompanying gifts as concrete proof of our feelings toward you, and we trust that you will value them, not for their own worth but because they symbolize the pleasant relationship between you and ourselves and because they are accompanied by our heartiest good wishes.

Your friends of the choir

Mr. Allen replied with a few well chosen words, thanking his friends for their kindness.

Refreshments were then served and a happy evening was brought to close by singing "For he's a jolly good fellow."

RETURNED SOLDIERS THREATEN TO SINK THE TRANSPORT TOLOA

Military Authorities Refuse to Permit Troops to Land at Halifax

Halifax, N.S., March 12.—Conditions aboard the troopship Toloa are in a critical state today owing to the refusal of the military authorities at Ottawa to furnish transportation to their homes for three hundred British reservists who were proceeding to New York on the steamer when it was ordered back to Halifax to coal, owing to the strike in the former port. Captain Jackson came ashore this morning to receive the decision of the Canadian authorities after he had been informed by a delegation that the men would sink the ship unless they were allowed to come ashore and proceed to their destinations by rail.

Capt. Jackson states that he has no guns aboard and that the ship is at the mercy of the men. Among the 293 men aboard the Toloa are eighty-one American citizens, seventy of them claim to be American born. They all came to Canada during the early months of the war and enlisted in the British expeditionary forces. Captain Jackson contends that his orders from the British admiralty were to take the men to Halifax and disembark them there.

BUT WATERWAY WILL BE LEFT IN POSSESSION OF GERMANS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, March 12.—A recommendation that navigation of the Rhine be opened to all nations without discrimination was made in a report to the Peace Conference today by the commission on the international regime of waterways, railways and ports. It was suggested the Rhine be controlled by a commission similar to the Danube commission. The status of the Kiel Canal has been settled by the commission on the basis of freedom of the use for all nations for merchant vessels or for warships in the time of peace. The canal would continue under German ownership and operation.

THE SLAYER OF EDITH CAVELL

MAY ESCAPE FINAL PUNISHMENT ON A TECHNICALITY, REPORT SAYS.

Paris, March 12.—It will be the fate of former Emperor William to be branded for all time as an arch criminal by the solemn declaration of all the nations assembled at the Peace Conference, to which even his own country may be called upon to subscribe in the peace terms, according to the present plans of what is believed to be a majority of the commission on responsibility for the war.

The indications are that the members of the commission are harmonious on the main points. There are likely to be differences, however, regarding subordinate German officials, though at present a majority of the commission is understood to hold that they can be punished for orders given or acts permitted by them in violation of the national laws of Germany or the rules of war. Such a rule would apply to the officer who executed Capt. Fryatt, but not to the executioner of Edith Cavell, who it is pointed out, might have been technically guilty of espionage. No doubt is felt as to the liability to punishment of a German officer taken prisoner of war and found guilty of atrocities.

Secretary of State Lansing Makes Significant Address at Banquet in Paris.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, March 12.—"We have reached a crisis in the affairs of the world," said United States Secretary of State, Robert Lansing, at a banquet last night. Lansing was emphatic in the statement that the Allies must feed Germany and give the Germans an opportunity to sell products in foreign markets if the danger of Bolshevism was to be avoided. He painted a vivid picture of conditions in the war zone of France and pointed out that it was not through pity for Germany, but to the Allies own advantage to see that anarchy was prevented in the former enemy country.

"You may demand reparation as much as you please, but unless the German people are furnished materials for their industries, and commercial opportunities to sell the products of their labor in foreign markets, and unless the laborers have food, Germany can never pay, even in part, for the evil she has done. Furthermore, if the present state of chaos continues and political power continues to grow weaker there will be no responsible German government with which to make peace; there will be no government strong enough to carry out the conditions of the treaty of peace.

"I say to you, men of the Allied powers, that there is no time to be lost if we are to save the world from the despotism of anarchy, even as we have saved it from the despotism of autocracy. We ought to make, we must make, peace without delay, and ships laden with food must enter the harbors of Germany. We have reached a crisis in the affairs of the world We must meet it without passion and without permitting our judgment to be warped by a natural and unavoidable desire for vengeance on a nation which has committed such atrocities as those the Germans have committed."

SLOW STARVATION IN NORTH RUSSIA

FOOD ALLOWANCE BARELY SUFFICIENT TO SUSTAIN LIFE, DOCTORS SAY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Archangel, March 12.—The food situation in Northern Russia is causing some concern. Army surgeons have analyzed the civilian ration for the entire population in the north Russia district and found that it contains only 1,156 calories daily. A man doing no work needs 1,770 and soldiers receive at least 3,500 calories daily. The civilian ration, according to the surgeons, may be sufficient to sustain life through winter, but people will be drawing on their reserve strength, exposing themselves to danger from disease.

MR. C. N. BOWMAN'S ANNUAL STUNT

AGAIN TRIES TO SHOW THAT A SURPLUS IS A DEFICIT.

Toronto, March 12.—"When is a surplus not a surplus?" This sort of a conundrum may puzzle the Hon. T. W. McGarry, but it has no terrors for the Liberal Opposition in the Legislature. With a spirit and a unanimity that bespeaks practice they chorus joyfully, "When C. M. Bowman has finished turning it into a deficit." The annual performance of the chief Opposition critic in taking a perfectly good budget apart and putting it together again so that its proud parent cannot recognize it is invariably followed with close interest—on the government side with the fascinated attention of the man who watches the "wizard" on the stage pulling two score of rabbits out of an ordinary plug hat—seeing it done but knowing it isn't so. Mr. Bowman was faced with a task this session that taxed his ingenuity to the limit, since he had to dispose of a surplus of $1,800,000 before he could start piling up a deficit at all. But he was equal to it, and yesterday when he made the last deduction and the last addition, the Provincial Treasurer found a deficit of $1,544,499 staring him in the face—staring him hard but apparently not frightening him much.

GRAND DUKE OF RUSSIA URGES ALLIES TO SAVE HIS COUNTRY

ROWELL PRAISES GENERAL CURRIE

AND ALSO APPLAUDS PREMIER BORDEN'S PRESENCE AT PEACE CONFERENCE.

Ottawa, March 12.—Hon. N. W. Rowell was the first speaker when the debate on the Address was resumed in Parliament yesterday. For nearly two hours the President of the Privy Council traced the development of Canada, and showed that the Dominion had emerged from the war one of the really effective powers of the world. He outlined the construction of the Imperial War Cabinet, explaining the part the representatives of Canada play in its deliberations, and showing that the Dominion has reached the status of a nation not in name only, but in fact. He defended Premier Borden's presence at the Peace Conference, and justified his early departure for Europe on the ground that he had to be there to take up the question of overseas representation at the Congress. Canada, he said, now occupied a foremost place among the greatest nations of the world, and would be among the signatories of the peace treaty.

To Recognize Gen. Currie?

He concluded with a tribute to Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, and the impression among the members was that the Government proposes an appropriate monetary grant to the Commander of the Canadian Corps. He said: "It was my privilege last summer to visit our troops at the front and to see something of the courage and the achievements of those brave men. I would not be true to myself this afternoon if I did not, as a layman, pay my humble tribute to that great Canadian and gallant soldiers, Lieut.-Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, under whose leadership the Canadian Corps won such imperishable glory and struck such great blows in the cause of liberty and freedom.

"I shall not discuss the events of the past summer, I shall not enter upon that subject, but this I want to say, and in this I am sure my colleagues who were with me will join, that when the Canadian boys, led by Gen. Currie, pierced the German line at Amiens, and the invioable German defense gave way, humanity was led to hope that this war might end this year and peace might come to this war-cured world."

Speedy Intervention Necessary to Save the Nation From Anarchy

(Special Correspondence.)

Paris, March 12.—Former Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovitch, brother-in-law of the late Czar, who arrived in Paris recently from the Crimea, told the Associated Press today that unless armed Allied intervention in Russian began at once the situation in Russia would be come so hopelessly desperate that it would take years, perhaps a decade, to restore a assemblance of order and bring about peace in Eastern Europe.

Referring to the proposed conference on Prince's Islands, the Grand Duke said that the proposal was a mistake as it gave the Bolsheviki a strong weapon to wield in Russia over the cowering population. The Bolshevik are claiming, the Grand Duke added, that the Allied Governments have recognized them because they feared the Bolsheviki.

"It is my opinion that the Spartacan movement in Germany is kept alive only as a means of blackmail against the Allies. When the preliminary peace is signed, when Germany has used the Spartacans to the utmost to blackmail the Entente into sending food and granting merciful conditions of peace, when Spartacism has served its purpose, it will disappear."

Spartacans Take A Military Post

Basle, March 12.—General Anzieger reports a general strike in the mining district of Beuthen, Silesia, it being said that 20,000 workmen are idle there. Another report from Beuthen states that Spartacan bands attacked a military post and seized a number of rifles and that another similar attack was repulsed with hand grenades.

FRANCE'S LOSS HEAVIER

Three Hundred Thousand Colonists Were Slain.

Paris, March 12.—New figures on French war losses have been supplied to the correspondent by the French Foreign office. These bring the number of French dead to more than 1,600,000. The new compilation sows for the first time that more than 300,000 French colonials died in the fighting, the greater part of their losses having been borne by the Algerians.

CHURCHES REJECT UNION

Goderich, March 12.—For the last four or five months the question of the amalgamation of the two Methodist churches in town has been before the people, but on a vote the proposition was rejected.

LEGAL PROCEDURE REVERSED IN THE CASE OF DEFAULTERS

Defendant is Required to Prove His Innocence Instead of Having Guilt Established by Crown.

John McKnight of Minden township, Victoria County, appeared before Justices of the Peace H. Rush and V. Eastwood yesterday afternoon charged with having been a defaulter under the military service act.

McKnight pleaded not guilty to the charge and his counsel, Capt. C. R. Widdifield, called the accused and Mrs. Volsey as witnesses for the defence.

Their testimony went to show that while the registered letter ordering McKnight to report for service had been dated August 1st and set the seventh of that month as the time to report the prisoner did not receive it until December 13th when the war was over.

According to witnesses the postmaster at Blair Hampton, Morley Edwards was responsible through an oversight or carelessness in not passing the order on to McKnight.

It was claimed that the postmaster lost the letter and according to Mrs. Volsey, McKnight had expected such a letter any time after August 1st and had visited the post offices at Maple Leaf and Blair Hampton on an average of twice a week.

Legal Procedure Reversed

In his argument in behalf of his client Capt. Widdifield referred to the fact that unlike the usual procedure of British law in the trial of a military defaulter, the burden of proof rested with the accused instead of the Crown being called upon to prove the man guilty of an offence the accused was faced with the task of proving himself innocent. In nearly every case the prisoner is considered innocent until proven guilty but according to the law as applied in cases under the Military Service Act the man is presumed to be guilty until he proves that he is innocent.

Under these circumstances Capt. Widdifield maintained that very slight evidence is all that is required to overcome this onus. Evidence in a criminal case should always be absolute and beyond the shadow of a doubt.

In this case Capt. Widdifield claimed that his client had not refused to obey the law by neglecting to report for a medical examination when ordered to do so by the registrar under the Military Service Act. He had established as a result of most reliable testimony that McKnight did not receive the order to report which had been mailed him under date of August 1st, until December 13th and the armistice had been signed on November 11th.

With the war over and the cause which had made necessary the sending of the order, removed, McKnight's counsel, held that his client could not be expected to follow the instructions contained in such a

Liquor Thieves Given Two Years

Roumanian Queen To Visit America

Paris, March 12.—Queen Marie of Roumania may soon visit the United States. Whether the trip will be made before or after the conclusion of the Peace Conference has not been decided. The queen is leaving for London today.

FRANCE TO PAY OWN WAR DEBT

HAS ABANDONED HOPE OF HAVING IT SHARED BY THE ALLIES.

Paris, March 12.—France has, for the present at least, abandoned any hope of having her great war debt shared by the Allies. It is authoritatively asserted by one of the delegates attending the conference that what had been an embarrassing possibility has now been definitely eliminated from the deliberations, although it is possible that France might at some future time attempt to secure assistance.

The project has never been formally presented at the Conference, but conversations held at intervals since the Conference began have served as a medium for the presentation of the French point of view.

The British and American delegations have been quite frank in their disapproval and have openly said the people of their countries would be slow to endorse such a plan.

Guelph Police Are Given Increases

Guelph, March 12.—At a meeting of the Police Commissioners Detective Greeneway and Constables Morrison and Lark were given $25 increase in salary, bringing their salaries up to $1,125 and $1,025 per year. Sergeant Rae was granted an increase of 375 per year. The salary of Chief Randall was increased to the extent of $100 a year, bringing it up to $1,700, including $75 allowed for a new uniform. There are now eight men on the force, in addition to the chief. The estimates for the year call for $13,260.

TO REDUCE RATES AT KINGSTON

CHEAPER POWER IS NOW IN SIGHT IN LIMESTONE CITY.

Kingston, March 12.—The Utilities Commission has under consideration the question of a marked reduction of the power rates, but is unable to make announcement of the new rates until it receives the official report of the Hydro-Electric Commission auditor with regard to the financial standing of the Electrical Department. It is understood, however, that the electrical plant shows a splendid profit for 1918 and that with the continued operation of Hydro power the local commission will be able to materially reduce the rates this month. The commission will ask the Ontario Government to develop more power at the Trent.

UNCLE SAM HAS NEW GUN

It's Claimed To Be Most Powerful of Its Size.

Troy, N.Y., March 12.—The United States Government has placed an order with the Watervliet Arsenal for a new type of gun to supersede the famous 155 millimetre gun so popular in the late war. The new gun is larger, is easier made, shoots farther and does more damage. It is called a "one-ninety-four" and two guns were ordered as an experiment.

The first one will be completed before the end of the present month. The gun is eight inches in diameter, weighs twelve tons, has a range of ten miles, shoots a projectile weighing 175 pounds, and is 21 feet, six inches long. It is claimed to be the most powerful weapon of its size in existence.

Parade Is Planned By The Unemployed

Toronto, March 14.—March 18 has been set by a committee representative of Toronto trades unions as the date for the parade to Queen's Park of the unemployed. The parade was to have been held some time ago, but was deferred through the failure of the Trades Council to vote the money required to advertise the demonstration. The parade will be under the direction of President Arthur O'Leary and Secretary W. J. Hevey of the Trades Council, who will be assisted by Delegates Lewis, Birks and Watkinson.

Soldiers Return By Thousands

London, March 12.—It is officially announced that the White Star liner "Olympic," with 5,000 Canadians on board, sails for Halifax March 15th. An additional thirty thousand Canadian soldiers should sail before the end of March.

Held Fifty Police at Bay

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, March 12.—Two policemen and a civilian are in hospitals today with bullet wounds inflicted by a man barricaded in his own house while the latter is dead with part of his head blown off, having turned his rifle against himself. For three hours early today George Ondeck, a real estate dealer and expert marksman, held more than half a hundred policemen at bay, exchanging shot for shot and driving the besiegers to the cover of adjacent buildings. When Ondeck was reduced to his last cartridge he shot himself.

Half an hour after the firing ceased the police entered the house and found Ondeck dead in a front room. In a rear room were Mrs. Ondeck and her six children, lying on the floor to escape the bullets that crashed through the frame cottage walls. Ondeck is said to have been drinking and the police were hunting for him with a warrant, charging cruelty, sworn out by his wife.

KINDERGARTEN POLITICS.

AS AN EXAMPLE of kindergarten politics, that editorial in the Examiner last night, "The Antis Active," must be voted the leather medal. Our contemporary weakly attempts to show that there is discord among the members of the Hearst Government. Hon. T. W. McGarry in a public address last week happened to say that the Ontario Temperance Act would be submitted to a vote of the people in September or earlier, or when all the soldiers are home. No date was specified. No one was surprised by the announcement, because the Government in taking this step is simply carrying out a pledge given when war-time prohibition was enacted, a pledge to which the members of the Opposition were parties, with a solitary exception.

Someone asked Premier Hearst when the matter was to be submitted to the people, and he stated that there was no date set yet, and that the details of the measure to be voted upon were not yet arranged. In this he simply confirmed everything that Mr. McGarry had said. Our contemporary, however, puts two and two together, and, in this incident reads between the lines disintegration and disunion in the Government.

An idle rumor says Premier Hearst is to retire and is to be succeeded by Mr. McGarry. There is no law to prevent irresponsible newspapermen from starting such reports, any more than there is to stop the Examiner from airing its views, even though they smack of the nursery.

Reading between the lines again, our argus-eyed neighbor sees evidence that a general provincial election is not far off. Wonderful discovery, indeed! What occasion is there for surprise, seeing that the Legislature is now running on borrowed time which was to extend for the duration of the war?

Yes, the Hearst Government, or any other government, that could give a reasonable excuse for being at large, will make prohibition permanent, or it will abrogate it, just as the mandate for one or the other courses is given by the people.

THE FATE OF THE DEFAULTER.

THE MILITARY DEFAULTER who has not yet been captured by the police has certainly occasion for uneasiness. If a man, after committing murder, is hiding from the officers of the law, he has at least the assurance that if he is taken he will most surely be hanged. There is nothing so wearing on the human mind or body as uncertainty.

The defaulter still at large, if he reads the papers, will be at no loss to define the fate the court has in store for him if he be haled before a magistrate. He may be given a prison sentence of from one to five years, without the option of a fine. He may be fined anywhere from $250 to $5000 and, if he settles, be allowed to depart. It seems that if there are any extenuating circumstances in these cases, the magistrates do not take them into consideration. They punish a man just as the particular case appears to appeal to them.

Two defaulters recently before the local Police Court were fined $250 each, the minimum penalty, and were allowed to go at that. Probably the eloquence of their respective attorneys had something to do with the light punishment. Yesterday a young man, who was charged with evading the Act, facing the same tribunal and with an attorney as eloquent and able as the best of them, was fined $1500 and sentenced besides to serve two years in jail. Crown Attorney Hatton was back on duty, refreshed by a vacation from his judicial labors, and he insisted upon the State exacting the last penny-worth of its pound of flesh.

Mr. Hatton is reported as declaring that such a man as the defendant should not only pay a fine, but should serve a prison term as well. It is fortunate for such offenders that in this regard Mr. Hatton cannot have his way, as the recent order-in-Council distinctly states that no defaulter shall be required to pay a fine and go to prison.

Why should there be such disparity in the sentences of these defaulters, the difference between a fine of $250 and one of exactly six times that figure? And why, again, The Review begs to ask, should defaulters in Ontario be fined so heavily and sent to jail in default for two years, or even six months, the alternative set in two other cases, while similar offenders in Quebec get off with six hours in the cells or a fine of $5? The Quebec magistrates insist upon ignoring the recent regulation providing for uniformity, their idea, perhaps, being that an order-in-Council lacks the force of an Act of Parliament, especially at a time when the House was in actual session.

SENSATIONAL CHARGES.

THE PUFF ADDER blows its poison into the atmosphere and, having vitiated its surroundings, consults its own safety in concealment.

If a man in private life accused a fellow mortal of murder or some other offence almost as heinous, the accuser would lose caste among his neighbors, if he made no move to substantiate his charges when his assertions were indignantly denied.

If a member of a club or of a fraternal society made charges against a fellow member or an outsider and then, like the puff adder, lay down as soon as his poison was in circulation, he would be expelled from club or society.

With a member of Parliament it is different. A representative accuses men holding prominent public positions with offences which, if proven, should land them in the penitentiary. They make denial, and the member expresses himself as having achieved his purpose by "giving them something to think about." He has gained the notoriety that was, perhaps, after all, his only objective. The accused are thinking, and so are the public, and what their estimate may be of such ethics is not difficult to imagine.

Another member makes charges, and, when they are denied, declares he has nothing more to say. Other members of Parliament continue to associate with these men who stand before the public branded as connection-mongers—or worse.

It must not be supposed, however, that the Dominion Parliament is altogether without a code of honor. There is an unwritten law that forbids one member from attacking another unless the latter is in his place in the House, and so in a position to reply. But there is nothing in the creed of parliamentarians to protect the man who is not a member of the body of lawmakers. He can be taken as a target, and has no recourse, even the courts denying him the protection that is his, save when a member of Parliament is the offender. The more conspicuous he is in the public eye, the greater his danger from attacks by the notoriety seeker, for the scandal-monger, like death, loves a shining mark.

In some legislative bodies, those belonging to it have the right to set the standard of its own members, the same right that is accorded a private club or fraternal society. The United States Congress is one of these. Public life in Canada will not reach a high plane until there is found a way for suppressing the man with the charges that are never substantiated, and until there is a steady insistence that the same code be observed in Parliament as in private society.

A CHANGE OF VENUE.

THE MORE the Military Service Act is studied, the more interesting does it appear as a piece of legislation which has really been complicated from time to time by the addition of amendments passed by order-in-Council, and the alleged purpose of which was to simplify the measure. Well posted lawyers in this city say that in their opinion the Act can be interpreted in such a way as to furnish legal justification for the course adopted by the Quebec magistrates, to sentence defaulters to a $5 fine or six hours in jail. Wide discretionary powers were given the men called upon to render these decisions.

Asked how he explained the fact that the Quebec magistrates—at least some of them—are still fining defaulters $5 or giving them a few hours in jail, even in the face of the latest order-in-Council, which provides a minimum fine of $250 or a maximum of $5000, a local attorney said that there was nothing in the new order that abrogated the former provisions. If the Quebec magistrates were justified in their previous interpretation, it is a question as to whether they are not equally justified now.

It will be noticed that in the recent cases disposed of in the Police Court in this city all the defaulters dealt with were residents of Victoria and Haliburton counties. They were dragged here for trial when, in the usual order of procedure, their cases would be heard by the magistrate at Lindsay.

The defendants pleaded this as an injustice. It adds to the trouble and cost of producing witnesses in their behalf. They are taken from their home surroundings where the circumstances of the case are available. They are strangers even to the attorneys whom they engage to defend them.

If a man commits theft or murder, he is tried by the court that has jurisdiction in the territory where the crime is committed. The Military Service Act, however, provides that a defaulter resident in Peterborough may be taken to Parry Sound or any other point for trial, where no one knows him and where he is likely to be denied anything like human sympathy, which is not withheld the thief or the murderer. There is, apparently, nothing in the Act to prevent the taking of a defaulter from Ontario to Hull, or some other place in Quebec, where he could be accorded the magisterial leniency which is extended similar offenders in that province.

Once the thief or the murderer is acquitted he is free and that settles the issue as between him and the law. If, however, a magistrate acquits a man brought before him on a charge of defaulting, he is bound to turn the defendant over to the military authorities to be dealt with by a martial tribunal.

Mr. Bumble, the inimitable philosopher created by Dickens, was too sweeping in his denunciations of the legal machinery of his native land. It is really unjust to declare generally that the law is an ass. It is only an occasional enactment that can be so listed.

PLAIN PEOPLE WANT PEACE

(New York Commercial.)

President Wilson is safely on his way to France and the subject that now engages the attention of advocates and opponents of the League of Nations is the mandate of the American people to their delegates at the peace conference. Senators Borah, Reed and Thomas attended a banquet in New York City after the President departed, at which they told the world that America is opposed to the plan of a League of Nations which has been published, but they offered no substitute. Their purpose was to make the peace conference in Paris believe that the Senate will reject a treaty that embodies such a league, and they are supported in this attempt by several anti-Administration newspapers.

Counteracting this political demonstration against the President comes the result of the special Congressional election held in the Twenty-second Pennsylvania District, where John H. Wilson, Democratic candidate, ran on a platform containing only one plank, support of the President and the League of Nations. He refused to be side-tracked, and defeated his Republican opponent, who refused to pledge himself to do anything except what the leaders of his party endorsed. The Democratic candidate won by a majority of nearly 300 in a constituency that elected a Republican last November by an overwhelming majority of about 7,500 and which has been solidly Republican for sixty years, or ever since the Republican party was born. It is seldom that a Congressional election is fought on a single issue, and this gives significance to this by-election to fill a vacancy caused by death.

European statesmen sometimes admit ignorance of the game of politics as played in the Congress of the United States. They are confused by our lack of responsible government and the power of a minority in the Senate to defeat the ratification of a treaty approved by the Federal Administration. The backfire started by a small group of Senators will not impress them, except as a manifestation of what they regard as weakness in our governmental system. But they know all about popular elections, and the voice of the plain people of that Pennsylvania district will drown out the rhetoric of the three Senators and the Philadelphia lawyer who spoke to a hand-picked audience last Thursday evening. In London, Paris and Rome the Pennsylvania election will be regarded as the people's answer to those who deny that President Wilson is supported by the American people in his attempt to secure a League of Nations.

It is by no means certain that President Wilson will succeed in Paris, but he has the support of the plain people of America, who want lasting peace and care little about the Presidential ambitions of some of his opponents, not one of whom dares to condemn the principle while criticising the details of his plan. In the ranks of the Republican party, former President Taft's endorsement of Mr. Wilson's efforts will outweigh the casuistic opposition of recalcitrant Senators who signed a pledge to oppose the draft constitution which is worded with such careful prudence that the change of a single word in the draft will release them from their promises to vote again it.

TO-DAY'S STORY

(By Marion Weinstein.)

Gen. Sir Edmund H. H. Allenby, commander in chief of occupied Palestine and Syria, received me at his headquarters today. He had just come from Cilicia, which military necessity is adding to the enemy territory now under his administration, from the frontiers of Egypt to the village of Adana.

Gen. Allenby is continually covering "Oeta," as his occupied enemy territory administration is abbreviated here, in tireless trips from his headquarters at Haifa. Everywhere he is hailed with enthusiasm, for his powerful figure commands attention. The Moslems insist that his name spelled backward means "The Son of Allah." Jews and Christians speak of him with the deepest feeling. Haifa and Jaffa and other settlements have renamed streets in his honor.

Because of his intimate knowledge of the country I asked Gen. Allenby his impressions of Palestine.

"It is a country with a future," he replied. "The terraced hills show that even they were once cultivated. Our Australian troops have been so impressed with it that many of them are interested in obtaining land here."

"And what of the Jewish colonies?" I asked.

"The Jewish colonies are prosperous," he told me, "but those who would develop the country must prepare to spend a great deal of money with little return for some time, just as America did in Panama. The greatest difficulty is fever."

Rumors are afloat here that may reach the United States that the Jewish battalions in Palestine never saw action. These Gen. Allenby denies. The 38th and 39th Battalions did good service in the Jordan valley, he said, although comparatively untrained troops.

The man in the street, too, sees a political significance in the scheme of "Oeta." There is "Oeta South," Palestine, under a British administrator, with headquarters in Jerusalem; "Oeta East," centreing about Damascus, has local Arab rule; while "Oeta North," extending to Adana, is administered by the French from Beirut. With the addition of Cilicia, under Turkish officials, Syria will be known as "Oeta West," while the new district will become "Oeta North."

These divisions, according to their commander in chief, are purely military. Political settlements are to be left entirely to the Peace Conference. The arrangement is simply a matter of control to maintain order.

The commander in chief is fond of twitting Americans about their country's relations with Turkey. "Let me see," he will jest, "you are not at war with Turkey yet, are you?" I asked him during one of these passes if he was a Zionist.

"I have no politics," he smiled. "I am just a military man."

Perhaps it is because he knows all there is to be known about war that Gen. Allenby favors a league of nations to secure permanent peace.

"The engines of war are geting rather too much for us," he said. "Man will soon have reason to fear his own deadly inventions and destroy all machines of destruction."

"Yes, indeed. I should like to send a message to America," he responded readily to my request. "I should like to thank America for the invaluable work of the Red Cross. It helped me in every possible way. I never met an American in this country who was not out to do all he could to aid us. I am very grateful for it."

HASTINGS

(Special Correspondence.)

Hastings, March 12.—The heaviest snow storm of the season took place on Saturday night and Sunday and few pedestrians ventured out to church on Sunday morning. It reminded one that March is still tarrying with us.

The "Win-Some-One" organized class of the Methodist Sunday School met on Wednesday evening at the elected officers for the ensuing year.

The result of the election was as follows:—President, Miss Laura Smith; Vice-President, Miss Louie Wilcox; Secretary Miss Mae Simpson; Treasurer, Miss Eva Ellis; Teacher, Mrs. Lloyd W. Hess. The class has just completed a successful year and have deposited their funds in the bank until some object appears to them which they consider worthy of their support.

A boys' class has also been organized in connection with the Sunday School with Mr. Prentice as teacher in charge.

The boys were entertained on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. D. Scriver where a pleasant evening was spent together. It is the purpose of the class to hold these social gatherings every two weeks at the homes of the different members.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Doxsee entertained a few friends at their home on Friday evening. Those present report a very enjoyable time

HER DAUGHTER WAS SAVED FROM OPERATION

Mrs. Wells of Petersburg Tells How.

Petersburg, Va.—"For two years my daughter suffered from a weakness and pains in her right side; at times she was so bad she could not do any work. For two years she was attended by the best physicians here, and both agreed that she would have to be operated on. I suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and at first she refused to take it, but finally consented. From the very beginning it helped her, and now she is entirely well, and tells everybody how much good it has done her."—Mrs. W. D. WELLS, 526 North Adams Street, Petersburg, Va.

If every girl who suffers as Miss Wells did, or from irregularities, painful periods, backache, sideache, dragging down pains, inflammation or ulceration would only give this famous root and herb remedy a trial they would soon find relief from such suffering.

VETERANS WOULD RAISE PENSIONS

SECRETARY MacNEILL OF G. W. V. A. HAS CONFERENCE WITH COMMITTEE.

Ottawa, March 12.—C. G. MacNeill, Secretary of the Great War Veterans' Association, appeared at the first meeting of the Parliamentary Committee on Soldiers' Pensions and made a preliminary statement regarding the views of the veterans. Hon. N. W. Rowell presided.

Mr. MacNeill said the attitude of the veterans was one of co-operation, which was more essential than criticism. He hoped to offer information which might be helpful. In general, it was the view of the Veterans that pensions should be based on the cost of living. They considered the present scale inadequate particularly with regard to widows, and totally disabled, and thought it should be generous.

By Cost in Different Sections

In reply to Col. Hugh Clark, Mr. MacNeill said their view was that the scale should be based upon the cost of living in various parts of the country; therefore, it should be uniform throughout Canada. He thought this would be quite practicable although not established in any other country.

The present rate for widows and totally disabled men, it was pointed out, is $38 per month and Mr. MacNeill gave it as his personal view that a totally disabled man with a family of five should receive $1400 of $1500 a year.

Allowances to Children

With regard to orphan children Mr. MacNeill expressed the view that they should be given equal educational advantages with those children whose parents are alive. They should, therefore receive pensions up to twenty-one years of age.

Mr. Rowell asked if it would be a good thing to give pensions up to thta age, and Major Andrews said the children of disabled fatherss and of soldiers who had died should be given the same educational advantages as the children of the rich. There was a short discussion upon the point, but Mr. Rowell pointed out that they would deal with the matter later; meanwhile, they were simply hearing the views of the Secretary of the Great War Veterans.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

It does seem as though most of these health preachers have the habit of passing when they reach three score and ten, just like less learned folks. Metchnikoff, of the Bulgarian bacillus, succumbed to what he rather unscientifically called inherited heart disease of about that age; and recently Horace Fletcher died in Copenhagen just one year shy of the allotted span. Of course, neither of these great and wise teachers was cut off through any fault of his theory. The trouble with both of them was that they did not begin living right early enough to get the best results.

Horace Fletcher was so old and so unhealthy at 40 that he couldn't pass a life insurance examination. He weighed 217 pounds, had "dyspepsia" and was a regular victim of that tired feeling.

No man gets much sense until he reaches 30; most men acquire judgment and stability somewhat later. At 40 the average man is at his best—and at 40 the average man begins to mortify. Death is no sudden event, not even in heart failure; death is sudden only in the sense that an accident is sudden if you close your eyes, cover your ears and stroll through a busy avenue in the rush hour. Death comes suddenly only to people who refuse to see, hear or feel the signals that never fail to give warning that something is wrong with health.

Horace Fletcher began at 40 to come back. He came back. Twenty years later he weighed 170 pounds, was perfectly well and strong, and had the physical endurance of the best young athletes in any gymnasium and then some. Fletcher's teaching gives perfectly with Metchnikoff's theory of longevity. Fletcher proved that overeating ruins health; Metchnikoff's theory has not been proved, but, nevertheless, merits the consideration due all the works of that gifted savant.

Probably Fletcherism is extreme. Probably all our health fads go to extremes. Yet a leader must stand out forward in order to command a following. If Fletcherism, as expounded in Horace Fletcher's best works, "The New Glutton or Epicure," and "The A. B. Z. of Nutrition," accomplished so much for a health-ignorant man of 40, what miracles it might work in youngsters of 30! Still, I would not follow Fletcherism so far as Fletcher did—it was too late. The alimentary tube of civilized man still demands buky, indigestible pabulum, unavailable roughage, which it does not get if you strictly Fletcherize. Read what Fletcher has to say and follow him at a safe and sane distance. Read what every scientifically corrected health teacher has to say, and follow at a reasonable pace. But beware of the self-constituted "authority" whose only aim is to market pseudo scientific plausibility. The woods are full of them, and they have taking ways.

Can Whooping Hurt Baby?

"I am trying to teach my baby to go to bed and sleep at a reasonable hour in the evening without any ceremony. He does not like it, and he cries loud and hard each evening. A neighbor warns me not to try it any more for the baby will rupture himself crying. I do not know—this is my first baby. Please advise me.

"Mrs. C. D."

Never mind Sairey. Keep right on, and in a few days your baby will realize that you are going to have your way about it. The crying will do him good, and there is no reason to fear rupture—except of neighborly feelings. I congratulate you on your endeavor. A mother who fusses to persuade a little tyrant to take his rest is a very foolish mother indeed. At bedtime feed and undress and bathe the baby. Put on his nighty. Put him in bed. Darken the room. Open the windows. Then let him holler or sleep, as he prefers. If he finds hollering gets him nothing, he will soon learn to sleep.

Object to Raise In Railway Rates

Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners, has signified his intention, in response to a protest by the Toronto Board of Trade against his increase, to ask railways to justify their action in increasing passenger rates in February. Formerly the system was to compute the rates on return tickets at double the single fare and then deduct one-sixth. Since February 1 the deduction has been only one-tenth. The total advance on revenue received for the present year is claimed to be seven per cent. on gross earnings from passenger services.

SCHOOL BOARD COMMITTEE FAVORS AID TO PLAYGROUNDS

At the meeting of the Board of Education last night the Special Committee appointed some time ago, of which Trustee Cameron was chairman, submitted the following recommendation which was concurred in:

Your Special Committee appointed to consider the matter of supervised Playgrounds, beg to report and recommend that the Board of Education assist the Playgrounds Association for the year 1919, in the purchase of equipment for two playgrounds on school property, the cost of the same not to exceed $750.00, and such equipment to become the property of the Board. Your Committee also recommend that the disbursements in this connection be under the supervision of the Property Committee.

Changes Recommended.

The Advisory Commercial Committee reported as follows:

1st. That the Board of Education submit to the Minister for his approval the following modification of the present time-table of the Commercial Department:

That reading and literature of the first year be taught together, allowing 4 periods per week for that purpose.

That 8 periods per week be set aside in the first year for writing, business papers and typewriting. This would permit three shifts in typewriting, so that each pupil may typewrite 3 periods per week, and have 5 periods for writing and business papers.

That 14 periods be set aside in the second year for writing, business papers, typewriting, so that each pupil may have one hour per day for typewriting and 4 periods per week for writing and business papers.

That as it is deemed inexpedient at present to lengthen the present course of two years, and in order to secure sufficient time for commercial subject, the Minister be requested to permit the discontinuance of a group IV (Algebra) the second year.

2nd. That additional typewriting machines be purchased for the Commercial Department, as, in the opinion of your Committee, the present equipment is entirely inadequate for the needs of 80 pupils.

3rd. That, as soon as may be deemed expedient by the Board of Education a supervisor of typewriting be appointed.

G. O. CAMERON.

First Aid Kits.

The report of the Supervision Committee was as follows:

Your Supervision Committee beg to recommend that five "first aid kits," similar to the one at the Collegiate Institute, be purchased, and that one be placed in each of the public schools, in which there is not already one provided.

RHODES EXAMS TO BE RESUMED

ELECTION OF SCHOLARS WAS POSTPONED ON ACCOUNT OF WAR.

The election of Rhodes scholars postponed on account of the war, will be resumed throughout Canada during the present year. As the Oxford colleges cannot receive more than a given time, it has been necessary to make special arrangements for filling the postponed scholarships.

Toronto University nominates the scholar for 1917; Queen's University the scholar for 1918. The date of election, which must not be later than October 1, 1919, will be fixed by the committees of selection in these universities. The scholars elected will be expected to come into residence at Oxford not later than January, 1920.

The scholarships for 1919, and following years, will be open to candidates, otherwise eligible, from any university in the province.

Notice of date for the election of the scholar for 1919 will be given before the end of the present year. The scholar elected for 1919 will enter Oxford in October, 1920.

The scholar sfor 1920 and 1921 will be elected in October, 1920, after which the elections will resume their normal course.

The conditions of eligibility remain as in past years, except that extension of the age limit may be granted to candidates for 1917, 1918, and 1919, who have been engaged in war service.

DRESS WARM AND KEEP FEET DRY

TELLS RHEUMATISM SUFFERERS TO TAKE SALT AND GET RID OF URIC ACID.

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat, dress a warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and, above all, drink a lot of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settin in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain allied rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning or a week. This is said to eliminate ric acid by stimulating the kidneys o normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which, overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

Analogy is merely a method of convincing without proof.

ALIENS HATCH A REVOLUTION

EVIDENCE BY U. S. OFFICIALS REVEALS THE ACTIVITY OF BOLSHEVIKI.

Washington, March 12. — Evidence gathered by the Post-Office Department and the Department of Justice, showing a country-wide radical propaganda urging overthrow of the United States Government by violence and the setting up of Bolshevism, was put into the Senate propaganda investigating committee's record by Major E. Lowry Humes, counsel for the committee. The documents include a memorandum submitted yesterday by Solicitor Lamar of the Post-Office Department, asserting that the I.W.W., Socialists and other radicals in this country had found a common cause for the first time in Bolshevism. With the memorandum were excerpts from radical publications, which Mr. Lamar said demonstrated a bloody revolution and a reign of terror were contemplated.

One of the Department of Justice exhibits was an anarchistic poster, which made its appearance recently throughout New England. It was described as a typical piece of "Red" propaganda. It denounced the proposed radical alien deportation law, and said, among other things:

"Deportation will not stop the storm from reaching these shores. The storm is within, and very soon will leap and crash and annihilate you in blood and fire."

Such publications as the Liberator, the International Socialist Review, the Red Dawn and the Class Struggle were quoted from at some length by Major Humes in completing the record. Hand-bills, said to have been distributed by the I.W.W. during the recent strike in Seattle, were among the exhibits, as recent pamphlets written by various agitators whose names have been associated with various disturbances in the United States during the past few years.

Upton Sinclair, Elizabeth Flynn and a dozen others were quoted from. Among editorials put into the record was one by Arthur Brisbane in the Washington Times, discussing photographs of Russian Bolshevists published by the New York Times.

INSPECTOR MOWAT'S REPORT SUBMITTED TO SCHOOL BOARD

Attendance Last Year at Public Scoools not up to Average on Account of Flu Epidemic but General Progress Was Satisfactory —Recommends Manual Training.

Inspector Wowat, at the meeting of the Board of Education last night submitted his annual report covering the year 1918, as follows:

School Population

The total number of Public school pupils enrolled in the year 1918 was 3343, which was an increase of 165 over the enrolment in 1917. Of these 1685 were boys and 1658 were girls.

The number enrolled in each school was as follows:

King Edward	694
Central	659
Queen Mary	592
South Central	545
Queen Alexander	447
King George	406

The average attendance for the year showed a decline. This was due to the influenza epidemic which necessitated the closing of the schools for 21 teaching days and lessened the regular attendance for several weeks.

School Accommodation

The South Central School, which is a ten-roomed building and the King Edward, which is a twelve-roomed one, did not afford adequate accommodation for the pupils of these school districts. To avoid overcrowding in the King Edward a class room was secured in the St. James' Sunday School building. The South Central was relieved by transferring the Junior Third Form pupils of this school to the Queen Mary and Central Schools. This caused some hardships but no other course was possible.

Should the growth of Public School population continue normal the accommodation for these two districts will be quite inadequate by September 1920.

In order to relieve the King Edward and at the same time provide accommodation for the pupils of the South Central District, fourteen rooms would then be required instead of ten at the South Central. In addition to this, provision will have to be made for Manual Training and Household Science, and also some extra rooms for future growth. This is the most pressing and important problem before the Board.

Classroom Proficiency

During the first half year the progress of the pupils was satisfactory on the whole, but during the last half the school work was seriously interfered with by the illness of many pupils and teachers, and by the closing of the schools for over four weeks.

I find by comparison with other places that a good percentage of our pupils pass into and attend the Collegiate Institute. Fully thirty per cent complete the eighth grade and reach the Collegiate and not five or six per cent as is so commonly reported.

At the entrance examination of 1918 there were 148 public school candidates and of these 132 secured certificates. Of the 16 who failed only 6 were recommended by their teachers.

Of the 132 who passed 83 were admitted on the recommendation of their teachers and 49 passed the written examination.

The classroom work throughout the grades showed careful preparation on the part of the teachers. The desire to strictly conform to the regulation and to adhere closely to the manuals has, possibly, been the cause of too great uniformity in the methods of teaching. The best teachers show originality and resource in methods and study the characteristics of each child under their care.

Manual Training

The most pressing need of our schools, at the present time, is the extension of Manual Training and Household Science throughout the senior grades of all the schools together with introductory construction work and sewing in the junior grades. This can only be accomplished when accommodation is provised in the King Edward and South Central Schools.

Professor Sandiford, in speaking on Motor Education says:—"An education divorced from crafts is only half an education. It is now realized that a motor education is absolutely necessary to the fullest mental development. Without motor education even speech and language itself are denied us."

The physical education of the pupils received a fair degree of attention throughout the year. There are now four cadet corps in connection with the public schools.

The Teaching Staff

The Public School Staff now consists of 74 teachers and supervisors. Of these 61 are lady teachers and 13 are male teachers. Four members of the staff are graduates of University, 15 hold first class certificates, 49 hold second class certificates and 6 hold kindergarten—Primary certificates.

Central	13
King Edward	13
Queen Mary	13
Queen Alexandra	10
South Central	10
King George	9

There was a considerable number of changes on the staff during the year. Six teachers left the profesion and several others resigned to continue the work in other places.

The School Buildings

The School Building are in good state of repair. The newly constructed sewer at the King Edward has removed all danger of insanitary conditions there. The buildings are all well kept and everything possible is being done for the physical comfort of the children.

Medical Inspection

The work of the school nurse has been beneficial in a variety of ways. If she had the assistance of a doctor even for a few hours each week, much could be done for those pupils whose parents are either indifferent or are unable to act upon her recommendations. It is to be hoped that in the near future progress may be made along this line together with dental inspection as well.

Industrial and Technical Training

Possibly seventy per cent of our children do not receive any school training other than that afforded by the Public School. Many of these pupils do not complete the work of the eight grades but drop out of school on reaching the age of fourteen. This is altogether too early for boys and gorls to begin their life work.

The Government must provide some form of training for these young people. The education provided should be more than a narrow trade education. It must do more than give greater technical efficiency. It must be, in a sense, a liberal education that will develop character and intelligence as well as technical skill. It must be an education as will make men and women.

Schools for this purpose will be expensive both in contruction and in maintenance. Both the Federal and Provincial Governments will have to give liberal assistance to those centres where such schools are provided. Even then their success in the smaller cities will depend upon the compulsory attendance age being raised to 16 years for part time attendance at least.

The attendance of pupils at Day Industrial classes in the smaller cities where such classes have been organized is disappointingly small.

The Government will have to take the lead in developing this type of school.

BIG CHANCE FOR CANADIAN TRADE

MISSION IN LONDON WARNS AGAINST RESHIPPING FOREIGN GOODS.

Ottawa, March 12.—A cablegram to the Canadian Trade Commission in Ottawa confirms and supplements the information published that the British Board of Trade has announced the definite removal of all restrictions on imports into Great Britain which come from within the British Empire.

The Canadian Mission in London further states that the all-important fact that the Board of Trade regulations will insist that only goods of British Empire origin shall be exempted from the rigid general restrictions which were imposed in confrmation of the war-time trade regulations.

"Canadian manufacturers and producers," the message adds "should comprehend the importance of the fact that foreign goods cannot, therefore, reach England by way of Canada."

"Up To" Business Men.

"The market here is now being opened," the cable continues, and Canadian manufacturers have a big opportunity, as stock in everything are very low. As this is business which does not involve Government credit, it is up to Canadian businessmen to make the necessary effort to get orders. Our business is to find the markets."

The shipping situation is also easier, so that prompt and good business may be looked for. A previous communication to the Canadian Trade Commission from London states that there are now over 200 representatives of Canadian exporters in Great Britain, a fact which in itself proves the eagerness and modern business spirit of Canadian firms.

BEGIN HOT WATER DRINKING IF YOU DON'T FEEL RIGHT

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons.

If you wake up with a bad taste bad breath and tongue is coated; if your head is dull or aching; if what you eat sours and forms gas and acid in stomach, or you are billious, constipated, nervous, sallow and can't get feeling just right, begin inside bathing. Drink before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will flush the poisons and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and cleanse, sweeten and purifying the entire alimentary tract. Do your inside bathing immediately upon arising in the morning to wash out of the system all the previous day's poisonous waste, gases and sour bile before putting more food into the stomach.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became loaded with body impurities, get from your pharmacist a quarter pound of limestone phosphate which is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant.

Just as soap and water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Men and women who are usually constipated, billious, headachy or have any stomach disorder should begin this inside bathing before breakfast. They are assured they will become real cranks on the subject shortly.

AUTO FOR WINDSOR POLICE

Windsor, March 12.—Hereafter the detective sergeants of Windsor's Police Department will ride in an automobile the same as a majority of the other City Hall employes are doing, at the city's expense. Loviness Comes Into It's Own Again, In This, OUR Spring Festival of New Apparel

"The Feast of Flora" in the old Greek days was a Spring Festival of rejoicing It heralded the rejuvenation of the Earth. All nature awakened to the new season and it was an occassion of great happiness. For the past four, long, dark years the World as been plunged into the depths of mourning. Now comes Springtime. Nature prompts us to throw off sackcloth and ashes. "The Feast of Flora" is here again, and the World wants to be gay. Women will dress to express joy and loviness. Fashion as gone through the scorching crucible of war and now emerges chastened and more beautiful than ever.

This Spring Exhibition exemplifies this organization's constructive work in merchandising. Glorious new modes are displayed through-out the store, each expressing Fashion's most favoured effects.

You are specially invited on Thursday, Friday add Saturday to inspect the interesting features of the new season.

New Suits

The Supple Beauty of Their Fabrics and Their Smart, Alluring, Graceful Lines Prove Quite Irresistible

Just to see the new Suits is to feel a thrill of pleasure. And, of course, Springtime would scarcely be Springtime without a prominent place being given to SUITS in Milady's modish wardrobe. One may choose the quaint little box-style jacket or longer models a la Directoire, many boasting of gay little waistcoats and vestees. The skirts are strikingly plain or with tunic effects, or bepaneled. The colors are, for the most part, dust and navy blue and kindred shades, but such bright color notes are given by rose, blue, white, or fancy collars and vests, and the touches of ornamentation are so many and so lovely that the result is anything but sombre.

New Hats

Gone is the Ostentacious Quietness Which Has Prevailed For The Last Four Years in Head-Gear. The Spring Hats Step Forth in Gala Array

It would be difficut to overestimate the importance of the Spring Hat in the scheme of new clothes. It is literally and figuratively the crowning touch. And now in our show rooms, awaiting to give you real joy, the loveliest creations of the new season may be found in both street and dress hats. Variety is almost unlimited. Never in history, it would seem, could greater selections have been possible. There are tricornes and bicornes of the Directoire days; large drooping models of strictly-modern design; jaunty little turban-a-plain sailors. The brightest of color radiate the freshness of Spring in most of the trimmings, whether they be in flowers, feathers, ribbons or fancy ornaments.

New Wraps

Featuring The Vogue of The Cape and Showing That The New Coats Are Often-times Cut With Loose Backs, Falling From the Shoulders or Belted

The new Wraps are so lovely, words are scarcely adequate to do them justice. The beautiful new shades brought forth this Spring are as delectable as the styles are different and smart. Many novel and charming ideas will be noticed in this first presentation. Every type of cloak is included in Fashion's showing; the Dolman-like wrap, the loose, swagger coat, the circular cape, and the cape with sleeves. Truly, the reign of the cloak is well established in all the glory of its graceful draperies For street wear it can be the simplest garment of cloth, just the classic draperies which are drawn into the sleeve and big collar, to give it distinction, expressed in such modish materials as tricotine, gabardine, Poiret twill serge. The more elaborate models are fashioned of duvet delaine or satin charmeuse.

CONDITIONING HORSES

Must Start Four to Six Weeks Before Spring Work Begins.

Time Now to Build Hotbeds—How to Construct It, Ventilation and Watering Most Difficult Problems, Injure Early Vegetables.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

THE experienced farmer knows the importance of having his horses in the best possible condition to stand the strenuous work of spring. Upon his horse power depends, in no small degree, his success in getting his seed sown early in a well-prepared seed bed in the proper tilth to bring best possible returns, for early seeding and a deep, fine seed-bed mean more bushels in the granary in the fall.

The actual practice of conditioning for spring work should commence from four to six weeks before the land is likely to be ready for the plough or cultivator. All changes in feeding should be made gradually. Straw in the roughage ration should gradually be replaced by hay until finally nothing but good quality hay is being fed. Careful feeders generally save their best hay for the spring work. The horse that has been getting little or no grain must not be immediately put on a full ration. Commence with a small feed, say half a gallon of rolled oats or, at most, twice per day and gradually increase this as spring draws near until the horse is approaching full feed. While the horse is still idle the percentage of roughage fed to the whole ration may be continued large. That is, a full feed of concentrates is not necessary until work begins but something approaching a full feed should be reached just before seeding opens. Once hard work has begun the grain or concentrate ration must be gradually increased and the roughage proportionately decreased. The more severe the labor the smaller the proportion of roughage and the larger the proportion of concentrates should be fed. From eight to fourteen pounds of oats per day, according to weight of animal, should be enough for the average farm horse just before seeding starts and something in the neighborhood of one pound to one and one-half pounds of roughage per 100 pounds of the animal's weight should be fair feeding. Regular cleaning is important as it aids shedding and improves the coat of the animal. As the feed is increased so should the exercise increase.

Farm teams should be hitched daily during the "conditioning" period that their muscles become hardened and that their shoulders gain the power of resistance to prevent galls and sore later on. Preparation for the spring work should be a fleshing and hardening process, and it cannot be accomplished without good feeding, grooming and regular light work in harness. When heavy work begins, gradually increase the grain feed up to from ten to eighteen pounds daily according to the weight of the horse, and the hay to such an extent that the animal is getting a total ration of grain and roughage of from two to three pounds per hundred pounds of horse, this depending on condition and amount of work done. Always give plenty of pure water, mostly before feeding grain if possible.—Prof. Wade Toole, O. A. College, Guelph, Ont.

Starting Early Plants.

Growers desire to have vegetables as early as possible, and for this reason it is necessary to start plants like cabbage, cauliflower and beets in hotbeds. Others like tomatoes and peppers have too long a season of growth to ripen a sufficient amount of the crop to make it pay. This method gives us from four to six weeks start.

Hot beds should be on the south side of a fence or building. Obtain good fresh manure, turn twice to get fermentation well started. Put it in a pile about eighteen inches to two feet in height, and a foot larger each way than the frame, being careful to tramp it thoroughly. To do this put it up in layers of six inches. Then put on the frame, which should be eighteen inches at the back and twelve inches at the front, facing south. Put in four to six inches of soil and put on the glass. Air every days, for the first four days to get rid of the gases generated by the fermentation. The soil is then raked and made ready for seed sowing.

The seed is generally sown in rows three inches apart, about 10 seeds to the inch. When the seedlings are showing the first true leaf they are transplanted to other beds, the plants being set two inches apart each way. With cabbage, cauliflower, beets and lettuce, this one transplanting is all that is necessary. Tomatoes, egg plants, pepper and such plants require two transplantings, the last one four inches apart each way, or into four inch clay pots or quart berry baskets.

Ventilation and watering are the two most difficult problems in hotbed management. Ventilation should be given whenever possible. Even on stormy days the sash should be lifted even if it is only the thickness of a lath that is placed under it. Many growers use a piece of lath three inches long. This gives them three different distances of ventilation, and it may be laid on the glass when not in use, and will be always ready. Always have the opening away from the wind. You should also ventilate after watering to prevent scalding.

Water carefully, only give what the plant requires, especially in the early season, and only in bright days, in the morning. The plants must be dried off by night. As the plants grow the watering will, of necessity, be oftener, but care and thought should be used at all time: —A. H. MacLennan, Vegetable Specialist.

PUNNY NAVY TALK.

Slang Phrases That Are Used by the Sailors.

If "niggers in a snowstorm" faced you on a menu, what quaint sort of cookery would you expect it to be? Well, it is nothing very cannibalistic after all, being merely the bluejackets' name for the concoction which figures as "stewed plums and rice" on the bill of fare of your favorite lunching place.

But then "Jack" gives such queer names to familiar things. To him tapioca pudding is "squeaker" and blanc mange just "Chicken food." Plum pudding he calls "figgy duff," and for bloaters he has a variety of strange appellations. "A spithead pheasant," "a dead marine," and "a two-eyed steak" are the most generally used of all. By a "half-timer" he means a kipper, and "bounty's meat" is his name for a salad. The war has added new terms to lower-deck vocabulary, and the origin of some is inscrutable. For example, "Jack" designates as "Harry Frees" the fruit and vegetables which are sent as gifts to the Grand Fleet. Men who have joined the navy "for duration" are termed "hostilities," not because there is anything specially hostile about them or toward them, but for the reason that they have enlisted "for the period of hostilities" only and will go "on the beach" (return to shore employments) when the war has ended. In sailor language an officer who has been superseded is "put on the beach," and "Jack" never uses this expression as he terms an army man.

"The Harry Tate Navy"—meaning the Motor Launch Patrol—is another war addition to lower-deck language, which is always being enriched by new additions and is ever vastly bewildering to those unfamiliar with it. For the most part, however, it consists of time-honored expressions. Of such are "bad hat" and "King's hard bargain," both of which mean bad characters, while the man who has imbibed too well is described as being "tin hats" or "three-parts seven-eighths."

A sailor who overstays his leave "gets adrift," when he is hauled up and receives punishment he "goes to leeward," and this latter may be generally interpreted as the sailor's equivalent for the longshoreman's "going wrong." The bluejacket who fails to seize an opportunity or is behindhand in anything "misses the boat." Sailors are never called to account for any dereliction of duty; they are "brought up with a round turn." In the navy "a square number" means a cushy job, usually in a shore establishment, and in speaking of anyone who holds a position similar to his own in a ship Jack will describe him as "my opposite number."

Boots are "pusser's crabs," "the pusser" being the paymaster, the lineal descendant of the old-time purser who used to sell "slops" (clothing) to the crew. Certain articles are still obtainable from the paymaster. In his own way of putting it, a sailor does not buy these, he "takes them up" from "the pusser." Between "taking up" an article and being "put down" for it lies this big distinction, that the former means a voluntary purchase, the latter a forced one. Leading seamen are referred to as "killicks," because they wear an anchor as a badge of rating, and "killick" once meant anchor. From all time the master-at-arms has been "the jaunty," and ships' corporals "the crushers." Likewise, the cooper retains his ancient name of "Jimmy Bungs," while marines are "leathernecks" generically, or "bullocks" (artillerymen), or "turkeys" (light infantrymen) specifically.

But the oddest term of all to shore-going ears was that of "idlers," once, though not now, officially used when speaking of artisans and non-military ratings who were certainly among the hardest worked men in a ship. Officially these have now become "daymen," though colloquially the older term sticks." "Dry idlers" are those who were supposed to work in positions where they did not get wet by the sea. Mostly this was supposition. Until recent years, when a ship prepared for action the "idlers" used to be armed with pikes and stationed to repel boarders. Now they are sent to the magazines and such-like places. Idlers they never were in the lexicon sense.

Her Broken Heart.

She was an incorrigible flirt, and she was married. Therefore she deemed it quite safe to say pretty things to the handsome captain by her side.

"I suppose," she remarked, "you've broken many a woman's heart?"

"Only one," replied her. "And that was many, many years ago."

She scented Romance.

"Do tell me about it!" she persisted.

"Well, several years ago I had occasion to journey up north. My only companion in the railway compartment was a very pretty girl. We rode on for many hours together, and no one else entered the carriage—"

"Yes, yes?" she interrupted eagerly.

"I never said a word to her, or gave her the slightest opportunity to say anything to me."—Answers.

He Was a Horse.

Sir John Foster Frazer was talking about the Mesopotamian heat. "An officer at the Savoy," said Sir John, "declared one day: 'When I was in Mesopotamia, sir, I sweated two gallons a day.' But another officer said coldly: 'Men perspire. Only horses sweat.' 'Then, by gad,' said the Mesopotamian officer, 'I'm a horse.'"

HUGE POTATO YIELDS

Seed From Northern Ontario Outyields All Others.

How to Lower Mortality of Young Lambs—Best Methods of Caring For Both Ewe and Lamb Explained.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

PLANS are being carefully evolved by the Department of Agriculture to continue experiments, begun last year, which it is expected will have far-reaching results for the potato industry in Ontario. The investigations which officials of the Department are making are thorough and extensive, and consequently somewhat slow. But it is confidently believed that within a few years potato seed grown in Ontario will be in great demand not only by other parts of the Dominion, but by many districts of the United States. This, it is anticipated, will be a distinct boon to the farmers of the province.

The two-fold program which was inaugurated last year of certifying a high standard of potato seed and making a survey to detect diseases is to be carried on on a much wider scale this coming season. Reports from the various inspectors have now been compiled by the Department, and the statistics are of considerable interest to the progressive and up-to-date agriculturist. The two foundation varieties which the Department is showing—Irish Cobbler, the early seed, and the Green Mountain—have been the subject of widespread discussion. There has been much difference of opinion as to which is the better for general table use. The reports for last year clearly prove that the Green Mountain is the best variety for the general farmer. Seed of these two varieties from three different sources—Northern Ontario, New Brunswick and Old Ontario—has been experimented with and planted in clay and sand in nearby districts in different parts of the province. These show the following average yields per acre:

Green Mountain—Northern Ontario, 177.6; New Brunswick, 137.3; Old Ontario, 167.8.

The general average per acre on the different plots was:

Irish Cobbler planted in sand, 151.5, and on clay, 126.1, which shows a yield of 25.4 bushels more to the acre from seed planted on sand.

Green Mountain planted on sand, 169.3, and 153.2 bushels planted on clay, a yield of 16.1 more bushels per acre from seed planted on sand.

The results when the yields from all sources for Irish Cobbler are combined show the average number of bushels per acre was 142.1, and Green Mountain, 161.4 bushels. Thus it will be seen that the Green Mountain gave the larger yield, being 19.3 bushels per acre ahead of the Irish Cobbler variety.

Printing in China.

The Chinese follow the primitive way of printing from engraved wooden blocks. The matter to be printed is first written by means of ink, upon paper which is pasted face downward upon a block of a pear or plum tree. After the paper becomes dry it is rubbed until an inverted impression of the characters is left. Then the blank spaces are cut away and the block is turned over to the printer, who works by hand. He takes care to ink the characters equally and to avoid tearing the impression.

"President Maker."

Thurlow Weed, an old-time political leader of New York, was called "the president maker." He was prominent in procuring the nomination of General W. H. Harrison in 1840, of General Taylor in 1848 and of General Scott in 1852, though the last named was not elected. In 1860 he supported Lincoln, though he had favored the nomination of William H. Seward of New York. He never held any public office.

JIMMY WILDE PLANS TRIP TO AMERICA THIS YEAR

Flyweight Champion of England Sees Chance to Make Fortune in Prize Ring.

There is a strong possibility of Jimmy Wilde, flyweight champion of England, coming to the United States next Fall, even should Pal Moore go across and engage him in a 20-round contest at the National Sporting Club before that time. Wilde has been thinking seriously, or rather his manager has, about making a tour of the States and then going over to Australia for a few battles, returning home by way of India.

Jack Munro, the new manager of the Stadium in Sydney, has cabled an offer of $10,000 and expenses for one fight in Australia, which means that he would give him at least three contests, netting the little champion about $35,000. He could also pick up another $10,000 in theatre work.

The Cream City Athletic Club of Milwaukee also has made an offer of $5000 to Wilde for a ten-round bout, and there are half a dozen others he could get in the States which would net him over $20,000 easily, so that his entire trip could be made a certainty for $75,000 or better—not bad for a flyweight title holder.

Big Money in Sight.

Jimmy is in the army and will have to get permission to make a tour of that kind, but the chances are that he will be mustered out before Fall. He also has some big matches in sight in London, with Charley Ledoux and Criqui, two French stars, and the Pal Moore match, which will bring him in over $15,000. With good health and a fair break in the fortunes of the ring the little champion should clean up $100,000 during the next year, which is surely going some for a 112-pounder.

It is seldom that the little fellows have had a chance such as Wilde faces for picking up big money. George Dixon and Terry McGovern made big money when they were champions, but they were in the featherweight class when they got into the really big coin.

McGoorty Busy Abroad.

Eddie McGoorty, the Wisconsin middleweight, who has been with Uncle Sam's forces in Europe for some time, is being kept busy of late with boxing matches, both in France and England. It is evident that the training Eddie received in the army did him a world of good, for he has been fighting much better than for some time past. He was in such poor shape after being beaten by the late Les Darcey in Australia that he announced his retirement from the ring. A lay-off of several months made Eddie [illegible] and he decided [illegible] did after co[illegible]. He did [illegible] the Eddie

His cleverness was enough to enable him to beat most of the middles and later, when the army order came, he joined, and that is where he has gained in condition. His work against some of the heavyweights in the inter-allied tourney in London showed that he was ready for ring work once more. Now he is matched with Seaman Art Townley of England for a 20-round fight on March 13 in London. If he wins, he will meet the winner of the Augie Ratner-Boy McCormick fight on March 27, and also endeavor to get a match with Georges Carpentier.

Snowy Baker Retires.

Word comes from Australia that Snowy Baker, who succeeded Hugh D. McIntosh as head of the big stadium in Sydney, has given up the boxing game for the time being and probably for all time, having turned the place over to Jack Munro, a well known Australian sporting authority, who will manage affairs in the future. He will also have the assistance of Mr. Jamison, who was secretary of the stadium under Mr. McIntosh and also Mr. Baker.

Carter Winner Of The Dummy Prize

On Saturday evening, March 8th, about 35 members of the De Laval Bowling League bowled for the dummy score prize. While it looks very easy for the average bowler to roll the exact score of 125, yet, many of the veteran De Laval rollers found it difficult even to get within shooting distance of this total. Out of the 35 members who rolled six of the bowlers tied for the prize in the first draw, as follows:

Barrette	126
T. Cullen	126
Byers	126
Carter	126
Downing	124
J. Cullen	126

In the second draw Barrette and Carter tied for the prize, Barrette rolling 122 and Carter rolling 128.

In the finals Barette had a good chance of rolling the exact score but could not resist the temptation of getting into the flock when he required only a pin or two. Carter, as a climax to these games rolled the exact score of 127 capturing the prize.

WHEN MITCHELL MET SULLIVAN

FAMOUS DRAW WAS FOUGHT IN FRANCE 31 YEARS AGO

Thirty one years ago on March 19, 1888, the eyes of the sporting world were fixed on the little city of Chantilly, France, for it was on that date that Charlie Mitchell, the English boxer fought his immortal battle with the Old Roman of the prize ring—John L. Sullivan. Chantilly may have other claims to fame, but in the minds of the fight fans it is forever associated with Mitchell and John L. Mutchell and Cullivan first met in the ring over 35 years ago, and John L. won in three rounds. During the next five years the Englishman vastly improved in ring generalship and he had many admirers on both sides of the sea who believed that he could hold his own with the big champion. Their faith was partially justified for after thirty-nine rounds of fighting, lasting three hours and eleven minutes, the bout ended in a draw. Considering the great difference in weight Mitchell made far the better showing. It was his fast foot work that puzzled John L. and made the veteran appears at times like a novice.

If Charlie Mitchell had had a little more meat on his bones he might have become the world's champion. Mitchell came of a good family. His father had charge of a medical college in Birmingham, England, and in his youth Mitchell was his assistant. Naturally he picked up a lot of information on medical topics and had quite a knowledge of surgery. This led to the report that he was a medical student, which was untrue. For many years Charlie had a wealthy angel in Squire Abingdon Baird, an Englishman of old family, who was a famous patron of pugilism, racing and other sports, and who always backed Mitchell with big sums. Mitchell took his pitcher to the well once too often when he challenged Jim Corbett who was much bigger than Mitchell and fully as clever. The Englisher was knocked out in the third round of the bout, which was pulled off at Jacksonville, Fla.

Ottawa, March 12. — Terms for a series of four exhibition games at the Pacific Coast having been accepted the Ottawa Hockey Club will leave Ottawa for the West Friday morning. The Senators will play two games at Victoria and two matches at either Vancouver or Seattle. The Ottawa team will go intact, with the exception that Jack Darragh will not make the trip.

THE ALLAN CUP

Hockey fans may not all be familiar with the detailed record of the Allan Cup, emblematic of Canada, and the following history will be of interest to all sport enthusiasts.

The Allan cup was presented by Sr. Montague Allan and stands for the amateur hockey championship of the world. This trophy was first won by Queen's University in 1909, from Cliffsides, of Ottawa, to whom the cup was presented. The next year Queen's defended the trophy against Cliffside, but lost it to St. Michael's college, Toronto.

Cup Moves West

In 1911 St. Michael's backed up by the O.H.A. declined to meet Victorias of Winnipeg before the regular O.H.A. season was completed, and the cup went to Victoria by default. The Vics successfully defended it against Kenora.

In 1912 the Winnipeg Vics won their league and the cup and defeated Calgary 11-0 and 3-6; Eaton's 8-4 and 16-1. Regina was also defeated in the playoff.

In 1914 the Monarchs won the right to defend the mug but lost in a sudden death game with Regina, 5 to 4. The Vics, however, successfully defended the trophy against Grand Mere, champions of uebec interprovincial league. The Vics won both games, the first 5-3 and the second 4-1, making it 9-4 for the series.

In 1915 Melville won the Saskatchewan championship and qualified for the Allan cup playoff. Toronto Vics got the bye and went through to Melville but lost, and at the same time got suspended by the O.H.A. as the O.H.A. held that the Melville team had ineligible players. Monarchs of Winnipeg won their league, beat Falcons for the Manitoba title, and eliminated Fort Williams in the home and home games. After that the Monarchs journeyed to Regina and Moose Jaw, where they beat the Edmonton Eskimos. Then the Monarchs went to Melville losing the first of the series but winning the second with margin enough to annex the championship.

In 1916 there was only three teams for the playoff, as the O.H.A. champions would not go west. Fort William won out in Thunder Bay and the Regina Vics in Saskatchewan. The Monarchs of Winnipeg were defeated by the 61st battalion. The 61st team beat Fort William, 8-6, and downed the Vics 13-3.

Come East Again

In 1917 the Winnipeg Victorias won the Manitoba title. Saskatoon won in Saskatchewan, but lost to the Dentals of Toronto in the semi-finals, and they, in turn eliminated the Vics from the race, bringing the cup back east.

In 1918 Saskatoon won in Saskatchewan, but were eliminated from the running by the Ypres team of Winnipeg. The Ypres outfit travelling to Toronto to meet the Kitchener aggregation, champions of the O.H.A. and conquerers of the Dentals, who held the cup. The Ypres boys won the first game 3-2 but lost the second 4-1.

Collingwood Has A Two Goal Lead

Toronto, March 12.—Collingwood last year's champions, secured a two-goal lead last night at the Arena in the first of the two games for the intermediate O.H.A. championship, when they defeated Kingston by the score of 6 to 4. The winners led 2 to 0 at the end of the first period and 3 to 1 at the end of the second. The second game will be played tomorrow night at the Arena.

It was another case of the favorites being beaten, for the Kingston supporters soon made the Blue and White from the Limestone City the odds-on favorites. However, they may again be made favorites tomorrow night, as the losers showed just as much hockey ability as the winners, but were unlucky when close in, and R. Milan alone missed enough opportunities to put his team in front on the night's play.

Collingwood were much the heavier team and appeared a better balanced one, but Kingston had a trifle on the Northerners for speed. Where the game was won and lost, though, was the difference between the two defences. Collingwood were steady, while their opponents were inclined to roam. They showed very poor judgment on the second goal of the game, when during a face-off out in front of the Kingston net they allowed G. Foulis, who faced off, to walk right in with the puck.

Referee—Lawson Whitehead.

High Rollers Win Two From C. G. E.

Last night in a Ten Pin League match the High Rollers won two of three games from the C.G.E. team. The C. G. E. fought hard all the way and came through with a victory by winning the last game by a one-pin margin. For the High Rollers Solomon, Hayes and Thompson topped the 500 mark. For the C. G. E., Fielder had 532 for a total. The scores:

Ferocious Rhino.

The rhinoceros would be just as formidable as the buffalo were his sight as good. But he has to go a bit slowly because of dependence on the sense of smell. Once within a few yards of his object, where his weak eyes can distinguish it—then look out! His charge is something terrible, and the only safe place is a tree. When African natives are asked what animal they most fear, nearly all of them do not hesitate to say the rhino.

Naval Names Perpetuated.

Few of the famous British regiments still bear the names under which their early battle honors were won, but the navy—whose record of fame dates from a much earlier period than the army—has consistently followed the policy of perpetuating her famous names. The name of a famous battleship is handed down to a capital ship, while a famous frigate or sloop is perpetuated in a modern gunboat or fight cruiser.

Canadian Cities Want Prize Fight

New York, March 11.—Tex Rickard, promoter of the Willard-Dempsey heavyweight fight, returned to this city after a tour of the West without any definite idea of where the ring battle will be staged. He found waiting him here as many telegrams offering sites for the contest as he had received on his trip.

He stated that he had not decided upon any particular place as yet, and did not expect to make any announcement for several weeks at least. He has fully decided to hold the bout on July 4th, and under the contract is not obliged officially to fix the location before May 4. He intimated, however, he would prefer staging the contest in the East.

His offers included one of $160,000 from Pocatello, Idaho, and another of $165,000 from Idaho Falls, Idaho. Other sections or states which offered sites included Halifax, Quebec, Globe, Ariz.; Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Nevada, Ohio, Louisiana and Texas.

Rickard said that under no circumstances would he sell the rights to the fight, for he expected to stage the contest himself. Insurance policies for $50,000 upon each of the principals and one of twice that amount upon Rickard will be signed tomorrow. They cover illness, accident or death up to the time the bout actually begins.

Willard is Reducing

According to Rickard, Willard has already begun training and reports a reduction in weight of 11 pounds at the end of the first week. The champion's training includes a complete change of dieting. It will be some time before he begins active ring work against sparring partners who will be selected within the next two weeks.

LACKING QUORUM HOUSE ADJOURNS

Ottawa, March 12.—Even Ottawa is tired of talking. For several days Parliament has tamefully endured its annual talkfest on the motion in reply to the Speech from the Throne. But as the debate slows up and the form sheet indicates an almost endless procession of "also rans" still to perform, the Commoners seek other centres of entertainment.

For the second time in the history of the Canadian Parliament the debate on the Address terminated abruptly shortly after 10 o'clock tonight for want of a quorum. The member for East York, Mr. Tom Foster, was speaking at the time, but that was not the immediate reason for the incident which caused a sensation in the corridors. Mr. F. T. Pelletier of Malane, who preceded Mr. Foster, opened his address in French, and no sooner had he uttered the words "Monsieur l'Orateur" than the Unionist members made a bolt for the door, a very unfortunate habit they have fallen into when a French member is speaking. Of 150 Government supporters only Mr. Carvell, Mr. Elkin and Mr. Tom Foster remained in the Chamber, while there were seven or eight members of the Opposition present. Mr. Pelletier suddenly concluded and Mr. Foster took the floor. He had only got nicely started when Mr. Demers drew the attention of the Deputy Speaker to the fact that nearly all the members were absent. The House was immediately declared adjourned for lack of a quorum.

Sues For Damages Because of Charge

OFFICER OF FRATERNAL LODGE BRINGS ACTION AGAINST GRAND SECRETARY.

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 12.—Suit for damages in an action of particular interest to members of fraternal societies is to be entered by Richard Neveau of this city. Neveau, an officer of the Niagara Falls Lodge of the Canadian Order of Foresters, was accused by Grand Secretary Martin of Toronto with being short $31 in his returns, and Martin wrote Neveau that unless the amount was paid immediately he would take criminal proceedings. To avoid trouble Neveau sent the money and then brought suit in Division Court here against Martin and the High Court to get it back. Judge Livingstone, who tried the case, has given Neveau the amount, with costs, and the judge called Martin's threat to institute criminal proceedings high-handed action.

Neveau has instructed his counsel, F. W. Griffiths, of this city, to bring suit for damages against Martin and the High Court because he was accused of a criminal offence.

Special Services At Mark Street

The special services at Mark Street Methodist Church are marked by increased attendance and deepening interest. On Monday Rev. M. Manning, of Peterborough, preached a most helpful sermon on the "Consequence of Good and evil in Human Life." Last evening Rev. W. H. Higgs, chairman of Peterborough District, spoke on "the Knowledge of God and spiritual life." The services were much enjoyed. Tonight Mr. W. T. Wickett of Bethany will be the speaker. A cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested in this work.

WILL ADVERTSE FOR PLANS FOR NEW SCHOOL BUILDING

Action Decided Upon at Meetnig of Board of Education Last Night—Proposed Memorial at Collegiate Institute

A communication from the Board of Works of the city was read at the meeting of the Board of Education last night in which Alderman Phelan, the chairman of the former, suggested that an arrangement might be made whereby the grounds of the King George school could be levelled by removing earth from it to use for the fill in the new Hunter street bridge.

It was decided to leave this matter until such time as the snow was off the ground when a committee from the Board of Education could go to the school grounds with some of the members of the Board of Works and talk the matter over at the scene of the proposed action.

A resolution of condolence with Mrs. Denham in the death of her husband, Mr. W. H. Denham was introduced by Mr. E. G. Patterson, seconded by G. O. Cameron—passed. Mr. Denham had been a member of the Advisory Committee of the Board.

At last night's meeting a letter was read from the president of the Y. M. C. A. claiming that the rate being paid by the Collegiate Institute at present for the use of the gymnasium and the time of the trainer was not sufficient and asking that the present scale of $120 a month be increased to $200. This matter was referred to the Supervision Committee.

Building a New School.

Mr. E. G. Patterson, who is chairman of the committee which has been asked to look into the matter of building the new school, stated last night that although the committee had been spending a great deal of time upon the question, he could only report progress.

In view of the fact that this was the second time Mr. Patterson has made A report of this kind Mr. Cameron felt that the committee must be hampered in some way and proposed extending its powers.

Mr. Gordon thought that it was already invested with all the powers which should be entrusted to a committee. He did not believe in allowing it such scope as would make it possible for part of the Board to commit the remaining members to a policy with which they might not be in sympathy and in the adoption of which they had not been consulted.

Upon motion of Trustee Gordon and Trustee Worth, the chairman of the Board and the secretary, were to advertise in the Mail and Empire and both local papers that the Building Committee are now ready to receive plans for the construction of the new school but that these would be paid for only in the event of their acceptance. A copy of this resolution is to be forwarded to each of the local architects who it is understood will receive preferential consideration as far as is compatiable with good business.

Memorial at Collegiate.

Mr. Gordon thought that there should be a fountain, suitably inscribed, or some other form of memorial erected at the Collegiate for the students and former students of the institution which have fallen in the war. He proposed that the Building Committee look into this matter also but Mr. Greene and Mr. Patterson objected upon the grounds that they were already overloaded with work and they introduced an amendment which was carried, appointing Messrs. Gordon, Cameron, Worth and McKone the members who are not upon the Building Committee to take charge of this proposition.

HON. BOB ROGERS TO DIE IN PARTY

BELIEVES THAT TERM OF LIFE OF UNIONISM ABOUT UP.

Hon. Robert Rogers told the Central and South Toronto Conservatives in Victoria Hall last night that he intends to die in the Conservative party faith. They took it to mean that he is coming back into party politics in a restored Conservative party, and cheered the announcement loudly. Mr. Rogers gave his reasons under three heads: (1) The Union government at Ottawa is a war government, and its time is about up; (2) the present unrest all over the Dominion demands that the Conservative party, should take command, because it is the only party that knows how to command in a crisis; (3) the representatives of Union government did not vote, when in London, for a resolution against enemy aliens proposed by Premier Massey of New Zealand, seconded by Premier Hughes of Australia, and supported by the governments of the other portions of the British Empire.

AT THE ROYAL

Motion picture fans in Peterboro and surrounding country will be interested to know that the lease of the Royal Theatre has been taken over by the Paramount Theatres Limited. It is this Company which operates the Regent and Strand Theatres in Toronto, the St. Denis, in Montreal, the Strand in Ottawa, as well as a chain of large theatres that extends almost across the Dominion. Thus there is every reason to believe that from a motion picture point of view, Peterboro has been put on the map in a way which she has not enjoyed in the past.

Under the new arrangement Mr. Pappas will remain the resident manager. The assurance has been given by the new controlling interests that the greatest pictures produced will be presented at the Royal from time to time, and that the standard of the general run of pictures presented will be greatly enhanced in Peterboro because of this purchase.

Not only will the greatest Motion Picture Stars in the world be seen here, but special attention will be given to the general pictures presented as well as the manner in which they are shown, the comfort of patrons and all else which goes to make a theatre up-to-date and a general asset to the community.

MINISTERS ARE SCARCE.

A serious shortage of trained preachers is threatened in the next few years in the Canadian churches. The scarcity of students for supplying the home mission fields is a problem that is becoming more difficult from year to year. This year, notwithstanding the release of thousands of men from the fields of battle, recruits for the ministry have not yet been forthcoming.

When a man is out of money he doesn't show any; but when a man is out of temper he shows a lot of it.

LEGAL PROCEDURE

letter. Had he done so he would have found, in all probability, upon arriving in Toronto that the medical board had long since ceased to sit and would have had to return to his home again suffering useless expense.

Capt. Widdifield pressed for an acquittal upon the grounds that a conviction militated against the good character of a man in the future. McKnight was a law abiding citizen with a good record in the past and it was a most serious action to place a black mark against a man's name except in cases where the evidence was of such a conclusive character as to warrant a conviction.

If This is Justice

The principles of fair play, which characterize the British Law demand that a man be considered innocent of any charge preferred against him until he is proven guilty. As this procedure is reversed in the Military Service Act, in dealing with such cases as the one before the court very slight proof should be sufficient to obtain an acquittal. If this were not so the law would be so tyrannical that Capt. Widdifield declared in conclusion that he would regret having ever gone overseas and been wounded in defense of it.

Renewal Granted

Their Worships after hearing the case for the Crown, as presented by Mr Hatton, the Crown Attorney, decided to accede to the request of Capt. Widdifield for an adjournment until Friday afternoon when Morley Edwards, the post master, at Blair Hampton can be produced as a witness.

Capt. Widdifield, assuming that their worships suspected collusion between his client and the postmaster whose carelessness had been responsible for the delay in delivering McKnight's order to report for a medical examination took steps at once to have him subpoenaed as a witness. He will testify when the case is resumed on Friday.

DON'T MISS IT

After one week of preparation the Grand Opera House will open on Thursday under the management of A. J. Small with an all-star program of pictures and vaudeville, positively the biggest program ever seen in Peterborough, and the theatre goers of the city who relish good clean pictures and vaudeville are assured of a special treat. Commencing Thursday matinee the all-star program, headed by the Great British film, "Kiddies in the Ruins," and a special feature, Alice Howell in "Hoot Toot," with vaudeville intermingled and 10 other reals of high-class comedies, will make the bill one the greatest entertainments ever seen here. HARVESTERS' MEN ACCEPT OFFER

EMPLOYES WILL ELECT MEMBERS ON WORK COUNCIL AS REQUESTED.

Chicago, March 13.—Workers at 14 of the International Harvester Company's American plants and at all three Canadian plants decided by a majority vote to adopt the "Harvester Industrial Council" plan of employe representation submitted to them by the company on March 10. The proposition failed of approval at three plants located in Chicago

Under the new plan, the employes will within a few days elect by popular vote their representatives on each "works council." The employer and employes will have equal voting power in the unit body where will originate suggestions, requests or complaints relative to all matters of mutual interest, including wages, hours, working conditions and all welfare proposals

Disagreements will be appealed to the company's president, thence to a general council of all works affected if need be. But arbitration by mutual consent will be the final resort.

Galt, March 13.—The Provincial Government's Housing Act will be relied on in Galt to provide the means of overcoming the scarcity of houses. PUNISHING PROFITEERS

Seven Penalties Proposed in New French Measure.

Danger to social order and national defence, due to the rise in the price of foodstuffs in France, are given by M. Null, the Minister of Justice, as justification of the Government measure for the vigorous punishment of profiteers which he has just introduced in the Chamber.

The measure deals with various offences, such as attempts to corner commodities and restricting the sale or inflating the price fo goods. Especially high penalties are reserved for those trafficking illegally or inflating the price of grain, flour and other farinaceous foods.

Following are the severe penalties included in the bill:

(1) One year to five years' imprisonment, and £400 fine.

(2) Offenders under the bill to come under the jurisdiction of the courts martial.

(3) Requisition of the goods giving rise to the proceedings.

(4) Posting up an announcement of the judgment given by the court on the front door of the offender.

FARMERS REQUIRED TO FILL OUT FORMS FOR INCOME TAX

Blanks Are Being Circulated and Detailed Information is Called For—Penalty is $100 a Day for Those Neglecting to Report—Order Is Being Ignored.

Mr. G. N. Gordon furnishes this paper with a copy of the Dominion of Canada Income Tax return forms for farmers to make out and send to the Inspector of Taxation at Kingston. As he emphasizes in the communication which accompanies the enclosure the farmer who fails to do this is liable for $100 a day for every day since the 18th of February, 1919.

Mr. Gordon states that it would appear from what he has been able to learn that this matter has been overlooked in a good many quarters. The statement as made out by the farmer does not repuire to be verified under oath or to be sworn before a lawyer or Justice of the Peace.

In drawing attention to this matter, which if neglected may result in serious consequences to the rural residents of the Dominion, Mr. Gordon has acted in the interest of the people. Forms somewhat similar to these have been forwarded to the citizens of the Dominion who are not engaged in agricultural work and the same penalties for non-compliance were attached.

The papers being sent to farmers to fill out and return to the inspector of taxation at Kingston are in the form of a questionare. They ask him to furnish information as to the total acreage of his farm, the number of acres under cultivation, the number and ages of dependent children in his family, and a long list of questions regarding stock on hand, stock sold in the year, farm machinery, all sources of income and channels of necessary expenditure In short he is asked to furnish a complete inventory of his entire worldly possessions with a view to arriving at the amount of his income and the proper tax to be collected therefrom.

Questions are listed in natural order and their detailed character makes the construction to be placed upon them quite simple.

Canada's income taxation system assures fair and indiscriminate application and men of all occupations in the country are required to fill out forms giving information regarding their income similar to that demanded of the farmers in the special forms adopted for use.

DROPPED DEAD IN CITY STORE

WILLIAM ELPHICK, AN AGED RESIDENT, VICTIM OF HEART FAILURE.

William Elphick, an aged resident of Peterborough, was stricken down with heart failure while making a purchase in one of the stores of the city this morning and died instantly.

Deceased was a man of 84 years, and while he had suffered somewhat from hardening of the arteries, a disease comparatively common with those who have reached an advanced age, he seemed in his usual health this morning when he left his home at 624 Rubidge street to go down town.

About a quarter to nine, Mr. Elphick entered the store to which he was bound and it was while there that he suddenly succumbed to an attack of heart trouble.

Dr. Carmichael was summoned at once, but found upon his arrival that life was extinct. The remains were removed to Comstocks' undertaking parlors after the coroner, Dr. Greer, had been communicated with.

Born in England in the town of Brighton, the late Mr. Elphick came to this country many years ago and for some time resided in Cobourg and in other towns of Eastern Ontario. He married Miss Hill, of Hastings, and 13 years ago came to Peterborough where he has resided ever since, having been employed in the Quaker Oats plant.

He leaves his wife and two nephews, H. E. Elphick, city, and R. H. Elphick, of St. Catharines.

All funeral arrangements have not been completed, but it has been decided that interment will be made in Hastings on Saturday afternoon.

TEN WOMEN ARE MADE PRISONERS

WERE CAPTURED WITH SPARTACAN FORCES AT FIGHT IN LICHTENBERG.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, March 13.—Government troops entered Lichtenberg after bombarding heavily the main Spartacan nests . The Spartacans fled, leaving behind them their weapons and ammunition. The suburb is surrounded by government troops and the only chance the Spartacans have of escape is by discarding their weapons and concealing their identity by mingling with the peaceable inhabitants. One group of thirty prisoners captured included ten women. With their hands handcuffed behind them, men and women were taken through Unter den Linden to the Moabit prison.

Mrs. Gillett, of Aylmer, died suddenly while visiting a friend.

BRITISH FREE TRADE PAPERS REMAIN TRUE TO THE FAITH

Sharply Criticize Special License Policy as Announced by Government as an Attempt to Introduce Protection Without Mandate From the People.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 13—Free trade newspapers are sharply criticizing the government's policy regarding importations, as disclosed by Sir Auckland E. Geddes, Minister for National Service and Reconstruction, in the House on Monday. He said that all importations of manufactured and semi-manufactured commodities which are permitted to enter Great Britain will be controlled by a system of special licenses until September 1, when the question will be reviewed.

The newspapers denounce this proposal as an attempt to introduce protection without any mandate from the voters, insist that the great majority of the voters are opposed to the protective system and declare that England is still a free trade country at heart. They say that "Great Britain gained her commercial and financial supremacy through free trade and can hold it only by free trade.

COUNT TISZA HATCHED PLOT

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berne, March 13.—Charges that the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, at Sarajevo, on June 28, 1914 was the result of a deliberate plot led by the late Count Tisza, former Hungarian premier, are made in a pamphlet written by a priest who was the spiritual adviser of the Duchess of Hohenberg, according to a Vienna despatch. Count Stephen Tisza, who was himself assassinated at Budapest on November 1, 1918, was for many years one of the leading figures in the Austro-Hungarian political life.

RENFREW MEMBER SEEKING LIGHT

BELIEVES TOO MANY NEWSPAPERMEN GET GOVERNMENT JOBS.

Ottawa, March 13.—Mr. I. E. Pedlow, South Renfrew, has given notice of inquiry relating to the Censor's department and the office of the cable censor. He wants to know how many employes of these offices are former newspapermen and how much a censor's office costs a year.

Mr. Pedlow is likewise inquisitive as to the number of propaganda publications issued by the government and the annual cost of each. He desires to be informed as to how many of these publications concern the Canadian soldiers; what is the remuneration of their editors, and how many of them are former journalists; also how many newspapermen are now employed by the government in the various departments arising ont of the war, with particular reference to the publicity department of the Repatriation Committee and Employment Committee.

Predicts Flight 300 Miles an Hour

THREE DIFFICULTIES IN WAY OF FLYING AT A HIGH ALTITUDE.

New York, March 13.—Only three difficulties now stand in the way of flying at a rate of 200 miles an hour Major R. W. Schroeder, army aviator and holder of the world's altitude record, declared at a meeting of the Aeronautical Society of America here The problems to be solved include a change in the pitch of airplane propellers; control of increased air pressure in carburetors and overcoming the aviator's almost overwhelming sense of hunger at high altitudes.

"As soon as exact data on trade winds at high altitudes is obtained, so that fliers can use them in long flights," he said, "distance flying will be one of the least troubles a flyer has to contend with. Three hundred miles an hour in an easterly direction —that is in the direction the earth travels—will be easy to make. That means Ireland, for instance, will be ten hour from New York."

BERLIN LEADERS OUTLINE POLICY

ADMIT ALL POWERS TO LEAGUE AND LIFT THE BLOCKADE.

Berlin, March 13.—The international conference of League of Nations Societies in session here, drew up two new resolutions to be addressed to the Peace Conference at Paris. One favored the participation of all self-governing nations in the league and the other was in favor of free trade.

The question of participation by the Vatican aroused much discussion, Prof. Forel, a Swiss delegate, opposing it on the ground that if the Holy See became a member Buddhism and other religious systems would have to be admitted. The conference finally decided by a vote of 13 to 8 to grant the Holy See some voice at least, in the councils of the league

During the discussion relative to free trade the existing blockade was strongly criticized as an "insult to international rights."

SPARTACANS ARE DRIVEN BACK

[redacted] HAVE BEEN GUILTY OF BESTIAL ACTS OF CRUELTY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Copenhagen, March 13.—German government forces, after lively fighting, have succeeded in driving the Spartacans out of the east and section of Berlin, including Liechtenberg, according to a Berlin despatch. The occupation of the district, the message states, was systematically carried out by the government troops. Considerable quantities of arms wer captured. Losses on the government side are declared not to have been heavy. "The bestial acts of cruelty by the Spartacans have been fully confirmed," the message adds.

The Spartacan forces were abandoning positions in Lichtenburg yesterday. Government forces took a large number of prisoners, many of whom were executed summarily.

TEMPERANCE ACT BEFORE CAUCUS

PREMIER HEARST EXPECTED TO MAKE DEFINITE STATEMENT OF POLICY.

Toronto, March 13.—Although nothing official was forthcoming, it is understood that the Ontario Temperance Act was again the chief topic of discussion at the Conservative caucus which lasted from 11 o'clock till shortly before the House convened yesterday afternoon. Premier and Ministers were mute, but several members intimated that the ball which Col. H. A. C. Machin started rolling in the House a week ago was the subject of contention when the Government forces gathered yesterday.

It is understood on the best of authority that Premier Hearst will, if not immediately, in the near future outline in general terms that the Government has come to a decision as to its policy in connection with the prohibition question. The Premier could not say, it is said, what exact form the referendum will take, but it is the intention of the Government to make it such that all branches of opinion will be afforded an ample opportunity of expression.

This, of course, means that there will be an opportunity for the people to vote on the question of the restricted sales of beers and light wines.

PLEADS GUILTY TO THE CHARGE

EMPLOYE AT CORDOVA MINES STOLE PROPERTY FROM THE COMPANY.

A man who has been in the employ of the Cordova Mines Company for the past eighteen years was before County Police Magistrate Langley this morning charged with having stolen a case of tools, the property of the concern.

He pleaded guilty to the accusation and County Constable Archie Moore asked for a remand of one week to obtain further evidence for the Crown. This was granted by His Worship, who will consult with the Crown Attorney as to the possibility of granting bail in the case until the prisoner comes up for sentence on Thursday next, at ten o'clock in the morning.

It appears that considerable property belonging to the Company and stored at their mine in Belmont Township has been disappearing of late, including a large quantity of oats and hay. The prisoner was a trusted employee of the concern and as such was given considerable latitude in dealing with the company's property.

On Monday the County Constable was called to the mines by the officials to trace a case of tools which had disappeared from the premises and part of which were the property of P. Kirkgaard, the manager. This he found in the express office at Havelock consigned to a man in Port Hope who is a friend of the prisoner and who is about to be married. The tools were being presented to him as a wedding present, according to the statement of Constable Moore.

On Tuesday morning the guilty party was taken into custody and this morning pleaded guilty to the accusation.

which he disposed of to one Joseph B. Petitclerc.

The accused was fined $100 by Magistrate Ashwith, with the alternative of three months in jail. It is understood the fine will be paid.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

THURSDAY, MARCH 13, 1919

A SANITARIUM FOR PETERBOROUGH.

THE EXCELLENT WORK that the members of the Peterborough Health Association have been carrying on for years has been handicapped by the lack of a sanitarium in which to care for the victims of the white plague. Four years ago there was a well-defined movement on foot to secure such an institution for Peterborough, but when the war broke out the project had to be abandoned. The matter is now being revived, with every prospect of success.

The members of the Peter Robinson Chapter of the I. O. D. E. have already announced their intention of raising funds by private contributions and otherwise for the erection of a sanitarium. Societies that were engaged in war work for the past four years have been asked to continue in existence, instead of disbanding, in order to help on with the local enterprise. A number of them have agreed to do so, and there is every assurance that co-operative and comprehensive action will not be lacking. The question in all its bearings has been discussed in a number of these organizations.

It is estimated that it will require $35,000 to establish such an institution. Of this, $20,000 could be secured by private contributions, the balance to be made up by a civic grant and by a grant from the Ontario Government. There is a law on the statute books of the Province which clearly provides regulations for the erection of such a building. Two or more municipalities are given authority to combine for the purpose. Municipal councils' authority in such cases is defined. The Ontario Government will augment the amount raised by any council by one-fifth, but will not give more than $4000 to any one municipality. For example, if Peterborough raised $20,000 for the purpose, by bylaw or otherwise, the Government would add $4000 to the amount, but no more than that, no matter what sum was given by the city. When the sanitarium is in operation the Government will contribue $3 a week for the maintenance of every patient who was a resident of Ontario before being admitted to the institution.

All such sanitariums are to be managed by a board of five, the members of which shall be appointed by the municipal council, which is also given the right to expropriate land either for an original location or to increase the site if the occasion for extension arises later.

The necessity for such an institution in Peterborough has long been recognized. The Health Association cannot fight effectively the dreaded disease without proper quarters in which to care for the afflicted. Tuberculosis can be cured, the malady finally eradicated in a community, if taken in time and treated in a sanitarium in which modern conveniences are available. It is almost impossible to get a Peterborough consumptive admitted to the institution at Gravenhurst. Peterborough must provide for its own sufferers.

There are contiguous to the city excellent sites for such an institution, one of the first essentials being an elevated location.

PRESIDENT WILSON admits that the British ideas prevail at the Peace Conference. Just as usual, the nation or individual that asks for the least gets the best that is going.

MARRIAGE IS COSTLY.

A CORRESPONDENT to a Toronto paper, signing himself "A Returned Soldier," complains of the difficulty met with these days in contracting matrimonial alliances. He says that nowadays a girl is not content to begin life where her parents started, or even where they left off. She wants to start life on a scale that is simply ruinous to any young man, except those earning enormous salaries, and there are not many of these hereabouts. Girls nowadays are demanding to be taken to the best shows. They want diamond engagement rings, and anything less than a $10 or $15 Christmas present is [illegible] boxes of chocolates. And when it comes to marriage, a house furnished on a costly scale, and so on, until it is no wonder the Canadian youths fight shy of marriage or keep postponing it. Girls want too much and they are rendering marriage impossible.

What "Returned Soldier" says is to a great extent true, and it is a matter of felicitation that it is so. The average modern girl is able to take care of herself, and has no inclination to surrender the freedom of an industrial life to a career of poverty, to resign herself to a world bounded by the four walls of a cottage, denied all the luxuries that every well-poised girl craves, and stinted even in the necessities which are or should be hers by right.

Fortunate indeed is it for the world that the modern girl looks for something better than the condition of servitude that was the lot of so many of the mothers of the former days. Her laudable ambitions should be a spur to the bachelors who have matrimonial aspirations to exert themselves so as to attain the position to which the girls of his acquaintance aspire, girls who are made the subjects of his protestations of devotion.

Marriage under the most auspicious circumstances has a stock of disappointments in store for every bride. More intimate acquaintance with the man of her choice will reveal imperfections, faults and failings that she has never dreamed of. Too many domestic idols turn out to be so much gilded clay, but the contract is for better or worse, and there is nothing for it but endurance to the end. We used to speak of them as the "coming women." That term is no longer appropriate, as they have already arrived. It is just as well for the man who hankers for a home of his own to recognise this fact and make his calculations accordingly.

BUT AFTER ALL, there is no country on earth like Canada, even with its uncertain spring weather.

THE EX-KAISER'S PUNISHMENT.

THE PEACE CONFERENCE, it seems, is to officially brand the ex-kaiser as the greatest CRIMINAL in the world. Further than that the delegates do not propose to proceed, lacking a precedent in international law. There is no tribunal before which the ex-emperor can be legally held to account. Aside from the brand, he is to escape the consequences of his deeds.

Little the ex-kaiser will reck if the Allies leave him undisturbed in his exile with nothing more severe in the way of a penalty than the publication broadcast of a fact with which the world is already familiar. The ex-kaiser has been acknowledged and detested as the greatest criminal on earth for the past four years, ever since the first Belgian woman was outraged, the first Belgian child slain in cold blood or mutilated by a German bayonet, and the first passenger liner was sent to the bottom of the ocean by a German torpedo. And the ex-kaiser all these years has gloried, rather than otherwise, in his notoriety. He deluded himself with the belief that he was the chosen instrument to visit the Divine wrath upon all but the disciples of Teutonic kultur. If he could be made to realise his mistake, if the brand of the Allies could arouse his slumbering conscience, he might be made to suffer, but that is a matter beyond human power. If he grieves now in the solitude of his exile, his sentiment is probably one of remorse rather than than sorrow for the evil he brought to the world.

But why this stickling for precedent? Anything of the kind was frankly ignored during the war by the personine master of cruelty. The aged and the young were not spared, and even the allied powers themselves did not hesitate to make new departures that brought hardship to their own people.

Is the man who set the world on fire to escape even a prison cell while the victims of his insane lust for power are crying for retribution? There was no precedent for sending Napoleon as an exile to Elba, or later to St. Helena, as he was not an actual prisoner of war any more than the ex-kaiser is. At Elba, Napoleon was separated from the scenes of his former triumphs by a comparatively wide stretch of sea. Yet he plotted in secret, and, effecting his escape, resumed his work of bloodshed.

The ex-kaiser is within sight of his own land. He has frequent consultation with those leaders who remain faithful to him. So long as he is situated as he is, even with the brand of Cain officially set upon him, the world can never slumber in perfect peace.

THE STATESMAN of the future will be the man who recognises that the consumer and the producer have something like equal rights.

FEEDING THE GERMANS.

DURING THE WAR the Allies, by establishing a blockade, endeavored to reduce Germany to the verge of starvation, as a matter of military necessity, a plan approved of by the rules of modern warfare. Now that object has been accomplished there is no reason on earth, no warrant in the laws of God or humanity, for continuing the policy of keeping the conquered people on short rations. It is in famine that revolution and vice are engendered. Starving the Germans will beyond question result in cultivating a menace to the safety of humanity.

The tactics followed by the Allies when the conflict was in progress have been styled Christian warfare, correctly so, according to the code. The same spirit of Christianity that saved unfortified towns form bombardment, that protected the non-combatant enemies from physical violence, that guaranteed the prisoners of war humane treatment, should be extended now by engaging in works of beneficence that are not marred by the shedding of blood. The Germans have, by their atrocities, forfeited the respect of all civilization, but this does not imply that it is the duty of civilization to continue the reprisal by keeping the people of that country in a state of semi-starvation.

The late war has been held up as a reproach to Christianity by the skeptical. All occasion for further cavil should be removed. Christianity has now an opportunity to assert itself, to demonstrate to the world that the tragedy on Calvary has not been in vain.

There is another and more practical aspect to this matter. To give the Germans a chance to pull themselves together, to establish a stable government, and to revive their industrial activities, is a good business proposition. Germany owes her former Allies a tremendous debt in the form of war indemnities. Germany will never be able to discharge her finacial obligations so long as her people are weakened by the lack of adequate food or while the population is held in a condition little better than the slavery of olden days.

The war debt burdens of Germany will cripple her for years. No business man would hold a creditor in the [illegible] position, if he ever dreamed of realising on his claim.

Germany's punishment has been terrible. That nation's dream of world conquest has been shattered. At present, the former empire, disintegrated and torn by civil strife, is bankrupt. The throne has been demolished, the former kaiser and his heir-apparent are in exile, with no spot on earth they can call their own. The military machine is in ruins, and everything worth while in the navy has gone to the Allies as prizes. Even the merchant fleet has been forfeited. Germany has been stripped of her colonies, and the last bitter portion to be added to the cup is the terms of peace to which the Germans will be forced to submit, terms that cannot fail to humiliate the once proud and boastful race to the last degree.

Hunger drove the French populace into the madness and brutality of revolution. The present day bolshevist is the product of the same school of physical suffering as that from which the peasants of France graduated over a century ago.

WHEN the rattlesnake's fangs are drawn it is as full of sight as ever, but it is harmless to work mischief. So with Germany deoiled of her poison gas.

HOW TO LIVE ONE HUNDRED YEARS

"The man who dies young, say before he is one hundred dies by his own hand in nine cases out of ten, or more properly, by his own knife and fork.

"In nature's scheme of things there is nothing extraordinary about a man or woman living to be one hundred years old. Nature allotted man a span of fivescore years. It is not I, but the man who dies before he is ninety, who is a 'departure from the normal' as we physicians say."

This is the dictum of Dr. Stephen Smith, who is 96 now, having celebrated his most recent birthday on February 19, one year after he had resigned the chairmanship of the New York State Board of Charities after thirty-seven years of unremitting service.

"They say age is arterial, cellular, psychological, or that one is as old as one feels and so on. I have studied the problem perhaps longer than most men, and certainly with a profound personal interest in it, and I say that a man is as old as what he eats.

When Man Renews Himself.

"It has been figured out for the whole animal kingdom that animal bones and tissues are renewed five times in the normal span of animal life and that every animal's destiny contemplates that the animal barring accident or abuse, shall endure through the whole five renewals.

"Various animals renew themselves in various periods of years. Science and not my word for it, is authority for the fact that man renews himself every twenty years. He should be at his prime then at 50 instead of 40, as is generally held, and should not begin to show the wear and tear of time until he is past 80 or on the homestretch of his course.

"So I have every expectation of living until I am 100 or more. If I die before then I shall have cheated destiny and have outraged nature.

Man as Old as He Eats.

"How then does it come that a man is as old as what he eats? And what is my authority for the pronouncement that most of us destroy ourselves with our knives and forks?

"It is established beyond any necessity for my quoting the authorities or pretending to be one of them myself that we live upon the protein, the fats and the carbohydrates in food. These are found more or less in all food products, and the lower nature, seek their nutriment in food which is suitable to them and their assimilative machinery. You do not see a dog, for instance munching hay or a horse gnawing a bone.

"But man with his ingenuity in the cooking and preparation of food has allowed himself to become artificial during the centuries he has sat at tables and has let himself be misled by his palate and his cook's skill—a doubtous skill—in seasoning his food. He eats everything and drinks everything, a large proportion of his food and drink being no more than rank poison. Not that it is so much poison as it appears upon his plate, but a great deal of it disintegrates into poison when he places upon his digestive apparatus the burden of taking the nutriment out of it.

Must Not Eat Too Much.

"Quantity, next to kind of food, merits the closest study by every one who wants to live long and be healthy. If each person will set himself firmly against gluttonous habits and discover by experiment, and particularly by the practice of a little self-denial, how much he ought to eat and how often he will be adding to the sum of his years and to the happiness of the years.

"Give any man a knife and fork and tell him to take his own life with them. He will laugh at you. Even if he is bent on suicide at the moment it is likely that he will choose some more romantic weapon with which to cut the thread of life. Yet thousands of people all around us are killing themselves every day with the ordinary implements of the table. I have never done so, and I have completed ninety-six of the more than hundred years I expect to be upon God's earth."

TO-DAY'S STORY

The prize for optimism is awarded to a resident of one of the rural district of Wales. As the story goes, an old man was sitting on the roof of his house during a flood, watching the waters flow past, when a neighbor, who possessed a boat, rowed across to him.

"Halloa, Ted," he said.

"Halloa, Dave," replied the other. "All your fowls washed away this morning, Ted?"

"Yes, but the ducks can swim."

"Apple trees and all that gone, too, eh?"

"Well, they said the crops would be a failure, anyhow."

"That's all right, Dave. Them windows needed washin' badly."

FEMININE LOGIC

We remarked to the young lady across the way that we didn't believe she had a very categorical mind and she said she'd always liked dogs better.

Daylight Saving May Be Dropped

Ottawa, March 13.—It is beginning to look as if the daylight saving bill will fall by the wayside. The rural members are strongly opposed to the measure, and are urging the Government to drop the bill. It is understood that Hon. T. A. Crerar shares their views. In the United States the daylight saving will come into effect again.

WIT AND WISDOM

Oh, Moses!

Teacher—Now, children, what are the national flowers of England?

Class—Roses.

Teacher—And France?

Class—Lillies.

Teacher—And Spain?

Silence for a minute in the class. Then a small boy at the back of the schoolroom said:

"Bulrushes, ma'am."

True.

"Has he a lot of money?"

"No, but he has the next best thing."

"What is that?"

"The ability to make people think he's rich."

Useful Friends.

"I hope you are selecting playmates at your new school whose companionship will be of value to you," said Jimmy's mother.

"Oh, sure," replied Jimmy. "Skinny Davies is teaching me how to smoke fags and worv the smoke down my nose, and Dodger Higgins says if I'll give him my roller skates he'll teach me the punch that knocked out Bombardier Wells."

Beauty With a Blemish.

"Mrs. Brown is a beauty, isn't she?"

"I don't like her nose."

"Why? I think it's quite pretty."

"Oh, the shape's all right; but it's into everything."

Biblical Mixup.

Church—You quarrel with your wife I suppose, sometimes?

Gotham—Oh, yes.

"And you make up eventually, I suppose?"

"Ah, sur; I turn to her my right cheek, and then I turn to her the left cheek also."

"Then it's all over, I suppose?"

"No; not until she gets a dollar for each kiss."

Hard to Get.

"Pa, what is surplus cash?"

"That, my boy, is money that I'm always hoping to have, but never do."

Turned Down.

First artist—Old Roxley wouldn't buy my pictures—wouldn't even look at them.

Second ditto—Well, he was more considerate of your feelings than of mine; he refused to buy my pictures even after he had looked at them.

The average man doesn't tell his wife everything that happens. He evens it up by telling her a lot of things that didn't happen.

ONE YEAR OFF FOR SOLDIERS

VETERANS CAN NOW COMPLETE MEDICAL COURSE IN FIVE YEARS.

Returned soldiers who enter the Faculty of Medicine at the University of Toronto next fall will not be required to take the six-year course A special five year course will be continued for them and they will start in with the members of the present first year who are "plucked" at the coming exams.

Several years ago it was announced that the six-year course would start in 1919, and all civilians who intended entering medicine were able to enter for the last year of the five year course. Men who were in the army were unable to do this, and it is to give them a "square deal" that the special course is being put on.

Any soldier, regardless of whether he has been overseas or not, will be allowed to take advantage of this offer. He must of course have full junior matriculation requirements. Late registration has not been allowed to the same extent in medicine as in the other faculties, and a number of men who returned too late to enter medicine this year have expressed their intention of doing so in the fall.

Cambridge, Mass., March 13.—Dr. Alice Hamilton of Chicago is to be the first woman accepted on any faculty at Harvard University. Her appointment as assistant professor of industrial medicine was announced following a meeting of the university's board of overseers. She will become a member of the staff of the Harvard Medical School. Dr. Hamilton, up to 1910, was better known as a bacteriologist, but since that time she has become an authority on occupational diseases, at the present time being in government service in ha sor of work.

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

It is not right, as I explained in a preceding talk, to feel that mortification is due to set in as soon as you have attained middle age. Instead of a man or a woman looking forward toward a change of life after 40—and women should not imagine that they have any corner on this change of life foolianness, for men break down and suffer even more troubles at middle age than do women — it would be far better to plan for another forty years of activity. It takes forty years to attain maturity. It is but fair to allow another forty years for the fullest activity of life. And then take forty more to die, quietly and by degrees like an old tree. This habit of breaking down at 45 or 50 and succumbing, not to "overwork" or "nervous exhaustion" or anything like that, but to apoplexy, Bright's disease or heart muscle failure—the expressions of cardiovascular degeneration or the mortification of middle age—is growing, according to mortality statistics of the United States census bureau for the last sixteen or eighteen years. And it is a bad habit, arising from a wrong state of mind. It is chiefly a matter of dignity.

Dignity is age, and age is dignity. The baby has none, and grandma or grandpa is bowed down with it. Corsets change a girl from a carefree child to a dignified woman. Long pants spell dignity to the growing boy. Grave tail coats, tall starched collars, insipid, narrow toed, high heeled shoes, hats worn to appease a fool custom—each and every one of them restricts natural freedom of action more or less. That is how they each and all predispose to premature old age.

Youth is a bundle of elastic tissue. Youth has flexibility; old age has fragility. Youth bends and springs back again; old age breaks.

Have you lost your elastic tissue yet? Don't you know Would you like to find out? How old are you? Have you any idea? Years do not matter. Anatomical, functional age is what we are taking about. How old are you? Are you still young? It all depends on the amount of elastic you have about your person. Easy enough to find out about that. Get down and turn half a dozen somersaults on the floor each morning and each night. As long as you can do that you must be a fairly elastic creature. If you can't do it, for goodness' sake do something right away. The best thing to do in such a predicament is to have a careful physical examination made by your doctor, for there surely must be something the matter with you.

Dandruff in Eyebrows.

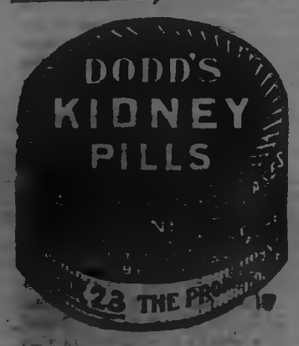
"Please recommend something to relieve a condition like dandruff in the eyebrows. E. W. B."

Rub in once a day a few drops of a solution of ten grains of salicylic acid in an ounce of any toilet water.

Influenza Diagnosis.

"How is a mild case of influenza recognized? Do not some physicians diagnose influenza when it is not warranted? Can one have influenza without having any fever at any time is there not an age limit. F. E. M."

There is no absolutely infallible test by which a physician can determine that this mild respiratory infection is and this other mild respiratory infection is not, influenza. It is wholly a matter of judgment, and, of course, we all diagnose influenza when the illness proves trivial, at times. However, no apology is called for; as a matter of fairness every respiratory infection, of whatever character or degree, should be isolated and quarantined. Influenza may occur without any fever. The disease has no age limit. It seems to be most prevalent among vigorous young adults from 20 to 40, but this is probably because persons of this age travel about and commingle more, and hence are more likely to be infected by their friends and associates.



WOMEN'S COUNCIL IS IN SESSION

DISCUSSION AT OTTAWA MEETING ON PROPOSED CHANGES IN CONSTITUTION.

Ottawa, March 13.—The National Council of Women, who are meeting in executive committee at Ottawa, opened their first session in the parlor of the Y. W. C. A. with the president, Mrs. W. E. Sanford of Hamilton, in the chair. The morning session was taken up with reports of the last executive and correspondence. The first business considered was the report of the committee on the revision of the constitution which must be presented to the executive three months before the anual meeting, which will be held this year in the city of Regina, Sask., beginning June 17th. Mrs. R. S. McWilliams, Winnipeg, the chairman of the committee of the revised constitution, presented her report. There was an animated discussion over the matter of provincial councils being mentioned in the articles on membership.

Monday evening the representatives from the local councils in Ontario met and formed a provincial executive committee and elected the vice-president of Ontario, Mrs. J. J. Carrick of Port Arthur, to the chair, and Mrs. Rhoda Fairbairn, Toronto, as secretary-treasurer. The National Council executive held their evening session in St. George's Hall, and the discussion on the new constitution was finally completed to be sent out to the local councils, and will be adopted at the annual meeting.

The agenda of this executive presents a great deal of work which will keep the National Council executive in session until this evening. All the sessions of the executive are for members only.

HOW TO BECOME A BOY SCOUT

When a boy goes to a church or any other organization where there is a troop of scouts he must attend twice before he is considered as a recruit.

Before a recruit can be sworn in he must know how to tie the following knots: bowline, sheep shank, sheet bend, reef knot, fisherman's knot, clove hitch. Then he has to learn the scout laws, which are as follows:

A scout's honor is to be trusted.

A scout is loyal to the king, to his country and his officers, employers and parents.

A scout is courteous.

A scout is a friend to animals.

When a scout gets an order from his parents, patrol leader, or scoutmaster, he obeys it without question.

A scout smiles and whistles under all circumstances.

A scout is a friend and a brother to every other scout no matter to what social class the other belong.

A scout is thrifty.

He must learn the right way to fly the Union Jack.

The Union Jack is correctly flown only when the broad white part of St. Andrew's flag is nearest the top of the pole. To have the narrowest part near the top is a signal of distress.

The aim of the boy scouts is to make good straight honest upright men out of crooked boys.

Any boy wishing to join the boy scouts should report at St. James' Church at seven o'clock Friday night No boy under twelve is allowed to join. Any boy scout should not miss the great serial picture entitled "The boy scout to the rescue."

WOULD CALL CONVENTION OF ALL CANADIAN WORKERS

Methodists Would Have Such Gathering Decide on a Policy of Reconstruction in Industrial and Religious Spheres.

Toronto, March 13.- That a great assembly of industrial, religious and educational workers should be called in Canada to outline of progressive platform looking to the reorganization of the industrial and economic life of the country, is the opinion of the Army and Navy Board of the Methodist Church, and a request for such an assembly will be forwarded to Ottawa by the board. This was decided upon at a meeting of the Army and Navy Board yesterday.

The resolution adopted "respectfully memorializes" the Federal Government to convene as assembly representing various elements of industry, together with representatives of the great religious and educational forces of the country to present to the Government some policy relative to the reorganization of industrial and economic life of Canada in the light of new experiences and new aspiration awakened by the war. The resolution also calls upon the Executive of the board to take steps to convene a gathering of representatives of the religious denominations to discuss the matters with which the national assembly must deal.

Take Care of Orphans.

The board also decided to urge upon the national Government of Canada that those members of the C.E.F. who were preparing themselves by study, may complete their university and professional studies, their pay being continued if necessary, and that orphan children of members of the C.E.F. be assured of the means of secondary and higher education.

The board recommended that the Board of Education of the Methodist Church make plans for summer courses during the coming summer in at least three theological colleges, and that no entrance examination for ministers and probationers be required to attend these courses, and that any credential given in these courses be recognized, and that post-ordination courses for ministers ,those on military service and others, be arranged, and colleges and conference authorities be urged to co-operate in these plans .

Study for Overseas Men.

It was also recommended that ministers and probationers who have been on military service pursue some course of study, the board to maintain them to the extent of at least 50 per cent. if necessary during the college course.

The report of the Overseas Commission was presented and approved of. A cordial appreciation was expressed of the Federal War Service Commission of Churches in Canada, and Messrs. Dr. Chown, Dr. Moore and Oliver Hezzelwood were appointed members of this Commission.

BISHOP PRAISES TROOPS AT CAMP KINMEL, WALES

Residents Were Proud to Have Heroic Canadian Soldiers With Them—Cause of Recent Riot.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 13.—The Bishop of St. Asaph ,in the neighborhood of of Kinmel Camp, writing to the Times, pays the highest tribute to the Canadians there in regard to their treatment of the inhabitants of that part of Wales, who, he declares were proud to have these fighting Canadians in their midst.

Respecting the recent riots, he points out that discomforts and continual delay in sending these men to their homes, after being led to believe that they were going immediately, is a grievous trial on the patience of any men, especially when they read in the Canadian papers of "conscripts" arriving home after doing no fighting and being acclaimed with the rest as Canada's heroes. This smouldering quickly burst into flames.

NEW ORDER IN FORCE

No More Light Fines for Evaders in Quebec Court.

Quebec, March 13.—Judge Charles Langlier, announced that all draft evaders that came up before him for hearing hereafter would be dealt with according to the recent Order in Council that has been passed at Ottawa. He said that the only fines he was at liberty to impose on absentees ranged between $250 and $5,000. He says that last week the cases where he fined evaders between $5 and $50 were cases he had heard previous to the recent order in Council.

Deed

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. In connection with a raid on a large scale when the trenches under cover of an intense artillery barrage and the use of liquid fire this N.C.O. with absolute disregard for personal safety rallied men around him while exposed to the enemy's heavy barrage and rifle fire, and when the counter attack was launched led his men forward with great courage. After the line was re-established he worked incessantly under the enemy's barrage, re-organizing.

CHILD GETS SICK CROSS, FEVERISH IF CONSTIPATED

"CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS" CAN'T HARM TENDER STOMACH OR BOWELS.

A laxative tonay saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold, or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

Stratford Police To Form Union

Stratford, March 13.—Increases of $50 a year to members of the police force have been granted by the commission, making the new scale as follows:

Sergeants and detective, $1,400; constables, first class, $1,200; second class, $1,140; third class, $1,080; fourth class, $1,020.

Members of the force are far from satisfied with the increase which they point out amounts to only 95c a week Some of the men today were quite hostile and declared that the question of forming a local union to bring about a show-down might be the result.

Help Him to Help Himself

We owe the returned soldier every effort we can make towards securing steady employment for him.

Do not try to throw the burden entirely on employers. They have a grave responsibility, but only insofar as every man, woman and child gives willing help can Canada ensure a fair day's pay for a good day's work for all her men.

How can YOU help? By investing in War-Savings Stamps.

How will THAT help? Canada must secure foreign purchasers for the products of her forests, farms, and factories. Many nations are anxious to buy our goods, but can only do so if Canada grants credit to them.

Lend your money to Canada, so that Canada may re-lend to those who must buy on credit. The money is being raised by the sale of War-Savings Stamps, so that when you invest in a War-Savings Stamp you provide a day's pay for some returned soldier.

A War-Savings Certificate with 10 W.S.S. affixed will be redeemed by the Dominion of Canada on January 1st, 1924, for $50.00, for at that date the W.S.S. are worth $5.00 each.

War-Savings Stamps cost $4.02 in March; $4.03 in April; $4.04 in May, and they may be purchased at any place displaying the Beaver-Triangle sign.

TWO MILLION WOMEN WHO CANNOT GET HUSBANDS

War Leaves British Girls Tremendously Short of Prospective Helpmates, So They Must Choose Business Careers.

(By K. Ehnis)

The end of the war found England with over six million women in industry. Of this number, one quarter were replacing men, over a million were in munitions work, 220,000 were serving in the different women's armies, whilst many thousands more were employed as temporary clerks, whose engagements terminated with the war. Making the most optimistic allowances for the commercial boom which should follow peace, there remains a prospect of fierce competition in the labor market, and the holder of a permanent position, gazing out on the quicksands of unemployment is now, if ever, disposed to appreciate the security of her position.

The majority of permanent government clerks are in the employ of the postmaster general whose staffs at the savings bank department, telephone and money order and Scotch and Irish branches, total in all 3,427. In pre-war days these clerkships, carrying with them a salary of from $325 to $550 a year, were eagerly competed for. Even in those times, however, the woman clerk was resentful of the sex disqualification which limited her maximum salary to $550 and her energies to work of an entirely monotonous nature. With her enfranchisement has come a greater impatience of the double standard of pay, whereby, as a woman, she receives about one-third less than a man for the same work, while any appointment in the higher civil service is denied her. Moreover, while appreciating her immunity from unemployment, she is far from content with her lot, even as compared with that of women in outside offices.

One of the most striking effects of the war has been a transformation in the efficiency of the ordinary business girl. She has, in many cases, been called upon to do work of a more responsible and ambitious kind, than was offered her in pre-war days, and, with the performance of it, has come enterprise and self-reliance. In the case of the majority of women clerks, however, the only change has been in the quantity of work demanded. The quality has remained monotonous and stultifying. Especially is this the case in the savings bank department which employs a staff of 1,631.

Since the appearance of the first war loan in 1915 the routine work involved increasing with each succeeding loan, has been so overwhelming that it almost seemed to have left those concerned in it dispossessed of every faculty save that of writing dockets and computing dividends. In this way the last three and a half years have badly handicapped the savings bank clerks. Looking out from her safe ,but dreary post at a tantalizing vista of new opportunities she bitterly feels herself lacking the qualities essential in the competition for these openings. In this sense the very word "permanent" comes to suggest a life sentence. Nor is the prospect of reprieve by marriage anything but remote.

Already, before the war, the woman of this country had to face a shortage of 1,200,000 men. The casualties of the past 4 1-2 years have raised this close to 2,000,000. This shortage accounts, in part, for the fact that between 96 and 97 per cent. of the government girl clerks remain unmarried.

The staff of the savings bank are inclined, further, to attribute their spinsterhood to the conventual seclusion in which, till very recently, they were immured during office hours. So rigidly was the male element excluded that when some years ago, the women as cheap labor, were encroaching on the premises of the men, they were preceded in their advance by a six-foot wooden screen which, with much carpentry, was moved as they covered section by section of the ground. The extreme precaution was moreover taken of transferring the one male clerk who might have used an advantage of six feet in height for unauthorized glimpses.

A minor sensation of the war occurred when the advent of the temporary staff and the decrease in the male staff led to the intermingling of the sexes, followed by several matrimonial engagements. The real advantage however, was that, in discontinuing the segregation, the government will be forced to abandon its excuse for a dual system of pay on the grounds of unequal work.

17-YEAR LOCUSTS ARE LOOKED FOR

EXPERTS SAY PEST WILL NOT INVADE ONTARIO THIS YEAR.

That the plague of "seventeen-year" locusts which is expected to sweep over the United States in the latter part of May and the early part of June will not touch Ontario is the assurance which comes on the subject form the Department of Agriculture.

Discussing the situation W. B. Roadhouse, Deputy Minister of Agriculture read an extract from a letter he received from Prof. Caesar, Provincial Entomologist at Queiph, with whom he had been conferring on the probable local effect. The communication draws attention to the fact that they are not grasshoppers and it is very improbable that they will reach Ontario at all, judging from the past history of the pest, only a few wandering stragglers would reach the border. The letter states that the pest is indeed a dangerous one to young trees but confidence is expressed that no alarm need be felt in Ontario over their approach.

Fruit Dealers Not Alarmed

That no notice of impending scarcity of fruit due to the inroads of these pests have been received by fruit-dealers seems to be significant of the lack of alarm felt at their supply bases. The fruit shipper into Toronto is largely from the Niagara Peninsula in the summer, but at the present season, is almost entirely from the United States, so that it is thought by the local dealers that if any serious scarcity in this direction were anticipated they would receive notification.

According to reports from the United States Department of Agriculture, the pest is expected to be one of the worst on record and plans for combating its inroads are being formed by leading scientists, who, however, claim to see nothing alarming in the prospect if the proper methods of fighting are used.

Some interesting superstitions are abroad concerning the seventeen-year locust, due largely to a popular belief that the pest appears only before great disasters. Some persons see portentous significance in the fact that the filmy bars on the wings of the insect form a fairly well shaped W., meaning war. Others recall the work done among the Egyptians by the plague in Biblical days, when they hear the sound of the locusts' cry, which is said to resemble the pronunciation of "Pharaoh."

To Ward Off Invasion

The injuries caused by the insect consist almost wholly in chiseling grooves in the branches of trees for a place in which to deposit eggs. Although the young fruit trees are often killed by the process, entomologists state that the insect is not so harmful as is generally imagined. As precautionary measures in exposed regions it is suggested that budding and pruning operations be postponed this year and that, young trees be not set out. As soon as the insects begin to appear on the trees they should be either handpicked or sprayed fith kerosine emulsions or other destructive chemicals. Another plan of combatting them is to whitewash the trees just as soon as the insects begin to lay the eggs.

Belief that the 1919 brood will be exceptionally large is based on the fact that the 17-year-brood coming out this year is brood 10, perhaps the largest of the 17-year brood, and that brood 18 of the 17-year family comes out at the same time. The year 1868 was the greatest locust year in history, when brood 19, the largest of the 17-year family, appeared, in conjunction with brood 10 of the 17-year family.

SOME VIEWS ON PEACE LEAGUE

Summing up the diverse criticism of the League of Nations scheme a correspondent writes as follows in F. P. A.'s "Conning Tower" in the New York Tribune.

Sir:—Careful inquiry concerning the opposition to the league of nations reveals that the objections to it are few, viz.:

1. It will force the United States into war against the will of Congress.
2. It will prevent the United States from going to war, as for example against Mexico or Santo Domingo.
3. It will make the British Empire the dominant power of the world.
4. It will dismantle the British fleet and place the world at the mercy of Germany.
5. By admitting Germany it will hand back at the peace table what has been won on the field of battle.
6. By excluding Germany it will make certain the formation of a Teutonic alliance against the league.
7. It will mean the end of the Monroe Doctrine.
8. It will extend the Monroe Doctrine to the whole world.
9. It will prevent the United States from taking its place in world affairs.
10. It will force the United States to take part in all the international affairs of the world.

"A few slight changes in the language of the pact to meet these objections are all that seem to be needed."

The milk of human kindness would be a good deal richer if it weren't skimmed so often.

The premium you would pay for $1000 of insurance at age 60 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $4000 of insurance at age 21

The premium you pay for $1000 of insurance at age 50 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $2660 at age 21.

The premium you pay for $1000 of insurance at age 35 WOULD BUY YOU $1440 at age 21.

Besides, while you may be insurable at age 21 you may not be insurable AT ANY PRICE at the other ages mentioned.

WORLD'S CHURCH LEAGUE TO BE ONE RESULT OF WAR

Speaker at Religion Conference in Chicago Says Half the Churches in America Should Be Burned Down.

A world league of churches is to be the result of the war, in the opinion of Dr. S. Earl Taylor, general secretary of the Methodist Centenary Movement, who arrived in Chicago to attend the conference of the Inter-Church World Movement which began its formal sessions at the Hotel La Salle. He will speak at the banquet to be given to the delegates from eight states—Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri Ohio and Wisconsin.

The day is at hand for a tremendous new movement," he explained "and nothing can stop it. Efficiency in matter of moral and spiritual welfare as well as in commerce and industry is the note being sounded. And it is that call that the leaders of all the great denominations are answering and answering eagerly. The time has been when the mass of the people were divided. Now the spirit of co-operation is abroad in the air, and sectarianism and the accompanying bigotry which it engenders will not be tolerated.

People Turn to Religion

"In addition to this spirit of unity there is the call for definite teaching on the spiritual realities. In other words, materialism has run its course and people are returning again to thought of religion. The war has shaken them out of self-indulgence, and ease and mere love of pleasure. The time is ripe for the greatest religious movement in the history of four centuries. And either the church will take advantage of its opportunities and make a tremendous advance or it will fall back and lose its place at the head of civilization."

Several hundred ministers and laymen assembled for the first session and it was expected that the registration would reach 1,000 before the close of the conference. Fred B. Smith of New York, formerly an international secretary of Y.M.C.A., now a New York business man was the principal speaker.

"One of the best things that could happen to America would be to have several thousand of its churches burn down," was his startling assertion. "We make surveys showing the number of new churches needed but we give no place to the number that ought to be burned down, torn down or blown down. If some of the half dead organizations could lose their buildings there might be a chance to unite them with other churches nearby and in a given place have one live church instead of two expiring ones.

Systematic Union Needed

"The work of world union must be carried out systematically. There must be the local unit in the city or county, where church work together, giving expression on questions of civic reform; law enforcement, local moral questions, and the like. State organization must then follow. We already have a national organization in the Federated Council of Churches. The big step then is for an international organization, lifting up its voice in questions of international morality and insisting on world peace."

The steps in realization of the world league will be through local federation movements; a survey of world conditions, causing elimination of competition in local church fields and in foreign missionary activities and outlining all needs; a campaign of education and the financial canvass in 1920 for probably $750,000,000 to realize the cause of world wide Christianity.

BIG CHURCH UNION SCHEME

(New York Life.)

These two great branches of the Christian Church (Protestant and Roman Catholic) might get together. It may seem a large order, but what is a large order any more? Would it be more remarkable for the amalgamated Protestants and the Roman Catholics to find again a basis for fellowship, than it was so lately for the great nations of the earth to agree on a league for peace? Is anything outside of expectation and calculation in a country that passed a dry amendment last month, and in a world that has adopted a league of nations?

No, anything can happen, and it is not really so big a job for the churches of Christendom to get together as for the nations to do it. The Methodists are as good as anybody to do the pioneer work in such an undertaking. They are driving people, and good with machinery. The Catholics, with their profound understanding of human life and their large tolerance of human infirmity, would do the Methodists lots of good, and the Methodists, who are the very seed of democracy, would doubtless rub off more or less democratic irregency on the Catholics. Moreover, both these sects in this country, and the Baptists, too, find their chief errand among the masses of the people. If the Methodists have a plan about wages, that should interest the Catholics, too, a large proportion of whom work for wages. The Catholics, never would have passed the prohibition amendment, but are not less interested than others in abating the mischiefs of rum, nor would necessarily repine at having "the organized liquor traffic" abolished.

Before the war it would have required some hardihood to say that there are no fundamental differences of faith between Catholics and Methodists, but the war has made it easier both to say that and to see it. The differences mainly concern methods of procedure—business methods, one might call them. The celibacy of the clergy has nothing to do with belief. It is a rule adopted because it seemed expedient. The papers of this day of writing report that the Catholic clergy of southern Hungary have addressed a petition to the Hungarian church council, in which they condemn this rule "as an endemocratic institution, and demand its abolition."

Catholics and Protestants have been separated less than four centuries. They quit killing one another a good while since. In separation they have developed differently, perhaps to the advantage of mankind: but for years they have been getting together, and that process has been wonderfully promoted by the war That they should find a basis of fellowship, and that the missionary venture which the Methodists are pushing should wind up in a church league which would really amount to church unity, is no more incredible than anything else. A world with enough Methodist in its Catholics to abate the fear of them, and with enough Catholic in its Methodists to civilize them, might be much improved and very pleasant.

MOCK PARLIAMENT AT GEORGE STREET

NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT IN THE SUNDAY SCHOOL ROOM TOMORROW EVENING.

The Epworth League of the George Street Methodist Church will present with the assistance of friends who are implicated in the presentation, an entertainment in the form of a Mock Parliament, in the Sunday school room on the evening of Friday next, 14th inst. The evening will be both unique and interesting.

The house will be formed on strict parliamentary lines and procedure, with, for the first time in Canada, ladies among the members returned from constituencies. It is expected that, with feminine ability, these will add to the velocity and interest of debate.

Age and youth will combine efforts to present ideas, suggestions and eloquence. Measures of large moment and of weighty consequence will be brought before the house for disposal.

The honorable the lieutenant-governor will open the house with a speech from the throne that will be a masterpiece. It will contain promises never intended to be kept, will stand off other promises hopelessly fractured and broken, outline propositions making for the general happiness of mankind, and forecast doings of portentous significance to the country at large. This address must be heard to be appreciated.

Measures that will, if passed, affect the district and neighborhood, will be submitted in the shape of certain private bills, while in other equally elegant bills the public will be well looked after.

There are assurances that the lieutenant-governor will represent what he represents with dignity and courtesy. The Speaker will be as austere as he knows how to be, the clerk of the house grave and dignified, the sergeant-at-arms a man of large importance and marked efficiency. The premier will, as all premiers do, stand off criticism and inveigle the leader of the opposition to wield a critical axe with consideration and discretion. The members as a body will look pleasant.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

GRAND TRUNK'S BONDS FALL DUE

QUESTION IS WILL ROAD BE ROAD BE ABLE TO MEET INDERTEDNESS.

Ottawa, March 13.—The railway situation as far as the Grand Trunk Railway is concerned, may reach a crisis early in April. At the beginning of next month the interest on bonds of the Lake Superior section of the Grand Trunk Pacific which runs from Fort William to Graham on the National Transcontinental Railway, fall due.

These bonds are guaranteed by the Grand Trunk. The line for the past two years has been operated by the Government on a rental basis but this does not relieve the Grand Trunk of its financial obligations. The Government has served notice it will advance no more loans.

There is much interest in Parliamentary cirlces as to whether the Grand Trunk will meet this obligation. There is a general belief that before that date the Grand Trunk directors will be prepared to talk business. The Government is prepared to repeat its offer of a year ago, which is the proposal of the Drayton-Ackworth report and which is regarded as not only fair but generous under the circumstances.

Not by the Department

The Grand Trunk Pacific operation under the receivership of Hon. J. D. Reid is running along smoothly. There has been an impression that the road is under the direction of the Department of Railways and Canals, as was the Intercolonial This is incorrect. Hon. J. D. Reid is the receiver, just as if any outside individual or firm were named, and the department has no connection with the receivership.

Orders have been given to the banks to make payments so that the receivership will not mean any delay as far as firms doing business with the Grand Trunk Pacific are concerned.

Final Decision Later

As soon as the whole question of the Grand Trunk is settled, the future method of handling the system will be decided. In the meantime the G. T. P. will have no connection with the Canadian National Railways.

COST OF LIVING IN EDMONTON

TAKES $1,751 TO KEEP WIDOW AND THREE CHILDREN ONE YEAR.

Ottawa, March 13.—The cost of living in Edmonton for a widow and three children is $1,751 per annum, according to Mayor Joseph A. Clarke. A petition for an increase in pensions for war widows and their families in the Edmonton district was laid before the Pensions Committee of Parliament and the cost of living for such a family was placed at the figure mentioned. The Mayor endorsed this figure in a letter which was read, and described it as "very moderate." It does not include any allowance for pleasure or recreation. The scale was referred to the Labor Department to report.

Mr. Kenneth Archibald of the Pensions Board, gave evidence before the committee. In reply to Hon. N. W. Rowell who presided he said that since the last meeting of the committee there had been no large changes in the pensions system of the Allied countries except France. In France the scope had been enlarged, but the pensions themselves were not increased very much.

ALBERTA'S FIRST DIVORCE.

Geo. C. Clark Says Wife Admits She Loves Another.

Edmonton, Alta., March 13.—Prominent figures in financial an dpolitical circles are intimately concerned in the first divorce case to be heard in the Supreme Court of Alberta, according to hints given in evidence taken before Mr. Justice Walsh yesterday morning. The application for dissolution of marriage is brought by George Cyrus Clark, who is represented by H. H. Robertson, KC., and A. C. McDonald. No one appeared for the defendant, Mrs. Grace Clark, and it is not expected that any defence will be offered.

The plaintiff stated that he had no children. He said that his wife admitted that she was in love with another man. Upon various occasions she had left him.

ONTARIO HOUSING BILL BECOMES LAW THIS WEEK

Houses to be Erected Will Be Equipped With All Modern Conveniences.

Toronto, March 13.—Having passed through the committee stage of the legislature with few changes the government bill to provide for the erection of dwelling houses will be given third reading this week. It will receive the assent of the lieutenant-governor at once, so that municipalities can immediately avail themselves of its provisions. The government hopes that in this manner much work will be furnished to laborers and that an early start will be made on the building of houses, of which there is great scarcity all over the province.

Under the bill, which will become law within a few days, any municipality can come within the provisions of the act by the council passing a bylaw, the assent of the electors not being necessary. Having signified its intention of availing itself of the act, the council must next pass a bylaw appointing a housing commission, which shall be composed of the head of the municipality, and two or four persons residents in the city or town, who are not members of the council. The members of the commission, other than the head of the council, shall hold office for two years, except that at the outset one of the two members, or two of the four members, as the case may be, shall be designated to hold office for one year. Thus continuity of service will be established.

Special provision is made for cities having a population of not less than 100,000. In such places, the commission may be composed of five persons resident in the municipality who are not members of the council, and who shall be appointed for five years, except that in the first instance, certain members shall be so designated that one will retire each year.

In addition to the money which the Dominion government is prepared to loan to the provinces, of which Ontario's share is $8,500,000, the Ontario government will itself provide an additional $2,500,000 if required. The money may be advanced to a municipal corporation to the full cost of the land acquired and the house erected by its commission. As collateral security for the payment of the loan, the corporation shall issue and deposit with the provincial treasurer its debentures for the amount of the loan, payable within a period not exceeding 20 years, and bearing interest at the rate of five per cent., and in case of default the treasurer may dispose of so much of the debentures as may be necessary to pay the instalment.

The cost of any house shall not exceed $2,500 and the cost of the house and land on which it is erected shall not exceed $3,000. In particular cases, or in any particular municipality, with the approval of the director of the bureau, Mr. J. A. Ellis, of Ottawa, the cost of a house may exceed $2,500, but shall not exceed $3,000, and the cost of a house and the land on which it is erected may exceed $3,000 but shall not exceed $3,600.

Essential Features.

The Ontario Housing Committee summarizes as follows what it considers essential features:

1. Sufficient land to give each family privacy and plenty of air.
2. Water tight floors, walls and roof.
3. One or more rooms for cooking and eating and general day use.
4. Bedroom for parents' use.
5. Bedroom for male children.
6. Bedroom for female children.
7. Provision for toilet with sanitary water closet and sewer connection.
8. Running water supply fit for drinking.
9. Kitchen sink, with waste connection to sewer.
10. Uninterrupted daylight and ventilation through windows in every room.

Additional features which are so important as to be almost essential:

1. Bath tub and lavatory with hot and cold water supply.
2. Laundry tub with hot and cold water supply.
3. Direct sunlight in all principal rooms.
4. A second room in addition to that used for cooking.
5. Clothes closets.
6. Verandahs and verandahs.

Desirable Features.

Further additions of desirable features would include:

1. Electric light.
2. A separate dining room.
3. A cellar.
4. Furnace for heating.

There are thousands of working class people in Ottawa who have not all these essential and necessary features. Model houses are needed and the best way to secure them is to take advantage at once of the Ontario Housing Act.

DAVID HARUM IN CITY COUNCIL

ALD. PHELAN'S KNOWLEDGE OF HORSEFLESH ENTITLES HIM TO HONOR.

Ald. Harry Phelan, chairman of the Board of Works, was at the firehall this morning to be present at the arrival of the new team of horses which he purchased for his department from Mr. Darling, a farmer residing near Fowler's Corners.

Ald. Phelan was as proud of his purchase as if it had been for himself. The horses, when they arrived, reflected credit upon the judgment of their buyer. They are a fine pair of well-matched blacks, and will tip the scales at 3,000 pounds. They are at the right age, one coming five and the other six years, and were bought with a view to improving their conditon under the excellent care of their groom, Tom Bacon.

In addition to having procured a satisfactory pair of horses for the purposes of the Board of Works, the chairman bought them at the right price, and his colleagues on the City Council will in future look upon him in the light of a modern David Harum.

A German scientist believes that the artificial lakes that have been built in his country decrease the temperature and increase the number of foggy days.

POTATO CROP DISEASES

Most Serious of Them Widely Established in Old Ontario.

Varieties of Grains Which Give Heaviest Yields—O. A. C. No. 21 Best Barley of All—Get Everything in Readiness for Spring Spraying Now.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

OFFICIALS of the Ontario Department of Agriculture inspected 313 seed potato fields in Northern Ontario last year of 278 acres, and 119 fields qualified for certified seed. It is estimated that there were 16,000 bushels of certified seed secured from Northern Ontario. All of this is being shipped to Old Ontario to be planted this year.

The survey which was made last year by inspectors to detect diseases in the potatoes was spread over 32 counties, although the reports from four of that number are not included in the statistics because of irregularities in the work. The territory covered was from Northumberland and Peterborough counties west to Essex, not including Simcoe and Victoria. It was found in this survey that an average of 15 per cent. of the potatoes had the most serious disease of Leaf Roll, and that 7 per cent. were affected with Mosaic, a total of 22 per cent. affected by disease. An interesting fact revealed by the survey is that the diseases are most common along the shores of Lake Ontario, through Dufferin and Wellington counties, and along the shore of Lake Erie through to Essex county. Farther north the percentage of disease is much smaller. While the average for the two diseases is 22 per cent., some of the counties showed a much higher rate, as Haldimand 39, Welland 61.7, Lincoln 33.5, Wentworth 26.6, Brant 44.8, Halton 32.1, Peel 51.9 and York 25.4. The standard in this province permits of two per cent. Leaf Roll in No. 1 seed and 5 per cent. in No. 2. In severe Mosaic the percentage is the same, although in slight Mosaic the figures are doubled.

The cause of these diseases is not known. Whether there is some organism, or whether the climate has something to do with them, is a matter of doubt. Prof. P. A. Murphy, of Charlottetown, who is the Chief Pathologist for potatoes for the Dominion, and who is attached to the Central Experimental Farm, is at work on this problem, and it is hoped that before many months the cause will be known. At any rate, it is known that the diseases are more common in potatoes in the Southern States. That is why it is expected Ontario seed potatoes will be in demand there in a few years.

Leading Varieties of Spring Grain.

The old Six-rowed barley gave way to the Mandscheuri, and that in turn has given place to the O.A.C. No. 21, which is now grown throughout Ontario to the exclusion of practically all other varieties. The Egyptian and the Black Tartarian varieties of oats which were popular at one time have been largely displaced by the Banner and more recently by the O.A.C. No. 72 and the O.A.C. No. 3 varieties. The O.A.C. No. 72 variety has a comparatively strong vigorous straw, spreading head, and white grain of good quality, the hull being quite thin. In experiments at the Ontario Agricultural College it has surpassed the Banner in yield per acre in each of nine out of ten years. It has made a phenomenal record in connection with the Ontario Standing Field Crop Competitions, taking more first prizes than all other varieties of oats combined. The O.A.C. No. 3 variety is ten days earlier than the Banner or the O.A.C. No. 72, and is an excellent variety for mixing with barley when it is desirable to grow the two in combination. Of the spring wheats the Red Fife, the Marquis and the Wild Goose are the principal varieties. At the present time, however, when the demand for wheat for bread production is so urgent the Marquis and the Red Fife, and especially the former, should be grown as extensively as possible in Ontario. Spring rye does not yield equal to Winter rye but its cultivation will perhaps be increased somewhat during the present year. The O.A.C. No. 61 variety has given the best results, surpassing all other kinds in yield of grain per acre.—Dr. C. A. Zavitz, O. A. College, Guelph.

Prepare for Spring Spraying.

Efficient and economic spraying is hard to attain with the use of poor machinery. The power sprayer is an expensive piece of machinery, but it is effective when properly handled. Its usefulness can be greatly impaired by improper care. To secure the highest degree of efficiency in spraying the maintenance of high pressure is necessary. Probably high pressure is not needed in all cases; it is, however, true that by means of it more thorough and, consequently, more effective work can be done in a much shorter time and with much less effort.

The agitation of the liquid in the tank is another important matter. In the case of most sprays, the individual particles that make up the insecticide are suspended in the water. Unless the sprayer is equipped with a good agitator, these particles will settle to the bottom, rendering the mixture in the top of the tank weaker than it should be, and that in the bottom stronger, and possibly in some cases too strong for safe application.

It is needless to say that the care of spraying machinery should never be neglected. Indeed, the spraying outfit should never be put away after using until the mixture is thoroughly cleared out from all parts of the pump, rod, piping, hose and nozzles by running clear water through them. The water should be drained from the engine, and all parts cleaned and oiled.—Prof. Jno. Evans, O. A. College, Guelph.

Seven Spies Were Shot By British Authorities During Four Years of War

IN the possession of a sergeant-major of the British Military Foot Police is a peculiarly made leather strap—or, rather, a series of straps—for which Madame Tussaud's doubtless would pay a large sum of money.

It is the strap with which German spies caught in this country and condemned to death were fastened in a special chair at the Tower of London prior to being shot. Like a wise man, the sergeant-major had the strap made to his own design and paid for it with his own money. It is to him a priceless relic of the great war.

Germany's vaunted spy system, like the overboomed German navy hardly realized expectations. There were, it is true, a great many spies in England, both before and after the war acting on behalf of the Kaiser. Most of them were neutrals, and came originally from South American states.

The British secret service resembled its magnificent navy. It did its work as silently and effectively, and the necessary reticence observed as to its doings contributed very materially to the discomfiture felt by the German Government owing to the misleading information which "fed" into German hands.

As a matter of fact, the Naval Intelligence Department, under Rear Admiral Hall, acting in conjunction with the censor's department, provided false information to the Germans, an instance being the mythical Strait of Dover submarine barrage revealed by Sir Roger Keyes.

Nearly all Germany's spies in Britain attempted to forward their information by post. But thanks to the astuteness of the censor's staff it was rarely these letters, even although written in invisible ink, went undetected.

All spies were not arrested immediately they were detected. The British secret service, ever considerate, allowed them to send and receive letters and collect information, but it reserved the privilege of opening the correspondence both ways and making alterations likely to be of more use to the Allies than to Germany.

It is difficult to estimate the value of the information obtained by this method. The Hun, with his profound disrespect for British finesse, probably never will believe that Britain could be guilty of such astuteness.

It is certain that Germany obtained very little that was useful from her spies in England. From the outbreak of war the ports were too carefully watched to permit of much leakage. The wild stories of wireless telegraphy and signaling to sea had little or no substances in fact; the risks of detection were too great.

Up and down the east and southwest coast of England were, however, many "hydros," palatial hotels, built right on the sea, with large copper domes twinkling brightly for many miles out at sea. And the manager was often a German.

Eight German spies were executed in England, while many more are undergoing long terms of penal servitude. For obvious reasons the names of many never were revealed. The Imperial Government continued to communicate with them, blissfully unaware that their agents had gone to a bourne from which not even a German spy returns. The British secret service kindly acted as the spy's deputy.

The execution of these spies is naturally an unpleasant subject, but none the less interesting. After the secret trial and condemnation to death the spy was taken to the Tower, there to await the dread summons in the early hours of the morning. Taken from his cell by a party of military police, the spy was strapped to a chair in a quadrangle of the Tower. There, facing him, about ten paces distant was a firing party, usually eight men, from the battalion of guards on duty at the time.

The preliminaries were soon arranged. The spy was placed in the chair and his body and limbs were tightly strapped to it. Then his chest was bared to receive the bullets of the Englishmen whose country he had wronged.

That was his last look at the world. A handkerchief was tightly bound around his eyes by the sergeant-major of the military police. The firing party, leaning on their rifles, stood up and brought them up to the aim as the sergeant-major stood clear. A low instruction from the officer in command to aim at the heart, a sharp order, "Fire!" a burst of flame, and the crack of eight rifles had ended the career of another of Germany's tools.

Some of the spies stood their execution stoically; others again made a last despairing fight and went to their death shrieking and cursing their Maker.

Gas as Fuel.

Experiments in England with ordinary producer gas as a fuel for internal combustion engines has shown that as the size and power of the engine increase the loss on producer gas diminishes. The fact that coal gas, although of lower caloric value than gasoline, gives better results, is accounted for by the pressure of the gas in the bag, which delivers this fuel to the engine with little or no "back pull."

"Babu" English.

Punch is fond of quoting the odd English of the "babu" of India. A certain babu hospital assistant was told to make a chart of a patient's condition. He made it as follows: 8 a.m., the patient's life in tow degree. 10 a.m., life in sink. 11 a.m., flit. 1 p.m., flat.

The new Salvation Army hostel at Chatham has been opened.

TOMMY LEARNS TO DANCE.

Many Pastimes Introduced to Keep Soldiers Fit.

There are more ways than one of making a man fit. The obvious method is not always the best. It is, for instance, the principle of disguising the pill in a spoonful of jam which you see applied in the army in connection with that important phase of training, "Physical Jerks," as Tommy calls it.

In the convalescent camp "somewhere in "rance" from which I write, "P. T." is an important factor. Each morning, after the colonel's inspection, to the accompaniment of a lively march played by the drum and fife or military band (we have both, and a "ripping" orchestra as well, composed of convalescent Tommies) we proceed to a well-chosen spot and, under capable instructors, indulge in all kinds of "sporty" pastimes.

Boxing is one. Those men who desire to be taught the gentle art of fisticuffs fall out, and, stripped to the waist, are soon making music with the gloves. The rest split up into suitable parties, play basket-ball and various other games which tend to strengthen the muscles and sharpen one's ideas.

The latest innovation here is teaching Tommy to dance. It may sound silly, perhaps, but it is really very sensible. You should have heard the exclamations on the first morning when men who a few days previous had been fighting Germans were lined up in pairs and informed by the instructor that he was about to teach them the "St. Paul two-step!"

Then the fun began! "One, two! One, two, three!" while Tommy struggled to master the movements.

"If 'Jerry' came over now he would say that we had gone stark, staring mad," remarked one man.

"Pavlowa isn't in it!" exclaimed another.

Tommy's sense of humor was tickled by his own capers just as much as by those of his pals.

Now he is becoming an expert dancer, and, without feeling that his dignity is in any way compromised, takes his partner for the two-step and dances to the accompaniment of the band. He is now asking for "a few 'Waacs'."—London Mail.

Gen. Allenby.

I suppose that a German general impresses one first of all as a soldier, but—and it may be due in part to the semi-civilian British uniform—the British officer impresses one first of all as a man. When I saw Gen. Allenby I did not think of this man of powerful shoulders, of high forehead, of the kindliest of eyes, of blunt, staccato speech, and of most genial manner, as a soldier. I was in the presence of a great human being. And it was so when I met Marshal Foch, in the days before he was a marshal.

It was at General Headquarters that I first saw Gen. Allenby. I had driven over from Jerusalem with one of my Red Cross associates to spend the night with the "C-in-C," or the "Chief," as he is called by the officers and men. And I may at this distance confess that I went with some timidity. In the first place, I was not yet inured to my military title (and that was the only one by which I was known out there). In the next place, I had never had an acquaintance with the British beyond that of meeting a few of them visiting in America, and I was anticipating a frigid formality even in that semi-tropical and remote country.

But I soon forgot, in the warmth of the reception, that my host was a general and that I was not a civilian, that he was an overcritical Britisher and I a provincial American. We soon found ourselves fellow inhabitants of ancient Palestine—of the Old Testament land. And when we left the dinner table it was to pore over George Adam Smith's "Geography of the Holy Land"—a classic which is more than a geography, a veritable epic poem in prose form—and then to turn to certain passages in the Old Testament.

It is not the part of a guest to speak of what he has seen and heard at headquarters, and certainly what was said that night was not intended for hearing beyond the walls of the old farmhouse, temporarily used as headquarters, but I am sure that the commander-in-chief will let me share my memory of it with others, especially as it can give no comfort to the enemy.—From "Gen. Allenby," by J. H. Finley, Red Cross Commissioner to Palestine, in Scribner.

A File Fish.

The file fish captured off Land's End, England, is a very rare visitor to the English coast, the only previous specimens recorded having been caught so long ago as 1827. It belongs to a numerous and important family of the tropical seas, which are so-called because the first dorsal fin is studded up the front with small projections that suggest some resemblance to a file. Another peculiarity of these comic-looking fish is the gunlock spine, the principle of which was adopted for the earliest safety rifle locks.—London Chronicle.

A Long Word.

It was recently stated that the longest word in the English language sdhorificabilitudinity, for which I fancy Dr. Samuel Johnson was responsible. I offer antidisestablishmentarianism, which was used, I believe, by the late Archbishop Benson. By changing it into an adjective (ism to istic), you get two more letters, making twenty-nine in all. I have not looked it up in the dictionary. If it is not there, it ought to be. It is a word which the late Provost Salmon, of Dublin University, would have called "portentous."

Has 8,000 Islands.

Lake Huron holds the curious record of having more islands than any other lake. It has at least eight thousand.

Porto Rico last year increased its area devoted to food crops by 43 per cent.

HOW JIM CORBETT ANALYZES WILLARD-DEMPSEY OUTLOOK

Distance, Which Heavyweight Fighters Will Be Asked to Go, May Be Big Factor—Champion Might Wear Dempsey Down.

(By James J. Corbett.)

The distance which Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey will be asked to travel will have a most important bearing on the outcome of the titular clash.

The length of the bout is something still unsettled. Both fighters have agreed to battle over any route that Tex Rickard may decide. Rickard's choice depends altogether upon where he decides to stage the contest. He may put it on in New Jersey, an eight-round state, or in a ten or twelve-round commonwealth. Or he may determine upon some western spot where he can send the boys along for twenty or twenty-five rounds or perhaps to a finish.

The contest brings together a giant of powerful physique, but old as athletics are reckoned, and a ripping, tearing youth who never has known the word "weary" as applied to ring endeavors.

Which would be favored by a short fight and which by a long one? Ring experts have puzzled over the question, and there is about fifty-fifty opinion at this time.

"Willard is good at ten rounds and good over a long distance," asserts one faction favorable to big Jess. "He demonstrated in his Havana battle that he could travel twenty-six rounds with a world's champion and then dethrone him. Less than a year later he showed that when limited to only ten rounds he could move fast enough and fight hard enough to crush out all of Frank Moran's championship ambitions.

"Willard has been blessed by nature with marvelous endurance powers. His fight with Johnson showed that the longer the distance the better he appeared. For the first twenty rounds of that contest Willard never opened up with a real attack. He lay back for sixty minutes waiting for Johnson to become punch weary. Jess figured that he was hurt-proof and he demonstrated it. For twenty rounds Johnson thundered the head and body of Jess, but they never made him wince.

"Against Dempsey it is quite likely Willard will pursue the same plan as he did against Johnson if the fight is to be a long one. Jess would have it on Jack by sixty pounds or more, and by frequent leaning tactics he could tire Dempsey without much trouble. But if it were a short fight Jess undoubtedly would go out and slug with Dempsey as he did with Moran, confident that Jack would get the worst of it in a toe-to-toe battle.

"Whether the contest is short or long, Willard has the advantage largely because of his greater size and greater natural endurance."

In rebuttal, the Dempsey folks assert:

"If it's a short fight Dempsey will outpoint Willard by a mile, if he doesn't knock him out. Jack is so fast that Jess won't be able to see him for ten rounds. And meanwhile Jack will be sending home some ripping lefts and rights.

"If it's a long fight Dempsey will be a cinch. Jack has the aggressiveness and the endurance powers that are associated only with youth. The whole history of athletics shows that a man of Dempseys' age can endure hardship and struggling for a longer time and appear fresher than can a man who, like Willard, has passed far beyond the 30-year mark.

"Dempsey never has traveled further than ten rounds largely because he never has let the fight go beyond that distance. Dempsey, since the time he became a real pugilistic star, has had but one thought in mind—to finish his opponents in the quickest time possible. His last twenty-five fights have not averaged much more than three rounds. Prior to that time Dempsey mingled in a number of ten-rounders, and in each and every one he finished looking as fresh and strong and as full of fight as when he started.

"Those who insist that Willard is a distance fighter are in error. In all his career Willard has fought but three so-called distance fights, and he lost two of them. Gunboat Smith whipped him thoroughly in twenty rounds at San Francisco. At the finish Smith was in fine condition, and Willard was battered to a sorry-looking spectacle. Willard went twelve rounds with Tom McMahon, and the third-rater won the decision from Willard even though Jess outweighed him forty pounds and had it on him by a half foot in height and reach.

"Willard's fight with Johnson went twenty-six rounds. But that doesn't reflect glory on Willard. Rather it is surprising that he didn't finish his aged and dissipated opponent in less than half that time. Willard didn't beat Johnson. It was age and lack of condition that whipped the dusky champion. For twenty rounds Johnson hit Willard when and where he wished. For the first twenty rounds Jess looked like the worst joke that ever stepped into the ring.

"It is true that Willard took everything that Johnson had during the first hour of fighting. But the only thing that Johnson had was a lot of punches that wouldn't have done much more than flatten a cream puff. The negro went into that contest far over weight and a thousand kilometers removed from his Reno condition. He would have been an easy proposition for almost any fighter to stow away.

"Willard faces a foe entirely different in Jack Dempsey. He's a bruising, mauling battler with tremendous power in either hand and the man who, by knocking out Fulton, Morris, Pelkey, Smith and nearly two score others, has demonstrated that he has no equal in the 'kill 'em dead' ranks. In a long fight or a short one, the youthful Jack Dempsey will put it all over the venerable Mr. Willard."

There you have both sides of the controversy.

What's your verdict?

ROME WANTS OLYMPIC GAMES

Government is Asked to Appropriate Funds to Defray Expense.

Rome, March 13.—A dozen deputies presented an interpellation in the chamber, asking the government to appropriate funds to defray the expenses incident to holding the Olympian games at Rome in 1920, which will be the fiftieth anniversary of the unification of the Italian nation.

SYRACUSE-NEWARK IN LEAGUE

President of Toronto Club of International Makes Announcement.

Toronto, March 13.—President McCaffery of the Toronto club of the International league announced that Syracuse and Newark would again be in the league, but under new management.

Sporting Gossip

President Fred Mitchell of the Cubs believes in quick action. He convinced Dode Paskert and Less Mann of that within the last few days. They came here balking over terms, but in less than five minutes after meeting the boss they signed their contracts.

Buster Caton, the Pirate shortshop, is the smallest infielder in the National league, but he is a bear for speed. He was discharged from the army at Camp Sherman Friday, and on Saturday reported to Barney Dreyfuss ready for the training trip.

The ragman will not be welcomed by baseball clubs this spring. There will be few new uniforms with the war tax and the high price of cloth. Last year uniforms cost $14.50, and this season they are worth $27.50.

Bill Doak is to be pitied. He says he does not want to play with the St. Louis Cardinals any longer, because he does not like the climate, but the management refuses to let him go. They plan to make him like it.

In New York the critics are talking about a three-cornered deal in which the Cubs, St. Louis Cardinals and Giants are involved. They report that Roger Horsby is to go to McGraw, but say nothing about what the Cubs and Cardinals are to get.

Wilbert Robinson, although he lost Jack Coombs, says the Dodgers will be in the fight for the pennant with Grimes, Cheney, Marguard, Sherrod Smith, Cadore, Mitchell and Pfeffer on his pitching staff. That looks like a formidable squad.

Kitchener Juniors again beat Stratford juniors in the Rounds Cup. O. H. A. consolation series, by 8 to 0 making the score on the round 13 to 4.

The tentative schedule of the Michigan-Ontario League has been submitted to the clubs. The schedule meeting will be held in Hamilton or London a week from Sunday.

Owing to difficulties in connection with the Newark and Syracuse franchises the International League made no progress at its meeting in New York yesterday. A six-club league may be organized.

JOHNSON SAYS BOUT WAS "FIXED"

WILLARD WON TITLE AT HAVANA BY ARRANGEMENT BEFORE MEETING.

Havana, March 13.—Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion, in a signed statement, declared that his fight with Jess Willard in this city four years ago was a prearranged affair and that he allowed Willard to win. The former champion declares that unless Willard agrees to fight him within a reasonable time he will claim the word's title.

Willard Denies It.

Lawrence, Kansas, March 13.—"Jack Johnson simply needs money and is trying to put over another match," was the comment of Jess Willard, when shown the statement received from Havana today, in which Jack Johnson claimed the championship bout with Willard four years ago was a pre-arranged affair.

"There is absolutely nothing to it," Willard continued. "I refuse to dignify the statement with a denial for as far as I am concerned it is simply a crude joke."

HAMILTON WINS SENIOR TITLE

ALTHOUGH BEATEN BY ST. PATRICKS IN TORONTO LAST NIGHT.

Toronto, March 13.—Playing in sensational style from start to finish St. Patrick's last night defeated Hamilton Tigers by 5 to 1 in the O. H. A. senior final fixture at the Arena. The visitors came here with a seven-goal lead, and, therefore, won the championship and the Allan Cup by three goals on the round. The Green Shirts, with Frank Heffernan back on the defense, made the far-famed Tigers look ordinary, and it was the consensus of opinion of the spectators that the best team did not win the title.

Over five thousand attended, and they saw one of the most thrilling, uphill struggles ever staged in this city. They were kept in a frenzy of excitement throughout, and as the Irish gradualy reduced the lead the din and noise was terrific. Frank Heffernan was given a great hand by the crowd when he skated out, and he fully justified his reception. As a defense player he stands alone, and all the trickiness of Roach, Green and Matte availed them nothing when attacking the Irish citadel. Had Heffernan not been taken ill when his team so badly needed him the Irish would undoubtedly have won the O. H. A. championship.

St. Patrick's forced the play from the face-off, and, although they were easily the better, they failed to score in the initial period. In the second they notched two to Tiger's one, and in the third added three more. The line-up:

St. Patrick's—Goal, Crook; defense, Heffernan and Cain; centre, Breen; right wing, Muston; left wing, Aird. Substitutes, Patterson and Dye.

PENSIONS PAID BY THE FRENCH

WIDOWS ARE ALLOWED $40 A MONTH — CHILDREN CARED FOR.

Ottawa, March 13.—At the meeting of the Pension Committee yesterday, the question was asked as to the principle adopted in France with regard to orphans. Mr. Archibald, one of the witnesses, said a widow received $40 per month, the first orphan child $12, the second $10, and the third $8. In the case of children who had lost their mother, the first orphan child received $40, the second $12, the third $16, and the fourth $8. Thus four orphans received the same as a widow and three children. By an order-in-Council passed in January the first orphan had been increased from $16 to $24, and the second orphan from $16 to $20. The board, he said, had received many complaints regarding the pensions for one, two or three children. Sixteen dollars was not enough, and it was still said that $24 was not enough for one orphan. The reason given was that, although this sum paid for food and clothing, the guardian had to give up something to look after the child, and so was not compensated.

TWO CANADIAN CITIES TO ENTER

MONTREAL AND OTTAWA MAY HAVE JOINT TEAM IN LEAGUE.

Montreal, March 13.—If Montreal is in the International baseball League this coming season this city will divide a franchise with the Ottawa Club, according to plans at present under consideration by a syndicate of business men in this city and in Ottawa. The proposal, if it goes through, will create an unique precedent in baseball.

Frank Shaughnessy, pilot of many Ottawa champions in the Canadian League, has the plans in hand, and yesterday met a number of Montreal business men who are interested in baseball and laid his plan before them. His proposition is, that Ottawa and Montreal will divide a franchise between them. Games scheduled at home for the combination club will be played in Ottawa on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, Montreal will have games only on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, the metropolis being a strong supporter of week-end sport.

Shaughnessy would manage the popularity he already has in both cities and the strong backing which he would receive in Monteral it is believed he could swing the club successfully under the plans proposed. Shaughnessy left last night for New York to attend the adjourned meeting of the International League when he will lay his plans before that body.

What About Grounds?

Grounds will furnish an obstacle in Montreal. The best grounds available for week-day games are at Water Park, and these are controlled by Sam Lichtenhein former head of the Royals who is understood to demand a prohibitive price for the use of his stands. The National grounds have been leased for Sundays for the season by the Independent League while the Shamrock grounds the only other locality where Sunday baseball could be played, are under the control of the City League. There will be several problems for the owners to unravel before International League ball can be played in Montreal.

CURLEY BRANDS STORY AS FALSE

SAYS JOHNSON WAS FAIRLY DEFEATED BY BIG JESS WILLARD.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, March 13.—Jack Curley, promoter of the Johnson-Willard heavyweight championship battle, and one of Willard's managers, today branded Johnson's confession as a "pathetic, child-like whine coming from an ignorant mind, from one who realizes he has gone to the end of his rope." The world knows my feeling toward Jess Willard, but I cannot lie strong enough even to injure that ingrate and give any color of truth to Johnson's story," said Curley. "Willard defeated Johnson in Havana in as square and as honestly fought a contest as was ever pulled off."

MAKE CHANGE IN FIRE ENACTMENT

FIRE MARSHAL IS GIVEN INCREASED POWERS IN FIRE INQUESTS.

Toronto, March 13.—Strong opposition to certain provisions of the government bill to amend the Fire Marshals Act developed in the Legislature yesterday when the bill was given second reading. The same objection was raised by the Liberals when the bill was considered in committee of the House. Mr. William Proudfoot, Opposition leader, urged that the crown attorneys of the province be the officials to take the evidence where an investigation was being made by the Fire Marshal, instead of the latter. He contended that the change was in the interests of fair play, experience having convinced him that witnesses before the Fire Marshal or his assistants did not always get a proper hearing. Hon. I. B. Lucas, the attorney-general, would not, however, accept the change proposed by the Opposition, and Sir William Hearst declared that the Fire Marshal was better qualified to get out all the facts about a fire than a crown attorney.

Previous Duties of Fire Marshal.

In discussing the bill, Hon. Mr. Lucas said that up to the present the chief duties of the Fire Marshal had been to collect statistics concerning fires and to make investigations when necessary. Although there had been few cases where criminal action had been taken, the investigations had had a good effect.

The number of incendiary fires was not as large as the public believed. The fire loss in Ontario last year was $14,856,000, which was higher than than that of 1917, but substantially lower than that of 1916. The Act contemplates the Fire Marshal entering more actively into the duty of fire protection work, the general idea being to co-operate with the municipalities. It will permit the Fire Marshal to go into a municipality and in the general interest order the removal of a building. The department hopes to have the assistance of the Fire Prevention League.

The Luxemberg Commission on Economic Problems has decided on an economic alliance with Belgium and France. The alliance would control the output of steel in Europe.

TO CONSOLIDATE RURAL SCHOOLS

LEGISLATION DEALING WITH THE MATTER, TO BE BROUGHT DOWN.

Legislation to provide for consolidated schools will be introduced in the Legislature at an early date, the Government having practically decided on its policy in connection with this important matter. The chief feature of the policy is that the right of withdrawal will not be permitted to School Boards, so that once they agree to a consolidated school in the districts, they will have to continue to support it.

The problem of entering upon a consolidated school system for the rural districts is a many-sided one, and many difficulties have had to be overcome by the Minister of Education, Hon. Dr. Cody, in framing the policy. Many of the country schools today are in a good state of repair, and local boards will be adverse to entering upon any heavy expenditures which would necessitate discontinuing the use of the present buildings. To overcome this difficulty the Government will give financial assistance to pay a portion of the cost of the construction of central buildings. Grants will be made, probably based upon the assessed values of a section, which would be regarded as the equivalent for the abandoned buildings. Local School Boards, however, would be expected to meet the remainder of the cost of the new building not covered by the Government grants.

While many of the buildings are now in good shape, there are also a large number of schools which will have to be substituted by new ones. In some instances the present buildings are not large enough to meet the needs of the districts in which they are situated. The entering upon a consolidated school policy would not be the same hardship to such districts.

Under the proposed legislation from three to five schools will be consolidated. It is estimated that such a school will have about 75 or more pupils in attendance. To endeavor to cover a larger area by one school, it is felt would be impossible, as the children would have to come from too great a distance. It is the hope of the Department that these schools will ultimately develop into continuation schools.

By providing that once having agreed to support a consolidated school a local board cannot withdraw, the Department hopes to overcome a difficulty which has handicapped the system elsewhere in the Dominion. The act will either provide that it will not be permissible to withdraw, or else the withdrawal will be surrounded with safeguards to protect the system, which is now to be introduced. Local Inspectors and boards will be allowed a free hand in organizing the various sections. If the school sections agree among themselves to have a consolidated school, the Inspector will investigate and submit a plan to the Department of Education. It is not the intention of the Government to force consolidated schools upon local sections, but those that come in will be assisted in every possible way.

The amalgamating of the schools is not expected by the department to cause any surplus of teachers. The development of many of the schools into continuation schools will take up some of the teachers who will be thrown out of work. Then, too, there are a number of schools in outlying parts not supplied with well-qualified teachers, [illegible]

TROUBLES COST HIM A FORTUNE

TEXAS FARMER SUFFERED FOR TWENTY YEARS—IS RELIEVED BY TANLAC

"A few bottles of Tanlac have done me more good than other medicines and treatments that cost me a small fortune," said C. C. Fisher, a prosperous farmer living at Irving, Route 1, a few miles from Dallas, Tex.

"For fifteen years," he continued, "I suffered so terribly from stomach trouble that I thought I could never get well. Everything I would eat went back on me and I would belch up my food so sour that it would nearly strangle me, the gas on my stomach would press on by heart so as to cause it to flutter and I would have a hard time getting my breath. I was really in such awful condition that I felt like I had about got to the end of my row.

"But I feel now like I am good for many years yet, for Tanlac has fixed me up so I can eat everything without any bad after effects and since gas has stopped forming in my stomach I am not troubled with palpitations or shortness of breath. I have gained six pounds already and am working hard on my farm every day now and am glad to recommend Tanlac for the wonderful way it has helped me."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowler's Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

ERNIE MARKS STOCK COMPANY
Supporting
MISS KITTIE MARKS

Mr. Ernie Marks has chosen "The Final Settlement" for his initial appearance in this city on Tuesday March 18th. The story of "The Final Settlement" though easy of synoptical presentation, is deep and complex in its rendering, demanding intricate development of characters and environments to build a suitable foundation for the play, which leaves a lasting impression.

"The Final Settlement" is a play and a story that sounds the depths of human emotions, and intense anger, hate, tenderness, compassion pathos, and sympathy are all interwoven, one scene following another in such thrilling panorama that the audience is held spellbound from start to finish.

Mr. Ernie Marks' former appearances will be remembered for his originality, grace and ease, as well as his entirely different conception of the many roles he has portrayed. He has never been known to play any part twice alike, and easily proves himself an actor that is at home either in comedy, drama or romance.

Farmers and Dairymen Of Peterboro District

When I began breeding Holstein Cattle six years ago I had no inclination whatever of going into the business as a fad. What I wanted was a Utility Herd, a herd of cows that would produce 20,000 pounds of milk or over in a year, and do it at a profit. I chose my foundation cows with this end in view.

As proof of the wisdom of this choice I developed the first 4 year old cow to milk 20,000 lbs. in one year, also her nearest rival with 19,753 lbs. in one year. Later we developed Tochita of Riverside, 24,094 lbs. milk, 1,057 lbs butter, in one year, making her champion mature cow of the Dominion of Canada, a title she held for three years.

"Calamity Johanna Nig" came next with 25,443 lbs. milk, 1,007 lbs. butter, in one year, 108 lbs. in one day. At the time that this record was made, her milk record stood first in Canada.

"Rooker Netherland Belle," another member of the herd, gave over 16,000 lbs. in eight months. At this time, owing to the scarcity of help, brought on by the war, I was forced to turn to the short time test, known as the 7 and 30 day test. So far we have been successful in developing the second highest record Jr. 3 yr. old in Canada for 1918,, with 29.68 lbs. butter, 564 lbs. milk, in 7 days; 2-23 lb. cows, a 2,572 lbs. cow, an 18 lb. 2 yr. old, and have just finished testing 2 four year old cows, both making over 30 lbs. butter in 7 days.

The farm being sold, rather unexpected, and not being able to find accommodation suitable to handle a large herd, I am offering the entire herd at auction at the Exhibition Grounds, Toronto, on APRIL 10-11. Plan now to attend this sale. There are a large number of females going into this sale that are yet to be developed. They will do as well for you as they have for me. If you keep cows, why not those that will give you a double profit? That's what you get from long distance Holsteins—an income from cream and milk and an income from stock sales.

TROUBLE IN BERLIN IS OVER, MINISTER OF DEFENCE SAYS

Blames Mewspapers For Inciting the Masses to Make War on the Government.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Basle, March 14.—The Berlin insurrection may be considered as suppressed, Gustav Noske, Minister of Defence, announced in the assembly at Weimar yesterday, German despatche s reported. Only one suburb remained to be cleared of Spartacans, the Minister stated. Disarmament of the population must be hastened, Herr Noske added.

"It is especially the fault of certain newspapers, notable the Frei Helt, and Redflag," continued the Minister, "that acts of pillage, brigandage and murder have been committed in Berlin as they have been inciting the people for months past. Independent Socialist did all they could to support these disgraceful, shameless actions. The great mass of the workmen of Berlin are honest men but, as in all great movements, impure elements seem to have crept in among loyal, thoughtful worbers. The hyenas of the revolution began to intrigue before martial law was proclaimed and before troops had been ordered to advance upon Berlin."

EMPIRE TOGETHER IN PEACE WORK

SIR GEORGE FOSTER GIVES THANKS FOR REMOVAL OF TRADE BARRIERS.

London, March 14.—Sir George Foster, in the course of an interview published in the Times, expresses the extreme satisfaction of the overseas Dominions at the British Government's removal of the import restrictions which, he says was most opportune and re-assuring.

"It has set the seal on what has been known for some time to be the policy of the present Government," says the Canadian Minister of Commerce "That it has been delayed in getting from the stage of resolution to actual embodiment has caused much heart-searching and disappointment, which now, happily, and let us hope, for ever dispelled. The Empire which has fought together in such close beneficial co-operation to maintain its existence may well extend the experience gained therein to the comparative and sympathetic development of its vast resources."

The Quebec Legislature abolished Courts of Review.

MORE LATITUDE FOR MEMBERS

W. L. RICHARDSON WOULD ADOPT FRENCH SYSTEM IN PARLIAMENT.

Ottawa, March 14.—Mr. R. L. Richardson in his speech on the address made suggeston that Canada adopt the French system in regard to Government measures. Mr. Richardson complained that under the present system the folowers of the Government are bound to support every act of the administration or else endanger its existence at a time when they would not care to embarrass it. He gave as an example the Daylight Savings Bill. If this measure was introduced as a Government bill there would be many members to the right of the speaker who were opposed to it, who would be put in an awkward position as they would not care to risk upsetting the administration on such a minor question. Mr. Richardson favored the French plan. In the French chamber when a bill is introduced the members vote for it according to their best judgment. A defeat of a government bill does not mean a defeat for the government. The existence of the government hinges only upon a stated vote of confidence or a vote of want of confidence. Mr. Richardson saw no reason why this system could not be adopted without interfering with the British system of responsible government. He appealed to Sir Thomas White as acting premier to give it consideration.

LIQUOR BEFORE LABOR

Big Issues Before Western Canada Conference.

Calgary, March 14. — The Labor Congress, the most important of its kind ever held in Western Canada, convened in the city with delegates in attendance from all over the four Western Provinces. David Rees, international representative, will preside. One of the biggest questions to come up is the six-hour day. The industrial unionism principle will be prominent and it is almost certain that the liquor question will be aired.

What Board of Trade Does and Why

Very oddly the average citizen has not had a distinct idea of the functions. The name sounds familiar, but as working units a local progress, they have not been analyzed.

A board of Trade is no stronger than the support it receives at home.

The people must stand squarely back of it, encouraging its ambitions and recommendations. A Board of Trade in a small city simply can't live without broad local support. It is a highly perishable plant, and now in this new era of things ,no town will be permitted to snooze comfortably in the old drowsy way. It must consider itself a part of the nation. There must be no rusty links. The time is gone when people can sit back and blandly admit that the activities of the Board of Trade are a "good idea." It takes more than a nod of approval to see the things through to fruitful success.

When all pull together, it is amazing what can be accomplished. That's the way mountains are moved. But there is more in it than mere physical power—it's the spirit that is aroused by unity. You can't hold a town back when it's people decide to do a thing—and then do it.

The Board of Trade is the very starting point of such movements—the cement, as it were, that binds men and methods together.

It's very difficult for a few to hold back when the majority are smiling and saying, "Come on, we're invincible."

What does "getting in a rut" mean?

It means letting fairly good enough alone—being content with what has gone before—complacently and snugly settling back into precedence and inaction. It means struggling along with the same schools and factories and roads and city policies regardless of whether they are progressive or not.

But that won't do.

These are spirited times. If a town or a community begins to retrograde, the downhill plunge is swift and sure. Both worth-while men and worthwhile business moves elsewhere.

Grab the rope. Yank a bit with your strenbth and your initiative and pride. It doesn't take very long for a Board of Trade to work miracles in a town.

AMERICAN BUSINESS MEN TO TOUR CANADIAN CITIES

Peterboro is on the List and American Flag and Colors of Visiting Organization Will Be Presented to City—to Cement Friendship and Encourage Business Relations Between Two Nations

(Special to The Review.)

Manchester, N. H ,March 14. — Choosing this city as the most convenient and central point for their first get-together meeting, at which time the proposed new charter will be accepted, officers will be elected and final arrangements for the Canadian tour made. Members of the New England-Canadian Advancement Association ,composed of the chamber of commerce officials from nearly all New England cities, with a few additional interested business men, have been arriving here throughout yesterday and last night. Following the acceptance of the charter and the election of officials this morning, balloting for the delegation which is to tour every city in the Dominion of Canada was commenced.

Plans for the trip, which is to be made by eleven delegates, call for the initial visit to Sydney, N. S., continuing west through each province to British Columbia, and touching only the largest cities west of Winnipeg.

Every New England State with the exception of Rhode Island, is fully represented in the organization, and the two delegates from each state are to deliver addresses at each Canadian stop, featuring their home state and its offerings as well, listing that of the Canadian points .with existing conditions there.

Canada's imports during the past four years were three billion and a half, of which well over two-thirds came from the United States, while her exports for the same period amounted to nearly five billion, two billion going to that country. This organization warrants a get-together program with a view to increasing in detail and practically advancing the after-the-war friendly feeling.

At each stop the presentation of the American and the organization colors is to be made. Ontario is listed with twenty-four stops. Special interest prevails in Peterborough on account of its grain and lumber exports.

UNIONIST PARTY AGAIN IN CAUCUS

DAYLIGHT SAVING MAIN TOPIC OF DISCUSSION AT YESTERDAY'S MEETING.

Ottawa, March 14.—Government supporters were in caucus yesterday for the third time this session considering the general situation as it affects the Unionists ,and more particularly legislation to be brought down in the House shortly. It is probable that the Unionists will meet every Thursday throughout the session in order to keep matters running smoothly.

The tariff was not taken up at the meeting as it will be the exclusive topic of discussio non at a gathering to be held later. Daylight saving came in for a great deal of criticism, it is understood, more particularly from the representatives of rural constituencies. Members from west of the Great Lakes were particularly strong in their opposition to the introduction of a daylight saving bill this year. They met the objection that there will be much confusion at the border if the United States and Canada have different time, with the argument that railway time could be changed. So far as can be learned there was no definite announcement by the Government on the matter.

The Civil Service Commission and the civil service generally were also topics of discussion in the caucus. It is understood. There was considerable objection on the part of members to the procedure followed by the commission in connection with the making of appointments.

There were expressions of opinion by members as to what steps the Government should take in regard to Act, and some discussion as to the military situation generally.

TEN DIVISIONS WOULD SUFFICE

TO RESTORE ORDER IN RUSSIA, FRENCH OFFICER SAYS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Honolulu, March 14.—Gen. Robert Paris of the French army, returning from Siberia, where he was associated with the Czecho-Slavok command said today through his aide that unless the Allies intervened immediately with sufficient forces the Bolshevihi would overwhelm Siberia and the Germans would gain an unshakable grip on Russia . He said that the Czecho, having lost half their strength and being worn out without support ,were withdrawing, leaving Siberia helpless. Conditions are growing worse steadily. Ten divisions, he said, could reach Moscow through Siberia and establish order in Russia.

W. G. Charlton of Admer was chosen Liberal candidate for East Elgin for the Federal House and W. H. Mills of Yarmouth for the Provincial Legislature by the East Elgin Liberals. The first woman to be nominated to the Legislature declined the honor.

LOUIS YEOTES AS PEACE OFFICER

GIVES POLICE BENEFIT OF HIS AID IN PRESERVING MORALITY

Mr. Louis Yeotes may have had in the past little differences with the authorities as regards the integrity of certain bylaws and statutes, but it's the straight way for him from this time forward. Mr. Yeotes has already extended to the police the benefit of his assistance in safeguarding the morality of the youth of the city.

Meeting on the street a young boy who was carrying a carefully sealed paper package, Mr. Yeotes' curiosity was excited, and by a few questions he ascertained that the package contained a plug of chewing tobacco that the lad had purchased from Mr W. Flannery, who is employed in a barber shop near Mr. Yeotes' own place of business. The boy informed him that the tobacco had been sold him on the authority of a written order signed by his father.

The volunteer morality officer took the boy by the hand and led him to the police station, where his story was repeated. The upshot was that a summons was issued for Mr. Flannery and he found himself facing Acting Magistrate Rush.

The defendant was let go with a warning. Mr. Yeotes lost his first case as an officer. There seems to be some doubt as to the meaning of the law against the sale of tobacco to minors, whether a written order from a parent is sufficient authority. If it is not, then it is certain that a good many dealers in the city are breaking the law every day.

Order or no order, the sale or delivery of cigarettes to minors—under 16 — is absolutely prohibited. The part of the Act dealing with tobacco provides that no dealer shall sell tobacco to boys under 16 unless convinced that the weed is not intended for the customer's personal use. How this can be established to the satisfaction of the dealer is not made clear. The law does not state that the solemn word of the boy is sufficient or that a written admission by the parent of the tobacco habit is legal authority for the sale.

President Wilson Is Back in Paris

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, March 14.—President Wilson, returning to the Peace Conference after his trip to the United States, arrived in Paris shortly after noon today.

AERIAL DUEL FORBIDDEN

Paris, March 14.—The Paris police have taken a hand in the proposed aerial duel between Leon Vaudetrane and Robert Schreeber, former army aviators The police give two reasons why the duel should not be held, namely , that duelling is forbidden and that people below would be endangered.

HUN DELEGATES TO CONFERENCE

THEY WILL HAVE NO AUTHORITY TO MAKE FINAL DECISIONS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Weimar, March 14.—All German delegates to the Peace Conference will be on an equal footing, although Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau, the Foreign Minister, will be their leader. The party will not have power to make final decisions, that being vested in the Cabinet. It will be accompanied to the conference by a large, although as yet undetermined group of experts, clerks and secretaries.

The selection of the Peace Conference delegates was reached after a long cabinet meeting, which began on Wednesday and lasted far into the evening.

WILL MEET WITH G. T. OFFICIALS

RAILWAY COMMITTEE WILL HAVE IMPORTANT SESSION TOMORROW FORENOON.

Superintendent McMillan and District Passenger Agent Horning of the Grand Trunk railroad will meet the Railway Committee of the City Council tomorrow morning at 10.30 for the purpose of discussing the prospects of a better train service fo this city.

Anyone interested in this question which has received considerable attention of late and was discussed at a recent meeting of the Commercial Traveller's Association, here, are invited to attend the meeting tomorrow morning in the Council Chamber.

Some time ago the Railway Committees had a conference with the officials of the C.P.R. and as a result a much more efficient service over that line was promised.

MORNING PAPERS HERE AT NOON

ACTION TAKEN BY CITY COUNCIL HAS THE DESIRED RESULT.

In accordance with the motion passed by the City Council upon the recommendation of Alderman Edgar Chairman of the Railway Committee the Toronto morning papers are now coming to Peterborough via the Grand Trunk 11.55 train instead of by the C.P.R. 12.35 as formerly.

A week ago today the Mail and Empire and the World made the change while a few days later the circulation department of the Globe followed suit.

This means that the business man can call for his paper at twelve o'clock and take it to dinner with him instead of having to bolt his middey meal and rush off to the news stands to get the paper in time to obtain the latest news before the short noon hour has passed and work commenced again.

Nobody at London Is in Command

OXFORD MEMBER COMPLAINS OF LACK OF MILITARY DISCIPLINE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 14. — Edward W. Nesbitt, M.P. for North Oxford, and one of the members of the parliamentary committee investigating the soldiers' pensions, this morning remarked, during the course of the inquiry, "In London there is nobody in command. They just do as they please."

"There is a district officer commanding for London district," said Col. O'Brien. "Oh, yes," persisted Mr. Nesbitt. "But they just go as they please."

Will Tender For Bridge Building

Mr. E. R. Clarke of the Sherwood Construction Company Ltd., Toronto, is in the city in connection with the construction of the Hunter Street bridge. Mr. Clarke's company will submit a tender for the work, in accordance with the call for bids which will be opened by the special bridge committee of the City Council, April 1st.

Mr. Clarke's business reputation is already established in Peterborough and district.

Some years ago he was senior member of the firm of Clarke and Moore, the company that constructed the dam at Auburn and the one at Campbellford, both of which structures are regarded as models in their line. When the war broke out Mr. Moore went overseas and Mr. Clarke accepted the position which he now holds.

NOVA SCOTIA TOWN ALMOST WIPED OUT

FIRE RAGED FOR TWELVE HOURS AND DAMAGE IS $150,000.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Amherst, N. S., March 14.—A disastrous fire broke out this morning in the prosperous town of Petit Codiac, 23 miles from Moncton. It is thought to have originated in a blacksmith shop. It spread rapidly in all directions. Among the buildings destroyed were the Bank of Nova Scotia, the post office, railway stations and many retail stores. The fire is still raging with unabated fury and is threatening the eastern end of the town. The Moncton fire department is on the way to Petit Codiac, but it is doubtful whether it will arrive in in time to be of much service.

Later Despatch.

After it had destroyed the business section of the town and done damage to the extent of $150,000, the fire was put under control at noon today. There was no loss of life.

American General Arrives in Paris From Berlin With Report of Conditions There.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, March 14.—Brigadier General George H. Harries, head of the American military forces at Berlin, has been here for several days to appear before the Supreme War Council to render a report on the military and economic situation at the German capital and throughout Germany. When General Harries' party left Berlin, the Government forces under Gustave Noske, the German War Minister, had the upper hand and in the general's opinion the Government, will control the situation, particularly if food is sent to aid in holding back the Bolshevik menace from the eastern border.

The public of Berlin, according to General Harries, shows little evidence of panic. Streets have been crowded with people, including women and children, but the military forces have kept the crowds constantly moving. The battle of rifles and machine guns across throughout the city, both day and night, but the Spartacan bands have been gradually driven back and have lost control of the strategic centers.

Thousands of Russian prisoners at various camps in Germany, General Harries says, are clamoring to return home, but this would present a serious problem ,as it would mean the sending of six hundred thousand Russians into the hands of Bolsheviki. It is believed that a strong military zone in Poland, between Russia and Germany, together with food relief, offers the surest means of holding back the Bolsheviki advance.

MUST NOT GIVE UP MARITIME RIGHTS

SIR EDGAR BOWRING SPEAKS FOR NAVAL SUPREMACY OF BRITAIN.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 14.—(Reuters)—Hope that Great Britain would never hand over her maritime rights to any League of Nations was expressed by Sir Edward Bowring, Newfoundland, high commissioner, at a luncheon tendered him by the British Empire league. The Commissioner dwelt on Britain's invaluable services in the war and referred to work done by men of the Newfoundland contingent, men whose quality was unexcelled. He stated that the Newfoundland government was arranging to settle the returned soldiers on the land, and emphasized the importance of an improved Atlantic service and cheaper rates. He said that the development of Newfoundland was proceeding rapidly, especially in waterpower electricity.

A branch of the United Farmers of Ontario was organized at a meeting of Hamilton and Haldimand township farmers.

Farmers Oppose Daylight Saving

The following resolution was passed unanimously by the Keene Live Stock Shipping Board of the United Farmers of Ontario, March 12, 1919:

Moved by P. Donaldson, seconded by S. Braden:—That this Board representing a large section of the farming community of the Township of Otonabee, after one season's experience of the operation of the Daylight Saving Act, find it to be a great inconvenience and annoyance.

While we can see that the Act is of benefit to a section of the city dwellers, we submit that it is contrary to all principles of democratic government, to impose an annoyance on the majority for the benefit of the minority.

Further, with regard to the stand very largely taken by the daily press of Canada, viz., that Daylight Saving having been adopted by the United States for this year, Canada must of necessity follow:

We desire to place on record our most vigorous protest against the truckling attitude by a part of our people as being beneath the dignity of a strong and free nation and we hereby request our secretary to [illegible] copy of this resolution to our Dominion member, Mr. J. A. [illegible] to request him to see that everything possible is done to [illegible] desires in this matter.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

FRIDAY, MARCH 14, 1919

THE LATE W. H. DENHAM.

FLAGS IN THE CITY waved at half-mast yesterday and the people's chimes pealed a dirge as a tribute to the memory of the late W. H. Denham, who for nearly sixteen years was prominent in the business and social life of Peterborough and who was laid to his final rest yesterday in his native city, Akron, Ohio. The city was officially represented among the mourners by Mayor Duncan. Everything possible was done to give expression to the popular grief at the loss of so valuable a citizen as Mr. Denham had proved himself to be.

His end means more to Peterborough than the passing of a man who had enjoyed the esteem of all those who met him in social circles. The industrial world has for all time been deprived of the services of one who was a master organizer and who had a peculiar talent for handling men. There would be fewer disputes and labor troubles in the country if there were more employers of the stamp of the late W. H. Denham, a man who recognized efficiency and rewarded fidelity. Such a man never fails to surround himself with a corps of loyal associates, and the industry so equipped always makes progress. Just at this particular time, when the world is attempting to readjust itself after four years of war, when there is unrest and doubt everywhere, the nation needs optimists who have no qualms as to the economic future. Such a man was the late Mr. Denham, and his untimely end is to be doubly regretted.

THE MEN TO BE REWARDED.

DURING THE WAR some military honors were easy. Men were called upon to make no more serious sacrifice than to wear the uniform of the King and to accept remuneration for this light and honorary service.

"It was the privates who won the war." That is a phrase which is used at every military gathering these days by the officers who actually shared the dangers of battle with the men in the ranks. Then, that being the case, it is the privates who should be rewarded for their service to the Empire. They made a financial sacrifice, something not all their superiors were called upon to undergo. The nation owes the soldiers of the rank and file something more substantial than a debt of gratitude, and it is a debt which the country is well able to pay, even if it means new financial burdens.

Let us all earnestly hope that there will be no indiscriminate showering of titles upon the active officers who won distinction in the war. The people of Canada have set their faces as a flint against the gaudy and vapid trappings that are so often merely the insignia of a new order of exclusive snobbishness. The war was not fought to establish social ranks, but rather to level anything of the kind. Now that the conflict is over the officer and the private, each with an honorable military record to his credit, are on the same plane again. A hero-worshipping Parliament, obsessed with idolatry for the ribbons and buttons of the nobility, should not be permitted to defeat one of the very objects for the attainment of which the world shed its best blood for the past four years.

DR. CODY'S SCHOOL LEGISLATION.

HON. DR. CODY, Minister of Education, is to redeem his pledge to do something on behalf of the rural schools of Ontario, and an outline of the legislation which he proposes to introduce in a few days was published yesterday. It is not likely that the bill will pass in its present form, but that it will be amended in committee. It is, at least, however, a step in the right direction, or a first move toward reform.

The matter of consolidating the schools of any township is to be left to the option of the municipality. This being the case, any changes are likely to be slow. After the lapse of years, it may be found that one county has stuck to the old system, just as Peterborough County stands alone in refusing to adopt the provincial highways system, to the lasting detriment of the community.

The Government has promised to help defray the cost of building the consolidated schools. Upon the amount of this grant will depend to a great extent the readiness with which the new plan will be adopted. School sections with good buildings, grounds and equipment will not be ready to see this property scrapped.

It will be found that one of the most serious objections to the new regulations is the clause that provides that any school section that becomes a party to consolidation cannot withdraw if the ratepayers decide to do so after testing the new plan. This will create a further reason for hesitation. Some sections would be willing to make the experiment if there was an assurance that they could revert to the old system if the new one proved unsatisfactory. The very reverse of this provision has been inserted in consolidated school regulations in other places. In Indiana, for instance, where consolidated schools are the rule rather than the exception, every school section that enters such an amalgamation is required to keep its old building, grounds and equipment in repair for two years, to be in readiness for use again if consolidation proves unworkable in any particular.

The plan proposed by Dr. Cody should be allowed to stand on its merits, and there should be no compulsion as to remaining a part of the system if there is to be none with regard to becoming a part of it. The ratepayers will become skeptical of an arrangement the permanency of which is to be made a question of obligation.

PUGILISTIC PERFIDY.

IT IS UNFORTUNATE for Mr. Tex Rickard, Mr. Jack Curley and other promoters of the Willard-Dempsey battle in the ring, that in the midst of their preparations the ex-champion, Jack Johnson, should make a disclosure that is likely to bring the pugilistic game into disrepute. Johnson has suddenly returned from Spain, where he is reported to have wasted in riotous living the residue of his substance. He is anxious to accumulate more money and notoriety—money chiefly. He declares that his fight with Willard four years ago was "fixed" and that he was given a consideration to "throw the fight," as they have it in the language of the ring.

Of course, the promoters of the present enterprise, including Mr. Willard himself, indignantly deny the ex-champion's assertion. But the seeds of suspicion have been sown, and the harvest of doubts is sure to follow.

There are thousands of people who will believe that Johnson has simply told the truth. The circumstantial evidence is all in his favor. It was felt that it was a standing disgrace upon the Caucasian to have the pugilistic championship in the possession of a negro. Those sticklers for racial honor who infest prize ring functions never held their heads up or were able to look the world in the face until this stain was removed from the reputation of the whites. The fact that the negroes are the physical superiors of their former owners by general consent, supported by physiological testimony, mattered little. Jeffries failed to win back the title, and, fearing to risk another defeat, the cupidity of Johnson was played upon, and he made a present of the championship to Willard, who has commercialised the honor ever since.

Johnson's confession simply confirms a suspicion that existed at the time of his defeat. When he went down for the count he lay as still as a dead man until the fateful "ten" was pronounced, whereupon he immediately revived, and springing to his feet walked jauntily out of the ring and back to his quarters.

Professional pugilism has for a long time been falling into disrepute. Johnson has given it its death blow. It is no longer a reputable pastime, since no place in all the United States can be found to stage the Willard-Dempsey affair. The various states will now be less disposed than ever to permit a "sport" that has been branded as shady by one of its most distinguished devotees and beneficiaries.

PLENTY OF CHANCES TO FARM

Business at the Labor Bureau has been slightly quieter this week than last. Applications for the civil service positions offered through the Dominion Government have been received from local men by Capt. Morrison and forwarded to Ottawa.

While the representative of the Soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment Commission here admits that many of these positions require technical skill and professional knowledge, he calls attention to the agitation being carried on by the Great War Veterans' Association in Canada at the present time to have some of the qualifications demanded of candidates for certain branches of civil service work modified, and states that not a few of the openings offered in the list which he received last week could be filled satisfactorily, were it not for the excessive term of experience required.

Mr. Hugh Robertson, the superintendent of the local branch, states that there are plenty of openings for men who are satisfied to study agriculture in the school of practical application, but as far as trades are concerned, the demand seems to have been a trifle dull for the past few days.

BRITISH ARE NEVER BEATEN

(W. H. Mooré in New York Times.)

Paris, March 14.—"I wish English people, is it not so? What a race! With them one never knows what is to be next. They are never beaten.

"You may think that the victory is in your hands. Just because they have not seemed to exert themselves you harbor the thought that things are being done in your way. And then, when all is finished you find that it is their way you have adopted, and you cannot tell why."

It was a French journalist who spoke, and, I might add, he believed he was talking to an American. It is to be confessed also that I did not undeceive him. His view was interesting.

He then pointed out that the draft was the work of General Smuts, that covenant of the League of Nations the memorandum which had been taken for the settlement of the Labor problems was that of Mr. Burns, that the memorandum which was the basis of the work of the Commission on Waterways, Ports and Railways was the British; that the British scheme for international control of the air was being adopted, that, in fact, the British were very nearly providing the brains of the Conference.

He went on to say that if one read the papers and especially the British papers one would think that President Wilson was the big figure in the conference, with Premier Clemenceau a close second. Then, bitterly, he continued that it was the British way. Clemenceau is put in the chair and Wilson opens the discussions and reads the first draft of the covenant. They get the glory, but the British sit back and tell them what to do and what to say.

Remember, this is the view of a little, broad-browed, widely-known French journalist, a man who has given thought and time to all great modern problems, a man who writes articles that are read by many thousand people. He had more to say.

He asked me if I had by any chance ever heard any representative British statesman even hint at any territorial acquisitions for the Empire as a result of the war. He excepted Mr. Hughes, of Australia, whom he did not consider in the least a representative British statesman. Hughes is nearly finished in Australia, he opined, and his complete annexation of the South Pacific Islands is merely a vote-grabbing stage-play.

They Come Out Well.

"They never want anything," he said, "and yet they come out with more than anyone. In reality, if not in fact, Britain will have the Pacific Islands, the big African colonies, Mesopotamia and probably most of Syria."

In that last word lay the source of this out pouring. For France, as is well-known has claims and ambitions in connection with Syria. France wishes to be the mandatory power, and Great Britain is willing that she should be. But the people of that country, the Arabs, are not. They are very much averse to France coming in at all. They turn their eyes to Britain.

Britain has Egypt, and France has her colonies on the southern shore of the Mediterranean. From these colonies on the southern shore of the Mediterranean. From these colonies and from Egypt the pilgrims flock by their thousands yearly to Mecca and Medina, and from all parts of Syria and interior Arabia come the pilgrims also. They meet and they gossip. Here is one of their proverbs. "In the French Colonies if one does not speak French it is impossible to buy a railway ticket. In Egypt, he who speaks English only cannot buy a railway ticket." Exaggerated, perhaps. But it serves to illustrate the difference in administration between the two countries. Britain runs Egypt with fifty men. A native has no chance for the smallest Government berth under the French.

The French journalist did not explain this. He could not understand why the Syrians objected to France as a mandatory for their territory. But his half-angry, half-admiring outburst on the British as a race was recalled by me very forcibly that same evening through my meeting with another man.

Truly they are a marvellous people. Look back through the years since this Empire began to spread. Always when some difficulty arose, when there was trouble in some far corner of the world, there arose, often from misty obscurity, the one man to handle that one particular difficulty. There are those who say that these men are planted about the dorld with a purpose. That being the case, a certain far-sightedness is shown that is remarkable.

Take this same situation in the Near East. For years Great Britain nursed Turkey through fatal illnesses, protected her and propped her up, mostly because she served as a very tolerable buffer between the powerful states of Europe and the riches of India. Germany burst forth with her Mittel-Europa scheme, the Kaiser visited Jerusalem in moving picture magnificence, almost proclaimed himself a Mohammedan, flattered the Turks and began the construction of the Bagdad railway. Also about this time a slim, fair-haired, mild-voiced young man of pleasing manner, after taking nearly all the honors Oxford can give and becoming a don of a certain college, was sent down to Arabia by this college to excavate for Hittite inscriptions.

Bill to Exclude German Language

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE PLANS TO FORBID ITS USE IN SCHOOLS.

Lansing, Mich., March 13.—Franklin Moore representative from St. Clair, re-elected to the Michigan legislature, will introduce a bill soon, aiming to forbid the use of a foreign language as a medium of instruction in parochial, or other schools in Michigan. The German language is aimed at.

In primary and grammar schools of the public school systems, all instruction must be in English, although high school students may study foreign languages, according to the terms of the bill. The same provision is aimed at for parochial schools.

This bill will not aim to abolish the parochial schools or to interfere with religious instruction therein, although the Wayne County Civic Association is trying to initiate legislation toward that end.

EIGHT HOUR DAY FOR TORONTO

COMMITTEE REPORTS IN FAVOR OF REDUCTION IN WORKING HOURS.

Toronto, March 13.—In a report submitted to the Board of Control the Commissioners of the Works, Property, Parks and Street Cleaning departments expressed themselves as favorable to the institution of an eight-hour day for civic employes. Although the change would involve an additional expenditure of $247,000 in these four departments, the Commissioners state that, with the co-operation of their employes, it would pay for itself in increased efficiency and be highly desirable.

The only exception mentioned was the case of waterwen, for whom the shorter day would hardly be practicable. As regards the civic railway, the eight-hour day would cost approximately $36,775 and owing to the fact that the men work under a schedule, could not increase the value of their services. None the less the application of the change to this department is not opposed in the report.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

Killed cultures of Tuberculosis germs injected under the skin of a healthy person or rubbed into the skin or applied as vaccine virus is usually applied produce no noticeable effect. But if the person happens to have anywhere in the body either active or latent (that is, smouldering) tubercul-osis, then there is a characteristic effect produced by the injection or inoculation, an effect which may prove harmful or even fatal to the individual. First, there is pain, swelling and redness of the site of inoculation This is the local reaction—a positive tuberculin test, though not proof that the patient's illness is caused by the tuberculosis which he happens to have somewhere in the body.

A second characteristic effect of the injection of killed tubercle bacilli or of material obtained from killed cultures is rise of body temperature, increased pulse rate and general malaise similar to that which occurs in most acute infections though of course, the tuberculin injection is not an infection. This is the general tuberculin reaction, equally positive in significance.

And finally, a third characteristic effect of such inoculation is the development of inflammation or a noticeable increase in pre-existing inflammatory symptoms in or about the site of the tuberculous lesion, be it in the lungs, in a joint or elsewhere. This is called the focal reaction.

The second reaction, the general tuberculin reaction, is obvious if not a favorable one in every case, for it may be excessive and do serious harm. Yet such a reaction is automatically induced by even mild exercise such as walking about, when the patient has an active tuberculous lesion in the lungs or elsewhere. This is the reason why physicians who are skilled in the treatment of tuberculosis insist on rest in bed or in a chair when the patient, and perhaps the patient's incompetent advisers, would assume that some exercise is necessary to "increase strength." It also explains why it is dangerous without medical advice to submit diseased joints to manipulations; since in that way the system may be flooded with tuberculin, or in other infections with the specific poisons of the germs present, and a general feverish reaction thereby produced.

Local Women Send In a Suggestion

At the Executive Committee of the National Council of Women, meeting in Ottawa this week a resolution from the Peterborough Local Council was read. It deals with providing of land for the returned soldier, and urges the women of Canada to petition the Government to see that the land given to the returned soldiers be operated upon the community group system in sections of not more than ten miles square, or six thousand four hundred acres; this land to be distributed throughout the Province, the plan of distribution to be worked out between the Federal Government and the Provinces on a fifty-fifty basis of cost.

Mrs. R. S. McWilliams, of Winnipeg Local Council presented the resolution to petition the Govt. that the present order-in-Council in regard to the prohibition measure be kept in force until the soldiers all return home and a referendum vote can be taken on the question of making Dominion-wide prohibition. This resolution was carried.

Poultry Men Meet

The regular meeting of the Peterborough Poultry Association brought out a fair attendance of members and they apparently spent an enjoyable as well as an instructive evening. It should be remembered, however, by the general public that they are cordially invited to these meetings, and as the poultrymen have no trade secrets and are always willing to give to others the benefit of their experience, this service should be taken advantage of more than it is. At this season of the year there must be many who are having poor hatches, etc. Why not try to find out the reason and eliminate the losses.

Specimens of the Barred Rocks, White and Golden Wyandottes, Black Langshan and Black Cochin Bants were on exhibition, and Mr. Harry Lush was asked to judge them. After placing the awards he pointed out the strong and weak points of the birds.

The winners were as follows:

Barred Rocks—Jos. Kelly.

White Wyandottes—W. Sindon.

Black Langshans and Golden Wyandottes—H. Lush.

Black Cochin Bantams — Wm. Nesbitt.

At the next meeting on the second Wednesday of April, Mediterranean classes are expected to be out in force, and Mr. Brault, who will judge them, has donated a sweepstake badge for the best bird in the show. A special prize also will be awarded to the best bird shown by anyone who was not in an exhibition at the 1919 show.

The Mediterranean classes include Leghorns, Minorcas, Andalusians, Ancona and Spanish, but all varieties will be welcome.

Defaulters and Daylight Saving in Caucus

Ottawa, March 14.—At the third Government caucus members from west of the Great Lakes were particularly strong in their opposition to the introduction of a daylight savings bill this year. They met the objection that there will be much confusion at the border of the United States and Canada having different time with the argument that railway time could be changed.

There were expressions of opinion by members as to what steps the Government should take in regard to defaulters under the Military Service Act.

Mr. W. S. Middleboro chief government whip stated later that no mention had been made of the tariff situation but that it might be taken up next Thursday.

POSSIBILITIES OF USING PEAT AS THE FUEL OF THE FUTURE

Mr. E. V. Moore Delivers an Interesting Address on the Subject Before Engineers' Club.

The Engineering Club of the city held their regular banquet and meeting in the Empress Hotel last night and listened to a most interesting lecture by Mr. E. V. Moore, a former Peterborough boy, son of David H. Moore, and who is a graduate of the university of McGill and has interested himself in peat and its manufacture ever since he began the practice of his profession. He is now consulting engineer of the Peat Fuel Committee of the Dominion and Provincial Governments and is considered the foremost authority upon this question in the country.

In commencing his address Mr. Moore described peat in its natural state as a light brown to black spongy or pasty mass of decayed vegetable matter which occurs in deposits of from an acre or two to many square miles in area and varying in depth from a few feet to as much as 60 feet. It is found in deposits pretty much all over Eastern Canada and particularly in Ontario and Quebec where there is a marked scarcity of any other variety of fuel.

In appearance a peat bog is a particularly level tract of country usually covered over with a short thick growth of shrubbery. Even under the most favorable conditions resulting from drainage the raw peat contains about 85 to 90 per cent water and it is the difficulty of eliminating this constituent from the substance which has puzzled the engineers for so long.

Mr. Moore told of conditions at the Alfred bog where he had carried on most of his work. He described the peat in its raw state and quoted figures showing its constituents as revealed by an analysis.

There are 37,000 square miles of peat bog known to exist in the Dominion of Canada. There are seven bogs situated conveniently to Toronto which are capable of supplying that City with twenty-six million tons of the fuel and an equal number of bogs near Montreal can supply the Quebec metropolis with twenty-three million tons.

In dealing with the composition of the raw peat, Mr. Moore declared that recent investigations had shown that it possessed many properties of a true colloid. It is capable of increasing its volume through the absorption of water and it is these two conditions which are responsible for the statement made by the lecturer that water cannot be pressed from raw peat by any known commercial device.

Drying in the atmosphere is the only satisfactory method of driving the water out of the raw material for the reason that if an attempt were made to accomplish this result through mechanical means such as a boiler in which the water would be evaporated or a revolving cylinder in which heated air was passed through the mass it would require as much heat applied to accomplish this result as would be obtained from the fuel when it was manufactured so that useless expenditure would be the result.

Mr. Moore then passed on from the consideration of the raw material to the relation of interesting facts in connection with the fuel itself. In marketable form the peat is pressed into bricks after having been thoroughly ground up. It is then allowed to dry in the weather until about 25 per cent water is present in the substance. This makes the most satisfactory arrangement as it lends the substance toughness to resist the wear and tear of transportation and if the percentage of water were reduced below this standard the fuel would burn too rapidly.

Peat in Canada has been used only for domestic purposes up to the present time, Mr. Moore stated that it had been found most satisfactory for furnace use in the fall and winter when a continuous fire was undesirable. In open grates peat is quite as good as cannel coal and it has been found most useful in cooking ranges.

In concluding his address the lecturer dealt in a general way with the uses of peat in an industrial capacity. He quoted figures to show the cost of production and the outlook for the success of the fuel who as a result of the experiments being carried on by the government it would be found possible to eliminate some of the factors which at present militate against its manufacture in large quantities and its successful marketing.

Mr. Moore then showed a collection of stereoptican slides depicting some of the methods which had been adopted in this country in connection with the manufacture of peat.

Strikes Are Chief Cause of Delay

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 14.—(Reuter's.)—Announcement is made by Reuter's Limited that one of the chief causes of delay in repatriating the overseas troops has been the dock strikes in London, Glasgow and Liverpool. A large number of ships which were due to sail in February are still in the harbors. It is hoped that the situation is now easing.

Collingwood Wins The Championship

Toronto, March 14.—For real excitement last night's O.H.A. intermediate final, in which Collingwood defeated Kingston 3 to 2, and won the round and championship by three goals, was in a class by itself. Although the hockey was below par the thrills were many and were not confined to the contestants. The rival supporters took a hand in proceedings, and when peaceful arguments failed, endeavored to win their point by fistic ability.

The White Star Liner Olympic, is scheduled to sail from Liverpool on Saturday with 5,000 Canadian troops. All three ships are coming to this port. It is expected that all the men in Kinmel Camp will be back in Canada by the end of the month.

FOUR CHANCES AT THE REFERENDUM

FULL OPPORTUNITY AFFORDED FOR EXPRESSION OF OPINION BY ELECTORS.

1. Are you in favor of the continuance of the Ontario Temperance Act?
2. Are you in favor of a return to the License Act?
3. Are you in favor of licensed sale of light wines and beers
4. Are you in favor of the sale of liquor under Government control?

These are the questions that will in all probability be placed before the people of Ontario when the Government referendum on the liquor question is submitted in late Septmeber as now contemplated.

Premier Hearst has no statement to make in regard to any policy on the part of the Government, but does not deny that the recent prolonged session in caucus was devoted mainly to a discussion of the whole situation.

Officials closely in touch with the situation declare that the above questions will be identical with those placed before the people by the Government, but qualify the statement with the opinion that a further clause reading something like "Are you in favor of the Ontario License Act?" will be inserted in the referendum.

This, it is explained, will allow a definite expression for those who are not in favor of a return of the old Act, and yet have some fault to find with certain machinery of the O.T.A. Answering the first question in the negative would mean favoring the old License Act. It is felt that these questions, if placed in the referendum, would allow for definite expressions and preclude any possibility of doubtful intentions.

J. D. Flavelle, chairman of the Ontario License Board, declined to offer any opinion as to the form which he considered the referendum on the prohibition question should take. "Whatever system is ratified by the public and adopted by the Government we shall endeavor to administer to the best of our ability," he stated.

EDITOR'S MAIL

A STATEMENT WORTH READING

Editor Review:—Writers in the press seem given to exaggerated tatements concerning the increased leath-rate during the epidemic of Spanish Influenza because whiskey could not be obtained more easily and used more freely.

The following manifesto on the subject of drugs and alcohol in India was recently issued by a large number of medical men, including Surgeon-General G. J. H. Evatt, Alfred Pearce Gould (Vice-Chancellor of the University of London), C. W. Saleeby, M.D., F.R.S., Frederick Treves (surgeon-in-ordinary to the King) and G. Sims Woodhead, M.D., LL.D., F.R.S., (Professor of Pathology in Cambridge University.) It ought to have weight with reasonable and thoughtful people.

1. Alcohol, cocaine, opium and intoxicating drugs (such as bhang, ganga and charas) are poisons. (2) Even a moderate use of them is harmful, especially in tropical countries like India. They are of no avail permanently to relieve physical and menta lstrain; (3) Those who confine themselves to non-alcoholic drinks, and who avoid the use of intoxicating drugs are capable of more endurance and the beter able to resist infection and disease; (4) alcohol is in many cases injurious to the next generation, especially through its favoring influence upon venereal disease; (5) alcohol aggravates the evils of famine; (6) alcohol is useless as a preventive of plague: (7) alcohol lowers the resisting power of the body against the parasites of malaria and the microbes of tuberculosis; (8) all that has been said applies with equal force to opium and intoxicating drugs: (9) we, therefore appeal to the people of India to maintain and extend the practice of total abstinence as enjoined upon them by their religions and social obligations."

These men apparently know what they are talking about as they occupy the very highest places in the medical world today, and can scarcely be called fanatics.

What is true with regard to India is equally true with reference to this country.

WILL RETURN BODIES

Minister of Militia Says No Such Action is Contemplated

Ottawa, March 14—The Government has now in contemplation the bringing back from overseas of the bodies of the Canadian soldiers who have fallen in battle. Questioned as to whether either now or in the future it was intended that such should be done, General Mewburn answered 'No."

Sir Sam Hughes said to General Mewburn: "I wish to draw the attention of the Minister to the report that the United States authorities are bringing back the bodies of the United States soldiers who fell in France. I would ask him to give this matter consideration in regard to the bodies of Canadians who fell I know that it would be a heavy job but the United States authorities are urging that it be done."

To this, General Mewburn vouchsafed no answer.

HORSE DIES OF "FLU"

Influenza is a disease which has by no means confined itself to attacks upon the human race as has been demonstrated upon several occasions in this district when horses have succumbed to the malady. Only a few days ago Mr. Vincent Fee, of Emily, lost a valuable driver as a result of the trouble.

Restriction of Jewish immigration into Palestine to 50,000 a year has been decided on by the Inter-Allied Zionist Conference in London.

LIMIT RETURN OF JEWS

Only Fifty Thousand to Palestine Each Year

New York, March 14.—Restriction of immigration into Palestine to 50,000 a year during the first period of development of the new Jewish commonwealth set up under British trusteeship, has been decided upon by the inter-allied Zionist conference in London, according to cable advices to the Zionist organization of America, made public here today. SCHOOL BOARD ATTACKED

Returned Soldier Was Overlooked at the Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., March 14.—A strongly-worded protest signed by upward of one thousand public school supporters was presented to the Public School Board at the meeting last night by a delegation headed by ex-Mayor W. J. Thompson, following the appointment recently made to the position of supervising janitor, or handy man, around the schools, of a relative of one of the trustees, in preference to a returned soldier who applied, and whose application was endorsed by the Great War Veterans' Association and by a number of prominent citizens.

FILL JOBS WITH VETERANS

58 Out of 189 Employes Have Overseas Service.

Lt.-Col. J. R. Forbes, in command of the district pay office at Toronto, has handed out a statement that there are 189 employees in the pay offices of the district.

Of these 58 have seen service overseas. There are 27 officers on the pay staff, 15 of whom are overseas men. Of the 104 N.C.O.'s and men, 21 have overseas service, while 30 are stenographers.

Colonel Forbes says: "The draftees and volunteers who did not see service outside of Canada will be allowed to go as soon as we can fill their places with returned men. With regard to civil employes, male and female, it has been impressed upon them from the start that their positions are temporary. As soon as their places can be filled by competent returned men their services will be dispensed with."

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat form uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts fro many pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Be sure you are right—but don't be too sure that everybody else is wrong.

SPRING IS THE INSPRIATION IN THIS NEW WEARING APPAREL

March is the month of New Fashions, it is also the first month of Spring, and this March brings us a Victorous Spring, the joy of which you will find reflected in all the modes that Dame Fashion has decreed that Milady shall now wear. Every Department in this store has caught the gladsome spirit and we invite you to come and inspect our most interesting, comprehensive and modish displays

Hats You Will Love to Wear

Early and Often

There's a riot of coloring in the Millinery Department that is well worth making a special trip just to see. Among the most favored shades will be noticed: henna, dust, nigger brown, taupe brown, apple green, victory red flag blue, Foch blue, Pollus blue, jade green, rose, and not forgetting the always popular navy and black and white.

And the trimmings. There are flowers and more flowers of every kind and color, till one would think that the gardens of the world had been robbed at Fashion's command. Ostrich feathers in all shapes and forms are very prominent, also large ribbon bows and long, spiky ornaments.

One charming little model is made of black lisere straw with narrow brim of Pollus blue corded silk ribbon. The trimming lends an enchanting color effect, and is made up of flowers and fruit. Moderately priced at $7.50

You'll be most enthusiastic about a chic little turned-up brim turban, in Foch blue shade. Right on the very top of the crown is a fussy pompom of the same shade, and then fastened in the crown of the hat is a small veil that fits closely over the hat and fastens with a blue satin band around the neck, with a bow in the back. The price is $16.00

Frills of Fashion introducing New Colorings

You simply must have a frill on something—dress, coat or blouse—to be in Fashion's favor these days. And how delightful it is when the styles which are in vogue are those which are almost universally becoming. Thus it is with the soft and graceful frills which form so many of the neck finishings now, and that can soften even the hardest neckline. Soft georgettes and fine nets and muslins are the charming fabrics chosen mostly for these frills of Fashion. They come, too, in various colors and color combinations, and in different styles and widths. You will be delighted to see how one of these frills can make the fashionable costume quaint, demure, and colorful. Priced from ..... $1.00 to $3.00 a yard

SUITS AND DRESSES

Well adapted to make their Progress Along The Highway to Fashion

Grace is the keynote in both new Suits and Dresses. And the materials are supple and pliant, so that they will fall in beautiful folds when draped. All the artistry of the wizards who rule the world of Fashion seems to have been directed this season to achieving sheer beauty of line and color. Navy blue and dust color in a thousand variations are emphatically the main theme in the color harmony, but soft tans, greys, olive green, and lovely off shades of blue are also good.

The tendency in women's dresses is for simplicity of line, or else Fashion ceases to be demure and indulges in extravagancies of adornment. So varied are the styles that Milady has a wonderful array from which to choose this season. We mention here two strikingly stylish examples: A becoming stree dress comes in dust color tricotine, of lovely soft quality. Plain tailored bodice, with crossover side fastening in front. Tight sleeves, slit at the cuff and button trimmed. Deep, crushed girdle of Foch blue satin gives a delightful touch of color. Three shaped frills fall below the girdle and are piped with blue. Price .. $65.00

For an afternoon gown there's an elegant model of foulard georgette, in black and white coloring. It has a round, collarless, satin bound neck, a deep girdle of black satin, and underskirt of the same material over which the georgette is gracefully draped. Priced at $85.00

The new suits this season truly reflect the joy of Springtime, for every line is so crisp, the colors so fresh, and the gay little waistcoats and vestees so youthful looking. Just to see them is to want one. Fitting examples of their charming sprightliness are described here:

About one model, we say it is graceful, dignified, extremely modish and altogether distinctive. Fashioned of elegant quality serge, in navy blue. The skirt is plain, but for narrow side panels edged with black silk braid. The coat is plain and narrow to the waistline, and then falls in graceful roll pleats. A long shawl collar runs to the bottom of coat. Smart vest and collar of grey khaki-kool. Price $79.00

An entirely different style is called the "Chick-en Suit," also in navy blue serge, and it is the essence of chicness. A plain tailored skirt is topped with a short box-style coat, which has a wide band of black silk braid around the bottom. Collar of black charmeuse lined with victory rose silk. Priced at $49.00

Footwear Individuality in Ou

Spring Shoes

For street wear the Oxford carries all before it and holds the very first place in the footwear world, with high shoes of light colors following next in line. Our shoe assortments are now featuring the very latest ideas—both practical and novel. The newest styles are here, quite moderately priced, and splendid values.

There are plain soft kid Oxfords with long, narrow vamps and Louis, steel plated heels, extremely good looking in appearance and priced at $5.50. A similar model comes in soft, fine quality patent leather and is priced at $6.00. Also a nigger brown kid model Oxford at $4.95.

A smart high shoe comes in light grey shade of fine quality kid. It has a long, plain and pointed vamp and aluminum plated Louis heels. The price, $10.00. In a dark grey color, is another high shoe with toe cap and close sole. Priced at $9.00.

So much that is Attractive in Blouses

Fresh and new as the season are our Spring Blouses. For the most part they have georgette for their fashioning; beading and embroidery for their adornment, and there are more alluring designs than ever before. When you see them you'll agree with us and vote them things of beauty and joy to every woman who possesses one.

A perfectly stunning model is of smoke grey georgette. It has a round, collarless neck bound with grey satin. There are two rows of tiny satin buttons down the front and all the way down the sleeves. Both front and back are exquisitely embriodered with braid and silk. Price $18.00

Victory rose is the shade of another beautiful georgette blouse. It is collarless and is elegantly braided both back and front with victory rose silk braid. Price $17.50

CATHOLIC HUT GRANT FAILS

THE $15,000 VOTED BY TORONTO WILL NOT BE PAID OVER.

Toronto, March 13.—Members of the Board of Control and city official sheld a conference with the Toronto representatives in the Legislature at the Parliament Buildings yesterday afternoon to discuss the legislation affecting Toronto which is to be introduced at this session. As a result of the meeting, the legislation requested has been somewhat changed, while one or two clauses stand over for further consideration, and to be re-drafted.

There was a prolonged discussion on the request for an act ratifying the $15,000 grant for the Catholic Army Huts. Neither the members of the Board of Control nor the Toronto members in the Legislature were unanimous on the matter, and it was decided that the request for ratification should be withdrawn. Thus the money will not be paid. Controller Robbins opposed the request for ratification, and Messrs. J. Russell, M.P.P. for Riverdale, and Thomas Hook, M.P. for Southeast Toronto, supported him. Controllers McBride and Maguire urged that the money was not for sectarian purposes and should be paid. W. H. Price, M.P. for Parkdale, said he thought too much money was being spent unwarrantedly. Mr. Mark Irish regretted that the discordant note had been sounded in municipal affairs, but he was against the grant being paid.

CHANGES LIKELY IN THE CABINET

GOVERNMENT TO BE REORGANIZED WHEN PREMIER RETURNS FROM EUROPE.

Ottawa, March 14.—The Government is looking for the return of Sir Robert Borden in April. The present outlook is that the Peace Conference will have its main proceedings completed by the end of March, and that Sir Robert will leave for Canada immediately afterwards.

Important political developments are expected to follow his return to the Capital. First and most important is the question of the formation of a permanent Union party. Most of the Liberal and Conservative Unionists are strongly in favor of this move and have so expressed themselves, either in the House or in caucus. However, while the preliminary spade work has been done the question of any permanent organization has been left until the founder of Union has returned.

A Cabinet re-organization is also looked for, following the return of Sir Robert. The Prime Minister was working on such a re-organization last autumn when he was suddenly called away to England by the signing of the armistice. At the time the only change he made was in the Labor Department, Hon Gideon Robertson succeeding Hon. T. W. Crothers. Cabinet re-organization will undoubtedly partially depend at least upon what decision is reached as to the formation of a new party.

Crerar is Free Trader

It is believed that Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of Agriculture, would like to retire, although he is not talking for publication. It is no secret that last autumn he asked Sir Robert to relieve him of his duties. The Prime Minister asked him to carry on until his return from overseas and this Mr. Crerar agreed to do. Now it is expected he will renew his request. Mr. Crerar's chief reason for retiring is the fact that he is still president of the Grain Growers' Grain Company, and the position is being held open for him. He does not like politics nor Ottawa, and would like to return to his job.

In addition he is an uncompromising free trader in his views and it is doubtful if any concessions which would be made by the Government would be agreeable to him.

For Coast Province

There is a strong boom on for Dr. S. F. Tolmie, Member for Victoria, to succeed Mr. Crerar, if he resigns. Dr. Tolmie is one of the best known stock breeders on the continent. He was formerly live stock commissioner for British Columbia. He is President of the Dominion Holstein Breeders Association and was recently elected President of the Western Canada Breeder's Association at Brandon.

Dr. Tolmie would enter the Cabinet as the representative of British Columbia. Hon Martin Burrell retiring. It is thought likely there will be a change in the Trade and Commerce Department Sir George Foster either retiring or taking an other portfolio.

Decision on some of the important legislation of the session may also be held over until Sir Robert returns, including that ticklish question, the tariff, upon which the union of the two elements forming the Government largely depends. Sir Robert will also have important announcements to make in regard to the Peace Conference, and Parliament will be asked to ratify the peace terms as they effect Canada.

CARPENTERS DEMAND 75c

Halifax, N. S., March 14. — The Carpenters' Union of Halifax has sent a notice to the employers that beginning May 1 the wages shall be 75 cents an hour.

FIFTEEN YEARS AT HOUSE WORK

AND GIRL SAYS SHE NEVER YET FOUND HUMANE MISTRESS.

House workers in large numbers attended the meeting held at the Labor Temple with a view to organizing domestic help of all kinds.

Mrs. L. Macgregor, president of the W.L.L. presided. The housework ers adhered to their plan for forty dollars a month for an eight-hour day to workers who lived at their employer's home, and fifteen dollars a week (six days) to efficient workers for an eight-hour day, providing their own rooms and meals. A few of the girls who were attending the domestic classes for houseworkers at the Central Technical School were present at the meeting. The general feeling was that it was necessary that some degree of efficiency should be set for workers. Those attending them spoke highly of the classes formed for houseworkers.

No mention was made at last night's meeting of a uniform for workers. It was pointed out by Mrs. MacGregor this morning that the Labor League could merely help them in getting mimimum wage and regulated hours.

It was claimed by one worker, and the idea unanimously endorsed by all, that the time had come when they must organize. If the girls did not carry through the formation of a union now it was felt that wages would be reduced and conditions would be worse than before.

One woman who had been in domestic work for fifteen years said that in all that time she had not met a mistress who was humane. Others expressed the opinion that houseworkers had not been treated fairly in the past.

Miss Dempsey, who is from the States, organizing a waitresses' union, said that already 250 waitresses in Toronto had joined, and that a minimum wage of twelve dollars a week for an eight-hour shift had been agreed upon. Miss Dempsey said she was willing to help the domestic workers organize. Mr. F. Watkins also spoke on organization.

Mr. J. A. Miller, of the Ontario Employment Bureau, in speaking of the domestic situation this morning said that he was in favor of girls getting good wages, good hours and comfortable quarters. He was, however, a little apprehensive of the formation of a union. Demand for too high wages, thought Mr. Miller would not lead along the right lines. If the workers had continued to thrash out the matter between the employers and employes, he thought it would have resulted in a benefit to both.

PROSECUTE THOUSANDS

Quebec's Many M. S. A. Offenders Totaled.

Quebec, March 14.—Official figures given out by the military authorities show that in Quebec district out of 45,000 young men of military age more than 30,000 were exempted from the service by the tribunals, 9,700 reported for service, and 6,011 who had been called by the Registrar had not shown up, and are considered as deserters. Regarding the 6,011 absentees, the military authorities have been instructed by Ottawa to prosecute in every case.

Guelphites Protest Over Police Plan

Guelph, March 13.—The Guelph trades and labor council is making a strong protest to the attorney-general at Toronto regarding the methods being employed by the Dominion Police in Military District No. 1. This city is the headquarters of the police for both Wellington and Waterloo counties, and all the deserters arrested are brought here for trial and incarceration. The Labor men want to know who is going to pay the expenses of the men being brought in from Waterloo county, where the majority of them come from. They object to the expense being saddled on the city and are strongly of the opinion that Waterloo county should be compelled to look after its own. This matter has created considerable discussion because of the raid by the police at New Germany last Sunday, as the impression has gone abroad that these deserters come from Wellington county, whose record in the war can hardly be excelled anywhere.

SPARTACANS SMOKED OUT

Government Troops Use Sulphur Fumes To Fight Enemies.

Berlin, March 14. — Government troops used sulphur fumes to smoke the Spartacans out of the Lichtenberg Lunatic Asylum, where they had taken refuge, according to a despatch received from Berlin today. The suburb is said to have been ruined by artillery fire.

...void Becoming Nagger.

If you find yourself inclined to become a nagger you had better apply for a little vacation and a change of scene. Absence from home and business is often the best cure for a blue goggled vision. A little contact with the world and the struggles of others often helps make home folks more reasonable—at least for a time. Forestall the malady by learning to see the better side of life. Practice kindly speech even if it hurts you.

Folly of Monarchial Government.

As the exercise of government requires talents and abilities, and as talents and abilities cannot have hereditary descent, it is evident that hereditary succession requires a belief from man to which his reason cannot subscribe and which can only be established upon ignorance; and the more ignorant any country is, the better it is fitted for the monarchial species of government.—Thomas Paine.

STAR WITNESS MISSES TRAIN

Everything was in readiness for the resumption of the trial of John McKnight, an alleged defaulter under the M. S. A., whose case had been adjourned until this afternoon at 3 o'clock, when a telegram from Morley Edwards, postmaster at Blairhampton was received by Acting Magistrate H. Rush announcing that he had missed his train.

Witnesses for the defence maintained at the last hearing before Justices of the Peace Rush and Eastwood that McKnight had not received the order to report for a medical examination at Toronto for more than two months after it had been sent out, as a result of the carelessness of the postmaster of the village who mislaid the registered letter in some way.

It was decided that Postmaster Edwards should be given an opportunity to give testimony in connection with this matter and he was notified to appear here today but failed to do so for the reason stated above.

A continuance of the trial depended upon the presence of Edwards, who is regarded as the star witness, so it was decided to further postpone the hearing until tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock when McKnight and the village postmaster being both on hand the proceedings will be resumed.

Morale—a New Word.

Napoleon once remarked that morale is to other factors in war as three to one. Morale is a new word to our speech, and I do not know that anyone has yet fully defined it, but there are certain factors which must enter into its composition. And one of these factors is the turning of men's minds away from the trenches to other thoughts and occupations. Without a change of mental atmosphere morbidness comes and homesickness and the feeling of being "fed up" on the war dulls the fine edge of enthusiasm.—Bruce Barton in Red Cross Magazine.

Beauties of Constantinople.

The city of Constantinople is full of beautiful and interesting things, but in the way of buildings, after Santa Sophia the mosque of Yeni Valideh Sultan, the wife of Ahmed I, is the most wonderful. The effect of these tile-lined walls, as seen from Galata bridge, with their elaborate interlacing patterns and borders, is extremely striking and there seems to be nothing quite comparable to it. The tiles in this old mosque are considered to be among the finest in all Constantinople.

Concerning Snakes.

Poisonous snakes have diamond-shaped heads about four times larger at the jawbone than at the neck, according to World Wide Magazine. They also have blunt tails. Non-poisonous snakes have sharp heads, which are nearly the same size as the neck, and sharp tails. All snakes, however, are poisonous during the "shedding" period of seven days. They go blind two days before "shedding."

Fogs Have "Silence Zones."

Fog bells and buoys are frequently ineffective, because of the "zones of silence" prevalent in fog banks. Frequently these zones not only retard a sound but stop it entirely. In the same bank of fog there will be a long lane through which sound will carry clearly. The result is that one ship may hear another that is far off and have no hint of a third that is close at hand.—People's Home Journal.

ORENBURG.

Once Peaceful City Becomes a Battleground.

The city of Orenburg, in which, according to a recent despatch from Omsk, contingents of French and British troops are being rushed to aid Gen. Dutoff in holding it against the attacks of Bolshevik forces, is an important community.

At the time of the outbreak of the world war Orenburg, capital of the Orenburg Cossack country, on the Asiatic border, ranked fourteenth in size among the cities of European Russia.

Established less than 200 years ago as a frontier fort, Orenburg was moved three times in less than ten years, its present site being nearly 150 miles northwest of its original location. It soon became an important trading port as well as a strong link in the fortified chain known as the Orenburg Cossack line.

At the time of the outbreak of the world war, the town was one of the most prosperous in the Czar's dominions, as it was an entrepot for the trade of Tashkent, Khiva, Bokhara, Knokand and European Russia. Great caravans brought the silks, wool, rugs, dried fruits, cotton and lambskins from these Asiatic dependencies of Russia to exchange them at the border city for the sugar, metal ware and textiles of Europe.

The traffic in live stock was also great. Formerly the sheep and cattle were merely driven through Orenburg, but in recent years the slaughtering industry has become important, thanks to the introduction of cold-storage cars which conveyed the meats to Samara, which lies 360 miles to the west by rail. Tons of tallow, butter, cheese, hams and sausages were shipped from Orenburg annually.

Thirteen years ago the railway line was extended from Orenburg to Tashkent, a distance of more than 1,100 miles. While this twentieth century achievement served to stimulate trade, it has robbed the city on the north bank of the Ural of many of its picturesque camel-caravan visitors.

Orenburg in peace times was not without its cultural advantages. It had two cadet colleges, nearly 40 churches besides 14 mosques, (85 per cent. of the inhabitants being Tartars and Bashkirs) and a branch of the Russian Geographical Society. Its climate is dry and subject to considerable fluctuations of temperature, for although the average for the year is only five degrees above freezing) the thermometer not infrequently rises to 95 in mid-summer, while 33 degrees below zero in winter is not uncommon.

The Ural river, which forms a part of the boundary line between European and Asiatic Russia, is not a navigable stream, otherwise Orenburg would be an even more important commercial centre.

"The city is the capital of the Russian Government or Province of Orenburg, which has an area somewhat less than that of South Dakota, but three times the population.

Before the war there were numerous settlements of German colonists in the neighborhood of the capital.

Orenburg for many years has been noted among womankind for its beautiful white and gray shawls, so finely knitted of pure goats' wool that many of them can be drawn through a finger ring. These products of skilful industry formerly sold for from $12 to $35 a square yard.

Differences in Fashion.

In Japan the professional beauty loves to appear with golden teeth; in India she prefers them stained red, but in certain parts of Sumatra no lady who respects herself would condescend to have any front teeth at all.

Insect Intelligence.

Wasps rank next to the higher classes of ants in point of insect intelligence.

Be Unblamable Yourself.

Whereof you reprove another be unblamable yourself.—Washington.

...Whatever connoisseurs of antiques may say, no glassware has ever been produced in the world that is at all comparable in beauty to the stuff of shimmering metallic colors that nowadays fetches such extraordinary prices.

The profit is enormous, for the method of its manufacture (once the secret is known) is surprisingly simple.

The article of glass—be it vase, wine glass or what not—is at the start in no way different from any similar things of first-class workmanship. So far it is simply a matter of days for a skilled hand.

But in the final and finishing process a dry spray of one or more metallic oxides is distributed over the surface of the vase or other article. It may be (though rarely) pure gold dust; it may be gold dust mixed with copper oxide. It may be oxide of manganese, or nickel oxide, or cobalt oxide, or some other metallic salt.

Whatever the nature of the metal dust, the latter is literally incorporated with the material of the hot surface of the glass. The latter, during the process, is at red-hot temperature and therefore expanding. It absorbs the metal particles, which become part of its substance.

Hence the beautiful hues of this shimmering glass. They are metallic colors. Not only the familiar metals, but various kinds of rare earths of metalliferous kinds (such as yttria) are being utilized for the purpose, so that there is no end to the variety of hues obtainable.

A Use for Golf.

The crowd around the ticker was discussing the operations of a youthful speculator, who shall be nameless. Said one:

"I hear he was hit on the head with a golf ball two years ago and has been rather stupid ever since."

"Maybe so," said the floor manager, "but he has cleaned up a million or more in the same time."

"Gee!" said the first. Then after a pause, "Say, how do you go about learning to play golf?"

Factories on the Aisne.

Of the 45,000 horse-power utilized in the Department of the Aisne, France, four-fifths are estimated to have been employed in factories in that portion which was in German occupation. The sugar refineries, of which there are over 80, employing nearly 15,000 people, have been severely damaged and their restoration will be a serious problem.

Author of Immortal Song.

"Home, Sweet Home," was written in 1823 by John Howard Payne. In but a very few of the sixty years of his life Payne was sufficiently long at any one place to call it his home. He died in Tunis, Africa, April 1, 1852, and it was thirty-one years afterwards before his body was brought to his native country, the place he no doubt had in mind when he penned these appealing words.

Columbus' Three Vessels.

The Santa Maria was one of the three vessels with which Columbus set sail for America from Palos, Spain, August 3, 1492. She was a good-sized boat, ninety feet long, carrying sixty-six seamen. She was decked all over, and had four masts—two with square sails and two with lateen sails. The other vessels were smaller, and without decks, and they were all provisioned for a year.

Nothing Gained by Brooding.

Give up brooding over failures—take each day as a fresh start. Give up enmities, grudges, envies—all conditions of mind that drag down the spirit. Be constructive. See the good in people. Keep abreast with the news of what our men "over there" are doing each day and perform your duty (even be it dish washing) in the fervor that fills them as they obey their bugle calls.

AUSTRALIANS HAVE BEST BOXING RULES ON EARTH

Contestants in the Ring Sign Against Faking and Weigh in Before Spectators.

New York, March 13.—E. T. O'Sullivan, the man who brought Les Darcy to this country, has written a letter to Senator Leonard W. Gibbs outlining the method of conducting boxing in Australia. Some of the suggestions may be of help to those who are endeavering to frame a bill that will give general satisfaction, while others may be useful when it comes time to draw up a set of commission rules.

Faking is rare in Australia, because before each boxer enter the ring he is required to sign a written agreement whereby he forfeits all claim to his share of the pure in the event that the commission decides that he has not boxed on his merits.

That is an idea that might be adopted with profit by the next boxing commission in this state. During the days of the Frawley law there were several occasions when the boxers were ordered out of the ring, but they always were paid in full, in order to avoid litigation in the courts.

In the antipodes boxers are required to weigh in at the ringside in full view of the spectators, so that there can be no mistake as to which class the countestants rightfully belong. This was tried in New York at one time. For one or two big bouts at the Garden a small bath scale was placed in the centre of the ring, and the boxers were weighed just before donning the gloves. However, the scale was more or less of a joke affair, and it was generally broken down, for some reason or other best known to those interested. The idea was a good one, but, like so many other rules of the old commission, it was not enforced.

The Australian rules require a champion to defend his title once every six months, as is done in England. There has long been a demand in this country for a similar rule, but the various boxing commissions have failed to get together on the question. Naturally, all must be in accord, as such a rule would have little weight if only one or two states.

All timing is done by an automatic clock in Australia. This machine has four faces and hangs above the ring, where it can be seen from all parts of the arena. When the bout starts a button is touched, setting the clock into action, and from then on every three minutes it strikes a big bell. After an interval of a minute it rings for the beginning of the next round.

When a knockdown occurs, another button is touched, and a globe flashes red every second until the fallen boxer gets up or is counted out. There can be no long or short counts, and every round goes the full three minutes—no more, no less.

Sporting Gossip

Shortening the season does not mean less money for Zack Wheat, Brooklyn's star outfielder. He was given his 1918 terms. In addition he was appointed captain of the club, which earns him a bonus of $500.

Umpire Hank O'Day still sticks to his determination to improve base running by having the balk rule more rigidly enforced. He has suggested to President John Heydler that the base umpire have equal jurisdiction with the man behind the plate in calling balks.

Pat Moran is grabbing everything in sight in the way of infield material for the Reds. He claimed Claude Johnson on waivers and obtained him from the Athletics. Johnson played fifteen games for Connie Mack and is said to be a comer.

HARRY GILMORE IS YOUNG AFTER BOXING 61 YEARS

Famous Athlete Attributes His Splendid Physical Condition to Steady Habits and Temperance.

(By Oscar C. Reichow.)

Take the case of Harry Gilmore, Sr. He was 65 years old March 9. Does he appear to be 65 years old to one looking at him? He does not, and he steps about with the spring of a man of 40. That is not all he can do. He is proud of the fact that he can still box four or six fast rounds and make many a boxer half his age go some to outpoint him. His health is excellent, and he declares he expects to go on living indefinitely. He gives boxing credit for the spirit he possesses.

Gilmore has never been without a pair of boxing gloves since he was 6 years old. It was at that age that his father, who was also clever with the mitts, taught him the art of self-defense. It was his dad who was responsible for his going into the fight game as strongly as he did, and Gilmore does not regret it, as he has made a comfortable living out of it, and has reared and educated five boys and two girls.

Where Boxing Career Began.

He was born in Toronto, Can., and it was there that he started his boxing career, when he was 9 years old. Gilmore worked on the racetrack in Toronto, and was challenged by one of the stable boys to a bout. He was backed for $100 by the man for whom he worked. Having been taught the art of boring by his father, he won the fight in short order. That really was the beginning of his professional career, as he was given $50 for winning the fight; but he did not enter the ring proper until he was 18 years old.

Gilmore advanced rapidly in his profession, and soon was regarded as one of the greatest boxers of the time. He fought champions with bare knuckles, and men who outweighed him by twenty and more pounds. Size made no difference to him. He always took excellent care of his condition, and was always in shape to take on fighters his own weight and those weighing more. His greatest fight was with Jack McAuliffe, which he lost when his second threw the sponge into the center of the ring.

Second Stops the Bout.

Gilmore's nose is slightly crooked, and it was done in that fight with McAuliffe The break occurred late in the fight and Gilmore, bleeding internally, was hardly able to continue the contest Yet he was game and fought as furiously as he did in the first round But he was so choked from bleeding internally that his second insisted on stopping the bout.

Gilmore attributes his fine health and youthful spirit to the fact that he was always moderate in his habits. He never smoked cigarettes and spent little money for cigars. While training for a fight he eliminated the weed entirely. Alcoholic stimulants were entirey tabooed while preparing for a fight, and were taken only moderately while not in action.

Sees Evil in All Excess.

"I drank very little in my younger days," said Gilmore. "I was not a total abstainer, because I believed a little drop now and then would do no one a bit of harm. Of course, taking it to excess is out of the question. That applies to anything else. I never smoked or trained excessively. In the mornings when I went on the road I never started out on an empty stomach, always taking a little fruit. I was a great meat eater while training, but ate little of it when not exercising.

"Long walks in the morning and at night helped me to keep my health. I have never known a sick day. (Knock on wood.) Boxing and gymnasium exercise kept me well, and I do not know of a better sport to develop the body, eye and mind.

Hopes for Boxing Revival.

"I have never been without boxing gloves since I can remember and have raised my boys the same. They are all healthy and strong. What more can a man wish for? I am satisfied and I hope they revive boxing in Chicago."

If the game is resumed in Chicago Gilmore may reopen his boxing school. He now teaches a class of boys ranging from 6 to 14 years at Highland Park on Saturdays and also has many private pupils to whose homes he goes. Gilmore has brought out more champions than any other instructor in the country and expects to have a few more before he discards the gloves.

UNCHALLENGED

Even at range of 3,500 to 3,000 miles—between the Marne and the Rhine—belated queries used to drop in as to whether or not "Walter Johnson isn't a greater pitcher than Mathewson"—or as to whether or not "Hal Chase isn't the greatest first baseman of the mall."

The fanatic, war or no war, must have his little argument. But it is interesting to note that of all positions on the diamond, only a few remain unchallenged where the height is conceded to one man.

In the box you find the argument revolving around Mathewson, Radbourne, Cy Young, Walter Johnson, Waddel and others.

There is always the old debate as to whether Hal Chase, Fred Tenney or some other star led at first.

Those who pick Pajole as the king of second basemen are challenged by those supporting Eddie Collins.

Those who pick Jimmy Collins at third are barked at loudly by those supporting Bill Bradley, Art Devlin or Frank Baker for all around worth.

After all, there is one place alone in the infield that remains unchallenged.

We have yet to hear any one challenge the supremacy of Hans Wagner at short, when it comes to a matter of all around worth.

The ancient Pirate is one of the few unchalenged stars.

He was as great a fielding shortstop as baseball has ever known. He could cover as much ground as the pick of the flock. And, added to this, he could outhit any shortstop rival by a good 40 points, taking the average over the long route.

Wagner was one of the few who had no rival.

When great shortstops are mentioned you begin with [illegible] and end with Wagner and then [illegible] settle around second [illegible]

SAYS TEMPERANCE ACT WILL SURVIVE

LIBERAL MEMBER BELIEVES THAT PROHIBITIONISTS WILL WIN IN PLEBISCITE.

Toronto, March 14.—Five separate bills to amend the Municipal Act as well as one to improve the Public Health Act, were introduced in the Legislature, the former quartet going into one course to the Municipal Committee, as well as one already in the hands of that body all to be considered, and if approved, consolidated.

The budget debate was resumed by Mr. Regan, the member for South Wentworth closing his contribution to the debate by pleading for united effort to bridge the existing differences between agriculture, labor and capital so that these elements may become first contributors to provincial prosperity.

Sir Sam Carter followed with a characteristic speech the earlier portion being devoted to assurance to the province that it need not get so "jumpy" on the prohibition question, counselling the Premier that Labor, the farmers and the women vote would be found behind him if he stood firm for strict prohibition.

ENVOY ALWARD IN CHARGE OF S. A. TEMPLE 24 YEARS AGO

Envoy F. C. Alward, who is connected with the Salvation Army work in Toronto, where he is city manager of the Continental Insurance Company, was in the city today. Twenty-four years ago Envoy Alward, at that time an adjutant, was in charge of the branch of the Army in this city. He notices a good many improvements in the city since he resided here.

Envoy Alward lives next door to Capt. and Mrs. McElhiney in Toronto, both of whom are old friends. Mrs. McElhiney was converted by the preaching of Envoy Alward in Newfoundland twenty-seven years ago. She afterwards became an officer, and while stationed at Windsor, N. S., met and led to the light the man who has now the honor of being her husband.

The Envoy has lost a son in the war, Pte. Wilfred Alward, who was only nineteen years old when he made the supreme sacrifice at Cambrai. He enlisted with the 203rd Battalion of Manitoba and was later transferred to the Fort William battalion, which unit he was with at the time of his death.

Entertained Knox Church Choir

The choir of Knox Church were entertained by Miss Mabel Penrose at her home, 546 Sherbrooke street, last evening when a very enjoyable time was spent in games and music, after which a dainty luncheon was served. A hearty vote of thanks was then tendered Mr. and Mrs. Penrose and family for their kindness in extending the hospitality of their home. The evening then closed by everyone joining hands and singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Mrs. A. Courtice's Lecture Tuesday

Mrs. A. Courtice, member of the Board of Education in Toronto, will deliver a lecture Tuesday evening in the Collegiate Assembly Hall, dealing with school work especially that branch which is carried on by the Parent's Circle. The lecture is given under the auspices of the Parent's Circle of Queen Mary School and is sure to be full of information for all those who have children of school age as well as for those who are interested in the educational system of the city. A cordial invitation is extended to all parents to attend the lecture.

An excellent musical program will be provided. Capt. and Mrs. Maurice Park will render duets and there will be numbers by other local musicians to be announced later.

The aggregate of bank clearances from Canadian cities reporting yesterday showed an increase over the same period in 1918.

CHANGING METHODS FOR CHANGING TIMES

"It is up to us to give heed to the changing methods of these changing times. It is our duty to see that we adopt the right method, and such addresses as we received today will go a very long way indeed towards helping us to achieve that end."

These words of Senator Frederick Nicholls, of the Canadian General Electric Co., in moving a vote of thanks to the speaker at the close of Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King's remarkable address on "The Four Parties of Industry," at the Empire Club luncheon in Toronto, are merely a reflex of the spirit in which the speech was received and an indication of the impression it left on the minds of his hearers.

PEACE CONFERENCE TO MAKE BUFFER STATE OF POLAND

Will Be Allowed Strategic Points Now Held by Germany to Save Western Europe From Bolshevism—Further Details of Peace Treaty

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, March 15.—The British program at the Peace Conference is understood to contemplate the signing of separate preliminary treaties with the central allies as soon as possible after Germany is disposed of. Next would come the consideration of any amendments to the present constitution of the League of Nations and then the league would be whipped into permanent shape. The final peace treaty would follow and would include the League of Nations' plan.

The leading thought among the British at the present moment seems to be to whip the preliminary peace terms of all unnecessary incumbrances and secure the signature of that document so that the world can begin to settle back to normal. One of the first questions to be considered by the Council of the Big Ten will be the boundary between Poland and Germany. The Polish boundary commission, as well as the general territorial commission has virtually agreed unanimously on this boundary.

While no official announcement has been made it is known that Danzig is included in Poland and that the commissions have agreed upon a boundary which would give Poland strategic points which should make her an effective barrier between Bolshevism and Western Europe and secure the signature of that

GRAVE PROBLEMS DEBATED BY THE MOCK PARLIAMENT

Novel Entertainment at the George Street Church Last Night Gives Scope for Variety of Forensic and Statesmanlike Talent

The Sunday School Hall of George Street Methodist Church was filled to the doors last night by interested spectators of the first session of parliament every held in that room. Eloquence ran riot, quips were numerous, and that portion of the public ers was frequently thrown into convulsions of laughter.

About 7.40 p.m. the members of the House of Commons reached their seats. Sharp at 8 o'clock the speaker and leader of the House, and the Clerk withdrew, accompanied by the Sergeant at Arms, to escort the Lieutenant-Governor to the Throne. From this place of honor, the Lieutenant-Governor read a masterly speech, at the conclusion of which, he to use his own words, "He gladly withdrew." He was escorted, gala attire and all, out of the House by the speaker, Leader of the House Clerk and Sergeant at Arms.

The Speaker, on returning, acknowledged the Speech from the Throne, and then announced that the House would proceed to business. The Clerk was instructed to call the roll, which ran as follows:

The Speaker then rose, and after a few choice remarks, among which was the one, "Some of the sitting members are wiser than they look, while others are not so wise, yet they try their best to make laws that will be a benefit to the Province," called the meeting to order. Premier F. H. Dobbin then rose to speak on a question of privilege. He stated, that he was glad to welcome women members into Parliament, and thought that they would be a great help, if the reports of their facility in debate were true. Many members of Parliament he knew, wished to get back to their spring work on the farms, while the manufacturing members wished to get home, in order to work out a system of shorter hours and more pay for their men. He then wished the speaker to ask the Honorable Leader of the Opposition to consent to the House going into Committe of Supply.

The Opposition leader candidly stated that he would consent to anything that would hasten the end of this regime of corruption and scandal.

The Premier then made a motion for supply. This was seconded and the House approved. The Clerk then announced that the House was in Committee of Supply.

To Limit Immigration.

The first bill brought in was one to limit immigration into the Provinces. This came from the Government side and was introduced by Mr. McCutcheon, from Lovesick, seconded by Miss Dix, Sleepy Hollow. The Opposition speaker was Mr. C. C. Parsons, Hurleyville. Mr. McCutcheon was interrupted during his address several times and in reply to the question what was meant by "lower classes," replied that this meant all people between 3 ft. 4in. and 4 ft. 11 in. in height.

The seconder of this motion in her brilliant speech, gave one the idea that she had eaten a Logarithmic tables book for supper. Her most startling point was not only to limit immigration, but the immigrants of the female sex. Either enough men had to be brought in so there would be one for each lady, or the surplus ladies must be exported to Europe where the matrimonial bug was prevalent.

Mr. Parsons stated that if the Indians had restricted immigration, Columbus would never have landed, and where would we be? Also if we restrict immigration we should restrict foreign capital. It was a senseless question he stated. All picture Mr. Oke ironing his shirt when there are no Chinamen here, or the speaker digging drains! This bill was then laid on the table.

Fuel Economy.

The second bill was to make economy compulsory in the use of fuel. This bill came from the Opposition and was introduced by Mr. Woolwich, seconded by Miss Bennett and replied to by Mr. Chas. Armstrong.

Mr. Woolwich showed that teachers could help in this by not giving any homework. At present school pupils require heated rooms, in which to study, from 6.30 p.m. to 11.20 p.m. Without homework they could be in bed.

Another way to save fuel is to get in a discussion and get "het up." Also, a young husband could stop buying coal, come home and heat up the house by a heated discussion with his wife.

Miss Bennett showed that the men would not have to shovel coal, carry out ashes, etc., if this bill went through. Men were always happy when they had nothing to do, and this bill would then be good for the world.

As for burning wood, it was a wasteful extravagence. When it was burnt it was gone for good, but use it to build with and you had it forever. Reforestration, Miss Bennett, here stated in reply to a question, was the bringing home again of the Canadian Forestry Battalion at present in England. You all know that the winters have been getting warmer each year. Soon it will be warm in Eskimo land, and they will want wood to burn instead of coal. They have never asked for wood before so they should get it. Therefore, save wood now to give Eskimos later.

You all know that, you are more comfortable this year than last. But this year you saved more fuel Therefore, the more fuel you save the more comfortable you are. Men could, in the future, warm themselves by wearing fur lined collar-buttons heavier shoe laces and red ties. One could also decorate their premises with red. The colors would be irratable and make ones' blood boil.

The Government speaker simply showed the great expense the Government would be at in enforcing such a law.

Compulsory Voting.

The third bill was to make compulsory the exercise of the franchise, in Provincial and Municipal elections. This came from the Government side. Miss Parker, who introduced this bill, reminded one of Launcelot Gobbo in the Merchant of Venice, always confusing her words. While seconding the motion, Mr. Barrie explained that franchise was not what the wise men brought from the East. At this point a scrap among the M.P.P.'s arose, which was subdued by pouring "troubled waters" on the "pacific o." Miss V. Marshall, who spoke for the Opposition, effectually silenced a opposition, and put out a fire against her will.

To Prevent House Cleaning.

The next bill was to prevent house cleaning, brought in by the Opposition. Dr. Harris, leader of the Opposition, spoke first and called the speaker's attention to the fact that the speaker had once referred to the "speaches" of the Opposition. He thought this a mistake, as they were poisong us. Miss Buck, the seconder, showed how diverces arose during house cleaning time, and how a man lost his income, while gambling at the club, the only place where at such a time he could find rest. Miss E. Outram, in a fiery, clear, and excellent speech, opposed the measure.

The Church Pump.

The fifth bill was to suppress the reckless and indiscriminate use of the George Street Church pump. It was brought in by the leader of the

OFFICIALS OF GRAND TRUNK PROMISE BETTER SERVICE

Trains That Were Taken Off Last Fall Are to be Restored When the Spring Time Table is Drawn Up Next May—Conference To-day

C. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent of the G. T. R., J. D. McMillan,, divisional superintendent, and Roadmaster Orr met the Railway Committee and a representative gathering of the citizens of the city and of the executive of the Commercial Travellers' Association this morning and discussed with them the outlook for an improved train service for this city over the Grand Trunk.

There were present representatives from Campbellford to present the case for their town, and after hearing from the different speakers the railway officials practically promised a resumption of the service maintained over the G. T. R. last summer, to go into effect May 4 when the spring timetable is adopted.

Chairman Edgar, after a few introductory remarks, called upon Ald. Turner, who urged the putting into commission once more of the popular 8:10 morning train to Port Hope which had been taken off by the Grand Trunk last fall.

This train, leaving at 8:10 in the morning and returning at 12 noon, was a most useful one, making possible connections east and west on the main line.

Ald. Turner, while dealing with the advantages of an improved service over the G. T. R. from the standpoint of the people of the city, referred to the fact that it would also be in the interest of the company.

Mayor Duncan urged a resumption of the former train service to Lakefield, and asked that the Belleville train arriving here at 8:26 in the evening be continued to Lindsay as formerly. He dwelt upon the mutual advantage to be attained if this were done, and felt confident that the people of Peterborough could leave the matter in the hands of Mr. Horning and Mr. McMillan with every assurance of fair treatment.

Dr. Geo. Hay of Campbellford and Deputy Reeve Davidson were in accord with Ald. Turner's contention that the morning train for Port Hope should be put back on its run. They also urged the officials to provide Campbellford with a night train to Belleville, even if it were only a coach on the rear end of a freight.

Mr. Stacey Couper, president of the Commercial Travellers' Association, presented the claims of that organization for an improved service. He agreed that the morning train to Port Hope was a most important one and contended that when it was put into commission once more the local train leaving Belleville for Toronto should have its time changed so as to make a close connection at Port Hope. He intimated that the Two-Spot, a local train which used to run from Belleville to Brockville, should be put into service again, and gave reasons for his contention.

Mr. Couper was followed by Mr. Rosenburg, who dealt more particularly with the service along the front as it affected commercial travellers who reside in Peterborough. Touching upon the Lakefield situation, he reminded the railway men that at present trains running to this village were not timed with a view to satisfactory connections, and that it was necessary for a traveller to drive at least one way.

Superintendent McMillan, in replying to the representations of the speakers, reminded them that while the war is over the men have not yet returned to this country and for that reason any change in the service involving an increase in passenger equipment had to be very carefully considered from the standpoint of justification.

He felt that no unreasonable demands had been made, but that the company had to consider matters of this kind from the financial standpoint while willing to do everything in reason to give their patrons a satisfactory service. He asked what the C. P. R. officials had promised at the conference recently held with the city representatives.

C. E. Horning asserted that the curtailment of service which was complained of had been made obligatory by the exigencies of the military situation, and before the traffic conditions of the road could be considered as back to normal once more the soldiers would have to be home.

He assured the meeting that if the Grand Trunk could see its way clear to make money by running a train over any line they would do so at once, but as business men they had to consider the financial side of the question. Two trains each way per day was the rule on all branch lines, and the Peterborough-Bellerille line already had such a service. He could not see where a night train would pay, and, while desirous of seeing Campbellford well treated, as it was an excellent patron of the G. T. R., he was sure that a passenger coach on the back of a freight train would be most unsatisfactory and would cause all kinds of trouble as it would not be dependable. He practically assured the meeting that the service that was maintained over the Grand Trunk last summer would be resumed. If the morning train to Port Hope was run once more the local from Belleville to Toronto would be timed for good connections, and Mr. McMillan assured Mr. Couper that the question of again putting the "Two Spot" on the run to Brockville is being considered at the present time, although he was somewhat dubious as to the discretion of resuming it, from the standpoint of the company, as it cannot be said that it was operated upon a paying basis before.

Mr. A. McNeil, the company's local agent, stated that he would be pleased to see the proposed return of the summer service which the officials had practically promised to put into effect May 4.

Mr. G. O. Cameron, a member of the executive council of the Board of Trade, made a short address in which he stated that in his opinion the people of this district could depend upon "Dan" McMillan to do his best to safeguard their interests. He spoke of the improvements in the Grand Trunk system as regards the Midland division which the last few years have witnessed. Heavier steel has been laid and the mogul has superseded the teapots which used to pant laboriously through the city. It was pleasing to Peterborough to know that they were on a main line of the Grand Trunk even if the C. P. R. had considered them of so little importance as to be reserved with a side line. The G.T.R., according to Mr. Cameron had hauled more grain in the past year than had the mighty C.P.R. even with the aid of its much-talked of one per cent. grade lake shore line.

Chairman Turner of the Reception Committee had invited the visiting railway officials to have lunch with them at the Empress, but Mr. Horning expressed a desire to return on the noon train to Toronto as this was Saturday and he wished to get to his home as early as possible.

Officials for the Michigan Central in Canada say that stealing from cars is rampant along that line.

Kingston has just had a new chlorination plant installed at the water-works to improve its drinking water supply.

OTONABEE REEVE FAVORS PROVINCIAL ROAD PLAN

W. A. Anderson Says the County is Entitled to a Share of the Auto License Fund.

To the Editor—Of the nearly 200 miles of roads in the Township of Otonabee, about 45 or 50 miles are used to such an extent that they would be designated as County Roads and accepted by the Highway Department of Ontario as such.

There would be three or four main or county roads into Peterboro that would serve nearly all those who make frequent trips to the city with milk, cream, vegetables, etc. On a certain mileage near the city the city as well as the province would pay part of the cost of the roads, whereas at present the people of the Township pay all the cost.

There would be a county road past Keene Station and another past Indian River Station, the province paying at least 20 or 40 per cent of the cost and perhaps 60 per cent on some of it—at present the farmer is paying it all.

Factories Benefit

All of the five factories handling milk or cream are located where there would be a very considerable part of the milk they receive hauled over some portion of these main roads, and the cheese and butter would go from the factories to the above mentioned stations or to Peterboro on county roads (most of the way) now used by the farmers and kept up by themselves.

So far as Otonabee is concerned it cannot be successfully argued that any considerable number of farmers do not use these main roads a great deal. They only have claim to the name "main roads" because they carry more than an ordinary amount of traffic.

For many years every property in the township has paid about 1½ mills annually for these main roads in statute labor or in cash, whether it is located on the main road or not, whether the tax-payer uses the road or not, whether the road is destroyed by frost, by storms by farmers' wagons and horses, farmers' automobiles or by motor cars or trucks from Peterboro or from cities more distant.

With all the statute labor and considerable money that has gone on these roads since the inception of the first Provincial County Road scheme in 1901 (17 years' work) would the township now have more or less to show for the expenditure that has been made if these roads had been added to their own outlay, the provincial money and supervision.

What I have found in some counties that years ago started a system of County Roads is straighter and wider grades, better small bridges and culverts and usually a better system of gravel or crushed stone than we have.

Main Roads

How long can the rate-payers of Otonabee afford to do without the present available assistance to help them build and maintain their main roads? They cannot any longer keep these roads as they have been with so small an outlay.

If instead of 1½ mills, three mills were levied; about $3000 per year, would be received from the province and City of Peterboro making in all nearly $10,000 annually to improve these roads.

The Reeves of the townships in the County system each year decide on the amount required to do the work needed that year and the superintendent carries out the directions of the Reeves. Of course there is also inspection by the department that is necessary and is or should be worth something to the system.

In addition to paying all the cost of the roads at present there are many automobiles in the township paying a license to the Government, which will not be accepted by Peterboro County go to other County Roads.

The war is over and men are out of work, is it not time to undertake some work so badly needed on our roads?

As for frontage tax, the improvement of the main roads are of so much importance to all, and the cost say 3 times so small, that there is not the slightest need for worrying about a frontage tax for ordinary County Roads in Otonabee.

Respectfully Yours,

W. A. Anderson.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

SATURDAY, MARCH 15, 1919

THE FARMER'S INCOME TAX.

THE OTHER DAY The Review published with first page prominence an article dealing with the farmers and the Federal income tax. Readers of that article would arrive at the conclusion that every farmer in the county would be well advised to fill out the special blank forms supplied for the purpose by the Government and leave it to the authorities to decide whether or not he was liable for this tax. That was the way the matter appeared to The Review, and was exactly the idea which we sought to convey.

But a difference of opinion has arisen among the local legal fraternity as to the meaning of the Act. Competent opinion on one side says this is the correct view to take, while other equally prominent attorneys say that the farmers in this regard are in the same class as the salary earners and that only those who have reason to believe that they are liable for the tax are required to make a return.

It is unfortunate that there should be any doubt about this matter, which is of so much moment to the farmers of the district, many of whom may easily get into trouble through failure to understand the regulations. They can hardly be expected to interpret the Act correctly, or be blamed and penalized for failing to do so, if expert lawyers find themselves at variance on the same points.

It is an easy problem for the salaried man in the city, or the man with an income derived from any other source, to settle the question of his liability in this matter. If he is single or a widower without children, he must pay a tax on his income in excess of $1000. If he is a married man, the amount of his exemption is $2000, with $200 additional exemption for every child under the age of sixteen. Thus, a man married and with two young children must have an income of $2400 a year before he can be taxed.

Men in the two classes mentioned earning severally less than the specified amounts ar not required to make a return to the Government. The latter, however, if there is any reason to suspect irregularity, may call for such a return by sending a registered letter to the person who is suspected of a yearly income greater than he is willing to admit.

Settling the amount of a farmer's income is an entirely different matter, and in a good many cases would require the services of an actuarial expert. Every bushel of grain or vegetables that a farmer raises constitutes part of his income, whether he sells his produce at current prices or consumes them at home. It is not the amount of ready money that he has on hand after his affairs for the year are wound up that decides his liability for income tax. The returns the farmers are called upon to fill give a vast amount of detailed information as to his business affairs. A footnote at the bottom says: "Payment should not accompany this return. After it has been examined and audited by the officers of the taxation branch, the taxpayer will receive a notice of the amount due, if any."

That added instruction would make it appear that every farmer is required to fill out the form and return it to the Government. However, there are farmers whose financial standing is so well known that it would appear like so much time wasted to send in a return unless the Government, by calling for statistics, has a double purpose in mind, levying the special tax and taking a census of the agricultural wealth of the country. A farmer living on rented premises, less than one lap, very often, in advance of the sheriff, is in about the same position as the wage-earner in the city with small monetary returns and a large family. Even the most skeptical is not likely to suspect either of failing in his duty as a citizen by dodging the income tax.

It is unfortunate that there should be any doubt on this question, and steps will be taken by The Review at once to get an official ruling on the issues in dispute.

THEIR LOGICAL REFUGE.

PRESSED TO THE POINT of rout by the Government troops at Lichtenburg, the Spartacan armed rabble, for it can scarcely be called an army, sought refuge in the insane asylum, a move that suggests the principle of reversion to type. Such an institution would seem to be the logical haven of such a mob. To those at a distance it would appear the part of wisdom for the orthodox army to have turned the key on the refugees and held them prisoners until they gave some signs of restored reason instead of smoking them out like so many rats with the use of mustard gas, as they did.

WIDE OPEN PETITIONS—AND REFERENDUMS.

THE FACT THAT the Ontario Legislature appears likely to submit the temperance issue to a "wide open referendum" is no indication that there is any serious discord in the Government over this question. Among the elected members of the party there is just as much likelihood of a difference of opinion as there is to be found among the electors themselves. If the referendum is to be "wide open," it must be remembered that the petitions asking for prohibition were of the same nature and represented the same variety of opinion as prevails among the people today.

About eighty per cent. of the people of Ontario signed the petitions, which the Legislature accepted as a mandate to give effect to provincial prohibition for the duration of the war. Not all of these signers were practical prohibitionists by any means. All they asked for was a restriction of the liquor traffic until the return of peace. Others who signed the petition were in favor of restriction in the use and sale of spirituous liquors only while still favoring the moderate use of light beers and wines. Some of the petitioners signed only on the understanding that the whole matter was to be submitted to the people in the form of a referendum before final administrative action was taken. Others insisted upon the Government acting at once without throwing the province into the turmoil of an election.

All sorts and conditions of men and women were represented in the dray loads of petitions that were carried to the legislative chambers in Toronto with an imposing array of the temperance forces. The Government, in deciding its policy on this matter, went to the limit of its powers, and prohibition was given effect, only one member of the House dissenting.

That was the situation in 1915, when the measure was adopted. No vote was taken, but it was agreed that there was to be a plebiscite after the Act had been in operation for three years. That time expires on September 1 next, and the pledge of the Government must be carried out. In implementing their promise to the people the Government is in honor bound to give every class in the community an opportunity to express their views, at least every class whose sentiments were reflected in the petitions which the Government accepted as authority for their drastic action.

On the question of the restriction of the open bars there is little doubt as to what the verdict of the majority would be. There are other points, however, to be settled, and it is for the people to decide. Such an enactment as air-tight prohibition cannot be enforced without an influential majority behind it. The Ontario Temperance Act was the creation of a popular movement that was entirely non-partisan, both inside and outside the Legislature. The question of its abrogation or continuance should be preserved from the same political side issues.

THE SCHOOL BOARD AND PLAYGROUNDS.

THE PLAYGROUNDS ASSOCIATION of the city has for the past five or six years been maintained almost entirely by the public spirited enterprise of ladies of the city who have shown a high stamp of executive ability in carrying on this work with little outside aid year after year.

It is gratifying to note that the members of the Board of Education have at last realized their responsibility in this matter. Trustee J. W. Worth has been an earnest supporter of the playgrounds movement ever since its inception. Going to the fountain head for information, he learned from the Minister of Education that the School Boards of the Province have just as much authority to maintain supervised playgrounds during the vacation every summer as they have to keep up such places during the months of the year when the various schools are in session. The teachers act as supervisors during the latter season. Substitutes can be secured in that capacity in vacation time.

The School Board accordingly has decided to expend $750 this year in the purchase of equipment, this to remain the property of the Board, a motion to that effect having been brought in by Trustee Cameron, another supporter of the movement. Some of the members would have favored an expenditure of $3000, but it was finally decided to begin on a small scale, which will be increased in succeeding years when the value of the investment becomes apparent. Any aid that the Board has given this movement in the past has been inconsequential, and even that was granted with indifferent grace.

There is little left to be said in favor of this branch of educational work. It is just as essential for the welfare of the children as any other department for which the city's money is spent. Eighty per cent. of the school children of the city are unable to leave for a holiday in the country during the summer vacation. Leave them to run at large in the streets and they are in constant danger. The Playgrounds Association has solved the problem. The children are safe while they are in such places, and the parents are relieved from all anxiety. Supervised play is just as essential to the proper development of the child as supervised study. permit the children to pursue their own mdestres in either and they will run wild.

Girls and boys of school age can best serve their country and themselves at this time by attending school under 35 to look at a show window containing lingerie. As the children's bureau points out, the final victory in the present war may come twenty years later, and it will come to the nation with the strongest and best trained men and women. Keeping children in school is not an economic loss. Education not only makes for finer civilization and a fuller individual life, but it makes for higher wages and greater productiveness.

THE GERMANS IN JERUSALEM

The extent to which Germany had secured a hold on the sacred land of Palestine is evidenced by the number of palatial buildings she erected not only in and around Jerusalem, but in other parts of the country as well. In pre-war days, travellers ascending the historic Mount of Olives to view the landscape, were struck with the fact that a great many spires of German edifices obstructed the view.

On the Mount of Olives only a short time before the war the Germans completed their great hospice, the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria Stiftung, on the summit of the Mount.

Ostensibly it was a hospice and sanatorium, though in design and strength the building was nothing less than a fortress. The walls are very massive, several feet thick in places, while the various buildings contain over eighty large rooms The site dominates the Holy City itself and the Jordon beyond.

At the time when these buildings were erected it looked as if Germans, under the cloak of philanthropy, had deliberately intended on some future occasion, then the partition of Turkey might be on the topic to make use of them for the purpose of effectually pegging out German "claims."

But before that time came the Germans had metaphorically speaking, to take Turkey to their bosom and as happened having erected at the hospice a powerful wireless installation, they made the place during the war their headquarters.

British airmen bombed the hospice several times, but examination has shown that as the result of these attacks comparatively little damage has been done to the actual buildings.

When Jerusalem was taken the hospice became the headquarters of General Allenby and his staff, and Tommy nicknamed the edifice the Kaiser's Palace, by which name it is now known throughout Palestine.

The buildings certainly bear the German mark. At the entrance there are great stone eagles, while on the exterior falls of the church are statues of the ex-kaiser and the Empress.

Then in the ceiling of the church there is a remarkable painting in imitation of tapestry, depicting the ex-Kaiser as a Crusader king with the Kaiserin as his Queen. The famous Crusaders of history are shown, but, such is the colossal vanity of the man, the Kaiser has the place of honor in the centre. He and the Empress are shown holding a model of the hospice and dominating the whole picture.

Adjoining the church is a high tower, where British tommies joyfully rang the great bells on armistice day. What would the feelings of the man in buckram who some years ago posed as a Crusader have been had he witnessed the sight!

There is much talk in Jerusalem as to what should be done with the building. The Germans are said to have spent $1,050,000 upon it, a ridiculous sum if the building were purely intended to serve as a hospice and sanatorium.

It will be recalled that the edifice was dedicated by Prince Eitel Friedrich, second son of the Kaiser with great pomp and ceremony a few years ago.

It is the opinion of many people in the Holy City that the structure should be converted into a museum housing the sacred relics and curios of the Holy Land, for which purpose it is admirably suited.

TO-DAY'S STORY

It is a good thing for the Germans that they surrendered when they did. If they had waited until the present spring whole cities in Germany and perhaps entire armies would have been wiped out. Over 2,500 tons of deadly mustard gas waiting to be transported from the new gas arsenal at Edgwood, N.J., and shiploads would have been ready for use in April, but the signing of the armistice averted a phase of the war almost too staggering to contemplate.

Mustard gas has been found to be the most effective gas for war purposes, as it diffuses with the air and advances more satisfactorily than any other, and, is at the same time the most destructive. It was put in containers of one ton each, and it was intended that these containers should be dropped from airplanes, and by means of a time fuse exploded at a proper distance over fortified cities, camps of reserves or front line forces. Each ton would diffuse with the air and fall slowly over about one acre of ground, killing every living thing in the area covered.

A single squadron of airplanes could in a single flight completely destroy whole populations in cities like Coblenz or an army of 200,000 men. It is hinted that the German high command had knowledge of what was coming and hurried forward the peace proposals. This terrible implement of destruction would have been used in September but the Allied Governments hesitatd to permit it for fear of reprisals, the French especially were afraid that the Germans would go one better, if possible and still further decimate the cities in Northern France. But as the Allies were getting the mastery of the air, and driving the enemy further back, it was decided to commence this most terrible harvest of death in April of this year. As usual the Germans would have protested to heaven against such inhuman warfare in spite of the fact that they had planted the seed themselves.

TEETHING TROUBLES

Baby's teething time is a time of worry for most mothers. Baby's little gums become swollen and tender; his bowels get out of order and constipation, colic or even diarrhoea sets in. To make the teething period easy Baby's Own Tablets should be given the little one. They sweeten the stomach; regulate the bowels and keep baby good natured. Concerning them Mrs. Marcel D. LeBlanc, Memramcook, West, N.B., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past six years and have found them indispensable. To my mind nothing can equal them in allaying the fever accompanying teething. I would not be without them and can strongly recommend them to other mothers." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Irrigation as a source of wealth

FEW agricultural districts have grown to prosperity more quickly and founded it more substantially than the country tributary to Lethbridge in Southern Alberta. Driving, through this territory towards the end of last summer, a prominent official of the Dominion Government at Ottawa, who had been making an extensive tour of Western Canada, remarked that here were the most prosperous, agricultural communities he had seen during the whole of his trip. Now this remark is significative. All over Western Canada there are very prosperous districts, where modern homes, spacious barns, well filled granaries, good stock herds of live-stock and many other signs reflect the welfare of their owners. Irrigation may be given as one word—irrigation.

Driving into one of these districts from the east, one cannot help but be immediately impressed. The more compact settlement, the deep green fields of settlement, the deep green fields of alfalfa, in which hogs, sheep or cattle are pasturing, the substantial farm buildings, mostly surrounded by trees, the well fenced farms, all these are evidence of a prosperity which is being built up on sound lines. A measure of the fast development of the whole of the territory east of Lethbridge is the village of Coaldale, for this village has grown with the district. But a very short time ago a railway siding only, Coaldale is now an active business centre, with a lumber yard, hardware business, general stores, hay market, elevator facilities, bank and other businesses. The community is also served by one of the best and most up-to-date consolidated schools in the West.

Probably no other community in Canada has received more settlers who have purchased lands at the high average price which has been paid by those who have settled among the Coaldale community during the last two years. Many of these settlers have come from the irrigated districts of the States, particularly from Washington, Idaho and California. An illustration will serve to show the value placed by them on the land in this territory. A settler who purchased a farm four miles west of Coaldale at $165 an acre, recently bought the quarter section adjoining him for $160 an acre. This was without any improvements except a timothy meadow. But the property could not be bought from its purchaser now for less than $150 an acre, and he has been heard to remark he would not care to sell at that price.

The number of tenant farmers throughout the Lethbridge district who are purchasing irrigated land at similar prices is a good illustration of its productive value. Men who have farmed land here for a year or two on a rental basis are purchasing it now at ninety and a hundred dollars an acre. Instances of such purchases during the last year or two are becoming numerous and the interesting is that the buyers have made sufficient money out of their crops to be able to purchase the land on which they were grown. This is probably one of the most striking facts in connection with the development of the district, for the men who have become these lands know what they were capable of producing.

As for renting the demand for rental by tenants is unprecedented, notwithstanding the fact that rents have doubled in many cases during the last three years. Whereas at that time irrigated land was being rented at $5 and $6 an acre, as much as $10 and $12 an acre was paid in 1918, while owners who rented their land on the crop plan received much more than this in many instances.

The district has been favored by the arrival and settlement there of a large number of settlers of high average intelligence. Most of them have had experience with irrigation elsewhere and are able to make comparisons with other districts. The consensus of opinion of these men is that the facilities for irrigation in Southern Alberta equal or are superior to those to which they have been accustomed. A farmer who came from one of the irrigated districts in Idaho early this season was at first somewhat discouraged with conditions in Alberta. But business matters requiring his return to Idaho later in the season he had an opportunity to compare conditions and crops in his old community with those in the Lethbridge district, and he came back highly elated. "Conditions in Alberta are ever so much better," he said.

These facts about the Lethbridge district are interesting because they reflect the enormous possibilities of the other irrigable areas of Southern Alberta. From like conditions like results may be expected. And what is being accomplished at Lethbridge can be accomplished in other parts of Southern Alberta where similar conditions occur. It is only during the last few years that people have begun to appreciate at their proper value the irrigable lands near Lethbridge, but since they have begun to realise their worth development of the country has gone on apace. The effect of this development has been an awakening of interest in other irrigable areas in the province and a more rapid settlement of them. All these areas are considerably larger than the Lethbridge district and the effect of their development on the prosperity of the province is incalculable.

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

"I would also (a great many correspondents mention it in a sort of postscript) be grateful for any information about bronchial trouble."

Branchial trouble is the almanac or drug store version of something wrong somewhere between the teeth and the liver.

This trouble prevails extensively in those communities where the people have the greatest horror of fresh air, particularly fresh air that moves and very particularly fresh air that moves after dark.

About three out of four cases of bronchial trouble present no discoverable trouble in the bronchial tubes, but since the confirmed almanac reader deems cough, chest soreness and weather a trial of pathognomonic symptoms, as a doctor might say when endeavoring to air his knowledge and conceal his ignorance, the treatment selected by the willing victim is naturally a little less than worthless as a general rule.

Chronic inflammation of the rear room of the nose chamber is the cause of the cough, and of the chest soreness in a large number of cases of bronchial trouble. But chronic inflammation is the lining of the nose is so common (a majority of people show more or less chronic rhinitis, if examined) that the almanac reader overlooks it and submits himself to further experimentation at the hands of the druggist. A thoroughly well trained druggist, a pharmacist educated and skilled in the art of compounding medicines, knows nothing about the art of diagnosis and less about the art of prescribing for disease. He sells medicines and his expert services. That does not qualify him to prescribe medicines.

A septic tonsil, which perhaps looks harmless and feels harmless in the throat is often the sole cause of bronchial trouble. It requires considerable skill and experience for a physician to determine with any degree of probability, whether a patient should have apparently innocent, submerged or nearly invisible tonsil removed.

Cough is no evidence whatever that there is anything wrong in the chest but your health is worth the expense alarming way, especially after retiring at night, when there is nothing the matter but inflammation of the adenoid body on the roof of the back room of the nose chamber.

Have You Friends Who Suffer?

You have friends who are discouraged, who seem to have lost all interest in life, and whose sufferings are acute—because they are afflicted with Kidney or Bladder trouble?

Here is your golden opportunity to be a real friend to your friends. Tell them about Gin Pills, what they have done for others, and about the thousands who have found relief by taking this remedy.

Persuade your friends to try them, if only a sample box. Mrs. James Harris of Port Rowan took the advice of a friend and wrote us for a free sample. Hear in her own words the result:

"My husband had suffered for some time with lame back and Kidney Troubles. He became so bad, work was almost impossible. So many remedies were tried without effect that he became discouraged. A friend advised him to give Gin Pills a trial, which he did, and to-day he is almost entirely cured."

The case of W. T. Baldwin, of Smithville, Ont., is similar in many respects. Mr. Baldwin suffered from a pain in the back for over three years. Finally on advice from friends he tried Gin Pills, with the result that he obtained relief from his pain after taking the first box.

There is no need for anyone to invest a cent in Gin Pills until they have received a sample free and tried them, as Mr. Harris did. Write to-day, telling us to send a sample box free to your friend's address.

Ancient Time Recorders.

Perhaps the first reference to attempts to reckon time by mechanical means is found in Isaiah 38-8, written supposedly about 713 B. C., "the sun dial of Ahaz." Pliny says that Anaximander invented a sun dial about 550 B. C. The first sun dial at Rome was placed in the Temple of Quirinus, about 298 B. C., when time was divided into hours. The clepsydra, or water clock, was the next time recorder invented.

To Keep Cider Sweet.

To keep cider sweet place in each barrel immediately on making, mustard, four ounces; salt, one ounce; and ground cloves one ounce. Shake well. Or, cider may be preserved sweet by sealing in airtight cans after the manner of preserving fruit. The liquid should be first settled and racked off from the dregs, but fermentation must not be allowed to commence before sealing or it will not keep.

A Good Fight.

A good fight is never for its day alone. It is for many days. And it is not alone for him who bears its truest stress. No man can live his own life bravely and not be an energy of social good, virtue proceeding forth even him to heal some brother's wounded heart. There is a riddle here or its to guess.—John White Chadwick.

Springtime wouldn't be springtime without its violets—autumn wouldn't be autumn without its vivid foliage. And the book of life wouldn't be complete without its poetry.—Christia. Herald.

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Says Cream Applied In Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up.

Instant relief—no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous mebrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed up with a cold or nasty catarrh.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

A wise man can point out thousands of things he doesn't want.

Some men are in advance of their age, but women are always behind it.

Symptoms May Mean Anything

"I have every confidence in your teachings. One doctor told me my trouble is nervous indigestion. Another said it is toxic condition. I feel nauseated after eating, bloated, constipated; I sleep very little, have lost twenty pounds, get out of breath on going upstairs, have dizzy spells and sometimes pain in the stomach. Please give me your opinion.

C. H. S.

The loss of weight and the shortness of breath on exertion are scarcely to be explained away as "nervous indigestion" or "toxic condition." Without an examination a doctor can arrive at no real opinion as to the nature of your trouble. It may be very serious, and it may not be serious. If you would follow my advice, it is to consult a physician who will make a thorough examination and not dismiss you with meaningless phrases. Such an examination will naturally take some time and perhaps include some laboratory tests but you health is worth the expense entailed.

Just Missed Perfection.

When Mrs. Langtry was at the summit of her beauty and fame she met at a dinner an African king who was visiting London. She did her best to please the dusky monarch and evidently succeeded, for he said to her as they parted: "Ah, madam, if heaven had only made you black and fat you would be irresistible."

Dire Day in Russian History.

November 30 is the anniversary of the defeat of Peter the Great in 1700 by Charles XII of Sweden. The Russian monarch had 40,000 troops against the 8,000 of his opponent, but the superior generalship of the Swede more than balanced the numerical superiority of the czar.

Wilhelm's Abdications.

When Wilhelm II became King of Prussia he inherited an elaborately carved chair, overhung by silken curtains, which was the ancestral throne of the Hohenzollern dynasty.

This chair, however, was a modest and unpretentious affair compared with the throne of the German Emperor, which is said to have cost more than $100,000. It is described as built of native woods in their natural tints, with the ormerial bearings of the Hohenzollerns above the lofty back and covered with carven designs emblematic of the states composing the Teutonic federation.

The back, supported by two columns of wood, is of leather and ivory and the seat is overhung by a canopy of velvet. The tips of the arms are solid gold, with a setting of emeralds. There is also a cloth of gold to lend additional gorgeousness.

Upon this wonderful chair, on state occasions, the All Highest sat in awful majesty, dressed in a military uniform of white and gold, in posture quit upright and with his right hand clasping an arm of the throne, while one foot rested upon a velvet-covered hassock.

But Herr Hohenzollern will never again occupy either of these thrones. He is out of a job and is, perforce, content to sit on an ordinary chair, writing, writing at a window in Holland, while wondering what sort of just punishment is to be meted out to him.

Would not an electric chair just suit his requirements?

Gave Value to Rubber.

Vulcanized rubber—and all rubber articles are now vulcanized—was first made at Woburn, Mass., by Charles Goodyear about 1844. He obtained his first patent in that year, after he had spent years in experimenting and had reduced his family to extreme poverty. Before 1844 rubber had been used for various purposes as a soft, sticky gum, but was of comparatively little value.

Spanish-American War.

Spain declared war against the United States April 24, 1898. The first American army of invasion of Cuba, under General Shafter, sailed from Tampa, Fla., June 14, and landed at Santiago, Cuba, June 23. The battle between the "Rough Riders" and the Spanish forces occurred on June 24, the battle of El Caney on July 1 and the surrender of Santiago on July 16.

The forests of the Caucasus in Russia are estimated at 12,000,000 acres, chiefly in the Black Sea territory, which is at the rate of nearly 20 acres to each inhabitant. The forests of western Siberia have been scarcely explored, but they are stated to be 200,000,000 acres in extent, more than half being in an absolute state of nature.

Likes Hot Stuff.

The common green frog has been discovered to possess an insatiate greed for wasps. This extraordinary appetite does not seem to be in the least checked by an occasional sting. The protecting color of the frog, which also motionless upon leaves, no doubt, deludes the most wary of insects into a sense of security.

Getting Rid of It.

Mary Elizabeth had been sitting by her mother for a full hour trying with all her might to make a dress for her dollie. Suddenly she heaved a deep sigh, and when her mother asked her why she did so she replied, "Oh, I dess just to let the tired get out."

HALF THE JEWS IN PETERBORO WILL LEAVE FOR PALESTINE

Local Members of That Race Are Interested in Zionist Movement—Mr. H. J. Zack Explains Plans of his People.

If the views of some of the leaders among the Jewish people of Peterboro are well founded, there is likely to be a big decrease in the Jewish population of this city soon after Palestine is ceded back to the Jews by the British Government and Allied nations. Last week Mr. Schriff, whose home is in Jappa, Palestine, while in Peterborough, sold fifty acres of land in Palestine to members of the Jewish colony in Peterborough. Mr. Schriff has sold considerable areas of land to Jews in other centres. He has found it possible to do this because Jews all over the world are profoundly stirred over the promise of Great Britain to restore the promised land to their race. They realize that once more they will then have a national identity and a national home and that no longer will they be looked upon as wanderers on the face of the earth.

Mr. Zack Explains.

In order that the views of the local Jews on this question might be obtained The Review secured an interview with Mr. H. J. Zacks, of 422 Hunter street, who was found to be well posted on the subject. Not all Jews look on this question in the same way. The Zionistic movement, which has for its object the restoration of Palestine to the Jews, has been a development almost entirely of the last twenty-five years. For many years it made very slow progress. Many Jews claimed that they did not want to go back to Palestine and that they were contented with their citizenship in the countries in which they lived. They claimed that the idea of going back to Palestine would lead to their being looked upon, more than ever, as aliens in the countries in which they lived. Since the outbreak of the great war, however, with the final overthrow of the Turkish nation and the opening up of the way for the Jews to get back to Palestine, Zionism has gone forward by leaps and bounds.

Within the past three years, for the first time in history, national conventions of the Jews have been held in Canada, the United States and other countries for the express purpose of raising funds and preparing the way for the return of the Jews to their native land.

When asked if he and the Jews of Peterborough believed in the Zionistic movement, Mr. Zacks replied that every Jew now, except a very few, is favorable to this movement. As soon as the commissions that are now at work in Palestine, where the new national college is already being built, have had time to make a number of the great national improvements that are being planned for the land, Mr. Zacks believes that fully half of the Jews of Peterborough will return to Palestine.

Independence Their Objective.

As there has been a good deal of discussion over whether or not the Jews should be established in Palestine as an independent nation or merely be permitted to occupy the land under Great Britain's protection, The Review asked Mr. Zacks which proposal he preferred, and whether or not he though the Jews would prefer to be under the protection of Great Britain or the proposed League of Nations.

"It is the ideal of every Jew," replied Mr. Zacks, "that we shall become an independent nation. Only then will we fully regain our national identity. However, we desire to have the support of Great Britain, and would prefer to be under her protection than under that of the League of the Nations. This is because we know how well Great Britain has always treated her colonies and because she has always been good to the Jews. We do not know what the League of Nations may be, and until we do don't want to commit ourselves to the protection of the League. For the present, at least, therefore, we prefer to have, and will be perfectly satisfied with the protection of Great Britain, especially if she has the support of the United States and France, which has already been promised."

Religious Conditions.

There is quite a difference of opinion among the Jews on religious matters. A few Jews try still to maintain the feasts and laws laid down in the religious worship described in the Old Testament. Many other Jews have given up a good many of these old forms, still other Jews are atheists. When asked if he thought it likely that the Jews on returning to Jerusalem would try and rebuild the Jewish temple which was destroyed by the Romans under Titus, and renew the old ceremonial laws and practices, Mr. Zacks replied that he did not think that they would. He said that Jews have become tolerant in their views on religious matters and that they would leave their people freedom of action in their methods of religious worship.

Extent of Land.

Since so much has been said in the public press about the return of the Jews to Palestine, a good many people have pointed out that Palestine is only a small country. It has been claimed that if any large proportion of the 14,000,000 Jews in the world were to go back to Palestine, the country would not be large enough to hold them. In this connection it is interesting to note that when God promised the Holy Land to the Jewis, He made it clear that it was to include not only Palestine, but Mesopotamia as well. This is made clear in Genesis 15-18: "In the same day the Lord made a covenant with Abram, saying, unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the River Euphrates." Elsewhere, however there are proprecies which foretold that because of sin the children of Israel would be driven out of the land three times, and regathered three times, and that the final regathering would be permanent. They have sinned three times as foretold. They have been dispossessed of the land three times, according to prophecy and twice were they regathered and now, it is believed that they are being restored and that their restoration will be permanent. When asked what portion of the country the Jews expect to regain, Mr. Zacks replied that all they anticipate being given at present is Palestine, but they realize that Palestine will not be large enough and that they will probably need in time the most, if not all, of Mesopotamia as well.

The Priestly Offices.

In the Old Testament God set aside the tribe of Levi to fill the priestly offices. Since the dispersion of the Jews, nearly two thousand years ago, the identity of the different tribes has been lost. When asked what Jews fill the priestly office now, Mr. Zacks said that the rabbis today do not attempt to fill all the offices that the priests used to fill in olden days. "However," said Mr. Zacks, "we try to pick out men, whom we believe are the descendants of the tribe of Levi, and we appoint them to variods offices among us and give them different positions of honor."

Prophely Fulfilled.

In Deuteronomy 30-1 to 9, th'ere is a prophecy by Moses, which says that after the Jews have been punished for their sins and scattered abroad among the nations, it will come to pass that God will have compassion upon them, that he will gather them from the nations all over the world, restore them to their land, and pour great blessings upon them.

Mr. Zacks was asked if he thought that the return of the Jews to Palestine will be in fulfilment of this prophecy. His reply was yes. He was shown a Bible and read the prophecy carefully before he gave his answer.

Another great prophecy about the blessings that will come to the Jews after their return to Palestine is contained in the 11th chapter of Isaiah and also in the 65th chapter from the 17th to the 25th verses. In the prophecies it is said in effect that the Jews will all become wealthy, that the deserts will blossom as the rose and that wars shall cease. Mr. Zacks' interpretation of these prophecies is that after the Jews get back to Palestine, they will so wonderfully improve the country by means of irrigation and proper cultivation that it will become very productive, and in that way many of the things foretold in these prophecies will be fulfilled. He said that the Jews are still looking for the coming of the Messiah. They do not believe that Christ was the Messiah. When the Messiah comes he will be accepted as their ruler and Jerusalem will become one of the great cities of the world and Palestine one of the leading countries. In this connection, it is interesting to note that many students of world conditions agree with this view. These men point out that Palestine is the natural commercial centre of the world. This is because it is the junction point for three great continents of Africa, Europe and Asia. Of recent years the completion of the great railway lines, such as the Cape to Cairo railroad, running the full length of Africa, the line projected by ex-Emperor William from Berlin to India and others of the same character, are destined to make Palestine and Mesopotamia a wonderful centre of trade, through which tre wealth of all these continents will pour. When the Jews get back to Palestine with their great wealth, their wonderfully developed commercial instincts, and their knowledge of the trading customs of all nations and countries, it is thought by many, that they will soon make their country a rival of Great Britain in the conduct of trade of the world.

In the light of such prospects as these, it is scarcely to be wondered at that the Jews of Peterborough are so deeply interested in the possibility that they will soon be able to return to their native land, and once more resume their national identity and take a foremost place among the nations of the world.

Convention at Montreal.

Next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday representatives of all the Jews in Canada are to meet in Montreal, at which Peterborough Jews will be represented by one of their number.

CROSS, FEVER ISH CHILD IS BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED

LOOK, MOTHER! IF TONGUE IS COATED GIVE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS."

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

Farmers' Banquet At Empress Hotel

ON MARCH 27th WITH JOHN MAHARG, M.P., AS CHIEF SPEAKER.

Arrangements have been completed by members of the United Farmers living around the city of Peterborough for a visit to the city on March 27 of Mr. John Maharg, M.P. for Moosejaw, Sask., one of the most noted leaders in the farmers' movement in Canada. A banquet is to be held in the evening, which will be addressed by Mr. Maharg. It is understood that some representative city men will be invited to the meeting.

Mr. Maharg is president of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association, which represents about 30,000 organized farmers, and is the president also of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Co., Limited, one of the largest grain handling companies in the world. This company controls 309 local elevators in Saskatchewan and a big terminal elevator at Port Arthur, which cost between two and three million dollars. The profits of this company have ranged as high as $675,000 in a year. For several years Mr. Maharg was the president of the Canadian Council of Agriculture. He is one of the western farmers who is playing an important part in political matters at present at Ottawa, he being a member of the Union Government. Naturally great interest is being taken in his approaching visit. It is expected that there will be a large turnout of farmers from not only the vicinity of Peterborough to hear him, but from other points in the county as well.

RECIPE TO CLEAR A PIMPLY SKIN

PIMPLES ARE INPURITIES SEEKING AN OUTLET THROUGH SKIN PORES.

Pimples, sores and boils usually result from toxins, poisons and impurities which are generated in the bowels and then absorbed into the blood through the very ducts which should absorb only nourishment to sustain the body.

It is the function of the kidneys to filter impurities from the blood and cast them out in the form of urine, but in many instances the bowels create more toxins and impurities than the kidneys can eliminate, then the blood uses the skin pores as the next best means of getting rid of these impurities which often break out all over the skin in the form of pimples.

The surest way to clear the skin of these eruptions, says a noted authority is to get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of hot water each morning before breakfast for one week. This will prevent the formation of toxins in the bowels. It also stimulates the kidneys to normal activity, thus coaxing them to filter the blood of impurities and clearing the skin of pimples.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent drink which usually makes pimples disappear; cleanses the blood and is excellent for the kidneys as well.

A desk originally owned by William Penn and a sword carried by Major Long, United States engineers, while he was a member of the first official government survey of the Rocky Mountains were among the articles bequeathed in the will of the late William Foulke Johnes of New York. Taking Our Share.

In life it is as it is in armies; there is a share of hardness for each one. "Each man shall bear his own burden." This is part of the discipline of life and it only makes confusion when any refuse to take their share. It is the wide distribution of the burden of society upon many different shoulders that makes the world's work go forward even as smoothly as it does. One man who will not take his share of hardness is an enemy of all willing workers.

MONUMENT TO LAURIER

Suggestion That One Be Raised by Public Subscription.

Ottawa, March 15.—A movement is on foot to erect in Notre Dame Cemetery, Ottawa, an immense tomb and monument for Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The proposal is that the money be raised by public subscription from friends and admirers of the dead leader throughout Canada.

"The negotiations are not closed, and we hope before the end of the present session of Parliament at Ottawa they will take up again the natural resources to the provinces in the west," said Premier Norris, of Manitoba.

Inside of three weeks there were 115 deaths at Norway House and 70 at Cross Lake, according to a letter received by John Morrison, member for Ruperts Land in the Manitoba Legislature.

Maxwell

More miles per gallon
More miles on tires

You're getting a June Style in a March Maxwell

THE MAXWELL car of today is so vastly improved in appearance that many persons believe we have produced a new model.

That is not the case.

It is the same chassis, scarcely with a change, on which 300,000 Maxwells have been built.

But it is a better looking car. It is finer in finish; angular lines have been straightened out; fenders improved; bonnet simplified; cowl made flush with the top line of the body; seats thickened by three inches; circassian dash installed; gas tank slung in the rear, etc.

There are twenty-four things done to make it more beautiful.

We made the Maxwell simple to start with five years ago. Then we kept on making and making these cars all alike. We have now completed 300,000 of them.

There is logic in doing one thing and doing it well. We have followed that logic. And results tell today.

Maxwells have always been noted for their reliability. Now they will become noted for their beauty.

And today we are in a position to give you a June style in a March Maxwell, which a year ago seemed quite out of the question on account of the war.

Come and see the latest Maxwell.

William Pierson 1000
Peterboro Floral Co. ...1100

All the tenderers stated that they had read the specifications and were ready to comply with them if their offers were accepted.

Mr. Grierson in his letter drew attention to the omission in the specifications of four small flower beds at the north end of Victoria Park and the flowers which have in the past been planted about the base of the fountain. He stated that in arriving at the amount of his tender, he had not figured upon these, but if the city would care to have them added to the list he would include them in the contract for an additional $10.

Upon motion of Ald. Turner and Taylor, Mr. Grierson's tender at $860 was recommended for acceptance, and an additional sum of $10 will be added to provide for the omissions to which he had referred, provided it is found upon looking over the specifications that they exist.

Will Buy Tools.

A communication from the Horticultural Society stated that they would loan the tools, which they have been using in the past to care for the parks, to the city, upon condition that the corporation would assume responsibility for injury and reserving the right to sell them at any time though promising that should such a contingency arise the city would be given first chance to buy them.

A list of the tools was furnished and showed some of them to be in a very fair state of repair while others were not so good.

Ald. Turner favored making them an offer for the outfit, as he felt it would be more satisfactory for the corporation to own them.

Chairman Edgar questioned the advisability of buying tools which had been purchased with funds granted by the city.

Ald. Turner suggested that the society might have purchased the tools with funds which were derived from some other source, but the chairman assured him that such was not the case, as the money which had been received from other channels had been devoted to providing premiums and in meeting other expenses.

Ald. Turner thought that if the society would se a reasonable price upon the outfit the city should purchase, as there would be no further responsibility attaching to the agreement from that time on.

Ald. McIntyre, Taylor and Morrison favored this idea, and as Chairman Edgar was quite satisfied the motion submitted by Ald. McIntyre and seconded by Ald. Morrison was carried without further discussion.

Long Mountain Range.

Sumatra is of volcanic origin, and, together with the other members of the Malay group, formed in an early period of the world a part of the Asiatic continent. The Barisons, or Sumatra Alps, form a broken chain of mountains, running lengthwise of the island. Some of the highest points of the chain are 10,000 and 12,000 feet above the level of the sea.

Well, Knowledge is Power.

Jimmie had been to the dentist to get a tooth pulled. A few days later a friend of the family, a man whose head presented an extremely barefooted appearance, called at Jimmie's house. Jimmie squirmed around awhile and finally asked: "Mister Brown, did it hurt much when ya gotcher hair pulled?"

Pig Iron From Iron Sands.

Experiments in New Zealand have demonstrated the practicability of producing pig iron from iron sands. The development of the industry has reached the stage where iron is actually produced at the rate of 15 tons per day. Plans are now being made for greatly enlarging the plant.

Former Teacher Dead.

Mr. John H. Thom, whom some of the older residents will remember when he occupied the position of principal of Norwood High School some fifty years ago, died on Saturday last week in his 82nd year. Mr. Thom gave up the teaching profession for the study of law and after being called to the bar became a partner with the firm or Bethune, Osler & Moss of Toronto. Soon after this he was appointed to the office of Chief Taxing Master at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, whier office he filled for forty years, or right up to within a few months of his death, when an Acting Taxing Master was appointed and his title was changed to Consulting Taxing Master.

SAYS HOT WATER WASHES POISONS FROM THE LIVER

Everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it, before breakfast.

To feel as fine as the proverbial fiddle, we must keep the liver washed clean, almost every morning, to prevent its sponge-like pores from clogging with indigestible material, sour bile and poisonous toxins, says a noted physician.

If you get headaches, it's your liver. If you catch cold easily it's your liver. If you wake up with a bad taste, furred tongue, nasty breath or stomach becomes rancid, it's your liver. Sallow skin, muddy complexion, watery eyes all denote liver uncleanliness. Your liver is the most important, also the most abused and neglected organ of the body. Few know its function or how to release the dammed-up body waste bile and toxins. Most folks resort to violent calomel, which is a dangerous salivating chemical which can only be used occasionally because it accumulates in the tissues, also attacks the bones.

Every man and woman, sick or well, should drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, to wash from the liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, the poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Limestone phosphate does not restrict the diet like calomel, because it can not salivate, for it is harmless and you can eat anything afterwards. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, and any pharmacist will sell you a quarter pound, which is sufficient for a demonstration of how hot water and limestone phosphate cleans, stimulates and freshens the liver, keeping you feeling fit day in and day out.

REFORMS IN INDIA.

Some of the Difficulties That Are Now Faced.

Those who recognize the great importance of all parties in India uniting to secure, to the full, that measure of reform which is already designed for the country under the terms of the Montagu-Chelmsford report, cannot fail to regret the way in which important bodies of Indians, as well as individuals, ignore the simple but fundamental demand which underlies these reforms. Not once, but many times, it has been made clear, by those who are responsible for the report and those who are qualified to explain its terms, that the reforms offered, though far from being the last word for all time, are the last word for the present; that those who drew up the report did not do so in the spirit of the huckster, advocating a meagre minimum so as to afford themselves leeway to make concessions; but that they fully and frankly advocated the very utmost in the way of reform that could be offered, at the present time, in justice to all concerned. The very essence of the report, as has been pointed out already, many times, lies in that paragraph which declares that "the hope of avoiding mischief in such transitorial schemes lies in facing the fact that they are temporary expedients, for training purposes, provided the goal is not merely kept in sight, but made attainable, not by agitation, but by the operation of the machinery inherent in the scheme itself." The report makes it abundantly clear that the progress toward self-government must be by successive steps, and that it is for the Imperial Government to decide as to the time and measure of each successive advance.

It is just this fundamental fact that is ignored in the majority report of the committee of non-official members of the Legislature appointed, some time ago, to consider the Montagu-Chelmsford reform scheme. Instead of agreeing to accept the scheme for what it is, a great advance in the right direction, involving steps which, in any event, must be taken, and discussing the best way of taking these steps, the majority quite frankly goes outside the terms of reference, and proposes a long list of reforms, which, if the terms of reference shall be accepted, are really irrelevant. Discussing the matter, some weeks ago, Lord Chelmsford declared, with the utmost emphasis, that no modification of the scheme had any prospect of acceptance by the Imperial Government which did not fit in with the famous declaration of Aug. 20, 1917, in which the position of the Imperial Government as the final arbiter as to the time and measure of each successive advance was expressly laid down.

Well-informed Indians, like the non-official members of the Legislative Council, have an unequaled opportunity, at the present time, of coming to the aid of the Imperial Government, and placing at its disposal all their knowledge of Indian affairs, to the end that the Montagu-Chelmsford scheme may be developed to the best possible advantage, and that thus the hour may be hastened when the next step may be taken. They would do well to take this opportunity, and not, as a well-known Indian paper has remarked, justly enough, run the risk, in their eagerness to grasp the shadow, of losing the substance. — Christian Science Monitor.

WEAK, WORRIED WOMEN
Can Find New Health and Strength Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

It is useless to tell a hard working woman to take life easily and not to worry. To do so is to ask the almost impossible. But, at the same time, it is the duty of every woman to save her strength as much as possible; to take her cares as lightly as may be, and to build up her strength to meet any unusual demands. It is a duty she owes herself and family for her future health may depend upon it.

To guard against a complete breakdown in health the blood must be kept rich, red and pure. No other medicine does this so well as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This medicine actually makes new, red blood, strengthens the nerves, restores the appetite and keeps every organ healthily toned up. Women cannot always rest when they should, but they can keep their strength and keep disease away by the occasional use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which have done more to lighten the cares of weak women than any other medicine. Among the many women who have reason to be thankful for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mrs. Milan Bailey, Utterson, Ont., who says: "Two years ago I got weak and badly run down, and could scarcely do my housework. I grew so thin that my friends used to comment upon it. At that time my baby was six months old and the care of it and my housework was almost too much for me. It was at this stage that my husband got me a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before I had been taking them long we could see an improvement in my condition. For months I had not been sleeping well and my natural sleep returned and I wasn't so nervous. Then my friends began to comment upon my improved condition and tell me how much better I was looking. By the time I had taken six boxes I felt completely cured and have since enjoyed the best of health. Now I never fail to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when any of my friends are ailing."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Winnipeg police say that 500 residents of that city are implicated in the theft of $15,000 worth of liquor.

HINTS TO YOUNG BATSMEN

(By Fred Mitchell)

(As dictated by the Club President)

Timing the ball is the secret of successful batting, but it is not wise to fill a youngster's brain with that until he masters the other arts of hitting. I might dwell on it for a moment and say that timing a ball means to learn to hit a foot or a little more in front of the batter on straightaway hitting. One acquires this, of course, only with steady practice.

My experience in coaching baseball at Harvard for several seasons taught me that the erroneous tendency among young players on learning to hit was to use too light a bat. I observed the same mistake among semi-pro players minor leaguers and also among many major leaguers. That was a fault Walter ("Rabbitt.") Maranville of the Braves and Max Flack of my club had. When they were switched to a slightly heavier stick they immediately showed an improvement in their batting.

A light bat causes batters to swing too vigorously at a ball. They think that because it is light they can get more power into their swing and drive a ball a greater distance. That is the wrong opinion. It is best to use a heavier bat and choke up a little so as to be able to balance the stick well. Be careful and do not get too much weight in the bat, but just enough to bring it around fast and with sort of a chop at the ball. Try a lot of bats in practice before deciding which one to use.

How to Choke the Bat.

To choke the bat means to let the hands slide up away from the extreme end of the handle. This method enables one to meet the ball squarely, which is all one needs to do to drive the ball with force. Great hitters who grip the bat at the end are few. One has to be a natural swinger to handle a stick this way with success, and youngsters ought to practice choking a bat from the start.

After finding a bat of suitable heft practice the step. I advocate the short step. Eliminate the long step because it throws one out of position to follow the ball. The shorter stride affords one a better opportunity to time the ball. If the pitcher hooks up a slow curve and the batted is deceived by it he still has a chance to advance the front foot again and crash into the ball whereas if he has taken a long stride he has been thrown out of position and is unable to do that. By a short step I mean a stride of about a foot or a foot and a half in the direction of the ball.

The front foot, the one with which a batter steps out, plays an important part in batting. It should always follow the ball, according to what is pitched. If the ball is thrown on the inside the batter necessarily will have to step out and away from the plate: If the ball is thrown to break on the outside corner, of the plate the batter must, of course, step in that direction. On a fast ball or one thrown to cut the heart of the plate the step must be straight.

Stepping Out to Meet Ball

In stepping out to meet the ball do not keep the front leg stiff. Bend it a little. This enables the batter to duck under a wild pitch faster and naturally puts all the weight of the body into the swing. Stiff legged hitters lose all power of the body in driving at the ball and are compelled to depend on their arm strength. And by bending the knee one can follow the ball better and can lower the body quicker and easier in the event a low ball is thrown.

The weight of the body should always be kept on the ball of the foot never on the toe or heel. By following this rule the hitter is in a position for a spring toward first and to get more punch into his swing. In standing in position at the plate the feet should be flat on the ground. As soon as the twirler begins his wind up raise up on the balls of the feet. The weight is on the back foot when the strike is taken but it wants to shift from the back to the front foot about the time the bat connects with the ball. This brings the weight of the body forward and augments the power of the swing.

CHICAGO FIGHT FANS SAY JOHNSON TELLS TRUTH

When He Asserts That He Was Paid to Lose His Battle With Willard Four Years Ago.

Chicago, March 15.—Jack Johnson's attempted expose of his battle with Jess Willard at Havana did not take Chicago's fight followers completely by surprise, as ever since the contest took place they have harbored a bit of suspicion about the battle. Even before the men went into the ring they were skeptical, in fact, so much so that little betting was done here. Willard, while regarded as the only logical heavyweight to take on the champion's class and it was thought he did not have a chance against the title holder. In addition, there were other features of the fight that did not please the local fans.

Suspicions of the Fight..

"The general impression here and I believe around the country was that the fight was to be a frameup, "said Charlie Essig, one of the best posted fight men in Chicago. "No one can make me believe that it was not. Johnson, I know, was willing to peddle his assets long before Jack Curley became interested. People who were on the inside and knew of what Jack was willing to do were thoroughly convinced that the battle was not on the level.

"There was little or no betting in Chicago. Before the fight took place it was rumored here that Willard was to win. No protest was raised at the time because the people interested in the sport knew Willard was the local heavyweight to meet Johnson. They were willing to let the thing go on, hoping it would be on the square and that Willard would knock Johnson out and get the title. Yet there were few who figured Jess had a chance against him. Johnson was the greatest defensive fighter this country ever produced, and if he had been in the best of condition and had fought to win Willard would never have punched him as he did.

How It May Have Been Fixed.

"I do not mean to take a slap at Willard He was probably innocent of the whole affair and fought thinking he was the better man all the time. He should be given the benefit of the doubt. The men who promoted the fight may have been shrewd enough to fix it with Johnson alone and not let Willard know anything about it.

"The queer thing about the battle was Johnson's position on the mat after Willard had knocked him down in the twenty-sixth round. The pictures show that he had one knee in the air and also one arm shading his eyes from the sun. Doctors say that when a man is knocked out his muscles are lax and that it is impossible for him to hold his leg and arm in that position while in a state of coma.

Andrews' Account of Battle.

Tom S. Andrews of Millwaukee, who reported the fight, did not express astonishment when told over the long distance telephone that Johnson declared his fight with Willard was a fake. Andrews, in discussing the affair, started out in the following tone:

"I was out in the ground several days before the fight took place and saw both men in action. John, I must admit, was not in the best of condition to put up a good fight. Two days before the men entered the ring Jack boxed Sam McVey, his trainer, ten rounds and Sam beat him all the way.

"Willard was in wonderful shape. In the first eight rounds of the contest he did not appear to have a chance. His first good blow was landed on Johnson in the eighth round. It was a straight right under the heart. That hurt Jack, because I sat close to his corner and saw that he was in pain. He weathered the storm nicely, however, through his generalship, and in the fourteenth round seemed to be himself again. It on Willard and pounded him unmercifully in that round that he cut loose fully, but in doing that shot his bolt.

Were Johnson Down.

"Willard remainded strong and wore Johnson down. In the twenty-sixth round he started after him and with a left to the stomach and a right cross to the jaw dropped him.

"There was only one bad feature of the fight. That was John's position on the floor after he had gone down. His one knee was up and his arm was raised as if he were protecting his eyes from the strong sunlight.

"There was very little betting on the fight anywhere. Even in Cuba the people declined to wager heavily. A few small wagers were made, but not enough to think about."

Holmes Caught Napping

Referring to our recent note about the English reporter giving the baseball score as "Two-love," a correspondent reminds us that no less a writer than Conan Doyle once made a curious blunder in describing our national game. "The catching," he wrote, "seemed to me extraordinarily good, especially the long catches by the bleachers."—Boston Transcript.

Lightning Calculation.

An eminent electrician has figured out the horsepower of a lightning flash. The amount of light given by a single lightning flash is sufficient to illuminate an area two miles square with an average illumination of one candle. To produce such an illumination he estimates the expenditure of 13,000 horse power for one second would be required.

To Be Friends Again.

One of the best ways of healing a quarrel is to ask a favor. If we attempt to do a kindness to a friend who is alienated, she will probably suspect our motive and reject it. But if we ask a service of her the barrier of misunderstanding will melt like snowflakes in the sun, and the way will be opened for us to be friends again.

The Milky Way.

The arch of the Milky Way stretches across the evening sky from east to west, rising between Orion and Gemini, where Jupiter seems a gorgeous diamond depending from its laces; passing through the golden chain of Cassiopeia in the zenith, and descending to the western horizon between Vega, the dazzling gem in Apollo's lyre.

Odd Foods.

Sea urchins' eggs are used in Ceylon as we eat raw oysters here. The Mexicans use a variety of scorpion, after removing the sting, in a special sort of omelet, to which they add a peculiar sort of peppery flavor. A large variety of locusts and grasshoppers are dried, then cooked, by people in portions of India, Arabia and Syria

Artistic Shop Signs.

Between Cusco and Machu Piechu, in Peru, are quaint signs indicating what is sold in the Indian huts. A small bunch of wheat on the end of a pole indicates chicha—a native corn beer—for sale within. A green wreath means bread for sale, while a piece of white cloth indicates aguardiente, a powerful white rum.

Wind That Scorches.

The name "harmattan" has been given to a dry hot wind which blows from the interior of Africa toward the Atlantic during December, January and February. Every plant, every bit of grass and leaf in its course is withered as though it had been seared by heat from a furnace.

Point of Natural History.

Two small boys were awaiting their teacher on the sidewalk. One began to crawl on hands and knees, unmindful of clean white stockings, and was corrected by the other lad, but would not arise, as he said he was a lion. "Lions don't walk that way," said the second little fellow, "they walk on their foots."

The Guitar.

The guitar is an instrument of six strings, viz. E, A, D, G, B, E. The strings, if sounded together, would not make a chord according to the rules of modern harmony. It is not a difficult instrument to learn and its chief use is in accompanying another instrument or the voice in singing.

Old University.

Cracow has the oldest university, barring that of Prague, in central Europe. It once numbered among its students Copernicus, who originated and proved the remarkable theory that the earth revolved about the sun, and not contrariwise.

Too Cannibalistic, Perhaps.

"A Russian announces that chickens are 'good to eat,'" remarks the Carthage Free Press. "When it gets to that point, we know of one person who is going to sign up to observe 'meatless days.'"—Kansas City Times.

Suffering Transmuted.

Unhappiness is the hunger to get; happiness is the hunger to give. True happiness must ever have the tinge of sorrow outlived, the sense of pain softened by the mellowing years; the chastening of loss that in the wondrous mystery of time transmutes our suffering into love and sympathy with others.—William George Jordan.

Spikenard.

Spikenard, or nard, mentioned by St. John 12, 9, and St. Mark 14, 3, was a highly aromatic plant growing largely in the Indies. From this plant was made the valuable extract or unguent or favorite perfume used at ancient baths and feasts.

Stinging Criticism.

Said the facetious feller, "These old time school teachers may have had some funny ideas about teachin', but you gotta give 'em credit for knowin' that a good substantial ruler, when rightly applied to a stupid student would make him smart."

Beautiful Ferns.

When the new shoots of potted ferns appear turn them to the light until they are well up and the shoot started in the right direction. When the fern is full grown the result will be a beautiful sound plant.

DID HER A WORLD OF GOOD, SHE SAYS

MRS. MOORE WAS SO WEAK SHE COULD HARDLY GET UP —HEALTH RESTORED BY TANLAC.

"I feel so well now that I can hardly realize the awful condition I was in before I took Tanlac," said Mrs. N. L. Moore, of 765 S. Wellington street, Memphis, Tenn.

"I had been in a rundown condition for two years," she continued, "and was so weak I could hardly keep going. I had to force myself to eat, but nothing agreed with me, and I got so lifeless that I could hardly get up when I was sitting or lying down, or even do my housework; I suffered with splitting headaches that would almost drive me distracted.

"My appetite picked up on my first bottle of Tanlac and I am now eating three hearty meals a day, those awful headaches are gone and I am all feeling just fine. I have gained ten pounds, and am strong enough to do all my housework with ease. Tanlac did me a world of good—more than all the other medicines I have taken put together."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowler's Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

So when we learn that over 70% of the tea used in Great Britain is Indian tea we can be sure that Indian tea is of the very best quality.

In Canada the preference for Indian tea has become just as strong, as evidenced by the success of Red Rose Tea which consists chiefly of ASSAMS—the richest and strongest of Indian teas.

Red Rose is always sold in sealed packages.

at the Royal Piano, because it was specially selected for the use of Queen Mary when in this country as Princess of Wales. This great Canadian instrument has stood the test for 65 years. In tone, in action, in durability, it is recognized as supreme among pianos, and deservedly bears the title:

"World's Best Piano."

VON ARNIM, GERMAN GEN'L, BEATEN TO DEATH BY MOB

The Victim Shot at Peasants Gathering Firewood on His Property—Chateau Invaded and Pillaged—Riots in Cairo by Students and Populace—Peace Questions For Foe.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 17.—Gen. Von Arnim, commander of the German army in Flanders during a large part of the war, has been beaten to death by peasants at Asch, Bohemia, according to Paris Despatches.

It is said that Gen. Von Arnim shot at peasants gathering firewood in his property, and a mob invaded and pillaged his Chauteau, after killing him.

Students Riot

London, March 17.—A Reuter's despatch from Cairo reports extensive riots and demonstrations by students and populace, with considerable destruction of property necessitating the employment of military forces.

"WHAT IS GERMAN WILL STAY GERMAN" THE CRY

If Allies Load Peace Terms Beyond Wilson's Fourteen Points Germans Will Refuse Assent to Treaty, Says Erzberger.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Copenhagen, March 17.—If the allies have loaded the peace treaty with conditions going beyond President Wilson's fourteen points the German National Assembly would have to refuse its assent to treaty. Mathias Erzberger, head of the German armistice commission declared in an address to a Berlin meeting favoring the forging of an "areal league of nations," according to a despatch from Berlin today.

The matter then would be left to a referendum of the German nation he said. The speaker declared that the only means of calling a halt on Bolshevism was abandonment of the "mailed fist policy of the Allies."

Showing Teeth

Herr Erzberger asserted that Germany was prepared to accept the vote of Alsace-Lorraine as to its future, but he referred to the reported aspirations of France respecting the Rhineland and to Poland's claims to Danzig as "crimes," adding what is German will remain German."

BIG MAJORITY VOTE FOR PUBLIC OWNED RADIALS

Result of Contest is a People's Victory—Majority in Favor of Measure 2757, Total Vote 9607.

Hamilton, March 16.—The whirlwind campaign conducted by Sir Adam Beck and those associated with him in connection with the hydro-radial bylaw brought wonderful results on Saturday. There were few who were familiar with the situation who had any doubt of the result, but even the most sanguine were astonished when it was announced that the majority in favor of the bylaw was 2,737. The total vote polled was 9,607, about half of the number of persons entitled to vote on the bylaw.

Workingmen Won.

An analysis of the vote shows that it was a workingmans' victory. Ward 3, where the bylaw had its greatest majority, is the ward from which come a great majority of the city's laboring class and which during the war furnished so many of the men who were among the first to respond to the call to arms. The workingmen have been among the city's stoutest and most consistent advocates of public ownership, and Sir Adam's addresses, in which he emphasized that this radial line was "the people's railway," appealed to popular sentiment.

The Campaign.

The success of the hydro-electric scheme in Hamilton and, elsewhere along the system under the direction of Sir Adam Beck, was also a big factor in favor of the bylaw. Nor must Sir Adam himself be overlooked. From the time he first came to this city to advocate the policy of public ownership in connection with the hydro scheme he impressed his wonderful personality upon the people of this city. During the week and a half in which he addressed meetings each night he more firmly impressed himself upon the people, and that he was winning their entire confidence was manifested to all who heard him, even were the figures of Saturday's voting not available as proof of this confidence and faith in what he had to say regarding the project he advocated with such force.

Absord Local Company.

The action of the Hamilton Radial Railway Co. in shutting off the service between this city and Oakville for nearly two months undoubtedly had much to do with the result of the voting. The fear that a close-down of this service might come again at any time, with the resultant discomfort and inconvenience that were felt by both Hamilton and Burlington, caused many to feel that they should take what action they could to secure a means of transport that would not be subject to such arbitrary regulation. Many are of the opinion that it will not be long before the Hydro will absorb the Dominion Power & Transmission Company's electric lines and make them part of the hydro-radial scheme.

GOVTS. AMAZED AT LAKEFIELD

(Special to The Review)

Toronto, March 17. — "In a last desperate attempt to get Lakefield to apply to the Hydro for any power at all, so as to give Hydro the power under the Act to expropriate Lakefield dam, I have come to Toronto, and have made an appointment with Sir Adam Beck for Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at Hydro headquarters. Notwithstanding that nothing stands in the way, Lakefield, which must apply as a municipality, to give the Hydro jurisdiction, will not do so. I have consulted both governments, which stand amazed that Lakefield will not apply, so as to save one hundred thousand to the public in added value of private privileges under new dam.

Eisemann also of the young gardener who prepared the logs for the ex-emperor to saw.

GETS OFF WITH 25 DOLLAR FINE

C. K. WIDDIFIELD'S ABLE DEFENCE PRAISED BY MAGISTRATE RUSH.

John A. McKnight, of Minden Township, charged with failing to report for medical examination in accordance with the provisions of the Military Service Act, was fined $25 and costs by Justices of the Peace H. Rush and V. Eastwood in Police Court on Saturday afternoon.

Crown Attorney Hatton produced an order-in-Council dated the 4th day of October, 1918, whereby it is conclusively presumed that the person in question received a registered letter and no evidence can be given in rebuttal.

McKnight's counsel, C. R. Widdifield contended that if McKnight was charged with failing to report on the 7th day of August, 1918, and the order-in-Council was passed on the 4th day of October, 1918, and not retroactive, it had no bearing upon the case before the court.

The magistrates, however, came to the conclusion that the order-in-Council effected this case and gave their verdict accordingly.

In view of the fact that it was so clearly shown to the court that McKnight was not wilfully to blame in the matter this small fine was imposed.

At the conclusion of the hearing Magistrate Rush complimented Mr. Widdified on his able argument and defence of McKnight.

There will be conferences on Friday between railway men and the "triple alliance of labor," to decide on their strike policy.

Blockade in Force Till Peace Signed

BLOCKADE NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR KEEPING FOOD OUT OF GERMANY.

London, March 17.—Reuter's has received from an authoritative source the following statement regarding the working of the blockade and the question of feeding enemy and other countries:

There are certain misconceptions to the effect that the blockade is responsible for keeping food out of enemy countries. This is not the case. The blockade was the most important factor in bringing about the collapse of the enemy, and the retention of its machinery until the conclusion of peace is regarded by the highest naval and military opinion as absolutely indispensable. But it is not the desire of the allies to use it for the purpose of preventing food from reaching starving populations.

As to the machinery of relief, the Supreme Economic Council in Paris is charged with this work in enemy and other countries, and on this Council the Blockade Ministers of the great powers are represented. It is for this Supreme Council to decide what measures of relief shall be adopted, and there has been no obstruction on the part of Blockade Ministers to any proposals for the provision of food that have been made by the Council. The difficulties, are, however, formidable, and form some of the greatest problems that any statesmen have had to deal with. In the case of Germany the main difficulty has been the refusal of that country to give up her merchant ships, which would be used largely in the relief of Germany herself and other countries.

Sailor Looks For Lost Bank Roll

Seaman David Wood of H. M. cable ship Lord Kelvin, who is spending a few days in Peterborough, met with a serious loss yesterday when he dropped a roll of bills amounting to $18. There were in the roll one ten-dollar bill, a five, a two and a one, so that the finder will have no trouble in coming to the conclusion that the money belongs to the sailor.

Seaman Wood belongs to the Imperial navy, and it can be readily realized that the wages paid in this force, in common with other branches of the Imperial service, are not of such a munificent character as to make a loss such as was suffered by the young visitor of little importance.

Seaman Wood is staying at the Y. M. C. A., and the finder of the money is asked to communicate with him there or with The Review office. Money is well earned in the naval service, and anyone picking up the sailor's roll of bills should return it to him at once.

Sydney, Australia, March 16. — Premier Holman in a speech yesterday said that the government intended to find employment for 80,000 soldiers in New South Wales, firstly, by legislation compelling employers to reinstate returned soldiers; secondly, by settling 8,000 soldiers on the land; thirdly, by employing the remainder on public works.

MILITARY CASTE ARE REAL GOVERNORS OF GERMANY

President Ebert, Chancellor Scheidemann and Minister of War Hoske Merely Puppets in Hands of Monarchists—Spartacan Revolt Will Recur Unless Miracle Happens.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 17.—Special despatches from Berlin, in a report on the suppression of the recent Spartacan outbreak there, has shown that Militaryand Monarchist reaction is growing and over-shadowing the new Government. The Berlin correspondent of the Mail, who on February 27th, sent a despatch outlining plans for Monarchist uprising in Germany, has arrived in London, having left Berlin on March 14th after a residence there of three months. He reiterates statements made in his despatch saying that President Ebert, chancellor Scheidemann and Minister of War Noske are merely puppets. He declares that for the purpose of retaining power they have allowed members of the military casts to appear as organizers of new Republican armies.

The Real Governors

"These men are real governors of Germany," he says. "They make edicts and Chancellor Scheidemann and his colleagues willingly sign them."

Revolt Will Reoccur

According to a despatch to the mail, the Spartacan revolt will certainly recur in an increasing force, unless a miracle happens. It adds that Herr Noske's forces have been recruited by bribes and the promise of big rations, and that to this may be attributed some of the food shortage in Berlin.

THE PEACE TEST

Germany is Threatening to Break Off the Negotiations

London, March 17. — The test question for German delegates at the Peace Conference will be the west bank of the Rhine, says a Berlin despatch. Delegates will be authorized to break negotiations if this matter is forced upon them, and in this case the Cabinet will support the delegation, and will resign if the National Assembly takes a different attitude.

TEN DOLLAR FINE FOR PEACEMAKER

INTERFERED WITH BAILIFF WHEN SERVING A SUBPOENA SATURDAY.

A local man bumped up against the majesty of the law on Saturday morning when he interfered quite innocently as it turned out later with the bailiff, who was engaged in serving a subpoena upon a man at the corner of Simcoe and George streets.

In the afternoon he appeared in police court, charged with interfering with the carrying out of the law and being instrumental in letting the man who was to be served with the notice to appear in court slip away from the officer who was trying to serve the papers.

The accused stated that he noticed the crowd at the intersection of the streets and upon arriving at the scene concluded quite erroneously that the bailiff, whom he did not recognize as an officer of the law, was engaged in a brawl with the man upon whom he was endeavoring to serve the summons.

Actuated with a desire to see the peace preserved the accused grasped the irate officer and dragged him away from the other party who took advantage of the momentary diversion to seek safety in flight.

Upon the bailiff showing the peacemaker his authority the latter realized his mistake and went to the police station with im and pleaded guilty to the charge of interfering with the law, although maintaining that he had done so quite innocently and with a desire to end what he assumed to be a street brawl.

Justices of the Peace Rush and Eastwood looked upon the incident as most unfortunate and Crown Attorney Hatton stated that it was quite evident the prisoner had acted in good faith and without knowledge that he was impeding the carrying out of the law.

A light fine of ten dollars with costs amounting to nine dollars and ten cents was imposed. The accused thanked Their Worships for their leniency, stating that he realized that the offence was a serious one, but that he had acted with the best of motives and had erred as a result of lack of knowledge in connection with the matter.

N. Y. BREWER SUES TO TEST THE PROHIBITION LAW

Claims It is Invalid as Wartime Measure—Elihu Root Declares in Petition War is Over.

New York, March 15.—Preliminary action toward testing the constitutionality of the wartime prohibition act was taken in the filing here today of a stockholder's suit in the federal court against the James Everard's breweries.

The complainant, Joseph E. Everard, asked the court for an order restraining the defendant from suspending its manufacturing activities by May 1, as is said they will be required by the federal statute.

Measure Called Unconstitutional

The complaint alleged that the emergency prohibition clause of the agricultural bill adopted November 21, 1918, is unconstitutional as a measure intended to safeguard the national security and defence, the armistice having been signed, hostilities ceased and orders given preliminary to reduction of the military forces before that date.

Denies Emergency Existed

The complaint, drawn with Elihu Root as chief counsel, alleged that when President Wilson proclaimed the armistice declaring "this war thus comes to an end," directed cessation of inductions into the army under the selective service act and announced plans for restoration of normal peace conditions there was no emergency, military or otherwise, calling for prohibition of the use of grains, cereals, fruits or other food products in the manufacture of beer or wines, or for forbidding the sale of such products in order to conserve the nation's man power and carry on the war.

The prohibitions, it is charged, were unnecessary and arbitrary and wholly without any power conferred on congress by the constitution.

Near Beer Ruling Attacked

The suit also attacks the regulations of the internal revenue department restricting the manufacture of "near beer," prior to May 1, to products not exceeding 2½ per cent in alcoholic content, with a reduction to one-half of 1 per cent when the commodity is offered for sale and consumption; and limiting the alcoholic content of all brewed beverages after May 1 to ½ per cent. It is claimed that beer containing 2½ per cent alcohol is not intoxicating, and that congress gave no authority for the ½ per cent limitation.

The complainant, who resides in Plainfield, N.J., is a minority stockholder of the Everard breweries located in this city. He alleges that the directors of the company have made plans to comply with the war time prohibition act, thus destroying the corporation's profit making ability.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH"

MONDAY, MARCH 17, 1919

BACK TO THE LAND.

A LARGE NUMBER of soldiers, who have been living an open-air life, will not on their coming home take kindly to returning to the confines of a workshop or factory, and to them the back to the land scheme should offer acceptable opportunity. But they should be trained for the purpose, as it would be absurd to take a man accustomed to a shop, put him on a small holding, and expect him to run it himself. For such men training must be provided, and under such conditions as will be acceptable to them.

The great Emperor Augustus settled his soldiers on the land, and it was only then that peace and prosperity fell upon the Roman Empire. There is plenty of land in Canada for her returned soldiers—abundance of it for those who will accept it; and unquestionably the more land cultivated the greater will be Canada's prosperity. Then, if we bring a population back to the land it relieves pressure on the labor market and it sustains the labor market.

TESTING DAYS.

THE SEARCHING and testing time of Canada is upon us, and both the nation and governments are called upon to abide the shock of reaction and rise to the occasion. We are in the midst of industrial stagnation, following the cessation of hostilities, and aggravated by the prolongation of an armistice into months of tense waiting for that real and abiding peace for which thousands of loyal Canadians have laid down their lives. The home fires of many, kept so brightly burning throughout the long and bitter war, are dying out for lack of industrial movement, and unrest and pessimism permeate the working classes. The transition to peace conditions is bringing with it unemployment for many and reduced wages for some, but the cost of living still remains sky high with no immediate prospect of a drop. And what are we going to do about it?

In England the Government is helping the situation there partly by a donation to the unemployed, and our Canadian governments might consistently find some such means for relieving the distress in Canada following in the wake of four years of unprecedented strife and sacrifice in protection of Canada and all that Canadians hold dear. The good roads scheme—and, goodness knows good roads in Canada are a crying need—should be put into active operation at the earliest possible date, and that will offer employment for many. Then much hardship will be alleviated where the inhabitants of each district, individually and through their public authorities, use every effort to put in hand housing and other necessary local work. Employers can help out during a critical period by developing new lines of industry with their existing or adapted machinery, and capitalists should rise to Canada's need by placing capital in the hands of men competent to take advantage of the new industrial opportunities which will undoubtedly follow the actual signing of peace. But apart from this, much depends on the sympathy of the public at large. It is not generally understood that the larger proportion of the workers have not been earning extravagant wages, and that with reduced income and present prices life will be hard for many families. Much will depend on the price and supply of food, clothing and fuel in the coming years, but much also on a diffused atmosphere of good will and a sense of responsibility on the part of the nation for the welfare of its workers at home who, by their cheerful carrying on and ready response to patriotic calls, have enabled our armies to help smash the wild boar of Europe, and, we hope, to establish once more peace on earth and good will to all men.

The whole future of Canada's industries depends on applied intelligence and the co-operation of employers and employed, and these, again, on an assured conviction in the public mind that knowledge is worth while and that living conditions must be made tolerable for each and every class of the community.

A REVELATION.

AS A RESULT OF THE WAR Great Britain awakened to the fact that she could grow a huge proportion of the food for which she had been dependent on foreign imports.

During the past two years the British, by a special effort at increased cultivation, arrived at the conclusion that the submarines could not starve them. They undertook a great agricultural policy, and in spite of reduced labor, increased the area of cultivation in Great Britain and Ireland by four million acres. How was that done? By a great combined effort. They brought the landlords in, and the farmers in, and the laborers in, and everybody who was concerned with the cultivation of the land. They got them all to work together for that purpose, and in two years, with reduced labor, brought back the cultivation of England to where it was forty or fifty years ago.

All of which goes to show what tremendous agricultural possibilities there must be in Canada, with its vast areas of yet virgin soil, were but both the government and people to unite in bringing it to the plow.

CASE AGAINST PARTITION.

SOUTHERN UNIONISTS in Ireland are as much opposed to partition as Nationalists, which means that the only people who want partition are the Carsonite extremists. There are, in the six counties, according to the latest census, 820,270 Protestants, but at least 200,000 of these, if not Home Rulers, are bitterly opposed to cutting up the country. In the six counties there are 430,161 Catholics, who with a few exceptions are Home Rulers, and if we add to that number the 200,000 mentioned we get a total of 630,161 opposed to partition.

KEEPING SQUARE PEGS OUT OF ROUND HOLES.

WE ARE TOLD that in the early stages of the war the men in charge of things found that skilled mechanics and engineers were filling clerical positions while expert bookkeepers and actuaries were doing their best to understand railway construction and machinery. Then an effort was made to re-group the men in the service. Efficiency demanded that a man's previous experience should be made to count for the most possible in the war.

Could not something of this re-cataloguing be adopted in the musical world? A young man with a mouth made by nature for playing the clarinet, say, but who has unfortunately, webbed hands, sometimes comes to a piano teacher for a course of study. Another, perhaps, with a voice that would be a passport into grand opera rioes starts trombone lessons and his arm is too short to handle the most extended position. Or, again, a person with a hair lip may waste time in planning how he can become a renowned cornetist while as a 'cellist he might bring the whole world to his feet.

Many a misguided girl has literally squandered a small fortune on what she thought was destined to become a mezzo-soprano voice of the first water, when as a violinist she might have won fame at home and abroad. If teachers and parents co-operate in looking out for misfits, catching them before the damage is done, and helping them into the right paths, efficiency will have done something for music, too.

TIDINESS IN MUSIC.

IT IS A PECULIAR THING that in homes that are otherwise tidily kept the room that is set apart for music is often a sorry spectacle of neglect, carelessness and disorder. Just why some folks who always return a book to the case when through reading, who keep their letters received in a holder for the purpose, who put their clothes away religiously and practice neatness generally—just why some of these persons go off leaving their sheet music on one of the parlor chairs, or phonograph records one on top of the other on the centre table to get scratched, or player rolls piled up on top of the piano in the boxes with lids missing, is more than the average mind can fathom. The psychology of such a person's mind requires deep study.

It is no extra trouble to keep the music room tidy, too. There are music cabinets; there are benches with a box under the seat for sheet music and folios. There are cabinets and albums for records; there are special cabinets for player rolls. There being no need, therefore, for a topsy-turvy music room, it is wise to train these little folks who are just beginning to take music lessons or who are using the instruments that play automatically, into habits of tidiness by seeing that they put their music away in the proper place as soon as they are finished with it.

Certain of the great musicians and composers were noted for their slovenliness and carelessness about their personal appearance and about their studios. But we do not need to copy them in that. They would have been just as great musicians if they had been tidy and neat.

REMINISCENCES OF THE AIR

So Henry came to the war, fresh from Canada, newly commissioned and newly outfitted. He was surprised to find a group of cheery people playing cards and shooting choruses in a pleasantly furnished ex-drawing room the Huns had left practically undamaged. He had an excellent dinner, complete with hors d'oeuvres and savoury, and in place of a wet field to sleep in, a pleasant bedroom with a chest of drawers in which to put his clothes, and an elegant, if cracked, wash stand.

We took him around to see the country and the lines—down the Lys to Hallum and Menin, round very low to Komuel, over that land of incredible desolation, the brown lifeless earth, the dull red patch that marked a building, and the point spike of trees. Then up to the ruined monastry of Mont des Cats, and back east over Ypres, or rather what is left of it. On again eastwards into the fertile and prosperous country, leaving Lille, a well planned and well cared for city, on the right, over the roofs and chimneys of Roubaix, on towards Tournai and the glimmering Scheldt and the floods. A string of big, creamy "sausages" marked our side of the line. Beyond stretched the open country, and down on the right lay Tournai, with its red roofs and bridges still intact.

So we coasted along between our balloon lines and the Scheldt. All semed strange and not quite real to Henry. Of course, like all newcomers, he was greatly occupied in keeping his place in the formation and watching his leader, and he had not too much time to spare to view the surroundings. What first attracted him was a line of black balloons in the east—not "sausages," but balloons of the old type that we used to see before the days of aeroplanes. Very still they hung. Then one began slowly to dissolve, and then another; then nearer more balloons appeared; and then he realized what they were—Archie bursts marking the disappointments of the Hun gunners. Next he saw three Camels flash in formation and again later a flight of what looked to be D. H. G.'s. Then to the east he saw two machines spinning one above the other and for the moment he wondered at the cleverness with which the top one kept his distance. The bottom one flattened out and the top one followed suit, and all of a sudden the bottom one burst into flames. Again how stupid of him not to realize they were enemies; the whole effect was so curious and scenic that he had to pinch himself and tell himself it was real war, thewar that he at last had actually come to and was to take an actual share in. "Yet not today," he thought; "today I am only a spectator to see the lines." At that moment—wuff! A sharp bark at his right wing and a lurch of his machine made him look hastily round, and there was one of his black balloons at side. The leader immediately did a couple of sharp turns and then they were diving away westwards and to home. Down on the ground, two great fires were raging on the bank of the gleaming Scheldt; in the west the sun was setting in an angry red haze; a Camel patrol in the distance showed as little black specks. The day's war was over for aviators, and they were going home to tea.

A Beginner's Luck.

A glorious cloudless day succeeded a rainy interval. As Henry woke and the sun's rays fell upon him his nerves tingled. It was his day at last. For three days he had been pronounced fit for offensive patrol, and each day the rain had intervened. Today it would come off, and the Huns would be up in strength. His batman came in with hot water and a busy air. "Squadron show at nine o'clock, sir," he said. "Eight o'clock now, sir." Henry jumped up and looked out on the clear sky and bright aerodrome back by the wood with its leaves just turning. The machines were being brought out and dressed by the right; and the gunnery men were already getting busy with the guns.

The squadron took off by flights in formation. They did not well, and it was a pretty sight to see each flight taxi out and arrange themselves in a V behind the leader. He would look round, and, seeing them all ready, would open out. A burst of blue smoke from his exhaust pipes gave the signal to the rest, and they dashed across the grass and rose in pairs behind him. Soon the squadron disappeared eastward in three flocks.

Over Lille they met a few Camels, and by Tournai they saw a patrol of Bristol Fighters; otherwise they seemed to have the sky to themselves. But the Huns were not going to leave them undisturbed. Soon came the unpleasantly familiar little bark and the hanging cloud of black smoke, first at some distance, then annoyingly close. The game started, the short dives followed by climbing turns, the zigzagging and zooming known on the ground as "dodging Archie," and in the air at whatever comes readiest to the tongue. This, of course, was more worrying to Henry than to the others who had been out long enough to have gained an implicit faith in their machines, and it was more trying as he found it hard to keep in a fortuous formation. However, that battery was soon passed and they proceeded on their beat, north and south ,up and down the lines. The time slipped along, and it was wonderfully warm for twelve thousand feet, it seemed so peaceful that Henry almost caught himself napping ;he was even starting to forget to search the sky behind his tail. All of a sudden over went the leader on his right wing, then down went the nose, and he was going headlong for earth. The next man followed. Henry hesitated a moment, then threw his 'bus over and followed suit. "What is it? What 's it?" he was shouting in his excitement. "It must be Huns. Where are they? What are they doing? Now I'm going to keep my head. Steady now." His engine roared and his wires sang. Below he saw machines circling round and dashing this way and that. He saw British machines, umpteen British machines—red, white, and blue circles everywhere. "It must be a false alarm," he thought. Nowhere could he see a black cross, as he pulled out level with the melee. What a fiasco! They formed up and drew away westwards.

He changed his flying kit, and repaired to orderly room. There he found everybody talking at once. "What time did it happen?" "Ten-ten, S.W. of Audenarde." "I saw six, red-tailed blighters. They came in on 'B' flight from the south-east; one got on my tail, and I half rolled and —" "Here, lend me a pen, for the love of God, somebody. Let me see, how does this run? Place—Audenarde, time—10.10, type of E.A.—Fokker biplane. Pilot's Report: I saw one E.A. dive away east. I followed and fired a long burst; he burst into flames. Confirmed by—here, George old man, come and confirm my Hun."

So, gathering scraps from the confusion, it appeared that there had, indeed, been a fight. All that Henry could surmise was that he had been too late for the fun. The Major called him and asked him what he had seen. "I didn't see anything, sir," he replied. "Didn't see anything!" came a chorus. "No; I saw a lot of our machines dashing round, but I couldn't see any Huns. I think I must have been too late." "Not see any Huns!" said George. "My good boy, weren't you flying 'M'?" "Yes." "Well, perhaps you're not aware then that I shot one of the blighters off your tail."

WIT AND WISDOM

Charley was considered the dandy of the town, and when he came home from a visit to the city he was supposed to set forth the latest fashions in performance as well as in attire.

Upon the occasion of one such visit he went into a shop to look at gloves. He was shown several pairs, but astonished the shopkeeper by saying:

"But I want three."

"Dear me! Three pairs."

"Oh, no, three gloves."

"Nobody can wear more than two."

"I know that; most on 'em only wears one and wabbles the other, but I want three——two to wear and one to wabble."

Pat had got possession of a badly spoilt pointer dog, and meeting a likely purchaser the following conversation took place:

"That's a good looking dog, my man," said Pat, carelessly, "but not half as good as he looks."

Being asked the reason, he replied: "When I take him for a hunt, instead of catching the rabbit or hare, he stands like a fool in the middle of the field and points his paw at it."

She laid the still white form beside those that had gone before. No groan, no sigh, burst from her. Suddenly she let forth a cry that pierced the still night air, making it vibrate into a thousand echoes. It seemed as if it came from her very soul. Twice the cry was repeated, and then all was quite quiet again. She would lay another egg tomorrow.

The best story about President Wilson so far concerns an occasion when he was announced to speak at a meeting in a small western town. On account of a cloudburst, however, there was a washout on the railroad. So he telegraphed to the committee: "Cannot reach you in time. Washout on the line."

Back came the reply:

"Never mind your wash. Buy another shirt at our expense and come anyway."

Henpeck was having his picture "took."

"Will you take something to drink?" asked the photographer.

"With pleasure," the sitter replied.

The photograph was taken and the sitter said:

"But what about the little invitation?"

"Oh," said the camera man, "that's just a professional ruse of mine to give a natural, interested expression to the face."

The head of the family glanced up from his paper and remarked:

"I see there's a new hippopotamus at the zoo." Glancing at his son a moment later, he said: "What are you laughing at, Harry?"

"I was jus' laughin' to think of a stork carryin' a hipperpotamus!" returned Harry.

The famous humorist had partaken too heartily of Yuletide fare. Acute indigestion had laid him low.

As his friends gathered about him he smiled feebly.

"At any rate," murmured he, between spasms of pain, "I am able to keep up my reputation as a humorist."

But his friends wer puzzled.

"Di-gesting!" the patient gasped.

HARD LINES

The day is damp, the winds are bleak, my heart is sad, my hinges creak ,rheumatic pains are sharp; alas, I find it pretty hard to be a cheerup sunshine bard, and twang a joyous harp. I'd like to sing in wailing tones of winding sheets and dead men's bones. I fain would chant a dirge; to tap a reservoir of tears and sing of vain and aching years I feel a mighty urge. But if I wrote that kind of whine, some day when I am feeling fine I'd run across the pome, and then I'd cry, "My aunt! My hat! Did I produce such slush as that? What bugs were in my dome?" And I would blush to beat the band; for healthy men can't understand the drooling of the sick; and when one reads a tear wet ode he feels like mopping up the road with some fat rhyming hick. I'd hate to read my deathless lines and find them full of maudlin whines and sobs and sighs and moans; to spring a joyous spiel, or break some collar bones. The day is dark, the winds are bleak, but there'll be brighter days next week, the world will smile again; the sun will push the clouds away and put up forty kinds of hay and cheer the souls of men.

Capt. A. F. B. Carpenter, V.C., Who Took the Vindictive Through Zeebrugge Fight

MEET to be remembered with the Revenge and the Victory is H. M. S. Vindictive, one of whose gallant commanders—Capt. A. F. B. Carpenter, R.N., V.C.—recently visited Canada.

Zeebrugge and Ostend, the centre of the German submarine peril, might have been made another Gallipoli, with even greater sacrifices and even less results. But instead of squandering battleships, bluejackets and soldiers in securing possession of these points, the British Navy utterly destroyed their usefulness, while leaving the Germans in absolute geographical occupation until the very end of the war. The Vindictive was one of the ships, and Capt. Carpenter was one of the men who "did it."

You would think, to hear this rather pale-faced, blue-eyed, spare-figured man talk of it, that it was a small thing—though interesting—this smashing of the Uyers' nests.

"None of us expected to come back," he said, "but, my word, we did enjoy it! The men were all picked from volunteers and tried out under intensive training. And didn't they behave splendidly. Every man! Every single man! By jove, one can't say too much about the way those fellows did their jobs!"

Six old cruisers, an ancient submarine, two ferryboats that once gathered fares at Liverpool, a few destroyers and a swarm of motor launches, coast patrol boats and smoke-makers started for the Belgian coast in broad daylight on April 22, 1918, steaming slowly, at the speed of the "limpiest duck of them all."

CAPTAIN CARPENTER, V.C.

At midnight they rolled down on Zeebrugge, their smoke screen borne ahead of them on the northeast wind. When almost at their goal the wind shifted, blew their smoke back on them, and laid every outline bare to the questing searchlights. The whole harbor burst into a blaze of star shells, gunflashes, searchlight beams and swarms of the "green onions" [illegible] air raiders.

The ships were exposed to machine gun and point blank shots of the Mole, and heavy batteries ashore bombarded them.

Clad in oilskins and wearing a cork jacket, Capt. Carpenter "commanded" the Vindictive from the open bridge till the Daffodil had passed her into position. Her oilskins were ripped with bullets and shrapnel.

"It's a rather alarming old thing," he said afterwards, "when the engine-room telegraph, and the ships meant to block the entrance were sunk before they got into proper position.

The brave old Vindictive, battered as she was, crawled out again on the 9th of May—two weeks after her Zeebrugge escapade — and finished the Ostend job. Commander Godsal had charge of her this time; he had commanded one of the ships which was sunk in the preceding raid. He laid her athwart the entrance piers, in a storm of German shellfire which equalled the Zeebrugge show. A shell which demolished her conning tower ere she sank killed him and many of his officers, but their work, and the old ship's work, was done, and well done. Ostend, like Zeebrugge, was blocked. "Closed for the war" might have been the sign over each. With the blocking of the entrances the submarines became mere laboratory specimens of the genus sea-snake, interesting but harmless; Ostend and Zeebrugge were the bottles which contained them.

A Curious Mammal.

A very rare and curious mammal, known to science as the Solenodon paradoxus, is a back-number, zoologically speaking. It is a native of Haiti and looks as if it properly belonged to "Alice in Wonderland." One is reminded of the "slithy toves."

It is manifestly an ancient type of animal, destined before long to vanish finally from the earth. With the fur, ears and tail of an opossum, the teeth of a shrew, a long proboscis and curved claws with which to scratch up the insects on which it feeds, it bears no total resemblance to any other existing creature.

Another queer mammal (very ancient likewise, say the naturalists) is the tenrec of Madagascar, which is nearly extinct. It is likewise a feeder on insects and looks somewhat like a badger in miniature, but with a long snout.

Not more than 100,000 years ago there were on this continent giant sloths, as big as fair-sized elephants. The skeletons of specimens are preserved to-day in museums, one of the largest species being called the megatherium. At the present time their race is represented in tropical America by a small and degenerate breed.

These modern sloths live in trees, hanging from branches for hours without moving. Thus it is not easy to discover their presence, and, as a special and peculiar disguise, a grayish-green lichen grows on their fur.

The pangolin, native to southern Asia, is another ancient type of mammal. It is an insect-eater, very sluggish, and, being provided with no effective weapons for defence, is armored, being completely clad in scales. When attacked, it rolls itself into a ball and presents an impervious exterior to the enemy.

Scientific Plant Marriage.

Plants very commonly depend for their cross-fertilization upon insects, which carry pollen from flower to flower. But, of course, the matings thus accomplished are purely haphazard.

The plant-breeder to get worthwhile results must select the destined parents and control the character of the offspring by making sure that a particular flower receives only a certain pollen, the latter being the male element.

He accomplishes this by artificial impregnation—a matter easy enough, especially in a greenhouse. The pollen may be carried in a watchglass and applied with the tip of a little brush. There are, however, other methods.

To make the flower safe against other and accidental pollens, it is inclosed in a tiny bag of cheesecloth. Then the breeder is sure of his parents, and it remains only to be seen how the offspring will turn out. It may prove a valuable new variety.

Suppose that a fruit is concerned. The latter, to prevent injury by insects or birds, may be further protected by a cheesecloth bag big enough to allow for its full development. Thus it grows to ripe perfection and, when it is ready to be picked, judgment can be given as to its value.

Only American Flag.

There are flags made of red, white and blue stripes, but the American flag has not only the stripes made in certain proportions, and number, but the stars as well arranged upon a blue field in certain proportions in a certain order. No one should mistake such hunting for the American flag.

First Attempt to Explore Africa.

The first organized attempt to explore the interior of Africa was made by Mungo Park, who set sail on his initial voyage to the Dark Continent 123 years ago. He returned two years and seven months later after having explored a considerable section of Africa never before visited by a white man, although he failed in his main purpose, which was to trace the source of the River Niger.

When a Nut Isn't.

The peanut isn't a nut at all, but a member of the pea, bean and clover family. It is a legume and gathers nitrogen from the air. Peanuts do not grow from roots, but on shoots which grow out from the plant above ground, bear a little sterile yellow blossom and then shoot directly into the ground, where they peg—that is, where peanuts begin to grow on them.—St. Nicholas.

Not Really Sardines.

A large proportion of the so-called sardines taken along the Atlantic coast of this country and Canada are not true sardines but are the young of the herring and menhadden. They are prepared in about the same way as true European sardines, however, and it would puzzle some of the most experienced epicures to distinguish the spurious from the genuine.

Rich Rhine Country.

Strange to say, the fine grapes are grown on the eastern slopes of the Rhine and the choicest varieties, as Johannisberger and Steinberger, are produced higher up the river, south of the Rhine province. It is, nevertheless, the land of the vine, especially the Moselle valley. The substantial claim of the province is its mineral [illegible]

Catching a Wireless Leak

"B-z-z-z-z-z-z-z-z-z-z!"

Buzzing and sputtering, the spark was acting up. The French Intelligence Department, with receivers all tuned up for Nauen and Madrid, could make nothing out of the supposed message. (It is E. T. Bronsdon, recounting the incident, in Popular Mechanics.

"Nothing there!" was the verdict of the wireless expert.

Headquarters thought differently. The Germans had known far too much concerning Allied troop disposal in the Somme advance. News was getting across constantly; some of it was acted upon by the Boches before ever Allied troops in advanced positions could know of the changes made. Careful sifting had made a practical certainty of the theory that a neutral country was sending the news by powerful wireless. Further investigation had disclosed that in Madrid, Spain, an instrument was using the same wave length used habitually by Nauen, the great official station of the German empire. A little observation showed further that, at irregular times, both of these stations sent out these queer buzzings. It looked suspicious, to say the least.

For weeks afterwards the Allies kept experts busy on the strange problem. Every sort of instrument was tried, the theory being that perhaps some special receiving apparatus had been invented which made the buzzing jumble intelligent. The British who were called in to wrestle with the problem were unanimous in the opinion that the noise, which never lasted more than a fraction of a minute, was due purely to some imperfections in the sending stations. No message of any kind, except possibly some code word agreed upon before the war, could be sent in this manner—surely no data concerning the movements of divisions or army corps, for the names of these alone would take more spark than was wasted on the whole of each of these "mystery messages." The French were polite, but unconvinced.

Still the buzzing continued from Nauen and from Madrid, though more often from the latter. The leak, also, was growing worse. It had become so bad that the French organized a phantom attack under Gen. Debeneau. With only that general and Headquarters' Staff in "on the know," three divisions were scheduled to hammer the German front on a certain August morning. Two days previous to the imaginary attack the Germans on this front abandoned three moderately dangerous positions which they had held stubbornly to that time! Patrols sent out to reconnoitre reported a huge force of stosstruppen grimly waiting to annihilate the three divisions, which naturally never went over the top.

Positive orders went out to "tune up" on Madrid. Obeying this mandate, the Intelligence Department finally discovered the trick. A certain investigator, at his wit's end, attached a phonograph with a blank record to the receiving station which was investigating Madrid. When the buzzing came it was inscribed on the soft wax of a record. This first attempt yielded no specific result, but it furnished a hint. Running the record at two or three revolutions a minute, several experts thought they detected certain letters.

Immediately another trial was made. This time the blank record was run 300 revolutions to the minute.

The buzzing was caught. When the record was rerun at lower speed the code message was obtained! Then, of course, the problem was simplicity itself; no German ever yet has been able to evolve a code which the Federal Intelligence Department could not decipher in its sleep. The message, as expected, gave a wealth of details that no German was supposed to know. Soon after Nauen came through with questions which Madrid would answer as soon as possible.

The scheme really was simple. In each of these stations reels for holding a perforated tape message had been attached to the wireless sending apparatus. A mechanism essentially like that which reproduces from music rolls on a player piano took the message from the perforated roll and sent it out in ether waves at from 300 to 400 words a minute! At either end a phonograph picked up the seemingly meaningless jumble and ordinary steel needles reproduced it.

It is doubtful if the Germans ever found out that the French were on to their scheme, for on occasion, until nearly the end of the war, the device was used. Needless to say there always was a third party "on the line"—and it is certain that none of the information that subsequently went through ever bothered the Allied armies. Through various ruses, and through the leading questions asked by Nauen, the French were able to pick up many spies that they never would have suspected under ordinary circumstances, thus closing up most of Fritz's reliable sources of information.

National Debts.

National debts of the world have increased from $44,000,000,000 to $204,000,000,000 during the war period, and the interest payments thereon from less than $2,000,000,000 a year to more than $10,000,000,000, according to a statement made by O. P. Austin, statistician of the National City Bank of New York. The United States, he said, would enter the new conditions of world trade resulting from the war with a less handicap than that of many of the sister nations. The nation now holds fully one-third of the gold of the world.

The Flavour Lasts!

Eyes Had to Be Blue.

Blue-eyed babies always claim a preponderance of admirers. The fact has just again been emphasized—this time at Hampstead, England. It was announced in the press that the town officials had a "bonny blue-eyed baby" for adoption, and straightway 350 would-be adopters wrote to secure it. Unfortunately it was found that the infant's eyes had been wrongly described. The eyes were not blue, after all, and when they heard of this some of the ladies withdrew their offers.

The Fragrant Weed.

The use of tobacco was first discovered in America when Columbus, in 1492, sent his first party to explore the island of Cuba. It was first observed that these herbs were burned and carried by the natives to perfume themselves. It was later discovered that these herbs were also used for chewing, and later as America was opened up and explored, it was observed that they were smoked in large quantities.

Balsam Gum.

The gum of the balsam fir, Abies balsamea, is known commercially as Canada balsam, and is largely used in the manufacture of optical instruments and in various other ways about scientific laboratories. There is a constant market for it, the price varying with the quality and the supply. Some time ago a fair quality was worth 20 cents per pound.

Oldest Timber.

What is described as the oldest timber in the world which has been used by man is found in an ancient temple of Egypt. This timber is used in connection with stone work, which is known to be more than 4,600 years old. This wood—and the only wood employed in the construction of the temple—is in the form of ties which hold the end of one stone to another. The ties appear to be tamarisk, of which the ark was constructed.

Looking Ahead.

A baby boy arrived one morning. Hunter, three years old, had been given two billy goats for his last birthday. That morning his father said: "Now Hunter, you don't need two goats, suppose you give your little brother one. What do you say?" Hunter didn't say anything for a minute, then he said: "Father, I've been thinking it over, and I've decided maybe I'd better save that goat for my own little boy."

Smallest National Park.

The smallest of our national parks contains just thirty-eight acres and is on Prince of Wales Island, Southeastern Alaska. It was created but a year or so ago by presidential proclamation. The park is an abandoned Indian village, chiefly interesting for its totem poles. There are, also, some buildings, which are the best known examples of Haida Indian architecture.

Under Act One Man May Be A Family

IMPORTANT RULING BY MR. JUSTICE CLUTE—QUASHES $500 FINE

For the purpose of the Ontario Temperance Act, Mr. Justice Clute holds in a judgment given at Osgoode Hall, an unmarried man living in his own apartments where he takes his meals may be considered a "family." The case came before him yesterday on appeal from Magistrate Jelfs of Hamilton, who fined Arthur Baird $500 for having liquor in his suite in the Commercial Apartments, 41 Park road, north, Hamilton. Justice Clute quashes the conviction, protects the magistrate and officers, and directs that any property removed, if any, be returned.

Under the act it is provided that intoxicating liquor may be lawfully kept in an apartment where "there are facilities for cooking and a family actually residing, cooking, sleeping, and taking their meals."

Mr. Baird is a clerk in a hotel. He sleeps and takes his dinner and supper in the apartments, where a quantity of liquor was found. A woman comes in to prepare his meals.

"With Some Hesitation."

"Giving the words their natural meaning," says the judgment, "a 'family residing, cooking, sleeping and taking their meals' seems to imply that more than one person was intended. Suppose a man and his wife occupy premises of this kind, and take their meals there. There would be no question that this would fall within the statute as constituting a family. If, then, the wife died and the husband remained, a woman coming in, cooking his meals and taking care of the house, but not sleeping there, I think it could scarcely be doubted that that would still constitute a 'family' within the meaning of the act. With some hesitation I am of opinion that it does come within the act, and that the premises constitute a 'private dwelling house' within the act."

Yes, I Intend To But Not Now

Have YOU any idea what that decision is costing you—even if you live? Of course, if you die the cost is much GREATER.

Read the following facts and then decide for yourself:

The premium you would pay for $1000 of insurance at age 40 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $4000 of insurance at age 21

The premium you pay for $1000 of insurance at age 50 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $2500 at age 21.

The premium you pay for $1000 of insurance at age 35 WOULD BUY YOU $1440 at age 21.

Besides, while you may be insurable at age 21 you may not be insurable AT ANY PRICE at the other ages mentioned.

The one great fact that touches our lives is the verdict of NOW.

EDITOR'S MAIL

March 15th, 1919.

To the Editor of The Review:

Dear Sir,—We wish to draw your attention to an error in the article entitled "Half the Jews in Peterboro Will Leave for Palestine," which appeared in the March 15th issue of your paper.

Here is stated that a few Jews try still to maintain the ancient feasts and laws laid down in the Old Testament, while many others have given up a good many of these old forms and still other Jews are atheists.

Now, in correction of this statement beg to say that the majority of the Jews are Orthodox, that is that they believe and practice the old rites and feasts laid down in the Old Testament and when they regain Palestine will pratice them to an even greater extent. There are no atheists among the Jews, for one who is an atheist does not believe in God and every Jew believes in and prays to one and only one God.

There are a few Jews who do not practice the religion according to Orthodox principles. These so called Reformers are mostly Germans and are looked down upon and despised by both true Jews and true Christians.

Furthermore, this article states that the Jews will not attempt to rebuild the temple destroyed by Titus, the Roman. This is a matter which can hardly be prophesied, but it is more likely than not that it will be rebuilt.

The Kahens are the High Priests of Judea and the descendents of the tribe of Levi are assistants to the High Priests. The Jews are proud of the fact that throughout the thousands of years of their wandering and persecution the identity of the Kahens and Levis has not been lost as stated in your article. The Jews do not guess as to who these men are; it is an heirloom handed down from father to son and each one knows to which of the three main tribes he belongs.

Thanking you for this space, we remain,

TRUE ORTHODOX JEWS.

COUNT LAVOULAX INDICTED IN U. S.

KIN (?) OF AUSTRIAN PREMIER CHARGED WITH THEFT OF $1,000 WORTH OF BONDS.

Chicago, March 15.—"Count Egon Kurt Ranier Lavaulax," who claims to be a brother in law of the "premier of Austria," was indicted by the grand jury today on a charge of larceny, in connection with the alleged theft of a $1,000 Liberty bond from the Bates Valve Bag Company, 7310 South Chicago avenue.

The "count" was arrested yesterday by operatives of the Soule secret service agency. He also is said to have posed as a brother of Attorney Clarence S. Darrow, and to have purchased jewelry for young woman acquaintances by negotiating the bond in Detroit.

The "count" was employed by the Bates Company as an accountant. He was know there as Egon Kürt Ranier and formerly resided at 5328 Woodlawn avenue. In his official capacity he is said to have come into possession of the bond which was a dividend to be paid A. M. Bates by the company.

In addition to his brother-in-law "the premier of Austria," Ranier, or Lavaulax, said he had another relative in the Austrian diplomatic corps and titled relatives in Prato, Italy and Palm Beach, Fla. He was arrested in the lobby of the Morrison Hotel.

AIR EXPLOITS FIGURE IN TRIAL

COURT MARTIAL TO ASCERTAIN OF RECOMMENDATIONS FOR DECORATIONS ARE FORGERIES.

London, England, March 15.—The investigation of the stories of the remarkable air exploits of Capt Edmund G. Chamberlain of San Antonio, Tex., an officer of the United States marine corps, which has been in progress for several weeks, has developed to an extent that the American naval authorities consider a court martial necessary. The court has been called to sit in London, Mar. 24.

The court martial, it is announced will investigate chiefly whether Capt. Edmund Chamberlain's recommendations for decorations were all forgeries and whether there was any truth whatever in his story of destroying an extraordinary number of machines in a short time.

(Chamberlain was recommended for the Victoria Cross and the Congressional Medal of Honor, the highest awards for bravery of Great Britain and the United States, Aug. 31 last year, for an exploit on the preceeding July 20 over the British front in a battle with twelve German machines. It was reported that he destroyed five enemy planes and damaged two others. His plane also was damaged, but he landed successfully whereupon he captured a German prisoner. Then keeping his captive Chamberlain was reported to have found a wounded French officer and to have carried him back to safety into the British lines under a heavy German fire.)

SAYS TROTZKY'S FOES ARE EATEN

SENSATIONAL STATEMENT AS TO EXTREMES OF BOLSHEVIK TERRORISM.

London, Eng., March 15.—Sensational statements as to the extremes of the Bolshevik terrorism in Russia were made in London by Gen. Trepoff, Russian Premier in 1916, who passed through England on his way to Paris to join Iswolski, Sazonoff and other Russian public men in an endeavor to obtain aid for Russia before it is too late.

Gen. Trepoff says that Chinese brigands and Caucasion gypsies, comprising the "murder battalion" of Trotzky's guards, are empowered to kill persons obnoxious to the Bolshevik regime. They are paid 50 rubles ($25) apiece for carrying out those commissions, and as an additional reward the murderers are permitted to slice up the bodies of the victims into "meat," which they may then sell for human consumption. This meat, he declares, is sold in Petrograd, Moscow and other centres of Bolshevik terrorism as "veal" and is eagerly purchased by starving mothers, who feed it to their famished children.

Gen. Trepoff made these statements to a group of prominent Britishers and Russians in London working together to relieve the people of Russia. Gen. Trepoff saw the American ambassador, Ira Nelson Morris, in Stockholm and was asked by him how many people the Bolsheviki were killing daily. The general replied that it was about 1,000.

VISCOUNT GREY HAS GONE BLIND

IS A GREAT STATESMAN

Even the German Ambassador to London at the Outbreak of the War Admits That Lord Grey Did Everything Possible to Preserve Peace by Establishing Network of Agreements Between the Nations.

AFTER being afflicted for many years with eye trouble, Viscount Grey, former British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, has become totally blind. It is stated that he is already earnestly at work learning the Braille system of raised letters.

Viscount Grey, or, as he then was, Sir Edward Grey, played a highly important part in 1914 when the war started. It is generally felt that he made all possible efforts to avert strife between Britain and Germany and to bring about an amicable arrangement. Prince Lichnowsky, who was German Ambassador at London when the war began, confirms this in the famous memorandum which he wrote in 1916 in an effort to justify his position, which had been assailed. This memorandum, primarily intended for the private consumption of friends only, ultimately became public property and proved a most enlightening document. In it he described how the aims of the then Sir

VISCOUNT GREY.

Edward Grey were not to isolate Germany but to induce Germany to take part in the already established concert by removing the causes of friction between Great Britain and Germany and securing the peace of the world by a network of agreements. Viscount Grey is an enthusiastic advocate of the league of nations and favors including Germany in it.

The New York Evening Post interestingly writes:

"Viscount Grey is not the first representative of Britain in foreign affairs to lose his eyesight; the other instance is of the Latin Secretary to the Council of State under the Commonwealth. Grey, like Milton, may claim to have lost his eyesight in the service of his country. There is no reason why blindness should cause the retirement from public affairs of a man esteemed one of the ablest friends of international peace. Senator Gore attributed his position in spite of totally losing his sight at the age of eleven. A young Englishman who lost his sight while studying law in London became not only a noted professor and writer on economics, but a prominent statesman—Henry Fawcett. Leslie Stephen has told how when his opponents for Parliament urged his blindness as a disqualification he obtained a hearing and told his own story with a simple eloquence that fascinated all hearers." He carried reforms at Cambridge; agitated so persistently for Indian betterment that he was called 'member for India,' and under Gladstone was one of Britain's best Postmasters-General. Sir Arthur Pearson would doubtless maintain that blindness is only a minor misfortune."

DANGERS AHEAD.

What Are Possibilities That the Tiger Sees.

"There is a lull in the storm," said Premier Clemenceau. "It is as well to face squarely all possibilities."

What are the possibilities the Old Tiger sees? Foremost in his mind is a recrudescence of German militarism. And Marshal Foch has told him and told the world that while the Peace Conference debates on the approach of the millennium Germany is gathering stores to put an army of 3,000,000 men suddenly in face of the world. At the same time news despatches from Berlin say Germany is preparing to conscript various classes up to thirty-five years of age and "it is understood the Minister of National Defence will proceed forthwith to adopt the measures needed to re-establish the army and put it on an effective footing."

Meanwhile Friedrich Ebert, the new President of Germany, in his speech accepting the presidency, said: "We shall combat domination by force from whatever direction it may come." And in his speech opening the German National Assembly at Weimar Ebert said: "We warn our opponents not to drive us to the utermost. Hunger is preferable to disgrace, and deep deprivation is to be preferred to dishonor."

Prof. Hans Delbruck said in an interview at the same time that if the Allied demands were considered too severe in Germany "Germany would rise at an opportune moment and again plunge the world into war."

Looking beyond Germany, the papers inform in flaming head lines that Trotzky, in Russia, is "preparing an army of 2,000,000 crusaders" to go out against the world. What is the real strength of the Bolshevik army? Nobody knows. Estimates range all the way from 300,000 to Trotzky's 2,000,000. But what seems certain is that, however large that army may be, Trotzky is somehow contriving to pay it extravagantly and feed it gorgeously, while the rest of Russia starves, in order to make it loyal to Bolshevism. And Lenine accepts the invitation to the Prinkipo Islands conference with the proviso that any decision will depend on the military position "which is constantly growing more favorable for Russia."

With the exception of that section of the Socialist party led by Jean Longuet and Pierre Renaudel, which has inherited Caillaux's "defeatism," the French press sees eye to eye with Clemenceau. The Echo de Paris, after insisting upon the unrepenting warlike spirit of Germany, says: "We must without further delay act as though once more it were our task to crush the enemy. The more resolute we are the quicker the enemy will yield. All the rest is nothing but astronomer's literature." Le Pays says Clemenceau wants America, "which is inundated by enemy propaganda, to know in a direct manner in what state this war of destruction has left victorious France." The "Petite Republique" considers that "this question not only concerns relations between victor and vanquished, but between France and her Allies."

Noted Colored Woman.

Sojourner Truth was a colored woman born in New York state, probably about the middle of the eighteenth century, as she was middle aged at the time of Washington's death, in 1799. That was not her real name, but she assumed it for reasons of her own. She was a slave all her life until set free by an act of the New York legislature in 1827, abolishing slavery in that state, July 4, 1827. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe wrote a life of her.

Antiquity of Disease.

The antiquity of disease is shown by the recent discovery of Prof. Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian institution, Washington. He found fossilized toxic, or poisonous bacteria, at the base of and far below the Cambrian rocks. These rocks had originally lain 30 miles below the earth's surface, but had been upheaved by some tremendous convulsion. Theirs is an age of 30,000,000 years ago.

Napoleon Who Never Reigned.

Napoleon II never reigned. When Napoleon I abdicated he also renounced the right of succession for his son, known as the king of Rome. When Napoleon III created himself emperor of the French he took the style and title of Napoleon III, in order to establish the connection between himself and his uncle, the first Napoleon.

Animals In War.

Some interesting notes have been made in regard to the behaviour of various animals under the terrific conditions of noise, vibration, explosion and other disturbances at the front. Thus it seems clear that some kinds of birds, under the dominance of instincts of feeding, mating or brooding, behave as if they were indifferent to all the turmoil. Living creatures of many kinds are not in the least impressed by sounds which have no interest for them. To terrific disturbances which have neither inherited nor acquired "meaning," an acutely sensitive organism may remain quite indifferent.

But another point is raised, says Nature, by some observations which refer to the diverse ways in which sheep and cows react to dummy bombs released from an aeroplane. The cows seem entirely indifferent to the "swish" of the falling bomb, but the sheep "invariably scatter in panic." Have the cows a different—more placid—temperament? But how excited they get at times by the buzzing of flies that cannot hurt them. The excitement is probably due to fallacious association with the buzzing of blood-sucking flies which can hurt them; and the suggestion is that sheep are panic-stricken because the swish of a falling bomb is probably not unlike the sound of a bird of prey, say a golden eagle, swooping upon the lambs.

By-Products.

The by-products obtained in the packing-house industry may be divided into two classes — the edible and the inedible. The inedible constitute the external covering (hair, horns, hoofs and hides), some of the offal and the bones. From these are prepared on a great variety of substances, some of which have developed into enormous industries in themselves, such as leather, soap, glue and fertilizer. The last mentioned represents the ultimate utilization of packing-house waste. For example, in the manufacture of buttons, combs, knife handles and specialties from the horns and hoofs of cattle and sheep and the hoofs of hogs, the waste resulting from the preparation of these articles was at one time thrown away, but it has been found that by treating such material with sulphuric acid the nitrogen which it contains becomes available as a fertilizer.

Uncle Sam's Islands.

The island of Tutuila and other small Samoan islands came into the possession of the United States in January, 1900. Pago Pago is the only good harbor.

Enough Said.

Brother and sister were parted for the first time, he going on a month's trip with their mother and father and she to spend the month with their grandparents. The leave taking was rather strained, as neither one of them quite knew what to say. Finally the brother walked up and putting his arms around his sister said: "Margaret, I'm your brother an' you're my sister."

A wonderful tree, known as the [illegible] is beginning to attract commercial attention in western Africa. It is already exported to Europe, where makers of artificial butter find use for it.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women who value this rich color that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the glossy, lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

CANADIAN WHEAT BARRED FROM U. S.

PROHIBITION OF SHIPMENTS ACROSS LINE RESULT OF FINCH GUARANTEE

Washington, March 17.—The agricultural bill recently passed by Congress does not prohibit the importation of wheat into the United States, but authorizes its prohibition by executive order. In case the President sees fit to issue it.

The Grain Corporation, located in New York, a subsidiary of the United States Food Administration, acting under authority of a former executive order, is refusing to consider applications for permission to import wheat into the United States for milling purposes. Although in most cases wheat for feed is admitted, there is one exception to this situation. The permits are granted to farmers living close to the border, where the local mill is across the international line, to bring in small shipments of wheat for grinding for domestic use.

As the United States Government has guaranteed a price for this year's wheat crop in excess of the present market price, it is not likely that any restrictions on the importation of wheat will be removed until the market price reaches the price the United States has agreed to pay.

Shipping Is Held

Ottawa, March 17.—Notwithstanding increased facilities both in the west and at the head of the lakes there has never been a year when any more than half of the Canadian wheat crop was carried by all-Canadian channels. Usually at least half the crop goes via Buffalo and the ports of New York and Baltimore. It is feared that not only will the import restrictions be continued but that the privilege of shipping in bond by the United States may be refused. In that case all the wheat will have to go by Canadian ports and Canadian ports are not equipped to handle all the wheat of the west in a year of a big crop.

NEW SINN FEIN MOVE

Dublin, March 17.—The Sinn Fein executive has, "in accordance with international custom," asking the British Government for safe conducts for their delegates to the Peace Conference, but is it said they will not ask for passports.

Workman's Wages And Savings Stamps

"Supposing I do buy a War Savings Stamp, paying $4 for it how will that help either the country or the Government?". It is quite possible that quite a few people have asked themselves this question. The answer is—$4 will pay the wages of a skilled workman for one day and it will also give the Government for five years this money for much needed work.

"But," it may be asked, "how may the paying of $4 for a War Savings Stamp make possible the payment of a workman's wages?" Well, in this way. If the Canadian public through the purchase of War Savings Stamps or other forms of government securities, places enough money in the hands of the Government to enable it to grant credits to France, Belgium and other war-devastated countries for Canadian supplies, Canada will get large orders for both manufactured articles and for agricultural products. If this is not done, then only a small proportion of these orders will come to Canada. The greater portion of them will go to the United States, which is prepared to grant such credits.

Only through the continuance of the huge export trade built up by Canada during the war can Canadians hope to experience anything like a continuance of that industrial activity that has been a feature of the last few years. But if this trade is maintained it will be largely through credits which the people make possible through lending their money to the Government.

So it works out that the more money subscribed through the sale of War Savings Stamps, the more there will be placed at the disposal of the Government for credits. The more credits the more foreign orders, and consequently the more Canadian Workmen employed. This is how the paying of $4 for a War Savings Stamp means a day's wages for a workman.

Must Have License Before You Fly

ALL MEN MUST ALSO BE QUALIFIED BY THE AERO CLUB.

In future any would-be aviator who takes an aeroplane up into the sky in Canada without first obtaining the permit, certificate and license of the Aero Club of Canada is breaking order-in-Council P. C. 2389.

"The public and the real flying man had to be protected," Capt Jas. P. Beaty, president of the Aero Club of Canada, explains, "so we made representations to the Department of Militia and Defence for these necessary modifications. Today we received the following letter from Major-Gen. Eugene Fiset, Deputy Minister of Militia:

"'For transportation purposes within the territorial limits of the Dominion the Minister of Militia exempts from the orders made by order-in-council, P.C. 2389, dated September, 1914, persons utilizing aircraft navigated by pilots licensed by the Aero Club of Canada.' "

So, in future if any young adventurer not possessed of the Aero Club's licenses and certificates takes it upon himself to "take the air" he may be arrested on landing by Government authorities. This modification also prevents passengers from riding in aeroplanes piloted by aviators who have not passed the Aero Club's tests.

Bolshevist Russia, entirely surrounded by food and well paid labor would soon be cured of its economic lunacy.

Soldiers Should Be Usefully Occupied

ITALIAN VIEW OF AFTER-THE-WAR REACTION — SCATTER RETURNED MEN.

Rome, March 17.—Some of the villages and cities are still packed with soldiers, who occupy all the few inhabitable houses with officers and headquarters. This a mistake. The soldiers should be scattered where their kindness and skill could do most to restore the pre-war conditions. In the cities they are idle watching the almanac for the day of their possible discharge, thus vacating a house now and then for the inhabitants.

According to a census of the refugees made through the efforts of the commissariat, it would appear that almost 420,000 inhabitants out of 1,724,000 fled from the invaded provinces, including Udine and Belluno, and parts of Treviso, Venetia and Vicenza, and from territory where the proximity of war made life hazardous. One may from this compute the total amount of energy held so far from the strenuous and urgent labor of reconstruction with the illusion that at the first signs of renascence it should think of its duty.

Are means of transportation wanting? Trains are running to Feltre and to Udine already. Would it not be possible to suspend the recovery of war material abandoned by the enemy for twenty days and use the auto trucks to return the refugees? Why be afraid? I cannot think the robbers of shells and big guns are numerous. I would dismiss all the employes of the government who are not back at their posts within ten days. We are living under an armistice, not under peace and we have a right to treat as deserters all the men who forsake their posts of duty, whether they be soldiers or in civil life.

Gas and Phonemen Call Off Contest

Tonight the telephone men were to have given the boys from the gas works another tussel in Brock street rink but the mild weather has turned the ice into a pond so deep and so still that even these intrepid players feared to venture out upon it so the game was called off.

This is considered most unfortunate by those who had the good luck to see looking forward to another treat such as they witnessed last week. However, it cannot be expected that the gassers or the electrifyers would venture out in boats so Unless the weather becomes colder the second contest is all off.

Velocity of Light.

The velocity of light was obtained by the Danish astronomer Roemer in 1676, by observing the eclipses of Jupiter's moons. When the earth was nearest to Jupiter, the eclipse appeared about eight and one-half minutes too soon for the calculations, and when the earth was most remote from Jupiter, they were about eight and one-half minutes too late. Roemer concluded the reason to be that it required 17 minutes for light from the planet to traverse the diameter of the earth's orbit, which measured the difference of the distances of the earth from Jupiter. This calculation has since been verified, and proves that light travels about 186,000 miles a second.

Canadian Money Orders.

Canadian money orders are issued on blanks of various denominations, each with the amount of money for which the order is issued printed on it. A lady living in Ontario, sending a bunch of 30-cent money orders to take up a remittance to a Boston firm, apologizes thus: "I apologize for all these post office orders. It seems that the local postmaster got in a stock six years ago, and the 30-cent orders were the slowest to sell. He has no others on hand now."

"The Psalm of Life."

Many years ago, when Professor Kneeland was leaving Iceland, the people said to him: "Tell Longfellow that we love him; tell him we read and rejoice in his poems; tell him that Iceland knows him by heart." And, at about this same time, they were using in China a fan, which was most popular there, on account of the "Psalm of Life" being printed on it in Chinese.

Household Work Savers.

Use plenty of newspapers about the kitchen spreading them on the floor when anything is likely to spatter. It is easier to gather them up than to clean up. If there is a kitchen range not in use in the summer time it is well to prevent dampness and rust. If the kitchen has but a gas range, then a good-sized waste basket should be kept and the papers disposed of in whatever way is best.

DISHONORED THE DEAD.

Bolsheviki Maltreated Body of Great General.

After the tragic account of the death of the former Czar of Russia and his family at the hands of the Bolsheviki, comes the description of Gen. Korniloff's vain attempts to restore order in Russia, his fights against the Bolsheviki and Germans and his death.

After his escape from Petrograd when the Bolsheviki took over the power of the Government, Gen. Korniloff left for South Russia where, with Generals Alexieff, Markoff and Denikino, he organized an army to fight Bolshevik Germanism. Many times during the sanguinary encounters between his troops and those of the Bolsheviki, Gen. Korniloff shouldered a rifle himself and fought as a simple soldier. He was killed while directing an attack near Ekaterinodar by a bursting grenade thrown by a Bolshvik in the hut where the famous general was working.

His soldiers before retiring, decided to bury the body temporarily, with the intention of coming back later and give their leader a grandiose funeral. In the meantime the Bolsheviki heard of Gen. Korniloff's death. They sent a special mission to find the body. Having discovered it, the Bolsheviki in the mad joy at having got rid of one of their bitterest opponents, fought for the body, which was finally hung on a tree. It did not remain there long, however, for a furious mob of anarchists tore it down, cut it into pieces, and for more than a quarter of an hour played football with the general's head in the presence of the great leader's friends, who had to stand by, vainly trying to persuade the Bolsheviki to have more respect for the dead body.

Parts of the general's clothing were regained, and each friend was given a piece. Basile Trachtemberg, who tells the above story, had his piece of the general's clothing with him when he was seen in Paris recently.

Red-headed Heroes.

"Ginger for pluck" is an old saying which would seem to be confirmed in the bestowal of military decorations for bravery, according to London Answers. "It was in the ruined square of demolished Ypres last Christmas Eve," writes a British officer, "that I was first impressed by the large number of red-haired men who were receiving the military medal.

"Since that afternoon I have noted the complexion of every officer and man wearing a military decoration, and the impression made at Ypres has been strengthened in consequence. There must be something in the old saying, for wherever soldiers are gathered together there is a red-haired, freckled man in the midst of them.

"Take our most famous fighting division— the invincible Fifty-first. This is composed almost entirely of Highland troops, and the Highlanders are nearly all full-blooded blondes. Of course, there are dark-haired heroes in plenty, but nevertheless red hair and pluck would seem to be synonymous. Red hair is common among our most daring airmen, and although I cannot say how many holders of the Victoria Cross sport ruddy locks, I am prepared to wager that they form a large percentage.

"Scientists say that red hair is caused by a large proportion of iron in the system, and certainly 'carrots and freckles' have been worn by men of iron while doing the work of men in the devil's own war."

New York.

New York was made by and for New Yorkers, and those that love it deserve no better fate than to live in it.

That babel of self-assured greatness is a terrible place to me. Carlyle called London a wen on nature's face; but what would he have said of New York, with its fervent money worship, its "society" folk with their inane and perpetual discussion of stocks, its thousands of other idle gamblers in drawing-room and den, its thousands of lackeys in and out of livery, its other thousands of make believes who would have you think they were somebody, and while buying $10 dinners, are letting their washerwomen go unpaid; its blinded slaves of trade in their whirling strife, so complex, multifaced, confused!

And then its "dandiacal body" in their exclusive clothes, exclusive hats, ties and shoes who belong to exclusive sets, wholly exclusive of brains! And then its millions of half-clothed, half-starved "people of the abyss," living in dark, effluviated hells instead of homes, suffering the cold, un-Christian contempt of their "betters!"—Bailey Millard.

Fighting Yellow Fever.

A celebrated Japanese physican and scientists now pursuing his studies in Ecuador is said to have isolated the bacillus which causes yellow fever, and has prepared an antitoxin conferring immunity on those exposed to the disease. The discovery is being tested on Ecuadoran troops in the fever-ridden interior. The conquest of yellow fever is one of the important achievements. In the canal zone the first steps were taken; the fever was banished by sanitation. But proper sanitation is an extensive process, and is impracticable in sparsely settled regions, so the new discovery will in all probability wipe out the dread disease entirely.

GEN. FUKUSHIMA.

Famous Japanese Military Leader Is Dead.

Gen. Baron Yasumasa Fukushima died in Tokio on Feb. 19th, as the result of an attack of apoplexy.

Gen. Fukushima, who was regarded as one of the ablest [illegible] men who had ever been at the head of the military affairs of Japan, was born at Matsumoto in 1853, in the Shinano Province, his family being very poor Samurai. He began life for himself as a drummer boy in a regiment of his prince's clan, having learned to drum in a modernized military school established by the Shogun. To qualify himself for a post in the newly organized Judicial Department of the re-established Central Government of the Emperor, young Fukushima studied modern languages assiduously. He was employed in that department only one year, 1874, as the next year he was transferred to the General Staff office. While a clerk there he added a special proficiency in geography to his other attainments. In 1876 he was despatched to the United States for inspection of military affairs, and in 1887 became Military Attache to the Japanese Legation in Berlin.

In the Chino-Japanese war Fukushima was chief of staff of the 5th Divison, and then of the First Army under Gen. Yamagata. During the Boxer trouble in 1900 he gained international fame as commander of the Japanese contingent and staff officer of the allied troops in Pekin. In the Russo-Japanese war Fukushima was on the staff of the Manchurian army under Marshal Prince Oyama. At the conclusion of this war he was made a vice chief of the General Staff, occupying this post until 1912, when he was appointed Governor-General of Kwangtung. He was promoted to a full generalship in 1914, and later was placed on the reserve list. Gen. Fukushima was created a baron in 1906, in recognition of his meritorious service to the state during the Russo-Japanese war.

Gen. Fukushima in 1892-93 made a perilous ride across Siberia. Accompanied only by an orderly, he made a trip on horseback across Siberia from Moscow to Vladivostok, traversing the almost untrodden wilderness when very little was then known about the region. During the trip the then Major Fukushima succeeded in climbing the highest peak of the Altain Mountains, in Mongolia. Arriving at the summit, he addressed the mountain as follows:

"I, Yasumasa Fukushima, major of the Imperial Japanese army, now stand on your summit. Lo and behold, I have now conquered you, and stand even higher than you."

It was as a result of this trip that Fukushima, then virtually unknown, became famous. Songs eulogising his exploit were composed by Japanese musicians, and were long used in barracks and schools. The Emperor promoted him to the rank of colonel before he reached home. Gen. Fukushima spoke English, French, German, Russian, and Chinese with equal facility.

My Lady Nicotine.

It is becoming more usual nowadays to see women smoke in public places. They will push back their chairs, take a jeweled case from their vanity bags, light up and puff away with rather a I'm-a-little-devil air. They grasp their cigarettes somewhat timidly with four fingers and blow the smoke out quickly lest it choke them. They are pioneers in a way. It is the old mountaineer women with their pipes who are continuing a custom, as this story from the "Memoirs of Louis XVI" by the Due de Saint Simon shows:

"One evening, after the king had gone to bed, and while Monseigneur was playing in the salon, the Duchess de Chartres and Madame la Duchess (who were bound together by their mutual aversion to the Princess Conti), sat down to a supper in the chamber of the first named. Monseigneur, upon retiring late to his own room, found them smoking with pipes, which they had sent for from the Swiss Guards! Knowing what would happen if the smell were discovered, he made them leave off, but the smoke had betrayed them. The king next day severely scolded them, at which the Princess de Corti triumphed."

To-day, the frown of royalty, has terrors for few, but fortunately public opinion, though it tolerates, does not encourage the woman smoker.

Restore the Oldest Canal.

The oldest canal in the world, dating back nearly 2,500 years, and also the longest canal, measuring in the main section nearly one thousand miles, is that extending from Hanchow, south of Shanghai, China, to Peking. Most of this canal has been filled with mud by overflows of the Yellow River, but the southern portion of it still constitutes a very busy waterway.

The canal is now to be rebuilt and improved. The project is too vast to be done at a single operation, and the funds are not at hand. At present, about $6,000,000 are available and this sum will be used for the improvement of a section about a hundred miles in length, leaving to a later date, when funds can be accumulated, the reconstruction of other sections. The work is to be [illegible] by American engineers.

Ink Stains.

To remove black ink stains, the article should be washed immediately in several waters and then in milk, letting it soak in the milk for several hours; the stain will disappear. Washing the article immediately in vinegar and water, and then in soap and water, will remove all ordinary ink stains.

Biblical "Prophets."

The numerous "prophets" of the Bible were not persons who foretold the future, but in the original the word means story writer. It will be found by a short examination that this is true.

War Fallacies Exploded

SOME of the accepted stories of the happenings of the momentous days just prior to the war are shattered in a book based on official documents and personal notes of diplomats and officials recently issued.

The book characterizes as a fallacy the belief that the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand at Serajevo was a "stage managed affair," but it is asserted from knowledge gained from official documents that if the assassination had not occurred the war certainly would have been started very soon.

The famous Potsdam conference of July 5, 1914, according to the book, was not what has been generally accepted. The meeting took place, but it was not a formal conference as has been declared repeatedly. It is asserted that many persons who were supposed to have been there were not present. Emperor William and members of the German imperial staff were present, however, and at this conference Germany definitely decided for war.

The book was written by Prof. Charles W. C. Oman, president of the Royal Historical Society and a professor of history at Oxford University. A. J. Balfour, the British Foreign Secretary, and Earl Curzon, Government leader in the House of Lords, are understood to have taken an active interest in its compilation.

One of the "damning revelations," as Prof. Oman calls them, is his statement that from a close study of Munich newspapers he has established that the ultimatum from the Vienna Government to the Serbian Government was deliberately timed when President Poincare and Premier Viviani of France were at sea after their departure from Petrograd, in order to make it difficulty for the Entente to reach an understanding. Prof. Oman gives what he calls a complete analysis of these revelations.

A series of hitherto unpublished communications between Sir Edward Grey, British Foreign Secretary in 1914, and Prince Lichnowsky, German Ambassador in London at the outbreak of the war, goes to prove, Prof. Oman says, that the British Foreign Office believed that Lichnowsky was absolutely honest. The book says:

"They emphasize the personal anxiety of Lichnowsky and show that he was actually and literally betrayed by his Government—in other words that he was the unwilling tool of the Kaiser."

On July 29, 1914, Prince Lichnowsky wrote privately as follows to Sir Edward Grey:

"I begin to hope that it once more has been possible owing to Anglo-German collaboration to save the peace of Europe."

On July 30, Sir W. E. Goschen, British Ambassador in Berlin, wrote to Sir Edward Grey, saying:

"The Chancellor told me last night that he was pressing the button with a view to forming a moderating influence on Vienna."

Information contained in the book showed that the opposite was taking place and that Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg was using everything possible to get the German war machine going.

The book refers to a journalistic mystery—the publication by the Westminster Gazette on August 1, 1914, of a despatch dated in Berlin, giving the text of a purported telegram addressed on July 25 by Von Bethmann-Hollweg to the German Ambassador in Vienna, saying:

"We must refuse to be drawn into a world conflagration through Austria-Hungary not respecting our advice."

Prof. Oman says that the newspaper never revealed the source of the despatch and it was never included in the German White Book or in any official publication, yet the document was dragged out two and one-half years later by Chancellor Michaelis and cited as proof that Germany was holding back until Russia mobilised, which mobilization Germany gives as the cause of the war.

Regarding the so-called Russian mobilization, Sir George Buchanan, the British Ambassador in Petrograd, in a secret document, says:

"The military authorities without the knowledge of the Czar did make secret preparations for a general mobilization, though, on being questioned by the Emperor, Gen. Soukhomlinoff, the Russian Minister of War, denied this."

It is shown, however, that this did not alter the general situation. It is also shown that when the Russian military chiefs ignored the midnight wavering of the Emperor and his order to suspend the mobilization they were justified, because a few hours later it became clear that Germany was bent on war.

It is shown that Baron von Schoen, German Ambassador to France, had in his possession a demand which would make it impossible for France to remain neutral—a demand for the surrender of the fortresses of Toul and Verdun. It is stated that Baron von Schoen actually had a German official demand to this effect in his pocket on one visit to the French Foreign Office.

One chapter of the book is devoted to an illustration of former Emperor William's personal treachery and his elastic memory, enabling him conveniently to forget unpleasant things. Other chapters point out the clumsy German attempt to lay the blame for the war on France.

The British Foreign Office sanctions the publication of the book at this time, hoping to clear up some obscure points and aiming to influence public opinion favorably during the Peace Conference.

Where the Red Is Flags.

The actual defenders of the red flag do not know or have forgotten that red was formerly the color of the church militant, and also of royalty until the epoch when Henry VI, king of England, took the title of king of France. Then red came to be considered as an inimical color in France and was replaced by white, which in its turn was given up by the English. The red flag was displayed by the Catholic troops of Charles IX and Henry III while the flags of the Protestants were white.

Appreciated Cats.

When Mulai Hafid, sultan of Morocco, succeeded to the sultanate he found the sacred city of Fez infested by rats. Without any loss of time he at once nationalized all the cats of Morocco and issued a command that many thousands of them should be brought into Fez for service. For some time a law has existed in Hongkong making it compulsory to keep cats in every house, the number varying according to the size of the house.

Western Samoa.

German Samoa or Western Samoa, as it is called since September, 1914, when British occupation took place, comprises the islands of Savaii and Opolu with the town of Apia as the head of the political and commercial life. The islands are the remains of a semisubmerged volcanic range, heavily clothed with tropical verdure which to a great extent prohibits agriculture or farming; hence the principal industries are the planting of cocoanuts, cacao and rubber.

Editor's Joke.

A budding author sent a humorous paragraph to the editor of a daily paper. Not finding it printed within a reasonable time or hearing from the editorial department, he wrote to inquire about it. "I sent you a joke about ten days ago. I have heard nothing respecting its safe receipt and should be glad to hear whether you have seen it." The editor's reply was as follows: "Your joke arrived safely, but up to the present we have not seen it."

The Lightest Wood.

The lightest wood is the wood of ambach, a leguminous plant that grows near Lake Chad and on the tributaries of the upper Nile. The tree, which is sometimes called the pith tree, often attains a diameter of six inches in the two or three years of its life. At that age it dies and another shoot starts from its roots. When cut the wood is almost white and is soft and brittle, like the pith of elder.

French Academy.

The French Academy is the senate of five academies constituting the Institute of France, having been founded in 1635. It is composed of forty members elected for life, and known as the "Forty Immortals." They rank as the leading Frenchmen of their time in literature. Their judgment and decisions in all disputed literary matters are final.

Value of Poverty.

"You started in life as a poor man." "Yes," replied Cash Down Stax. And there was some advantage in the fact. I didn't have to take time away from my regular business to figure on my taxes."

Old Bumpus was puzzled. Women were queer, there was no doubt of it.

"Oh, dear, I wish we had a big, lovely house!"

"What for?" said old Bumpus, just to humor her.

"I'd like to give a party," she answered.

"Have you such a crowd of friends it would give you pleasure to invite?"

"Y-yes. But such a lot it would be heavenly not to invite!" said his wife.

Clemenceau Seeks Rest From Affairs of State On Stormy Ocean's Shore

HOW does Premier Clemenceau spend his spare moments? How does he gain rest and relaxation from work? The question is answered in characteristic fashion in a recent number of L'Illustration, from which the following is taken:

To rest upon one's laurels is an essentially conventional expression. Yet fame and rest never have effected a lasting combination. The more famous a man becomes the poorer his chance of enjoying even a moment's relief.

The Premier has just passed through such an experience. He could impose an armistice upon Germany, but he could not sign it without having the reporters and photographers turned loose upon him. Thinking that after so mighty an effort and so exciting a game he had earned a few days' vacation for solitude and recuperation, the conquering "Tiger," at one bound, put 500 kilometres between the sympathetic inquisitiveness of Paris and his quiet retreat. Foolish precaution! His trail was at once picked up, and as soon as he reached the quiet home of his friend, M. Michel Philipon, at Tranche-sur-Mer, he was promptly surrounded by a crowd of bold companions armed with fountain pens, camera plates, and flashlights, who forced him, for the first time in his life, to cry "kamerad" and beg for mercy.

Such is the price of fame. History must be served. It will not permit a famous man to conceal the slightest detail of his life. It is interested in the recreation of M. Clemenceau quite as much as in his work. How does the man who made war contrive to have "peace in his own home"? How does he occupy his leisure time? Does he play golf, like Mr. Balfour? Does he get his fun out of setting traps for the wily inhabitants of the deep, like M. Aristide Briand? Tell me how you spend your free moments. The psychologists have never been very successful in drawing wise conclusions from that.

But in the case of M. Clemenceau they would not be wasting their time. Our ferocious fighter maintains, even in his moments of relaxation, a perfectly consistent attitude. The peace-loving statesman soothes his nerves by hitting the golf ball with the little iron-headed "club"; M. Briand, when weary with oratorical victories, seeks in his favorite sport the joys of a silent strategy. Both find rest in laying aside their natural habits of intellectual activity.

Georges Clemenceau, on the contrary, seeks in his leisure the very thing that lures him to work — the strife, the struggle, the victory over opposition. It is his great delight to walk upon the beach at Vendee exposed to the stinging lash of wind and surf. Having no more men to conquer, it amuses him to rise triumphant over the elements. The sight of the tossing waves, the waves that beat and break, that curl and crash—does it not remind him of the great waves of men which hurled themselves in vain upon our land? That mighty beating comes from the everlasting war which the floods wage upon crag and cliff. That never-ceasing roar—it is the roar of the multitude which the great popular leader has so often dominated by the authority of a mere word or by some distinguished achievement. Thus in bending his body to the gale and the spray he supplies us with the symbol of his career, of his whole life.

A grateful nation has taken this venerable image and set it up as the very figurehead of the great French ship of state. It was that strong face, eyes aflame and brows bristling, that breasted the waves whenever our ship was buffeted by contrary winds, upon a sea of blood. It is that figure which fixes itself in our thoughts as we gaze upon the aged man braving the blasts with a strength that knows no breaking.

Is there not in this silent pastime of the old fighter a most powerful and eloquent appeal?

Honduras.

With a population estimated at 600,000 and an area approximately equal to that of Pennsylvania, Honduras has abundant room for development. It has a tropical climate with few of the usual disadvantages. The interior is mountainous and salubrious, with considerable rich land suitable for diversified farming and fruit growing, while all of the remainder, even the deep mountain slopes, is used for pasturage.

OFFICIAL HUN VIEW OF PEACE

Von Bernstorff Speaks for the German People.

ARE NOT WILLING TO PAY

Statement Is Quite Evidently an Attempt to Curry Favor With the Representatives of the United States — "Fourteen Points" Are Interpreted to Suit the Ambitions and Aims of the Teutons.

COUNT VON BERNSTORFF has given the Associated Press a statement written by him after a consultation with Foreign Minister Brockdorff-Rantzen and other high officials of the German Foreign Office. In view of the fact that Count von Bernstorff is one of the men entrusted with the working out of the details for Germany's participation in the Peace Conference, the statement may be regarded as official. It was written in English as follows:

"The question what would Germany consider a peace of right and justice may briefly be answered in this way:

"That we would regard as such a settlement by which the terms of peace laid down in President Wilson's address to Congress, Jan. 8, 1918, and the principles of settlement in his subsequent addresses, are carried out in true accordance with the high-minded and far-seeing spirit in which they were conceived.

"Among the fourteen points the dominating note, in our opinion, is to be attributed to point No. 14, providing for the constitution of a League of Nations which, as Mr. Wilson said on Sept. 27, 'must be a part, and in a sense the most essential part, of the peace settlement itself.'

"Because of the great success of the recently founded German League of Nations Society, German leading men clearly recognize that nothing but an international league of free and equal peoples can do away with imperialism and bring forth a new world of order. The German people feel that, given such a league and compulsory arbitration, peace negotiations would offer no particular difficulties, while without its constitution in the peace settlement, justice will be well nigh impossible.

"With regard to the first, second and third points in Mr. Wilson's program we are in perfect accord with him. In connection with point No. 4, it may be mentioned that Germany is about to abolish obligatory military service, which thus far has been considered the corner-stone of her exposed position in Europe. As for point No. 5, we welcome: 'Free open-minded and absolutely impartial adjustment of all colonial claims,' proposed by Mr. Wilson and accepted by the Entente Governments and we are looking forward to a discussion of these claims in the Peace Conference, in the spirit outlined by the American President.

"Regarding point No. 6, we are completely disinterested concerning all questions relative to Russia except insofar as they concern our own frontier. Naturally, however, we do not desire a spread of Bolshevism over Germany and other countries.

"As for point No. 7, we are prepared to pay for all damage done to the Belgian civil population and their property as far as will be proven to have been perpetrated by 'German aggression.' The same applies to point No. 8, relative to damage done civilians and their property in Northern France. As for Alsace-Lorraine, we could not consider it 'righting a wrong' if through the peace settlement a new wrong should be permitted. That, however, would be the case if Germans were compelled to become French against their will. Likewise it must be emphasized in connection with point No. 9 that justice would forbid forcing Germans to become Italian subjects without their free consent.

"Point No. 10, treating on the question subsequently enlarged by the American Government, in the sense that the Slav nationalities of the former dual monarchy must be granted, not only autonomy, but absolute self-determination. Justice will demand that the same privilege be accorded to Austria-Germans. In the same manner, we consider points 11 and 12 merely the demand of justice that various peoples of the Balkan peninsula and the Ottoman empire should be given their rights without distinction and the freest opportunity for self-determination.

"As regards point 13, justice compels us to consent that present German territories 'inhabited by indisputably Polish populations' should form a part of new Poland, but justice likewise compels us not to tolerate that territories be placed under foreign sovereignty which are inhabited by indisputably German population. Moreover, we would consider it a wrong of the gravest character, if, to satisfy Polish ambitions, East Prussia should be cut off from the rest of the empire.

"Concerning all territorial changes to be considered by the Peace Conference we rely on point 2 of Mr. Wilson's address at Mount Vernon in which he emphasized the fact that settlement of all such questions must be made upon a basis of free acceptance of settlement by the peoples immediately concerned. Indeed a peace of right and justice presupposes that, under guarantee of the League of Nations, the principle of national self-determination will be made superior to all territorial questions.

"As to the question of guilt for the war, the German Government has proposed that this question should be submitted to a neutral commission. This seems to be the only solution. The German people, in the vast majority, do not feel guilty, although, they do not deny that mistakes were made."

Why Delay?

"Take this medicine," said the young doctor. "If it doesn't cure you, come back in a few days and I shall give you something that will." The patient pocketed the dope reluctantly. In a few moments he returned. "If you don't mind, doc, I'll take some of that that will cure me right away."

Retribution.

When the man who invented the slide trombone grew old and crippled and could not get away, retribution hounded him in the form of a neighbor who practiced on one of the blamed things every night. An evil deed is always repaid with an evil deed.

Baker's Dozen.

Years ago when a heavy penalty was inflicted for short weight, it was customary for bakers to give a surplus number of loaves, called "inbread," to avoid risk of fine. The thirteenth was known as the "vantage loaf," it is said.

Drawing the Line.

"The fresh young man who always wants to 'start something,'" remarked the Observer of Events and Things, "draws the line when it comes to the morning fire in the stove."—Yonkers Statesman.

THAT ALASKA RAILROAD

Alaska is not to have a government railroad after all; at least not for many years. The railroad contractors who it was persistently rumored were to be given the job of building the proposed government line from Seward to Fairbanks announce officially that they are not to undertake the work.

A few weeks ago every resident Alaskan from Seward to the Yukon river was thrilled with delight at the published report that the government's patience was exhausted by four years of futile effort of the Alaskan engineering commission and that at last competent and experienced railroad builders would supplant the commission.

Anchorage is 120 miles from Seward. A railroad has been built over seventy-one miles of this distance by the Alaska Northern Railway company. This was turned over to the government's Alaskan engineering commission in the spring of 1915.

This piece of road was in bad condition then, but it is now in worse physical condition at many places, and altogether impassable beyond forty-five miles from Seward. Until four or five weeks ago the commission endeavored to operate a train once a week to Mile 45, where dog sleds pick up the mail and way freight. Passengers walk. The trip was accomplished in from fifteen to forty-eight hours; the delays being caused by constant derailments due to the wretched condition of the track. Only two trains have managed to get over the line in the last four weeks.

The Alaskan engineering commission and its youthful corps of engineers, although of impeccable social and political connections at home, have but little esteem for the rude people of Alaska. The latter, unfamiliar with polite terms, call the work of the Alaskan engineering commission a farce and a fizzle.

Disinterested engineers attribute the frequent derailments to faulty construction of the roadbed, irregular alignment of rails, the use of slippery glacier silt for ballast and improper construction of curves. One instance at least is shown where a youthful engineer elevated the inside rail on a sharp curve fourteen inches above the outer rail. Fortunately it was only a work train that was derailed and nobody was killed.

Football in U. S.

Soccer football, the great British sport, which was introduced into America by English and Scotch immigrants to Canada, is now rapidly gaining in popularity in Uncle Sam's country. Columbia, Yale, Harvard, Cornell, Pennsylvania and other colleges have taken to it enthusiastically.

Soon after soccer attained some popularity in Canada it spread to the United States by way of Detroit, which was the first city on the southern side of the international boundary to have a soccer team. Buffalo took up the game a little later, and soccer teams soon made their appearance in various cities of New York, New England, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. About 30 years ago the Pennsylvania League, the first international soccer circuit, was organized, and Detroit annexed the championship in 1893. In the meantime soccer had made its way southward from British Columbia to the Pacific states, and about twenty years ago it reached the middle west, with clubs and leagues in Chicago and St. Louis. In 1905 American interest in the game was further enhanced by the visit of two crack British aggregators, the Pilgrims and Corinthians, who toured Canada and the States. The visitors found the American soccer clubs comparatively easy, but the Pilgrims came over again, a couple of years later, they were beaten by the Fall River, Mass., team, and had to play their hardest to win in other cities. Soccer is now played all over the United States, and many adherents of the pastime believe that it will eventually supplant the more brutal and less speedy American intercollegiate style of football.

Sporting Gossip

Gene Paulette, one of the most promising young first basemen in the National league has signed his contract with the St. Louis Cardinals and apparently is delighted with the deposition of Jack Hendricks, as he says: "Well, I am glad to hear we have a regular manager for the season of 1919—watch me go."

C. Ray Morgan is not related to J. Pierpoint Morgan, but he had the money getting habit. Ray was bought by the Phillies for the waiver price from Washington and was sent two contracts, each of which he sent back with a note demanding a higher salary.

Arthur Nehf has concluded that playing baseball for the Braves will be pleasanted than toiling in a factory at Dayton, O. He retired a month or so ago, but when satisfactory terms were sent to him he whistled another tune.

Predictions are being made in New York now that Christy Mathewson will succeed John McGraw as manager of the Giants in another year or two. Matty and Hal Chase will have to patch up their differences before this takes places or there will be an explosion on the club.

Waivers have been asked on Ed Konetchy, the Braves' first baseman. As all clubs are said to have waived he is destined to go back to the minors.

U. T. S. ARE JUNIOR O.H.A. CHAMPIONS

TORONTO TEAM OVERCOMES FOUR-GOAL LEAD AND WINS ROUND.

Toronto, March 17.—Showing a brand of hockey that few teams are capable of, University of Toronto Schools won the junior O.H.A. championship Saturday before a packed house at the Arena, when they tied Woodstock's four-goal margin in the second period and then scored the only goal of the final twenty minutes in O.H.A. hockey this season. This gave them a 7 to 2 win, or an 8 to 7 victory on the round. This remarkable win over a team that had been heralded as "sure champions," had the fans bubling over with enthusiasm, and the consensus of opinion was that the contest was the most Titanic struggle seen at the Arena this winter.

Woodstock, with a lead of four goals from the first game, was extremely confident. In fact it might be said that they were over confident. However, the championship was lost to Woodstock in the first period, when U.T.S. swept them off their feet and scored the only three goals of the period. Woodstock were plainly demoralized in this period and at times acted as if in a trance and on the play they were lucky that the locals did not score as many more as they did. The second session was more evenly contested, with U.T.S. getting three and the visitors two. This odd goal enabled the Bloor Street boys to tie it up on the round, and it was a case of tweny minutes from the championship for both teams entering the last period. This session was the most stubbornly contested one of the game, with the hopes of the supporters being raised once on scores only to have the whistle blow for offsides or kicks. Finally, with the minutes to play, Aggett beat Dunlop with a clean shot from outside the defence, thus giving the locals the goal needed to win the championship. The visitors tried hard to pull out the game, and three times failed in scrimmages to but the disc into the net.

Line-up:

U.T.S.—Goal, Sullivan; defence, Munro and Rowell; centre, Aggett; right wing, Jeffrey; left wing, Greey Subs.—Gunn and Kearns.

Woodstock—Goal, Dunlop; defence King and Shay; centre, Johnston; right wing, F. Carson; left wing, W. Carson. Subs.—Trump and Debrule Officials—R. Hewitson and W Tackaberry, Toronto.

Woodstock Players Victims of Sharks

The hockey gamblers were responsible for one of the most contemptible tricks ever pulled off anywhere when on Saturday afternoon between 4.30 and 7.30 they got into the Woodstock dressing room at the Arena and covered a small and separate part of the players' uniforms with cow itch and cayenne pepper. Happily Coach Breen of the Woodstock team discovered the outrage just before the game and secured new ones for his players, but the mean act unnerved the Woodstock players and they went on the ice the first period badly demoralized and not knowing where trouble might break out afresh.

Knowing that somebody had been in the dressing-room the edges of the skates were gone over carefully to see if they had been tampered with, but they were found to be O. K. until Bill Carson was forced to retire in the first period with a broken skate. During the intermission another look was taken and it was found that the skates of King and the two Carson boys had been loosened where they are soldered together. The skates of the other two though failed to become dislodged, but Bill Carson was forced to play the last two periods with another pair which Coach Breen used.

Made Early Use of Coal.

Though wood and turf formed the fuel of our early ancestors, investigations have proved that the Britons, even prior to the Roman occupation, made use of coal. But as it was possible to utilize only such coal as lay at or near the surface, the practice did not make headway for many centuries.

TO-DAY'S STORY

The story is told of some pickaninnies who went to pick blackberries, and a great bear rose up in the bushes. They ran home and told Uncle Ephraim. He didn't believe their story, but just to show them that he wasn't "skeered of any beast," he got his gun and shuffled along on his rheumatic legs after them. Sure enough, when they approached the bushes again a huge bear rose on its haunches with a ferocious growl. The children fled, forgetting Uncle Ephraim and everything else but "safety first." When they got home they told their mammie the story, and then suddenly remembered Uncle Ephraim.

"Oh, mammie!" they cried in horror, "de bear sure cotch Uncle Ephraim 'cause he got rheumathum an' cant' run. Get the men to go find the pieces."

"You chillun go 'long; dey ain't no pieces o' Uncle Ephraim; he done come 'rastlin' home fifteen minutes ago."

TUITION IS FREE FOR BLIND HEROES

EXPLANATION BY DR. CREELMAN—NOTHING PAID FOR THEIR BOARD.

Guelph, March 17.—Asked regarding the charges made to the G.W.V.A. in Toronto that blind soldiers at the Ontario Agricultural College were forced to pay $1 a day for board and quarters, while civilians students were only required to pay $4 a week, and also that seven blind soldiers were quartered in one room, while civilian students slept two to a room. Dr. G. C. Creelman, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, made the following statement:

"Misrepresentation has apparently been made to the Great War Veterans of Toronto regarding the treatment of blind soldiers at the agricultural college. I have merely this to say: They have been charged exactly the same amount for board and lodging as have other short-course students. Our four-year men pay a smaller rate and supply their own bedding, towels, pillows, soap, and so forth. When the blind soldiers entered we bought new beds, new bedding and new furnishings throughout. They preferred rooming together, so we selected one of our large class-rooms and placed them all together in single beds. We further gave these boys a special janitor to look after them.

"We understood they were getting $85 each from the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment, their full pensions, and $25 towards their board from Pearson Hall, Toronto. So far they have not paid one cent of board, although they have been here since January 1st, and it has been arranged that the $25 board in Pearson Hall should now be sent direct to the bursar, and the men should pay the difference, namely from $3 to $5 a month for room and board. These men are not charged any tuition, notwithstanding the fact that some of our staff have to devote nearly all of their time towards helping them to prepare themselves for their life work. This has all been done cheerfully and we know that the men appreciate it.

"If it were coming directly out of these soldiers' pockets, I would advise that they get their board, tuition, lodging and assistance for nothing. As special arrangements were made in Toronto for the payment of their board, practically without any expense to the soldiers themselves, I see no reason why this institution should be asked to make any further concession."

CONDITIONS IN NEW GERMANY

REGENERATION RETAINS BROTHELS AND ABOLISHES RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION.

Weimar, March 17.—Some of the delegates of the Right and Centre in the course of the National Assembly debate on the interpellation regarding the attempt by various States to prevent religious instruction in schools, sharply criticized this and demanded Government action to prevent a recurrence.

The Clerical delegate Mumm, said: "The Revolutionary Government at Hamburg has retained the brothels and abolished religious instruction. . . . In Brunswick the People's Commissioners assembled 1,500 school children in the Cathedral for anti-Christian exercises."

Heilmann, Majority Socialist explaining his party's attitude, said: "The Church like all social institutions, is subject to steady changes and will eventually disappear."

Herr Bell, Colonial Minister, answering the interpellation for the Government, said that the Government was not yet able to interfere in such matters as against the various States. The subject, he added, would finally be adjusted in the constitution.

MR. W. T. C. BOYD PASSES AWAY

HIGHLY RESPECTED AND ESTEEMED CITIZEN—REEVE OF BOBCAYGEON FOR YEARS

William Thornton Cust Boyd passed away at five o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of his sister, Mr. Alfred J. Blecher, 504 Downie street, aged 59 years, after a protracted illness.

The late Mr. Boyd was the last surviving son of the late Mossom Boyd, of Bobcaygeon, the founder of the Mossom Boyd Lumber Company of that place, and a brother of the late Mossom M. Boyd. He was born in Bobcaygeon and was connected with the business there for years. Five years ago his health began to fail, and about a year ago he came to Peterborough to be under the care of a physician in this city.

Deceased was educated at Trinity College School, Port Hope, and Upper Canada College, Toronto. Aside from holding the position of Reeve of Bobcaygeon for some years, the late Mr Boyd took practically no part in public affairs.

He was a prominent curler and a member of the Bobcaygeon team that won the Ontario tankard some years ago.

He is survived by his wife, who was previous to her marriage Miss Meta Bridgeman, daughter of the late Dr. Bridgeman, of Toronto, and by three daughters, Mrs. C. E. Dowling Toronto; Miss Gladys, city, and Miss Aileen, of St. Hilda's College, Toronto.

Three sons of the late Mr. Boyd predeceased him, Pte. Thornton Boyd of the Princess Pats, who was killed in action in France in June of 1916; Lieut. Herbert Boyd, of the King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry, who passed away in Peterborough in February of 1918, as a result of gas and shell shock received while on active service at the front, and Eric, who was drowned at Pigeon Lake in October, 1917.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock to St. John's Church, where service will be conducted by Rev. Canon Davidson and Rev. Mr. Mind, of Bobcaygeon, thence to Little Lake Cemetery.

FAKED SUICIDE AND ALMOST DIED

TIED TO SCARE HER HUSBAND—WOMAN FOUND UNCONSCIOUS.

Chicago, March 17.—Mrs. Mabel Mills, South Millard avenue, thought she would "throw a scare" into her husband, Wm. A. Mills, owner of the California theatre, at West 26th St and South Trumbull avenue, according to the police, by "faking" a suicide. If it hadn't been for a passing telephone collector it probably would have been a tragedy.

Robert Carahera, 153 North Lamor avenue, the collector, went to the house to make a collection. Entering, he smelled gas. Florence, the twelve year old daughter, told him they had none except in the kitchen. He left, but she called him back. He notified the police, and three officers responded. They found Mrs. Mills unconscious. Near by was an unsigned note which read:

"Will—Destroy this and make it appear as an accident for the childrens' and my mother's sake. May God forgive you."

THE SHAMROCK.

(Mrs. A. P. Calder.)

Once, so the ancient legend rung,
When this old world was fair and young,
In the first dawn of time,
Ere yet the Serpent ventured in,
Or withering taint of deadly sin
Dimmed Eden's sunny clime,

There flourished in those beauteous bowers,
Fed by soft dews and balmy showers,
Entwined fair flowers, between,
Emblem of the blest Trinity
Of truth and spotless purity,
The three-leafed Shamrock green.

Tended with care and tenderest love
By angels from the realms above,
In a sequestered dell,
Until, by subtle hate betrayed,
Weak man the Tempter's voice obeyed,
And ruin on him fell.

Thither swift angels winged their flight,
Plucked the loved Shamrock from the blight,
And sped to Erin's Isle;
Setting it in that sacred sod,
Where foot unhallowed ne'er had trod
'Neath skies that cloudless smile.

No evil influence might share
With it the pure, pellucid air,
Nor venomed reptile come,
For Ireland's circling shores around
Honor and piety abound,
And virtue makes her home.

Where'er the three-leafed Shamrock springs,
In toiler's lot or courts of kings,
A mystic charm is there,
A solace sweet for cares and fears,
For sadness, sickness, sorrow and tears,
Which prince and peasant share.

So on St. Patrick's natal day
We wear a modest little spray of Shamrock to unfold
That fancy still fond mystery weaves
Around the fragile emerald leaves,
As in the days of old.

TAX RATE STILL 31 MILLS ON $, SAME AS LAST YEAR

City Fathers Meet in Committee of the Whole—$200 Inserted in Estimates to Cover Fire Chief's Expenses in Connection With Attending Convention at Calgary.

At a meeting of the City Council in committee of the whole last night the estimates for 1919 to be presented to the council were thoroughly considered and finally drafted. The rate remains at 31 mills, the same as last year.

A communication from Mr. A. E Dixon in regard to the property upon Charlotte street which the Council are seeking to purchase was read and referred to the Legal Committee for consideration.

Will Go to Calgary.

Chairman Morrison of the Fire, Water and Light Committee enquired as to whether the chief of police was going to attend the police chiefs' convention in Calgary.

Mayor Duncan replied in the affirmative whereupon Alderman Morrison claimed that it was an opportune time to re-open the question of Fire Chief Grange's trip to Calgary to attend the convention of fire chiefs He reminded the members of the committee that this matter had been left in abeyance upon the understanding that should Chief Thompson go to the convention, it would be considered.

Alderman Taylor thought that an increase of $7,000 in the estimates for 1919 for the Fire Department was quite sufficient without adding anything more to it.

One member of the committee expressed the opinion that if the chief of police came under the jurisdiction of that Board, he would not be taking his annual trip this year.

Alderman Edgar favored the proposed visit of Chief Grange to the Calgary convention upon the grounds that he was a comparatively young man and that as time went on and the city kept growing, the fire protection system in Peterborough would have to be increased substantially [illegible] established and it was in the interests of the citizens that the fire chief should obtain all information and experience possible in order that he would be able to measure up to the increasing demands of his position.

Alderman Morrison submitted a motion providing for the insertion in the estimates of $200 to cover the fire chief's expenses in connection with the trip. Alderman Edgar was the seconder and the motion carried upon a sharp division, in which the vote of the chairman, Mayor Duncan was required.

Would Raise Salary.

When the salary of the assistant assessor was discussed Alderman Gainey declared that $750 per year was not enough for a returned soldier with a wife and children to support. He thought it should be at least $900 and submitted a motion to increase it to that figure.

Alderman Turner was not in favor of this move and referred to the fact that the man himself was quite satisfied with the remuneration offered and that if it did not suit him he was at liberty to take a position which promised higher pay. There were plenty of them to be had.

Alderman Phelan thought the assessor's department was costing too much as it was and would not hear of adding to the expence of it this year.

Alderman Edgar reminded Alderman Gainey that the salary increased automatically each year. A seconder for the motion was not forthcoming so it was dropped.

Tax Collection Changed.

A change was made in the method of collecting the taxes by which a saving of $1,800 will be realized. Alderman Edgar proposed that the discount of 2 per cent. which has been allowed on the last installment to those who paid all of their taxes upon August 1st be discontinued and that they be paid in two installments from this time forward the date of the first payment remaining as August 1st, but that for the second being changed to Nov. 1st. Aldermen Edgar and Taylor submitted a resolution giving effect to this change which was carried.

Raise For Treasurer.

Alderman Turner suggested that the salary of City Treasurer Adams which was $1550.00, be increased by $150. He thought that at a time when so many of the civic employes had been given increases the efficient treasurer should not be forgotten. Alderman Edgar seconded the motion which was carried.

Double the Grant.

A letter had been received from the executive of the Peterborough Agricultural Exhibition urging the Council to refer back the proposal of a grant to this organization to the committee for further consideration as it was felt that $1,000 was not sufficient when the importance of the work carried on by the Association, from the standpoint of the city was taken into consideration.

Alderman Turner spoke in favor of increasing this grant to $2,000 Peterborough obtained invaluable advertising as a result of the activities of the Agricultural Association and he felt that the money spent would bring results.

Upon a motion being tabled by Alderman Turner providing for an increase of $1,000 for the grant to the Agricultural Exhibition, Alderman Taylor acted as seconder and it was carried.

IN REGARD TO GRAND TRUNK AND GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

D. Reid, Minister of Railways. The matter came up when consideration of the bill for further issue of Grand Trunk debenture stock was called for by Mr. Morphy, member for north Perth. Dr. Reid said he had no objection to committee passing a bill, but it would not reach the Commons till after the government had stated its general policy.

After House discussion it was decided that as the Grand Trunk might shortly be taken over by the Government it was useless to pass a bill to permit the company to do its own financing.

Canadians In The Far East Blamed

STORM OF PROTEST OVER ARREST OF VLADIVOSTOCK OFFICIALS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vladivostok, March 18.—(By W. E Playfair, Canadian Press Correspondent).—There has been a storm of protest in local papers over the arrest of some Vladivostok officials at the request of the Omsk Government, following the reported holding of Bolsheviki conventions in Khabarovsk and here.

The Canadians are wrongfully blamed by several journals for policing the town at night of arrest. As a matter of fact the Canadians were only preforming their usual guard duty and the feeling of antagonism reacting against the British here is unjustified. The Canadian Red Cross is sendin another train load of supplies and disinfectants to the Omsk district for Russian refugees.

Colonel Morrissy, who is returning to Vladivostok with the Canadian vanguard, has been in Omsk since December.

Seventeen Dead In Riots in Egypt

TROUPLE DUE TO A NATIONAL AGITATION—ORDER HAS BEEN RESTORED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, March 18—In recent rioting at Cairo, Eygpt, believed to be due to a Nationalist agitation six persons were killed and thirty others wounded. At Tanta on the Nile, 75 miles above Alexandria, where rioting also occurred, casualties were eleven killed and fifty one wounded.

The message, which was filed on March 13, stated that order had been restored and that troops were able to cope with the situation.

CREEK OVERFLOWS FLOODS WEST END

PEOPLE HAD TO BE CARRIED TO THEIR HOMES BY FIREMEN LAST NIGHT

Peterboro [illegible] experienced what was in all probability the worst flood in a decade last night when the Little Lake Creek and the big grain crossing Mc[illegible] at the intersection of Downie became swollen as a result of the recent heavy rains and the melting snow and backed the water up flooding practically the whole district lying north of Hunter and west of Aylmer streets.

Mayor Duncan, Chairman Phelan of the Board of Works and City Engineer Parsons and members of the City Council were keeping an anxious eye upon the behaviour of the creek all day yesterday. It was not until night, however, that the water began to rise to an alarming extent and to turn the entire district into one huge pond.

Calls for aid came in to the Mayor at the meeting of the Committee last night and he requested the Fire Chief to get as many of his men as possible to the scene of the trouble and do all in their power to help the people who were suffering as a result of the flood. He also asked the police to go to the submerged district and render what assistance they could.

Hamilton's foundry and machine shops presented the appearance of a mill pond about ten o'clock last night. The cellars of the people residing in the vicinity were full of water to the floors and the firemen wading about with their long rubber boots were forced to rescue one family residing on Rubidge street who were found in their home with the water flowing over the floors to a depth of two feet. They carried the father, mother and two children to safety on McDonnel street.

In many instances the fire fighters under the direction of Chief Grange who did splendid work all through the night and were hard at work until three o'clock this morning when the water began to recede, were forced to carry the occupants of houses on McDonnel street, who had been spending the evening down town, into their homes as the water was rushing over the roadway between Donegal and Downie streets to a depth of two feet.

In the home of Mrs. Batton, 351 McDonnel street, which is situated close to the drain which had overflowed, the water completely filled the cellar and rose through the floor of the house. Sand bags and boards were placed in the door way to keep it from rushing into the front part of the building.

At ten o'clock the water was rushing over the Grand Trunk railway bridge opposite the William Hamilton Company's plant and was piling big blocks of ice over the rails. The entire district was submerged and it was not until three o'clock that the water began to recede as a result of the efforts of the men who had been dynamiting the ice which had been piling up and blocking the passage of the water.

Chief Thompson was one of the first at the scene of the trouble and about nine o'clock he telephoned the Mayor who was at a meeting of the committee of the council and informed him of the dangerous state of affairs which had developed in the past hour.

Floods occurred in the vicinity of C. G. E. last night as a result of the Edison drain being unable to carry off the great volume of water which had collected. Cellars were flooded near the corner of King and William streets and even the community of Mount St. Joseph situated upon high ground suffered as a result of the freshet.

This has been a most unusual season owing to the heavy rains which have accompanied the breaking up of the ice and the melting of snow and for this reason it is somewhat difficult to fix the blame for last night's occurrence or to suggest a remedy. It is stated, however, that the drain has been blocked at a point north of McDonnell street where a barn is built across it which acts as a dam against which the ice piles up in the spring until a tremendous pressure of water is backed up and then the obstructing ice is forced aside and the flood descends all at once and is beyond the capacity of the drain and as a result the district surrounding the point at which it empties into the creek is submerged.

This morning except in the low places there is little evidence of last night's trouble. Along the Lakefield railroad line the water is lying in the ditches and has flooded the cellars in the vicinity of Edinburgh street crossing; cellars on McDonnel treet are still full of water and the roadway shows signs of the effects of the flood which rushed across it through the night. There remains two feet of water in the foundry of the William Hamilton Company but be machine shops have been emptied.

It is expected that now the climax has been passed there will be no repitition of last night's catastrophe although the creek and the drain are still taxed to capacity to carry off the great volume of water from the territory which they drain.

The need for a proper storm drainage system in this neighborhood is a crying one, as surface water from the Monaghan Road during a heavy rain or freshet can find no ready means of escape other than into the citizen's premises.

ANNUAL GRANT TO MAYOR NOW INCREASED TO $1000

City Council a Unit in Voting the Raise—Will not Materially Affect the Estimates—His Worship Makes a Graceful Acknowledgment to the Aldermen.

As a result of action taken at the meeting of the City Council in committee of the whole last night the annual grant to the mayor was increased from $600 to $1,000, in the estimates which will be presented to the Council at its next meeting with a recommendation for their adoption.

Alderman Phelan made the suggestion when the item as appearing in the estimates was considered. He stated that in view of the fact that the chief of police was going on a long trip to the chiefs' convention and that the fire chief was to go to Calgary and that the city treasurer and several other of the civic officials had received increases in their salaries surely the chief magistrate of Peterborough deserved a large grant.

A the members present were in accord with the proposal and at first it was decided that the increase should be $200 but Alderman Gainey thought that it should be $400 so that the mayor would receive $1,000 per annum, which he felt was none too much in view of the fact that he served the city faithfully at the sacrifice of his time.

Alderman Turner thought that His Worship would not be overpaid if the grant called for $1,000.

Alderman Garside expressed himself as favorable to the proposed increase.

Alderman Taylor thought that the change could be made without affecting the estimates materially and as Alderman Phelan and Alderman Morrison were quite agreeable the motion which they had submitted was changed to read: that the grant to the mayor of the city be increased to $1,000 per year, dating from January 1st, and that a bylaw giving effect to this change be prepared and submitted to the Council.

Mayor Duncan had retired during the discussion upon this question and Alderman Taylor occupied the chair in his absence. Upon his return to the committee room His Worship was acquainted with the result of the action taken by the committee.

In thanking the members, Mayor Duncan stated that he would continue to do his utmost to discharge the duties of his position with a view to the best interests of the city. The action taken showed an appreciation of his services which was very welcomed and encouraging.

ST. MARY'S CATHEDRAL, WINNEPEG IS PARTLY DESTROYED BY FIRE

ALD. MORRISON RAISES QUESTION

WILL EAST CITY FIRE PROTECTION BE MENACED WHILE NEW BRIDGE BUILDING?

Alderman Morrison, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, raised an interesting point in connection with his department last night at the meeting of the City Council in committee when he suggested that the building of the new bridge at Hunter street might prove a slight temporary menace to the fire protection enjoyed in Ashburnham. While the bridge was being constructed it would be impossible to take the apparatus across the river at Hunter street which was the most central point of entrance.

Other members thought that the big motor could get across at Smith street in short order and that when the time came if deemed advisable the arrangements could be made to meet such a contingency.

DANGER IN PEACE

IT SEEMS TO BE generally conceded that the German Ebert Government must accept the terms imposed by the Allies, but what is uncertain is can that government bind those terms on anyone in Germany or enforce compliance with them.

While Germany may richly deserve the internal punishment in the way of retribution and revolt she has suffered and is experiencing, still it is not in the interests of the Allies that she should fall into the condition of Russia. As in Russia, says the Westminster Gazette, so in Germany, supplying food is their sole way of influencing the internal situation. But every day's delay makes the problem more difficult. There is food enough for immediate necessities and ships enough to carry it to the porth, but internal transport grows more difficult with the spread of strikes and disorder. In such a situation it is useless to make nice calculations and fix dates ahead as the time when exhaustion will have reached the point when it must be relieved. It is necessary to act at once, to get all food possible to the ports, lest, when it gets there, the means of distributing it may be cut off. We do not suppose that the mere supply of food will end the political conflicts in Germany, but it will prevent them from passing into the Russian savagery, and it will save millions of people from unspeakable misery.

The case against war, the case for the League of Nations, has hitherto been argued mainly in military terms. We have seen the horrors of war and the unlimited possibilities of destruction in modern weapons. But this is only the first part of the lesson, and we are now to see the horrors of the peace that follows a great modern war. War, as the Germans defined it, was merely a continuation of policy, a means by which one Government enforced and carried out a design to which another Government was opposed. The definition requires that a war shall be wound up by an agreement between the fighting Governments, in which one accepts the demands of the other and undertakes to carry them out in peace. But if not only the opposing Government disappears, but the whole nation is smashed and thrown into chaos, there is no guarantee for the continuation of policy but only a vast disorder, which may infect all the world. We were obliged to engage in the struggle with Germany and to come out of it victorious on pain of suffering ourselves what she and her allies are suffering. But there is no "continuation of policy" between the past and the present; there is only a seething world in which all the old landmarks are gone and a legacy of new and immense responsibilities for the victorious nations. Nothing cut cool and humane statesmanship, which puts passion and animosity behind it, and considers the whole problem one of reorganising the broken world, will bring us out of this chaos.

LET THE ANARCHISTS RAVE

BUFFALO SEEMS TO HAVE a Soviet, which is nothing more nor less than Anarchy, pure and simple, arrayed in a new dress. Its leaders are quite modest in their demands, only asking a big full day's pay for four hours' labor, free rent, and other things.

Canada also has a smattering of these Anarchist gentry, whose birthland is overseas, and once in a while their voices are raised in protest that our laws will not permit them to appropriate other men's goods, without compensation and play the dickens generally with law and order throughout this fair land of ours. It is not necessary to deny free speech, a free press, or even liberty of public assemblage to hold these "undesirable" aliens within bounds. Let them trumpet their propaganda all they like, but let the authorities watch for and fittingly punish all those who over-step the mark of what we conceive to be desirable and just social conditions. If allowed to talk these agitators can be watched and hands laid on them at the first sign of an anarchial plot against the peace of any community. If driven into seclusion, and deprived of publicity in any shape or form, plots and revolts may unexpectedly break out and the identity of the leaders remain unknown, thus handicapping all attempts at suppression. Give them enough rope and they will hang themselves, as the old saying goes.

These anarchists, what are they? They are aliens from, to them, uncongenial conditions, who while appreciating the social laws of Canada and the United States, imagine they see in the freedom enjoyed here and heretofore denied them, opportunity of living without labor, of robbing the other man of that which he has earned, of defying the state and all constitutional authority, underlying all of which is the hope that they may seize the balance of power themselves and establish a regime under which the present experience of Russia will be repeated on this side of the Atlantic.

Let Canadians understand exactly what anarchy means and unite to disillusion those scum of Europe who by their Bolshevikt oratory expect to demoralize those democratic laws which have made Canada a great and glorious nation.

VICTORY WITHOUT PEACE

MR FRANK A. VANDERLIP of the United States says the world has been overtaken by a cataclysm having devastating economic as well as social results. And that the Entente have only achieved a victory without peace. This is very true and is due to the mistaken policy of giving the League of Nations project precedence to the peace treaty with Germany. It seems to us that in the Entente itself there existed a strong enough League of Nations to enforce righteous terms on Germany, and that neutrals could have been invited to participate in the international combination for enforcement of a permanent world peace, and consideration of neutrals' claims for international readjustments, after peace was signed and the machinery of world business once more set in motion. Weeks of valuable time have been lost by side-tracking peace issues for the League of Nations scheme; weeks during which Germany has been drifting toward chaotic conditions inviting Bolshevism, and the industrial activities of the world in general paralyzed by uncertainty.

If world-disaster is to be avoided business conditions must be restored, by peace, as quickly as possible, and intercourse with Germany resumed, under proper restrictions, so as to block the march of Russian anarchy into a portion of Europe too dangerously near France and England for us to ignore the peril of a serious spread of Bolshevism into Entente territory.

Let us hope that now President Wilson has returned to Paris the signing of peace will be accelerated, and no fresh delays crop up to endanger the position not only of Germany but of those nations also who have succeeded in crushing her militarism.

LAND SETTLEMENT SCHEME

THE GRAIN GROWERS' GUIDE strongly commends the soldiers' land settlement proposals and thinks if wisely administered they should succeed in placing a large number of returned soldiers upon the land under the most favorable circumstances. The Guide adds:

"Soldiers desiring to locate in each province will be examined by a qualification board as to their fitness for farming. A returned soldier who has previously had good farming experience will have one of the best opportunities ever afforded to a settler going upon the land. This settlement scheme is very generous, and in that very generosity there is a great danger that the soldier may not plan as wisely as farmers have to do in order to make a success of their industry. The farming industry only permits of success, generally through the greatest industry and frugality, and the future will find it harder than ever for the farmer to strike a proper balance at the end of the year. In addition to this generous financial treatment the soldier settlers should be given every assistance in the way of practical advice and information. This is where their farmer neighbors and local grain growers' associations can render the greatest aid to their new neighbors. It is at once a privilege and an obligation to render service to those men who have rendered service to us greater to us than can ever be repaid."

WORKMEN LOSE BY DEAL

IT IS QUESTIONABLE if the men who are walking the streets out of work will commend Sir Adam Beck's policy in importing machinery for the Hydro-Electric Commission from Sweden to save money for the Commission. What a large number of Canadians are looking for these days is employment, and the manufacture of that machinery in Canada would have meant work for some. These days of depression consequent upon uncertainty until peace is actually an accomplished fact, the less contracts awarded to out of Canada firms the better for the nation as a whole. In the case in question the average working man will be unable to look at the deal through Sir Adam's glasses. Of course there's argument for and against any policy; it's the way it appeals to or affects one. Take free trade, for instance, in England. Under it Germany by exporting there cheaper furniture than could be produced in Britain, ruined the cabinet making trade in the Old Land. Idle men saw goods coming into their country, which but for free trade they would be making themselves, and could not see the benefit of a policy which assured cheaper bread and denied them the privilege of earning at their trade the wages with which to purchase that bread. As to the machinery of the Hydro-Electric Commission, there are very few, we think, who would not have preferred it to have been made in Canada at an increased price and given work to a number of men, rather than imported at the saving effected in Sweden at the loss of employment to Canadians at home.

DR. WILSON claims that Americans at the front smoked cigarettes so full of drugs thta they all became drug addicts. He says the Tobacco Trust took advantage of war times and the people's patriotism to force these drugged cigarettes upon the soldiers so that they could not stop using them. Never mind, doctor, tobacco will be prohibitied in the far away future.

* * * * *

AFTER CENTURIES of enmity the French and British propose to "sink" all past and future differences at the bottom of the English channel, in a tunnel connecting the two countries. This tunnel has been frequently discussed during the past decade, but the possibility of war between the two races always doused the scheme with cold water. Thanks to Germany, who forced the unity of two old-time enemies and the establishment of a League of Nations to assure permanent peace, there no longer exists any serious reason why the English channel should not be now tunnelled, and Europe connected by rail with old England.

CHIEF ENGINEER ALMOST GIVES UP

THIUGHT HE WOULD HAVE TO STOP WORKING — TANLAC MAKES HIM WELL AGAIN.

"To my mind Tanlac is the greatest medicine in the world," said O. H. Mahaffey, chief engineer of the Life & Casualty building, Nashville, Tenn.

"For two years," he continued, "I suffered awfully with the worst kind of stomach trouble and went down until I lost forty-eight pounds. My back ached terribly and I suffered so much misery from indigestion that I thought I had an ulcerated stomach and was actually afraid to eat anything but a little oatmeal and sweet milk. I got weaker everh day till finally, as nothing I took did me any good, I thought I would just have to throw up my job.

"My wife read in the papers where a man who had suffered like I was had been helped by taking Tanlac, and she begged me to try it. After I had taken Tanlac a few days I began to get hungry and started in eating like I was starved, and nothing hurt me a bit. Soon those awful pains in my stomach and back were one, I sleep fine at night now and get up in the morning full of life and energy and ready for my work."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowler's Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Liberty for the Jews

The battle for world freedom has been begun by the Jews. Contemporary with the Zionist movement, which seeks to realize the age old dream of the restoration of the nation of Israel, has sprung up the greater vision of securing full recognition of Jewish civil and national rights in all the world, and particularly in the countries of middle Europe.

America's part of the struggle for Jewish liberty heads up in Chicago where the national committee has its headquarters, and where it has secured the aid of some of the city's most prominent social leaders. Among those who have interested themselves in the cause and are leading it their help are Prof. Graham Taylor of Chicago Commons; Dr. Addison W. Moore, professor of philosophy at the University of Chicago; Miss Mary McDowell of the University of Chicago Settlement; Rabbi Joseph Stolz; Dr. Samuel Cohen of Zion temple, and James Mullenbach, arbitrator for Hart, Schaffner & Marx. The secretary is M. Backall, with offices at 735 West 12th street.

An interesting story lies in the latest turn to the upward fight of the Jews. It is their effort for what they choose to call "culture autonomy," or, in other words, freedom and national culture in addition to civil and political rights. Specifically, they seek to have a guaranty in the future that no national majority in any country shall have the right to suppress their language and their cultural aspirations, as was formerly the practice in many European states, and as is still the practice in many of the provinces soon to become independent.

The new movement is centering its attention upon the middle and eastern countries of Europe, because there the bulk of the Jewish people of the world live. In all the territories of the former Russian empire and of Roumania and Poland there are no fewer than from 7,000,000 to 8,000,000 Jews. But in none of them do the Jews form more than a small majority of the population. They are intensely loyal, however, to the countries of their birth, and share in the struggles for them. They are willing and eager to continue their sacrifices, but in return they demand the abolition of all restrictions imposed on them by the forces of the old world, with which the new world is only too familiar.

In Russia and in the Ukraine, in Lithuania and Esthonia, in Poland and Galicia, the Jews have already established numerous schools where the instruction is conducted in their mother tongue, Yiddish, and there they have founded higher institutions for learning, developed a thriving national literature and national art, created a national theater and given rise to an extensive public press.

The method by which the Jews are seeking the guaranty of their "cultural autonomy" is through the league of nations. And the principle on which they are seeking the incorporation into the articles of the covenant of the nations of their demands is the now familiar "self-determination of all nations."

"The covenant of peace among nations," they argue, "must provide for adequate means to insure peace within the nation-states, among the national groups composing the respective states."

With this end in view, mass meetings are now being held in every large American city with a considerable Jewish population, for agitation to include in the constitution of the league of nations an article "to guarantee internationally the political, civil, national and cultural rights of the minority." Supporting the program are 600,000 organized men and women in the United States, both Jews and Gentiles, and multitudes of others who lend their sympathy and approval. W. F. McDERMOTT.

DR. M'NULTY, MEDICAL OFFICER FOR ENNISMORE

Township Council in its Regular Monthly Session---Municipal Telephone Service Under Way.

Council met on March 10th, with all the members present.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed.

Bylaw No. 386, for the purpose of appointing road masters, pound keepers, fence viewers and sheep valuators received its three readings.

Robert Boath, a member of the Municipal Telephone System of the Township of Emily, was present, and asked the Council to give him the right to extend their system into Ennismore on the first concession road, and the first lots on the western boundary of Ennismore, if the parties thereon are willing to sign for the 'phone.

The request was granted, and bylaw No. 387 for that purpose passed.

A Municipal Telephone System is well under way in the Township of Ennismore. A large number of the ratepayers of the township have signed for the 'phone.

Much Gravel.

There is quite an amount of gravel drawn and piled on the sides of the roads this winter. Up to the present, very few gravel accounts have been presented.

No snow shooting has been heard of yet, which will be quite a boom to the statute labor work.

The road masters may be advertised later.

Resolutions.

Moved by Messrs. Sullivan and Harrington, that Henry Redmond be paid the sum of $14.80 for drawing gravel to Edward Corkery's road division. Carried.

U. S. Troops Reported In Raid on the Japs

MINISTER REINSCH AT PEKIN CABLES A MEAGRE REPORT OF INCIDENT.

Washington, March 17—Anti-Japanese demonstrations occurring in Tientsin, China, and Seoul, Korea, were reported to the State Department today. American soldiers are said to have participated in the outbreak in Tientsin, their opponents being Japanese policemen and civilians.

Minister Reinsch at Pekin cabled a meagre report of the Tientsin affair. He had advised the State Department that First Secretary Spencer has been sent from Pekin to make an investigation. Acting Secretary Polk declined to discuss the matter in the absence of a full report.

A press report to the effect that American marines were engaged in the trouble was discredited at the Navy Department for the reason that there are no marines stationed at Tientsin. There is a force of several hundred at Pekin, which is several hours' distant from Tientsin. Navy officials said that it was possible a vessel or vessels might have arrived at Tientsin which have not yet been officially reported and that the marines may have gone ashore from these ships. Unless this be true, the Navy Department believes that if troops took part in the rioting they were soldiers of the 15th Regular Infantry, now stationed at Tientsin. The War Department made no comment on the matter.

Secretary Polk said he was not in a position to deny or affirm the report that Americans in uniform had raided the Japanese Consulate in Tientsin and wounded the Japanese Consul. If this has been done, it was pointed out, it will compel an apology from the United States for violation of the consulate of a friendly power and punishment of those guilty.

The demonstration in Seoul against the Japanese was a protest by Koreans against restrictions on the freedom of speech, the right of petition and the use of the Korean language in the schools. Large numbers of the rioters were arrested.

The trouble originated with the circulation of a document signed by 32 Koreans containing attacks upon the Japanese Government and declaring the independence of Korea. The advices to the State Department say that order has been restored in Seoul. Further advices state that there have been disorders in Northern Korea, where a small loss of life was reported.

GOOD OLD GEORGE

'Tother day old England's king in a public park appeared, and his subjects, in a ring, gazed upon his royal beard; "Good old George-" the people yelled, when their monarch they beheld. And his eyes were misty then, and emotion shook his frame, as he heard the war worn men call him by that loving name; "Good old George!" his people cried, and his bosom swelled with pride. That was finer far than praise by the stately heralds sprung, than the eulogies of jays drilled of gesture and of tongue; finer than the poet's song; "Good old George!" they whooped it strong. Since the long drawn war began, and the world was trampled f first of all a man, and a man sized one at that; so, when he goes kinging by, "Good old George!" his people cry. In the day of stress and dread never shirked he toil or cares; when the people mourned their dead, George's sad heart ached with theirs; now that dreary time's gone by; "Good old George!" the people cry. Could the German kaiser now to his native land return, is there, think you, man or frau, who would not his noblets spurn? Is there one, already, stUl, who would cry out, "Good old Bill?" WALT MASON.

WHERE WILL THE REVENUE COME FROM?

To meet the regular expenses of administration, to pay war service gratuities to demobilized soldiers, to provide pensions for disabled soldiers and for the dependents of those who have lost their lives, as well as to carry out the program of public works which is being undertaken to relieve unemployment, it is estimated that the Dominion Government will require to raise this year a revenue of about

400 MILLION DOLLARS

Last year the Dominion Government revenue was 260 million dollars and was derived from the following sources:

Canadian Customs Tariff	116 millions
Special War Tariff	45 millions
Excise Tax	26 millions
Business Profits Tax	21 millions
Income Tax and other Sources	52 millions
Total	260 millions

How is the shortage of 140 millions to be made up?

At the very moment when Canada is struggling with this problem the Western Grain Growers come forward with insistent demands for:

(1) "An immediate and substantial all-round reduction of the customs tariff."
(2) Free trade with Great Britain inside of five years.
(3) Reciprocity now, and free trade later, with the United States.

These demands are apparently made in the hope and belief that, if they are granted, those making them will be relieved of a large part of what they call the "Burden of Taxation" which the tariff imposes upon them. That expectation can only be realized if the revenue raised by means of the tariff is substantially reduced. They may argue that under a lower tariff the volume of goods imported will increase, and consequently there will be no decrease in the revenue. But mark this—they want the duty removed entirely from implements, lumber, cement, oil and other articles of which they are large consumers. If the revenue is to be maintained under such a rearrangement of the tariff schedules, other classes of the people must pay what the Grain Growers will escape.

Passing to the next point, how would the Grain Growers provide for the probable shortage of 140 million dollars this year? They ask the Dominion Government to impose the following taxes:—A direct tax on unimproved lands, increased taxation on personal incomes, increased inheritance taxes and increased taxation on corporations.

Vacant land now pays taxes to the Municipalities and, in some Provinces, additional taxes to the Provincial Government. Income taxes are now paid by individuals to the Municipalities and also to the Dominion Government. Inheritance taxes are now imposed by all the Provinces, ranging in Ontario, for example, from one to twenty per cent. Corporations are now taxed as persons by Municipal Governments, Provincial Governments and the Dominion Government, and also pay special taxes to every Province for the privilege of being corporations.

Last year the tariff collected sixty-one per cent. of the total Dominion Government Revenue. Does anyone believe that the forms of taxation advocated by the Grain Growers can be increased sufficiently this year to obtain the revenue which would be lost by tariff reduction, and also the additional 140 million dollars required, without crippling industry, stifling business and throwing thousands of workers out of employment?

The United States has all the forms of taxation advocated by the Grain Growers, but still finds it necessary to maintain its customs tariff.

If the Grain Growers are to escape almost all taxation, including the great increase caused by the war, what will happen to the people who will be driven out of business thereby having to pay not only their own taxes but also those of the Grain Growers? Will they try to grow grain? It is more likely that they will go to the United States to get work, as other Canadians went fifty years ago, and leave a population, chiefly farmers, ever growing smaller, to bear all the taxes, ever growing greater.

Again we ask where is the extra revenue coming from?

PETERBOROUGH'S GREATEST STORE

WAR WON TO FREE SOULS OF THE RACE

The monthly executive meeting of the local Council of Women was held at the Y.W.C.A. on Monday evening March 17th. Mrs. Mowat presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Harstone. It was a great pleasure to the local Council to have with them Mrs. Sanford, the president of the National Council of Women, who is just returning from the national executive meeting, which was held in Ottawa last week.

After the usual routine business was disposed of Miss Parker, of the Y. W. C. A., gave a most interesting paper on "Foreign Immigration." The difficulties of educating these foreigners so that they may become good citizens of the Empire where dwelt upon. The discouragement, foreign colonies, compulsory education, the teaching of English only and the publishment of newspapers in their own language have done much toward this seed. The Labor unions too by teaching them to think and to realize that they have a stake in the country. All these influences make them less easily led by the "political" interpreter.

It would be impossible to give, in a short report, an adequate idea of the most inspiring address which it was the privilege of those present to hear from Mrs. Sanford. She referred to the two former occasions on which she had visited Peterborough, the recollection of which filled her with a desire to come in touch with the members of the local Council.

She came to bring a message, a message which she gave in all humility as coming through her from one who is the source of all our strength, and to whom we must go if we would solve the great problems that are before the world today. "Only the peace of God can quiet the unrest of the world."

"This war has not been won only to free the nations but to free our souls," to free them from all sordidness and littleness so that we may be more worthy to welcome back and care for the men who were willing to lay down their lives for us.

Mrs. Lanford also spoke of the isolation, re the establishment of the returned soldiers on the community, towns in Ontario which evacuated from the Peterborough local Council and which was adopted by the National Council. The adoption of this most valuable resolution was largely due to the simple earnestness and heart-felt sympathy for the returned men displayed by the Peterborough delegate, Mrs. Kendry, who spoke to the resolution. A notice was given out reminding the members of the lecture to be given tonight in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute by Mrs Courtice of Toronto, who will speak on Mother's Clubs or Home Circle in the schools.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally If You Eat Meat Regularly

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

THE IRISH DRAMA BY ST. PETER'S DRAMATIC CLUB HUGE SUCCESS

Delighted Audience Witnesses Demonstration of Local Histrionic Talent—Musical Specialties Admirably Rendered.

St. Peter's Dramatic Club presented their yearly attraction, annually given on St. Patrick's Day, in the Grand Opera House last night.

This year the attraction was Joe Murphy's famous Irish comedy drama, "Shaun Rhue," an event which brought out one of the largest crowds gathered this season in the local playhouse.

Promptly at 8.15 p.m. the curtain rose, presenting to view a room in the Irish farm home of the Donavans, with Morris Donavan (Mr. T. J. Dineen) pacing slowly to and fro, lost in deep meditation.

Mr. Donavan's farm is entirely free of debt, but part of his estate is a bog, water from which is undermining the rest of his land. He needs 300 pounds to underdrain the land and save it from becoming a bog such as a small part of the farm is already.

Mr. Donavan's first recourse is to try and borrow from his friend, Patrick Gavanagh (Mr. E. P. Kelly) the necessary sum, although they are great friends, Mr. Kavanagh turns Donavan down.

The two Callaghans, Peter the father, and Bryan, the son, Irishmen who had gone to London, and there through speculation lost everything, know that when Mr. Morris Donavan's brother died, he left an immense sum of money to Morris' two children, Kathleen (Miss Genevieve O'Horn) and Larry (Mr. Geo. F. Lynch). Mr. Peter Callaghan (Mr. James O'Brien) wishes to have his son, Bryan (Mr. Cecil Wolffe), marry Kate, and in this way retrieve their fallen fortunes.

He goes to Mr. Donavan and offers to loan him the necessary 300 pounds if Mr. Donavan will give his daughter, Kate, in marriage to his (Peter's) son, Bryan. The father is willing, but his son, Larry Donavan (Geo. F. Lynch), strongly objects, whereupon his father orders him to leave home. He goes first to his mother's grave to bid her good-bye and "get a handful of earth." While there Tim (Mr. Sharpe. Dan White), finds him and tells him of some remarks which he had overheard in the law office, in which he works. The effect of Tim's report is to make Larry decide to stay in Ireland. The law business is conducted by Mr. Waddy (Mr. Earl Judge).

Kate is in love with Gerald Kavanagh (Mr. Wm. Collins) a young Irish farmer, and they are to be married as soon as he gets his lease.

The Callaghans know about this lease which Gerald is awaiting, so they pay Mr. Waddy 20 pounds to hold the lease for two weeks. Mr. Waddy lays aside the lease and Shaun Rhue, who is Larry Donavan disguised, discovers it while in the office. Shaun had come into the office to meet Mr. Calaghan who wanted a man without any conscience to work for him. He becomes junior partner with Waddy. Later Gerald Kavanagh comes in to get his lease Mr. Waddy withholds it, while Shaun Rhue hands it to him, having taken it from its place of concealment. For a short while there is an exciting scene in Waddy's office, but Shaun prevails.

Bryan knows that Kate does not wish to marry him so he decides to injure Gerald's reputation in some illicit still on Gerald's farm and inform on him. Shaun obtains full information of his own and his sister Kate's wealth, facts unknown before.

He also discovers the plot formed by Bryan Callaghan against Gerald Kavanagh.

Having made the attempts of the Callaghans futile, he succeeds in winning his father's lasting friendship and the hand of the colleen, Dora Kavanagh (Miss Cecil Sherlin) whose brothers' interests he protected.

A Typical Irishman.

Mr. Geo. F. Lynch, as Larry Donavan, afterwards Shaun Rhue, was a typical Irish wit and is a past master of the histronic art. Mr. Lynch left nothing to be desired, and was easily the star of the cast. The unlimited success of this play was largely due to Mr. Lynch, who besides acting on the stage, was the director of the play.

Mr. T. J. Dineen, as Morris Donavan, the poor Irish farmer, was as good a representation as could be found in the amateur ranks.

Miss Genevieve O'Horn, as Kate Donavan, and Miss Cecile Sherlin, as Dora Kavanagh, could not well have been improved upon.

Miss Shevlin did well, but would have been better appreciated if she had spoken a little louder. Miss Shevlin's solos were much appreciated as was shown by the applause she received. During the evening Miss G. O'Hern was presented with a lovely bouquet of flowers and Miss Sherlin with two bouquets.

Each remaining member of the cast was good. Mr. Dan White, as Tim, being deserving of special mention.

The selection of music and songs was ably chosen by the musical directress. During the play specialties were given by Miss Cecile Sherlin, Mr. Wm. Collins, Mr. Geo. Lynch, Mr. Max Murty, besides many renditions of Irish airs by the Opera House Orchestra. Nothing was left undone to make this undertaking a success, and the executive staff must be congratulated on having given one of the finest entertainments provided by any local society this year.

GARDEN ANNUALS

EXPERIMENTAL FARM NOTES

Annual flowers succeed exceptionally well in nearly all parts of Canada. For the "Home Garden," whether it be in the city or the country, the best annuals are the old favorites which have become so popular because they have fitted in with the needs of a large class of flower lovers. The reason for the popularity of the "annual" is that it can be raised from seed easily and grown with but very little expense or labor. A few packages of seed costing five or ten cents each, a garden patch and someone interested in flowers form a combination which in the space of four or five short months may produce the most delightful results.

The old favorite annuals are the best because they have stood the test of time. In addition, they have been improved and increased in size, form and color by the plant hybridist and by the seedsman so that today they have almost reached perfection. In fore one hundred years or less they have made as much advance as most other forms of life have made in several thousand. The "poor man's orchid" is the descriptive term for the modern sweet pea and the term is legitimate because the sweet pea of today is wonderful. It is a new creation as compared with the sweet pea of a century ago. The same is true of many other annuals.

The favorite annuals are those which can be depended upon to give results. The final results will depend upon: 1, Seed; 2, Culture.

1. Seed. Some annuals are difficult to raise from seed and, therefore, the best for the home garden are those which produce seed that will germinate well. The seed of such annuals can be dealt with in two ways: (a) It may be sown in pots or flats in the house and the seedlings transplanted to the garden or (b) it may be sown direct into the garden. Latitude and climate must settle which method is better for the greatest success, although with many annuals either method might give good results.

2. Culture. The culture of an annual flower is not a laborious task or trial of skill. The cultural directions are generally printed on the seed packages. Soil, cultivation and rainfall are three factors of importance. Soil should be of garden loaf quality, and neither too sandy nor too heavy. Barnyard manure will stimulate good growth. Cultivation will keep the growth vigorous and healthy. Rain or artificial watering not less than once a week in the early stages of growth is almost essential.

Annuals are splendid for purposes of cut bloom. Some of the best for this purpose as well as for garden display are as follows: China asters, sweet peas, nasturtiums, sweet sultan, sweet scabious, snapdragons, everlastings, zinnias, pot marigold or calendula.

Other good annuals are:

Low Growing—Pansies, California poppy, mignonette, petunias, portulaca, pinks, drummond phlox, verbenas.

Medium Height—Everlastings, balsams, cosmopsis, larkspurs, gaillardia, clarkia, asiatic stocks, poppies.

Tall Growing—Cosmos, helichrysum, tall nasturtiums, nicotiana, salpiglossis, sunflowers.

SIX THOUSAND BOLSHEVIK ARE DISCOVERED IN NEW YORK CITY

Contents of Little Red Book Lead to Revelation of Plot to Overthrow Government—Prisoners Will Be Deported.

As a result of a raid by the police on headquarters of Bolsheviki in East Fifteenth street, New York, many anarchists in this and other cities of the country probably will be deported. Literature found in the place, has been examined by the authorities and additional evidence revealed of a widespread plot to attempt the overthrow of the government. Statements made on Thursday by three of the prisoners are in possession of the immigration authorities.

Pending decision of the government to determine if the prisoners should be deported, Peter Blanky, Marcus Orodovsky and Arthur Ketres will remain in the tombs. Mollie Stolmer, who has several aliases, is imprisoned on Ellis Island under a warrant charging teaching and advocating criminal anarchy. The warrant was issued last November.

The police yesterday began an investigation of the 6,000 names of persons believed to be dangerous anarchists. The names were found in books taken in the raid. At least six hundred are said to live in the city. "The Little Red Book" of the Soviets in the United States, one of the publications seized is considered by the police to be more important than the prisoners taken. Information of a startling nature is contained in the volume the police say. Many cities already have been notified of some of the contents of the book.

The police say that section 163 of the Penal law, which imposes a penalty of two years in jail, a fine of $2,000, or both, for leasing meeting places knowingly for illegal purposes will be invoked against offending property owners or their agents.

"We look for many deportations on the strength of the literature we obtained in the raid on Wednesday night," Alexander I. Rorke, Assistant District Attorney, said. "The membership lists and other documents found there also have led to activities elsewhere for the arrest of radicals. I was informed that seven arrests were made today outside of New York on information gleaned from the raid.

"Peter Blanky seems to be a leader of the anarchists. In his statement he says he does not believe in organized government. We have been coddling this bunch, patting them on the back. It is time for action. District Attorney Swann insists upon the suppression of advocates of force and violence. Blanky contrasts living conditions on the east side with Riverside Drive and says that there must come a time when the people of the east side will go to that section if the wealthy destroy it."

Partnership Of Labor and Capital

SCHEME FOR PERMANENT SETTLEMENT OF INDUSTRIAL TROUBLES OUTLINED.

In Boston, a programme for cooperation between capital and labor to bring about "a just settlement of industrial strife," was outlined today by Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University at a legislative hearing on a bill for the appointment of a special commission to study the hours of labor in Massachusetts industries. He opposed the bill, chiefly, he said, "because I believe it to be inexpedient, not to say absurd, to attempt to fix by law the same number of hours for all industries without regard to their infinite diversities, or for all establishments in the same industry."

As a final basis for his programme Dr. Eliot proposed:—

"General adoption of a genuine partnership system between the capital and the labor engaged in any given works or plant whereby the returns to capital and labor alike, after the wages are paid, shall vary with the profits of the establishment, the percentage of the profit going to payroll being always much larger than that going to shareholders or owners, and payroll never being called on to make good losses. As a means of securing to employes full knowledge of the partnership in accounts they should always be represented in the directorate.

"The war between capital and labor," said Dr. Eliot, "is getting to a stage which seriously endangers the existing industries and social structures in those nations which have had no experience in the practice of liberty. After the firm establishment of a limited League of Nations with plenty of force at commend, the thing to be desired by the free peoples and by those who are hoping to become free is a just settlement of the industrial strife."

He advocated universal adoption of cooperative management and discipline, increased welfare provisions for employes, abandonment of "the conception that capital is the natural enemy of labor and that unorganized laborers are traitors to their class," and of "the idea that it is desirable for workers of any sort to work as few hours in a day as possible," and "absolute rejection of the notion that leisure rather than steady work should be the main object in life."

A drafting committee to prepare the final report of the commission on responsibility for the war has been appointed.

ANNUAL GRANT

Upon suggestion of Alderman Edgar $25 was placed in the estimates as a grant to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto.

For Bathing Ponds.

Five hundred dollars was not enough for bathing places Alderman Turner assured the committee when this item came up for discussion. He thought it was too bad that the amount could not be held until next year when together with another more liberal grant, it would represent a more respectable sum and could be used with some effect.

Alderman Turner was informed that $500 was the best that could be done in this connection without raising the rate and that it would be impossible to adopt his suggestion and hold the 1919 grant until next year as a basis for a more extensive contribution.

Another Increase.

Fifty dollars was added to the one hundred dollar grant to the Trades and Labor Council in connection with the Labor day celebration, as a result of the representations of Alderman Gainey, who stated that had it not been for the municipal assistance last year there would have been a deficit in the funds of the organization as a result of the big day.

Alderman Edgar suggested that they let the $100 grant stand and should the Trades and Labor Council find that the gate receipts upon Labor day were not sufficient to cover their expenses, they could then apply to the City Council for financial assistance. Alderman Gainey did not view the proposal with favor and as the members were all quite satisfied that the grant should be increased, the motion passed without a dissenting vote.

When the changes decided upon had been incorporated in the estimates Chairman Taylor of the Finance Committee and Alderman Phelan moved that they be recommended to the Council for adoption and that the rate stand at 31 mills. The motion was carried, after which the meeting adjourned, and most of the members went to the scene of the flood on McDonnel street, which had resulted in numerous complaints being made over the telephone while the committee was in session.

STILL NEED FOR WAR SAVINGS

The Canadian Army that went overseas to fight Germany and her Allies is being rapidly demobilized, but the Canadian War Savings Army is not. On the contrary it is being recruited up to the maximum strength. A force of 2,000,000 systematic savers is aimed at. Nothing less will satisfy.

This army must be raised. In providing the money for the work of Repatriation and Reconstruction the people of Canada must do quite as well as did the Canadians overseas, who never failed to reach an objective, or to hold ground once won. Much more money will be required than it is possible to raise readily by taxation. This must be borrowed not from abroad, but from Canadians.

The Canadian War Savings plan with its war savings and thrift stamps is a convenient means for the placing of this money in the hands of the Government, for which it pays 4½ per cent., compounded half-yearly. Those who thus lend help themselves and help Canada.

Join the War Savings army today.

POISON GAS TURNED ON PEOPLE IN BIG CHURCH

Another Atrocity by Kultured Soldiers is Reported----All Vienna Discussing the Latest Outrage

Vienna, March 18.—All Vienna is discussing an outrage committed against the Nuncio Apostolic Monsignor Valfre di Bonzo. The news made a deep impression on the people. As soon as it became known that no serious consequences had followed, there was a stream of persons to the palace of the Nunciate to congratulate the venerable Italian bishop on his fortunate escape.

Monsignor Valfre di Bonzo himself described what had happened. He smiled good naturedly over the danger he had faced with his secretary, a young Italian priest, who accompanied him, in the large church of the Jubilee on the bank of the Danube special services were held Sunday for the feast of San Giovanni de Matha, founder of the order of the Trinitarians. It had been announced that in the morning Cardinal Archbishop Piffl would attend while in the evening the Nuncio Apostolic would pronounce the pontifical benediction.

The morning ceremony was without incident. In the evening at 6 o'clock just before Monsignor Valfre entered the church, the crowd, which was listening to the sermon of the provinvial father of the Trinitarians suddenly noticed a sharp odor, and felt a most painful irritation of the throat and eyes. The preacher was obliged to stop and a large part of the audience rushed for the doors, since the alarm was given that poison gas was entering the church. In fact yellowish spots were discovered on the pavement.

A few minutes later an automobile brought the Nuncio and his secretary. He was informed of what had happened by the priests coming forth to receive him at the door, and by the faithful but the proud old Italian bishop would not be dissuaded from going ahead with his part in the service, although the noxious odors were still pouring out of the church.

His demeanor rallied the faithful. About 200 went back with him. The Nuncio ascended the altar donned the vestments took part in chanting the litany and pronounced the benediction. The ceremony was hurried but it lasted fully twenty minutes. During that time the gas fumes produced a painful irritation in the throats of those present and brought tears to every eye. The Nuncio suffered pains in the eyes, which did not disappear for two days, although they did not produce any serious consequences. At the door of the church he was enthusiastically applauded by the congregation.

It developed that the gas was tear gas of the kind used by the Austrian army at the front. Some persons think it was released by a soldier in the congregation and are inclined to think he had a political purpose. The republican government sent one of its agents to the Nuncio to express its regrets.

Canadian Candy is wholesome

It produces real energy

ALL through the war the highest medical and food authorities were insistent in their recommendations to give the soldiers candy.

In Military Hospitals and Convalescent Homes candy was allowed to seriously wounded patients whose condition called for constant nourishment in a light, nutritious, easily-digested form.

As the war progressed, the demand for candy grew to enormous proportions. Soldiers and sailors alike found by experience that candy produced real energy, while stimulants gave only deceptive temporary strength.

This war experience is supported by scientific opinion, and some misconceptions are set right in the following extract from the Canada Lancet:—

"Candy and Chocolate are nutritious, stimulating foods. There is not the least scientific foundation for the opinion that eating candy is injurious to the teeth. The lack of sugar is much more likely to injure the teeth through impaired nutrition than even its excessive use is liable to do by any digestive troubles which might result from overuse.

"In like manner there is little foundation for the common opinion that the consumption of candy causes digestive troubles."

Candy brings sunshine into the lives of children. Children are fond of candy because their bodies require fuel which candy best produces. Not only eat it yourself, but encourage your children to eat candy in rational quantities. It is good for them.

Candy is a Splendid Food.

FARMERS AND INCOME TAX

INSPECTOR OF TAXATION WRITES THAT EVERY FARMER MUST MAKE A RETURN.

A few days ago an article appeared in this paper in regard to the income tax as it affected farmers which caused a difference of opinion amongst members of the local legal fraternity in regard to the necessity of all farmers filling out the blank forms which are being sent out to them.

To clear up this important question the Review wired the Inspector of Taxation at Kingston stating the case and asking for information concerning it.

Last night the following reply was received from that official which we publish in full below, believing that it will be of interest to the farmers of the district and to others who read the recent article in this paper and the editorial comment dealing with it. The communication which is an absolutely clear estatement seems to settle the doubtful point by intimating that a return is expected of every farmer whether his income is taxable or otherwise:

Official Statement

"The Review, Peterboro, Ont.

"Dear sir—In reply to your telegram of this date I find that it is necessary to have every farmer satisfy me as Inspector for the District as to whether he is liable under the Act or not. therefore, we expect a return from every farmer. For the year 1918 an unmarried man is exempt up to $1000 and a married man is exempt up to $2000, any excess over these amounts is taxable. I do not insist upon a man making out three papers if he does not come under the above amounts but I want one paper made out and filed with me as a reference. This saves the farmer or any other man being sent notices from this office as to his returns. At the conference held recently in Ottawa the opinion among the Inspectors was that every person should make a return.

"Yours faithfully,
"G. A. MacDONALD,
"Inspector of Taxation."

GEO. RUTHERFORD'S BODY RECOVERED

FOUND LAST NIGHT FLOATING IN RIVER NEAR HARE'S BRIDGE

The body of George A. Rutherford who was drowned in the Otonabee river on December 20th was discovered floating in the water last night near Hale's Bridge by Sylvester Dwyer, who with the assistance of his brother at once drew the remains to shore and notified the police department here.

Upon going to Hale's Bridge, Plainclothesman Meagher and Mr. John Comstock removed the body from Hale's Bridge to Comstock's undertaking parlors in this city where it was identified as that of the late George Rutherford, who was drowned near the Locks Bridge while on his way to Peterborough from Downer's Corners, Efforts to recover the body at the time proved useless and it was not until last night that any trace of the body was found. It had evidently floated nine miles since the 20th of December.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock the funeral is being held to Little Lake Cemetery from the family residence, 525 Bolivar street.

The Grand River is in flood, but the ice has gone out without doing any particular damage.

Very Rev. Dean Davis of London is dead after 43 years' service as rector of St. James' Church.

THE WOUNDED BUSHMAN

. . . So I must walk on crutches all my days,
A crippled thing, the lifelong pity of men!
In vain these ribbons on my breast that blaze
If, through the Bush I never ride again.

The trodden camps come mocking me in dreams,
The circling cattle with their clashing horns,
The jangling bells upon the feeding teams,
The magpies singing to the blood-red morns.

These things I loved, My saddle and my spurs,
The bucking colt that none but I could ride:
These were Australia's own; and I am hers,
Broken for her, my far-off golden bride.

Yet, even had I known in those dim years
The bitter price that I was doomed to pay,
I like to think I should have crushed my fears
And gone hot-foot along the Adventurous Way.

—Will H. Ogilvie.

The I. O. D. E. Hold A St. Patrick's Tea

The Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E. held a most delightful tea yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. T. H G. Denne, Park street.

The door was opened by Miss Regatta Lewis, dressed as a little Irish boy, and each person received the smile and thanks of a little Irish maid, Miss Bryl Bates, as they dropped a contribution in her big green hat.

On entering the drawing room the guests were received by the hostess Mrs. Denne, and the regent, Mrs. Allen, and made welcome to "a little bit of auld Ireland." The rooms being decorated profusely with everything green and every where were emblems made famous by song and story of the Emerald Isle.

The excellent entertainment provided by Mrs. Buchanan was greatly appreciated, being quite in harmony with the day. The program consisted of songs by Mrs. M. Parks, Miss Tanghe and Miss Murray; violin solos by Miss Harrington and Miss Logan, a recitation by Miss Parks and an Irish jig given by the Misses Lewis and Bates, which proved quite the hit of the afternoon.

The dining room was under the charge of Mrs. H. Stenson, assisted by Mrs. Coulthard, pouring coffee, while Mrs. F. L. Robinson, Mrs. H Arthur Robinson, Mrs. Adam Hall Mrs. Brewer, Mrs. Whitehouse, Mrs Meredith, Mrs. Stapleton and Mrs Widdens, each looking quite gay in their green and white uniforms, served the guests.

Others helping to make the affair the success it surely was were Mrs R. R. Hall, Mrs. Deare, Mrs King Mrs. Graham, Mrs. Mann, Mrs Seels Miss English and Miss Nan Hall.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

LECTURE ON "ST. PATRICK"

AND MUSICAL PROGRAM AT TRINITY SCHOOL HALL—A TREAT.

In spite of the heavy downpour of rain, Trinity school hall was well filled with a most appreciative audience, who enjoyed to the full the excellent program of Irish songs and the illustrated lecture on St. Patrick.

Mr. Hartshorn gave as the opening number "My Irish Eyes," and responded to a hearty encore with "Mother McCree." Miss Ruby Young sang very pleasingly an Irish lullaby, "Husheen." Mrs. King captured the audience with two popular Irish melodies, "Norah" and "A Little Bit of Heaven." The closing numbers of the musical part of the program were given by Mrs. Maurice Park, who gave a beautiful rendering of Tom Moore's well known poem, "The Last Rose of Summer," and responded to an encore with "The Minstrel Boy," both of which were highly appreciated. The hearty encores given to each of the musical numbers were evidence of the popularity of the vocalists who so kindly assisted with the program.

Lecture on St. Patrick.

The lecture on "St. Patrick and the Early History of Ireland" was given by Rev. F. E. Malott, who has made a careful study of all available material on this subject. He opened his address with "An Irishman's Toast," by Jean Blewett. The present condition of Ireland and Irish affairs called forth a few words of comment. "Ireland," he said, "has given to the world some things without which the world would be poorer. Irish music, Irish wit and great men who have achieved renown in every walk of life." A few samples of typical Irish humor were given. Mr. Malott said his purpose was not to speak of the men who Ireland had given to the world, but of a man who had given Ireland to the world. This man was St. Patrick. He then gave an account of this truly great man, who in the first half of the fifth century did such a work in Ireland that he deserves to be numbered among the apostolic men of the early Christian centuries. The lecturer traced his career from his birth at Bannaventa, in Britain, in 389 A.D., to his death at Saul, near Down Patrick, on the 17th of March, 491 A.D. The story of his capture by Irish pirates at the age of 16, his six years of servitude at Fochlad, in Connaught, his escape and voyage to Gaul in a trading vessel reads like a romance. His visit to and stay at the Monastery of St. Lerin's, his return to his home in Britain, his missionary call, his preparation for his life work in the Monastery at Auxerre, in Gaul, were all graphically described. At 44 years of age Patrick was finally prepared for his great undertaking. In 433 he landed near Wicklow, in Ireland, with a number of fellow workers and all the necessary equipment for missionary work. For 28 years he labored to establish Christianity in Ireland. His work lay chiefly in the northern half of the island, but he seems to have visited the other kingdoms as well. Knowing the peculiar tribal system of Ireland, he sought to win the favor of the kings and nobles, and in time succeeded. The work he did for Ireland was three fold. He did not introduce Christianity into Ireland, but he established and organized the Christian Church there. He carried Christianity into those parts that were still pagan. He gave Ireland to the world by bringing it into recognition and making it formally a part of Christendom. Two writings of St. Patrick remain. His letter to Croticus, a British chieftain, and his "Confessions," to which we are indebted for much information concerning his life.

The lecture was illustrated with lantern slides.

Mr. R. F. Downey ably performed the duties of chairman. Refreshments were served at the close of the program.

BRITISH PLANS FOR AN AIR CODE, IN MAIN, ARE ACCEPTED

International Air Council Will Be Formed as Section of the League of Nations—No Discrimination Against Any Nation by Another—Remove Forts.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, March 19.—In a report submitted today the commission appointed to consider plans for an international air code announced that the British proposals have been, in the main, accepted.

An international council will be formed as a section of the League of Nations to handle all matters relative to aerial navigation. It has been decided that each nation is entitled to sovereignty over the air above it, subject to the granting of permission for passage of foreign aviators.

There is to be no discrimination against any nation by another, air pilots will be licensed on an international basis, and there will be international rules governing the right of way for airplanes and airships.

WAR DEATHS TOTAL 9,000,000

San Francisco, Cal., March 19. — "The cost of the war in money alone was $197,000,000,000, or $11,000,000,000 more than the total property value of all of North America," Secretary of War Newton D. Baker told a gathering at the Commercial Club here.

"The deaths from wounds in battle numbered 7,300,800, and the total deaths in all the armies reached 9,000,000," he said.

Referring to the proposed League of Nations, Secretary Baker said:—"Unless such an organization was formed under some name and under some constitution, anarchy bred by disease, hunger and despair would overwhelm the earth.

"No child born in a civilized nation in the next hundred years will escape paying a considerable portion of the debt this war has brought about."

TROUBLE DUE TO BUNGLERS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Halifax, N.S., March 19.—Lieut.-Col. A. C. Pratt, M.P., for Norfolk County, Ontario, arrived here on the transport Celtic, declared that the recent rioting at Rhyl Camp, in which five men were killed and several wounded was directly attributable to incompetency of Canadian Military authorities in Ottawa, and all Canadian military headquarters in Argyle House, London.

Colonel Pratt places on these authorities the entire blame for the tragedy, and said that Sir Edward Kemp's statement on the matter was a series of excuses for things which should not have been excused.

General Sir Richard Turner, Canadian Commander in England, said Col. Pratt, was a kind, courteous affable man, but he surrounded himself with incompetent bunglers.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, March 19.—The Chamber of Deputies has authorized the removal of special fortifications about Paris that were erected shortly after the war began.

WORKERS NOT RIPE FOR COMMUNISM

GERMAN ELECTIONS FAVORABLE TO PRESENT GOVT.—WARNING ISSUED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Basle, March 19.—The elections to soldiers' councils in Madgeburg, Thuringen and Buhr districts have resulted favorably to the present government, according to the Frankfort Gazette.

The soldiers' and workmen's council for Minden and Bielfeld districts, the newspaper also reports, has declared against the system of councils as a factor in the permanent political system, and has issued a warning against communism, for which it declares the workers are not ripe.

LINK RAILWAYS WITH WATERWAYS

IS WHAT PHILADELPHIA BONISE IS DEMANDING U.S. CONGRESS TO ACT ON.

Philadelphia, March 19.—Declaring that existing transportation facilities are not adequate to meet the nations' traffic needs, the Philadelphia Bourse yesterday inaugurated a campaign to have the next Congress authorize a system of waterway improvements that would permit their co-ordination with the railroads.

The movement launched by the Bourse is one to which much study has been given as a result of conditions brought about by the war. It will be brought to the attention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States for consideration at its annual meeting, to be held in April. "We advocate the improvement only of such waterways as will be utilized," declares a statement issued by the Bourse yesterday. "Appropriations of the public revenues can only be justified upon evidence affording a reasonable assurance that channels so improved will be used for water transportation. We recommend that the Federal Congress enact legislation creating a separate department of transportation, which shall have jurisdiction to supervise and regulate water transportation."

The resolutions that have been adopted by the Bourse for submission to the Chamber of Commerce, to which the above statement will be attached, are as follows:

"Whereas, the utilization of natural resources, the development of industry and the extension of commerce depend upon the availability of adequate transportation and as it is beyond dispute that existing facilities are not adequate to fully meet the traffic needs of the nation; and

"Whereas, the Federal Government has jurisdiction of all navigable waterways in the United States, and it is the duty of the Congress of the United States to provide for the improvement of all navigable waterways upon which commerce may be established;

"Therefore, Resolved, that we recommend and urge upon the Congress of the United States that such a comprehensive system of waterway improvement and water transportation be devised and authorized as will most effectually serve the largest areas of the country."

LINDSAY MAN FINED

Sells Government Aviation Supplies Contrary to Traders' By-Law

An interesting case was heard before Police Magistrate Bradford on St. Patrick's Day, when a Lindsay citizen was found guilty of an infraction of the Transient Trader's By-Law and fined $10 and costs.

The defendant has been conducting a sale of Government aviation supplies and was represented by Barrister Knight, while Town Solicitor Furton appeared for the prosecution.

Owing to the high cost of American flour, the supplies sent by the allies to Berlin will not enable the Government to increase the bread ration.

Most Complete Victory in History

TEXT OF SPEECH MADE BY MAJ.-GEN. LIPSETT TO 3rd DIVISION C. E. F.

Vimy Ridge is one of the glorious battle names in the history of the 4th C.M.R. now coming home. The following is the text of the speech of thanks which Major-General L. J. Lipsett, commanding the 3rd Division C.E.F., made to the battalion on April 13, 1917, at Dumbell Camp.:

Col. Gordon officers, N.C.O.'s and men of the 4th C.M.R. Battalion: General Elmsley gave me kind permission to come and tell you how pleased I am to thank you all for what you have done in the late engagement and which is still going on. It was the most complete victory in the history of the British army. So far, we have taken approximately 12,000 German prisoners 140 guns and several of the enemy's most important positions. The corps and army commanders both came and expressed their great appreciation of the division's work of which the 8th Brigade were very prominent.

In this battle, there must have been nearly a quarter of a million troops engaged.

The history of Vimy Ridge is well known now; it was in 1914, the French made a big attack here and twice in 1915; but only achieved partial success at very heavy cost, therefore the Canadians should feel free, that, their efforts met with such marked success.

These wars are very trying, but it is for us to continue and it is the men who can come on and fight that will win the war. This is what the British and Canadians have shown by the recent battle.

The artillery preparation was splendid, and we expected few casualties. I am sorry to say they were rather heavy but these lives were not wasted, they did not die in vain.

The credit devolves on yourselves, your officers, N.C.O.'s and men alike. The hardships and discomforts of holding the line the monotonous details of preparation.

I appreciate, but it is one satisfaction to know, that we have one of the finest divisions in France and of which the 4th C.M.R. forms no inconsiderable part.

The engagement is still proceeding and there will be more Bosche to handle but I have no doubt as to the way in which you will handle them.

I cannot fully express my thanks to you all for the way in which you carried out the work you had to do, but it makes me feel very proud to be in command of this division.

I thank you all very much.

JAPANESE IS ADMITTED AS CITIZEN OF THE U. S.

Los Angeles, March 19.—Yinkichi Miyamato, a Japanese, was admitted to citizenship yesterday by Judge B. G. Bledsoe, of the United States District Court. Although the law provides that no Asiatic can be naturalized, Judge Bledsoe said: "It also is provided that all who served in the United States military forces during the world war should be given citizenship. Miyamato served. For that reason he is admitted to citizenship."

INVESTIGATE PROFITEERING

Toronto, March 19.—An outspoken attack on war-time profiteering in Canada featured yesterday's debate on the budget in the Legislature, and the fact that the attack was made by a Government member and a returned soldier, Lieut.-Col. W. H Price, made it doubly interesting The contribution of the member for Parkdale was a decidedly frank one throughout. He started off by scoring the authorities at Argyll House, Canadian Headquarters in England, for their responsibility for the Kinmel Park riots and for the apparent attempt made through cable despatches to make the people at home believe that Russian Bolshevists and their propaganda had provoked the riot. Then in discussing the problem of the returned soldier, he sharply condemned the men who had lined their pockets during the war, singling out Sir Joseph Flavelle for special mention.

"If we had started this war with profiteering eliminated," he said "we would have all the money we need to look after returned men.

"It is my intention to move in this House a resolution asking the Dominion Government to find out just where these moneys have gone," he said in referring to the tremendous amounts spent in Canada on war contracts.

Two other members were heard during the afternoon, Dr. A. F. Rykert, of North Wentworth, and Wellington Hay, of North Perth.

At the evening session four speakers were heard: Major Tolmie of Windsor; Tom Hook, of Southwest Toronto; J. W. Widdifield, the U. F. O. member for North Ontario; Alex Ferguson, of South Simcoe; Z. Mageau, of Sturgeon Falls, and H. Morel, of Nippissing.

Praises Orpington Hospital.

Dr. Rykert devoted himself largely to the Government's war record. He laid emphasis upon the splendid work done on behalf of the soldiers in England and France, paying a striking tribute in the Orpington Hospital in Kent. He commended the Principal Secretary for the work of the Soldiers' Aid Commission. Then men had been helped in a practical way that was much appreciated.

Dr. Rykert, in discussing the temperance question, stated that when the Ontario Temperance Act had been put on the statute books there had been a demand for restriction of some kind in order to conserve the resources of the country. Personally he was not in favor of radical restriction, and he could not see any reason why a man who wanted to have a drink of beer should not have it. The whole matter, however, would be placed before the people, and it was for them to decide.

GERMAN STEAMERS SAIL FOR FOOD

SAILORS DEMAND THEY SHALL NOT BE REMOVED FROM BOAT DURING TRIP.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 19.—Eight German steamers, including the Kaiserin, Auguste Victoria, Cleveland, Graf Waldersee and Pretoria, sailed from the port of Hamburg this week for foodstuffs. According to advices from Berlin, it is said the crews of the ships made a formal demand that they should not be removed from the vessels during the trip.

BOAT OWNERS REFUSE 8-HOUR DEMAND OF MEN

Refuse All Further Conference Until That Point is Abandoned by Striking Marine Workers---Union Declares it is the Paramount Question.

New York, March 19.—The eight-hour day demand of the striking marine workers is the stumbling block to termination of the harbor strike, it was declared last night, when Joseph P. Moran, chairman of the New York Boat Exchange, said:

"Until the demand for an eight-hour day by the marine workers is definitely and publicly abandoned, there will be no further conferences with the union."

"The eight hour day is the paramount question, and the men demand it," said Thomas L. Delahaunty, president of the marine workers' affiliation.

Efforts made yesterday by James A. Hughs, Federal Councilliator, to bring the employers and strikers together failed entirely.

The harbor strike enters its third week today and the deadlock between the owners and workers appears to be as complete as at any time since the strike was called.

The union began payment of strike benefits yesterday to the members who are out.

The boatowners, it was learned yesterday, are planning to bring strikebreakers to New York to replace the men who quit their jobs. Details have not been made public, but it is said that 400 men are now on their way to New York from the Great Lakes.

The White Star liner Adriatic, because of the refusal of longshoremen to refill her coal bunkers, will sail from New York for Halifax on Thursday instead of Wednesday and replenish her fuel supply there. From Halifax will proceed to Liverpool.

The longshoremen's refusal to coal the Adriatic arose from the fact that the scows were loaded by non-union men. The longshoremen say that to handle coal brought by non-union men would be a violation of their union rules.

Thomas L. Delahaunty, president of the Marine Workers' Affiliation, led a group of fifty strikers to the headquarters of the Boat Owners Association in the Maritime Exchange Building, where the owners were conferring with captains and pilots. Unbidden, Delhaunty and his followers walked into the meeting and shouted: "I want to serve an ultimatum on you gentlemen. This is an unfair way to deal. If you attempt individual bargaining with the men, we will call at the International Longshoremen's Union."

"We invited our captains here to deal with them, and we want nothing to do with you leaders."

The boat owners, after a short session, moved over to the headquarters of the New York Towboat Exchange where they remained in conference several hours.

REPORTED IN LONDON ALLIES ARE NOW EVACUATING ODESSA

WHAT HUNS MUST PAY.

Statement on This Question Made by Bonar Law.

London, March 19.—Replying to a question asked in the Commons by Claude Lowther, Andrew Bonar Law, Government leader, stated that the committee of inquiry into the financial wealth of Germany, of which William Hughes, Australian premier, was president, was appointed to advise the cabinet. Its report, therefore, was confidential, and publication of it was not proposed.

Mr. Lowther asked for an assurance that a full bill would be presented Germany at the Peace Conference, and if only a small amount could be exacted it would be regarded as payment on account.

Mr. Bonar Law replied that he could give no such assurance. It had never been and was not now the Government's policy to demand more than it believed it could get out of Germany.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 19, 1919

THE HOUSING BILL.

THE HOUSING BILL, passed by the Legislature, in one clause provides for loaning a returned soldier, or the widow or widowed mother of a returned man, the money with which to build a house. But one unfortunate drawback to a good measure is that so many returned soldiers will not have the $200 or more necessary to purchase a lot on which to build his house. The pay of the average soldier certainly does not permit of much saving, if any, and it is to be hoped that the Legislature will be able to adopt some measure of relief for the landless or penniless soldier by which he can qualify to take advantage of the Act now in force.

"MADE IN CANADA" GOODS.

CANADIAN GOODS for Canadians should be the future policy of all men and women within our borders. While there may be some commodities not procurable here, which must be obtained from abroad, still in the past too much foreign product has found a preferential favor with many buyers for the saving of a few cents here and there. And now, with the need for expansion in trade after the enormous expenditures incurred by the war, it is incumbent upon us all—men and women alike—to foster Canadian trade by giving preference to Canadian made commodities, and thus encouraging the development and expansion of our own manufactures.

In this connection the Canadian Trade Commission makes the following timely and patriotic appeal to women:

"The women of Canada, singly and through their organizations, have shown, by whole-hearted support given to national effort in food, how great their collective influence may be in other directions. In every national undertaking during the war, the sympathy, understanding and active co-operation of women were proved to be essential. For the present and the immediate future, there is on women especially the obligation to see that purchases for the homes are made in such a way that the effect will be to stabilize Canadian trade. Wherever possible they should buy only Canadian produce and Canadian products, because this will give employment in additional lines of production to returned soldiers and to those, many thousands in number, who were formerly occupied in war work. In this way they will not only insure employment for our workers, but they will help to lessen the financial pressure which is likely to be increasingly felt."

All should realise that every dollar sent out of the country for commodities which are produced at home must affect adversely Canada's financial situation; and it is computed that for every million dollars retained in Canada by a refusal to buy other than Canadian products, a year's continuous employment can be found for at least one thousand people.

The Canadian Trade Commission is endeavoring to encourage and develop our domestic manufactures, to utilize every resource in the Dominion, and to induce Canadians to, as far as practicable, make at home those things needed for the home. See to it that their efforts are substantially supported by a growing and insistent demand for "Made in Canada" goods.

A SENSIBLE VIEW.

NOW THAT THE ALLIES have abandoned the idea of meeting Russian representatives at Princess Islands, the Council at Paris is yet to be heard from as to any other plan. But for all that, the Russian problem is one that must be dealt with sooner or later, and until it is definitely settled, peace in Europe will be of an uncertain quantity. Besides, says the Chicago Daily News, what of the American and Allied forces now in Russian territory? They cannot be kept there indefinitely, yet it is impossible to withdraw them without assuring the safety of the native population that has been supporting the Allied or American troops.

From every point of view, then, the present lack of interest in the Russian situation strikes one as strange. Mr. Mowrer reports that the Americans in Paris still adhere to the idea of sending an Allied commission into Russia to make a thorough inquiry into the economic and political situation, confer freely with peasants and workmen, as well as with the "intellectuals" or business men who have managed to survive, and submit a report to the Peace Conference.

Certainly the idea is sound and practical. It is, by the way, the only tangible and definite suggestion that emerged from the testimony of Raymond Robins at the hearing before the Overman committee. Mr. Robins was charged with favoring recognition of the bolsheviki, but he stoutly denied this and said emphatically that all he had advised recently was an investigation by a competent commission. Certain controversies regarding Russia are of historical interest only, but the investigation suggestion has reference to the present and the near future. As Mr. Mowrer points out, commissions have been sent to Poland and other "danger spots." Why not a commission to study Russian facts and conditions and recommend a positive policy in lieu of drift and objectless waiting?

THE RATE.

WHILE THE TAX RATE this year is fixed at 31 mills on the dollar, it must not be taken that this represents a saving on the levy for actual municipal expenditure. Last year the ordinary rate was only 31 mills, the same as this year, but to that was added provision for the Patriotic Fund, a war tax, and, as now, garbage collection within a certain area. With a 31-mill rate for the current year, we are only experiencing relief from the war tax and the Patriotic Fund in consequence of the cessation of hostilities in Europe.

GERMAN SITUATION.

ACCORDING TO a correspondent, the German people are absolutely stunned by the climax to all their hopes for world domination. Will-lost dull they found, without grumbling their partially starved and anaemic condition by reason of a firm belief in a coming glorious victory which would make them rulers of Europe, if not of the world, which would compensate them for all their sufferings.

With the coming of the debacle, however, they at once realized that they had been misled by their military chiefs, and that it was up to them to make enormous sacrifices to satisfy the just claims of those whom they had attacked and who had in the end emerged from the war victorious.

The natural consequence of this revelation was that the mass of the people felt that the bottom had dropped out of everything. The "will to win" had been obediently exerted in vain. The object for which they had striven had long since ceased to be a practical possibility. This knowledge produced an intense reaction throughout the nation, which only then awoke to the completeness of its exhaustion. All desire for exertion vanished, work slackened, and a general indifference to fate took its place.

Soon to this was added a dull apprehension as to the terms which the Allies would impose.

The Majority Socialists, with the help of the Independent Socialists, formed a provisional government, which took over the bureaucratic machine and began to arrange elections for the National Assembly. Soldiers' and workmen's councils sprang up everywhere and assumed control of public affairs. The old army officers, having been summarily dismissed by these councils, went into hiding, and sullenly watched the progress of events.

Meanwhile the Spartacists, perceiving the feebleness of the government, saw their opportunity. Calling in the aid of Radek, the Russian Bolshevist leader, who controlled large funds lodged in Berlin by Lenine and Trotsky, nominally for feeding Russian prisoners of war, they instituted an active propaganda on pure Bolshevist lines. The usual specious arguments were used, that the upper and middle classes were mere parasites, that the present law and social conditions had been built up by the capitalists to exploit and oppress the working classes, who alone were the creators of wealth. Therefore, the existing order should be swept away, and a millennium constructed under the auspices of the workmen's and soldiers' councils. This propaganda rapidly spread and gained many adherents, especially among soldiers returning disillusioned from the front, disgusted with the campaign.

Following the example of the Russian Bolshevists, the Spartacists determined to prevent the formation of a National Assembly, and accordingly made a determined effort to oust the government and seize power by armed force. The Marine Division, hitherto believed loyal, was persuaded to transfer its allegiance and to defy the government, which hardly knew what troops it could depend on. On January 6th the Spartacist forces opened a determined attack on the government, making full use of the arms which Eichhorn (the police president) had treacherously made over to them. The officer class, realising that a Spartacist victory would seal their fate forever, decided to assist the Socialist government. They with the aid of some thirteen thousand reliable government troops, have been able to save the government, which, however, seems today to be dominated by that military class against which the people revolted. But uprisings, strikes, bolshevism and riots are still a common occurrence, and should an assured peace be not quickly forthcoming, the whole country may fall into chaotic conditions calling for the occupation of the empire by the Allies.

A strong leader is needed in Germany, under whom, with a reasonable supply of food, a stable government would be forthcoming, and bolshevism, junkerism and other disturbing elements would lose their power for mischief.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

WHILE the unfortunate trouble in the Canadian camp at Rhyll is to be deplored, there have been incidents in other British military camps also regrettable, but we did not happen to hear of them.

* * * * *

THERE SEEMS considerable lack of accord among the Allies as to just what shall be done with the German warships. Why not dismantle and use them as troopships in which to bring Canadians home, for the time being?

* * * * *

IT IS NOW SUGGESTED that German cables be taken by the Allies as spoils of war. What with losing her colonies, Alsace-Lorraine, her navy, a huge amount of railway rolling stock and other things, there is already not much left of the wild boar of Europe but the squeal.

* * * * *

NOW THAT the war tax and the Patriotic Fund are removed from our burden of taxation, would it not be well if some attention were paid to furnishing storm drainage in the west end? Better even another mill on the dollar than an exaggerated mill stream periodically invading citizens' premises.

* * * * *

WE ARE CONSTRAINED to wonder if the Allies were just fighting the Germans alone during the past four years, so little is heard of our other foes. It would be interesting, for a change, to have a little more prominence once in a while given to the conditions to be imposed on Germany's comrades in the great crime against humanity.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

The Better Way.

(Chattanooga News).

The longest boundary between two nations in the world separates the United States and Canada. Not a single fort, gun or soldier defends it. It furnishes a very good object lesson to those who insist that arming to the teeth is the only way to preserve the peace.

The Budget Debate

Toronto, March 18.—The continued budget debate in the Legislature last week witnessed the annual effort by Chas. M. Bowman, chief opposition critic, to puncture Mr. McCarry's surplus. The method of bookkeeping adopted was complete reversal of the policy maintained by the present Government to keep entirely separate ordinary income and expenditure, as distinguished from capital, income and expenditure. It was therefore with some difficulty that Mr. Bowman tried to convince the House that $1,500,000 of war expenditure, offsetting a still larger item of receipts from the war tax, should be transferred to the ordinary account and deducted from the surplus. It must be remembered that from the beginning the Government has consistently held to its proposal to apply all revenue from the war tax to war purposes, which leads to this method of distribution in the financial statement.

The Surplus

However, by this process, Mr Bowman reduced the $1,800,000 surplus to his own satisfaction to $300,000 and then proceeded to further reduce it by tacking on current expenditure $474,146, representing additions to public buildings. This according to his calculations naturally created a deficit and he began to pile that deficit up by treating as current instead of capital expenditure the money spent on Northern Ontario development, amounting to $645,446 and $642,208 on highway improvement.

While briefer in his remarks than usual, Mr. Bowman was unable at any time to get through Mr. McGarry's guard. The Provincial Treasurer was not on the defensive for a moment, but was constantly parrying Mr. Bowman's arguments with the question, "How would you do it," and before long the opposition critic sought refuge behind the discredited method of accounting employed by the old government. The following dialogue is characteristic of the whole discussion. Mr. Bowman directed attention to an expenditure of $3,600,000 for war purposes for the past year. The treasurer had received over $2,000,000 from the war tax, which left a difference of $1,591,406, which had been placed in capital expenditure.

"I contend," said the Liberal critic, "it is not a proper treatment of this amount to transfer it from ordinary expenditure to capital expenditure as has been done in the statement presented to the House, since in former years all this expenditure was dealt with in current account.

"How were the receipts dealt with in 1915 from the war fund?" broke in Mr. McGarry.

"If my memory serves me right they were dealt with as current receipts," replied Mr. Bowman.

"Well, there you are wrong. I carried down capital receipts of $1,800,000 in that year, and therfore this year I carried down capital expenditure of $1,500,000 odd against it," said the Provincial Treasurer.

Once the bookkeeping aspect of the debate was passed over the Liberal members had a field day and discussed their favorite subjects. Mr. Sam Carter (S. Wellington) took another fling at the nickel industry and criticised the Government for not taking more money in taxes from those companies.

Development Policies

Mr. Chas McCrae (Sudbury) who followed made a strong plea for common sense being applied to development policies in Northern Ontario For one thousand dollars made in mining one hundred thousand dollars was lost. It was a hazardous enterprise. For years the nickel companies had struggled against difficulties to refine their product and then had to make their own market. Last year the nickel industry distributed over $20,000,000 in Ontario for wages, supplies, etc., exclusive entirely of taxation. There would be no further investment of capital in Northern Ontario if the Government at every hand went to the mine owner and exacted the last dollar of profit from his operations.

The war of killing was over and this war of commerce had begun. In the latter Canada would have to stand on her own feet. The policy for the Province to pursue was to make it attractive for capital to be invested. To open up great industries to provide employment to secure social and industrial contentment by work at good wages under proper conditions.

He deplored the fact that the great deposits of iron ore in Northern Ontario were lacking development because of the competition with American ores. The Canadian ores were difficult to smelt on account of their peculiar chemical content. It would be worth while for the Dominion or Provincial Government to depart from its usual practice and offer a bounty of 50 cents a ton on all ore mined and smelted in Canada. It would establish the nucleus of a great iron and steel industry that would be an immense asset to the wealth of the country.

The Farmer's Movement

Mr. J. H.T. Regan (S. Wentworth) referred to the recently revived farmers' movement. He ventured the opinion that the farmers would get more out of their organizations by keeping out of politics. Capital and labor and agriculture had to be brought closer together. A gulf separated them now. That was the problem of the future and he advised the Government to invite farmers to accept the more lucrative posts on various commissions that were appointed, and in this way secure the benefit of the best agricultural brains in the country. The Workmen's Compensation Act was a big step in this direction and its benefits were appreciated by the industrial classes.

Fire Losses

The Government is going further in its efforts to reduce the annual fire loss in Ontario. Amendments were suggested to the Fire Marshal's Act by the Attorney General to enable this department to work in closer co-operation with the municipalities. In order to secure the elimination of building and local conditions that increased the fire risk. There was some criticism against the Fire Marshal conducting his own examination of witnesses. Mr. Proudfoot thought this could be better done by the Crown Attorney, but Mr. Lucas argued that the Fire Marshal's knowledge enabled him to get more satisfactory testimony from witnesses.

Consolidated Schools

Legislation is to be introduced facilitating the organization in the rural districts of consolidated schools. These schools will be made up of a group of school sections and will be assisted with ample grants to offset the displacement of the present school premises. More effective work it is claimed can be done where the attendance is large enough to warrant the employment of more highly trained teachers, by this system of linking up smaller schools. The choice of having a consolidated school will be left with the municipalities.

Another piece of legislation that will be welcomed is the bill now before the House to provide for the appointment of a public Trustee. Mr. V. A. Sinclair (S. Oxford.) has urged this matter upon the attention of the government for some years. Such an official will have charge of escheated estates and simply administration as well as lessening law costs.

THINGS ARE CHANGED.

(By Walt Mason.)

Where late the frensied fighters through fields of carnage burst, now able-bodied writers are doing of their words; the gifted lads are pouring out language weird and soaring, where lately guns were roaring and muddy soldiers cursed. Where are the Teutons gory? Where are the dauntless Serbs? They've left the fields of glory to raise string beans and herbs, and writers throng the places where warfare left its traces; and they get down to cases and shoot forth nouns and verbs. No more Bill's mighty legions along the landscape reach; no more in sunny regions the shell and shrapnel screech; the peasant is not yelling while foemen burn his dwelling, but writers bold are shelling the world with parts of speech. No more the Prussians clamor to Gott in their despair, but musty chunks of grammar are whizzing through the air, where Ludy used to hurry, where Hinden used to worry, the shade of Lindley Murray now walks, denied a chair. Oh, hoch and donnerwetter, relieved we all must feel; a war of words is better than is a war of steel; so let the scribes be swarming in ranks for further storming, their bloodless deeds performing where armies used to reel.

ROSES OF FRANCE.

Over the last long sleep of them
Whose wrath was all in vain,
Roses red and white shall blossom
In hollows of the plain.
And little children lovingly,
Children of them that endured unnamable things,
Shall gather with song and glee
Roses of France, above the fallen foe,
And bear them home to them that still remember,
To ease awhile their woe,
No flower but shines, through agony untold,
From out the Eternal Joy.

Even hard cash will melt sooner or later.

Monsieur E. Pollet, Consul-General for Belgium, London, England, makes the following appeal:
"The LIBERATION OF BELGIUM does not solve the problem of the future of the war orphans.
"Some idea can now be formed of the number for whom we shall have to provide. It can be stated that the orphans whose parents were deported and who died in Germany number more than those whose fathers have fallen on the battlefield."

HAT, COLLARETTE AND MUFF

Three-Piece Sets of Fur or Fur and Silk or Velvet Combined Comprise Attractive Outfit.

What could be more fascinating than some one of the three-piece sets—hat, collarette and muff—made of fur or fur and silk or velvet combined? They are of varied shapes and in various color combinations, these jaunty little sets.

One set consists of turban, with just the top of the crown of kolinsky, while the lower part of the turban is swathed with velvet in a charming old blue tone, the velvet terminating in a large loop at the left side toward the back. A large crushed band of the velvet edged at the top with a narrow band of the kolinsky forms the collarette, which also terminates in a large bow at the left side towards the back. The muff is made of the blue velvet and kolinsky. A wide band of the fur forms the center, while the fabric forms the sides, one end of which is drawn through a band of the fur.

Another set consists of a wrap which after being snugly draped about the shoulders crosses in front and is tied in the back with a velvet ribbon. The muff would be simple and round, were it not for the velvet bow that runs through it, with loops of coquettish twist. The hat is oddly shaped and fits the head closely; at the top are loops of the velvet ribbon.

Fashion Notes.

Georgette continues to predominate as the blouse fabric, but as early spring fashions crowd out the new prevailing modes, look for blouses of voile, dimity and net. Blouses in such striking colors as Peking blue and henna are a midseason novelty. Beslakin browns and navy are two other good blouse colors of the moment, the material in all instances being georgette.

Restoring Gilt Frames.

To restore gilt frames take a soft brush and carefully free the frames of every particle of dust, then cover with the following mixture: The white of one egg and one-half ounce of chloride of potassa. Apply with a soft brush. Scientific American says if you desire to cleanse gilft frames without tarnishing them, wash them in beer.

Getting Into a "Scrape."

When a boy or young man gets into a "scrape" he is supposed to have gotten into some kind of devilitry, but the old meaning is somewhat different. A "scrape" is a hole which deer dig in the ground at certain seasons of the year, and the man who fell into one of these holes was usually lucky to get out with a broken bone.

The "Seven Seas."

The phrase "seven seas" is just a general reference to the ocean. A man said to have traveled the "seven seas" is one who has been much on the waters of the globe.

ATTRACTIVE EVENING GOWN

Here is shown a winsome evening gown in two shades of blue chiffon velvet. An especially attractive feature of this garment is the unique sleeves of jet beads.

SASH IS IN THE LIMELIGHT

Accessory Is More Sophisticated and Alluring Than Was Its Predecessor of a Decade Ago.

The sash of 1919 is a more sophisticated and alluring accessory than its predecessor of a decade ago, and it is adjusted to suit the fancy of the wearer or the artistic conception of the designer. Sometimes the bow is directly in the back, big and broad, like the obi of the maid of old Japan. Again the loops will be placed at the right or the left side, a perky, jaunty arrangement of silk or satin, sometimes with one instead of two long ends and fringe edged. Then there is the broad girdle, usually of the material, deftly maneuvered with ends terminating in tassels.

However it is introduced the sash is a distinctive feature of frocks. Even the tailored serge, fashioned severely, with high collar and long, tight sleeves, boasts a sash these days, at least one chic model does, the sash being of the material and terminating in a wide bow at the normal waistline in the back. Another use for the material sash is on the velvet frock, one example being an old rose velvet gown worn by a young girl in one of the new plays. It is a delightfully simple gown, one-piece, medium width skirt and wide girdle and broad bow of the velvet. A narrow band of kolinsky outlines the round neck and edges the modified kimono sleeves.

The sash, on the order of the sweater accessory, of medium width and finished with bells and tassels of silk, is still in vogue and it is particularly adapted to the trim little gown of tricolette or the equally supple wool serim.

Deep Water.

Ordinarily ground water at a depth of from forty to sixty feet is about 50 degrees and is nearly uniform throughout the year. At lesser depths the temperature is likely to be affected by atmospherical and seasonal changes which take place. Deep ground waters are generally progressively warmer, the deeper obtained, the increase being generally one degree for every fifty or sixty feet of depth.

Pill-making Crabs.

These tiny creatures, most of which are about the size of a pea, are in abundance on the shores of the Malay Peninsula. They are usually first noticed on the beaches after the going out of the tide, when they make the beach look covered with loose, powdery sand and holes of various sizes. Upon looking more closely it is seen that little paths converge in the sand to each hole and that the sand itself is in minute balls.

At the approach of an observer there immediately becomes apparent a peculiar twinkle—the simultaneous and rapid retreat of a myriad of the tiny crabs into their holes.

Should the watcher take up his position by one of the holes and remain perfectly motionless, they will in time come out, when he can see them at work.

Coming cautiously to the mouth of the hole the crab will reconnoitre. Satisfied that no enemy is near, it will venture about its own length from its lurking place. Then, rapidly taking up particles of sand in its claws, it deposits them in a groove beneath its thorax.

As it does so a little ball of sand is rapidly projected through its mouth. This one put aside, the process being repeated until the smooth beach is covered with little pellets or pills. This is evidently the crab's method of extracting particles of food from the sand.

Ancient Botany.

The oldest botanical work in the world is sculptured on the walls of a room in the great temple of Karnak at Thebes, in Egypt. It represents foreign plants brought home by an Egyptian sovereign, Thotmes III. on his return from a campaign in Arabia. The sculptures show not only the plant or tree, but the leaves, fruit and seed pods separately, after the fashion of modern botanical Celtic Isle.

The smallest dependency of France is the Ile d'Hoedic, situated at the east of Belle Isle. Its population is 600. The people do not speak French, but Celtic. Fishing is the principal industry, and all the inhabitants are provided with food at an inn managed by the women. The town has no streets. The houses are mostly of mud.

Boring Rubber Corks.

To bore a hole in a rubber cork is a problem to anyone who does not know the trick, but simple enough when that is known. It is to moisten the borer with a little of a fairly strong (say 10 per cent) solution of caustic soda or potash. It will then cut the rubber with little more difficulty than it will cut cork.

Artificial Rubber.

Artificial rubber has been made in an experimental way for many years, but it is now reported that it has become a practical success, and that the great dye and color works at Elberfeld, Germany, are erecting a large factory for the production of synthetic rubber on a large scale, principally intended to supply Germany with this product in future years, when great difficulties are anticipated in obtaining natural rubber, like other raw materials, from the tropics.

LAKEFIELD

(Special Correspondence)

Lakefield, March 18.—At a special meeting of the Village Council the following resolution was unanimously passed and ordered to be forwarded to the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario:

Whereas the rights to the Water Power at Lakefield are claimed by the Dickson Company Limited of Peterborough, under an old lease, alleged renewable every twenty one years in perpetuity.

And whereas, the Department of Railways and Canals of the Federal Government are contemplating the building of a new concrete dam at Lakefield in the very near future to replace the old wooden dam, which has been condemned by their own engineer as bein unsafe and inadequate.

And whereas, by reason of the leakage and other waste of water from the old dam only about 150 horse power are developed at present and the new concrete dam will make possible the development of over 2000 horse power, thereby increasing the value of the water rights at this oint.

And whereas, we believe it to be detrimental to the interest of the the village of Lakefield and vicinity to have this power pass into the bands of the private corporation above named to hold for sale at a greatly enhanced figure, thereby shutting out many industries which otherwise might locate here and use the power.

Therefore, the Municipal Corporation of the Village of Lakefield, by Council thereof, not only strongly recommend, but urge that the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario take immediate steps to expropriate this water power as the cost of development of this power will be very much less if made in conjunction with the building of the new dam.

"Toronto, March 8, 1919

"Dear Sir—Your of the 4th inst enclosing resolution of your council requesting the Commission to take steps to expropriate the Dickson Company's property at Lakefield, came duly to hand.

"I note what you say respecting the advisability of the property being secured for the municipality rather than for a private company and you ask that the Commission take steps to expropriate.

"Under the Power Commission Act before any proceedings of this kind can be entered into, it is necessary that the Commission should first have contracts for the power to be supplied, to make sure that the money invested will be revenue producing, and the Commission's right to expropriate water powers and sites has only been exercised where there are a group of municipalities or customers to contract for and receive the energy.

"Yours truly,

A lecture will be given on the humorous side of the war, by Capt. J. A. Dewitt, in the Methodist church, Warsaw on Monday, March 24, under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society. A program of unusual interest will be given, consisting of solos, quartetts, choruses and duets. Refreshments will be served in the basement of the church at the close of the lecture.

A business meeting of the directors of the Lakefield Agricultural Society was held in the Council Chamber on Monday evening. The date for the local exhibition has been decided for September 23rd and 24th, a week later than previous years. A number of new sections have been added to the prize list.

The Late Wm. J. Bullock

The funeral of the late Wm. J. Bullock whose death occurred at his home at Young's Point on Tuesday took place on Thursday afternoon at one thirty o'clock and was well attended by a large cortege of relatives and friends. Services were held at the residence by Rev. (Major) Frost, followingwhich interment took place in the Lakefield cemetery.

World's Lightest Wood.

The balsa tree, which is now being cultivated in Costa Rica, produces the lightest-known wood in the world. It is in great demand for all purposes where lightness of construction is of importance. It is very porous and a good insulator and is much used in airplane building, as it offers the minimum amount of air resistance.

Teutons Accept Defeat Without Much Dignity

Future Looks Very Dark

"THE moral backbone of the German people is broken," said a correspondent of the London Times who left Berlin at the end of January. "There is no dignity in the way they carry their defeat." Comparing the way in which the Germans take their loss of the war with the way the French acted after 1871, the correspondent continued:

"The Germans seem to have lost all spirit of enterprise. Only the most necessary work is done, and even that is badly done. Nobody seems to care. Nothing is done to transform the factories which had served the purposes of war into factories for peace production. In some of them the workmen are kept and paid, though the works stand still. The workmen pass the day playing cards. But do not think they are satisfied. In one factory where not a stroke of work had been done for months the workmen, or card players, even asked for an increase of pay and a six-hour day. When this was refused they threatened to strike.

"Capitalists do not dare to invest their money in industry, mines or commerce, but try to smuggle it out of the country out of reach of socialization and taxes. Several people whom I did not even know came and offered me large sums if I would smuggle their money and securities into a neutral country.

"When Germans discuss defeat, as they often do even with strangers, they never admit that they were beaten in a military sense. One often hears the expression 'our invincible field grays.' They admit two causes of defeat, the British blockade and British propaganda; these together shook the morale of the people and prepared the revolution. That even a decisive battle was fought between Cambrai and St. Quentin they ignore, as well as the fact that the final blow of Marshal Foch's offensive was to be delivered by Gen. Castelnau in the south about Nov. 15, which, of course, was known by the German negotiators and prompted their decision to accept unconditional surrender.

"It seems to me that only the Socialists in Germany understand that the basis of the armistice was an unconditional capitulation; the others seem to imagine that the armistice was a kind of preliminary peace in which Germany obtained certain guarantees on the basis of Mr. Wilson's fourteen points. Only the Socialists admit that the situation is such that the German Government will have to accept the Allies' peace conditions, however hard they are. But the Democrats still make an attempt to show some national pride, or perhaps keep up the national bluff dear to the old government. They often say that if the peace conditions go one single inch further than Mr. Wilson's points the Germans will have been cheated, and the Government may refuse to sign them.

"The Socialists hate war too sincerely to think of revenge, even if they also would resent a diminuation of German territory and heavy indemnities. But the Conservatives are chauvinists, and preach revenge whatever may happen."

Eddy's Matches Overseas

THERE are certain things "from home" which our soldiers demand. One of them is Matches. Foreign matches may be all right in their slow burning, odorous way, but when a quick, sure light is wanted for pipe or cigarette, it's "me for Eddy's."

Eddy's Matches

are being shipped to the Y.M.C.A. Overseas Headquarters at the rate of 300 ten-gross cases (432,000 boxes) per month

A match is a comfort and convenience which is so commonplace that we do not appreciate it—until we are deprived of it for a while. For sixty-seven years the House of Eddy has been making matches for the Canadian public—more than 70,000,000 matches a day at the present time. And we are proud of the fact that Canadian soldiers overseas still request Eddy's Matches.

When you buy matches you may be assured of satisfaction by seeing that Eddy's name is on the box.

RATEPAYER ASKS A PAUSE AS TO HUNTER ST. BRIDGE

Rate of Taxation is Fast Becoming Intolerable and if More Burdens Are Added this City Will Soon Become Good Place to Leave

To the Editor Daily Review:

Dear Sir,—After a thorough study of the Hunter street bridge question and a careful examination of the plans and specifications of the work as designed by Mr. Barber, your humble servant—as a considerable ratepayer—would respectfully ask our worthy Mayor and alderman to pause long and well before committing this city to the huge expenditure which even the lowest tender for the work must indicate.

I respectfully submit to our worthy Mayor and alderman that the rate of taxation in Peterborough is fast becoming, intolerable and if more burdens such as the cost of this bridge, as now designed, are heaped upon the people they will soon find the city a very good place, to get out of.

I have no pretensions to pose as an authority of bridge design or reinforced concrete construction," but humbly submit that I am not ignorant of the fundamental principles which underlie them. I do not question Mr. Barber's ability or qualifications for this work as I know nothing whatever of them. This class of work requires special training and cannot be done by everybody as a well-known authority or reinforced concrete construction says.

"A multitude of simple rules formulae and tables for designing reinforced concrete work have been proposed, some of which are sufficiently accurate and applicable under certain conditions, but the effect of these various conditions should be thoroughly understood Reinforced concrete should not be designed by 'rule of thumb engineers.' It is hardly too strong a statement to say that a man is criminally careless and negligent when he attempts to design a structure on which the safety of the lives of the people will depend without thoroughly understanding the theory on which any formulae he may use is based.

"The applicability of all formulae is so dependent on the quality of the steel and of the concrete and on many of the details of the design, that a blind application of any formulae is very unsafe." I am fully convinced that a bridge—fully as substantial—or more so, which will serve the city of Peterborough for the present century, can be built for a little more than half what the proposed design will cost.

Without going into detail, the approaches to this bridge can be built a great deal cheaper and just as substantially by using the design, if I can call it such to be seen on hundreds of high level railway crossings through out the country. These approaches would consist of two well battered thoroughly drained, reinforced concrete retaining walls. The space between the walls can be filled in with stone, gravel or clay, which can be had almost on the spot and after this material has well settled can be capped over with concrete and asphalt. The walls can be built so as to leave a roadway twelve or fourteen feet wide between them and the street lines which, after allowing for a safe batter to the walls, would give a clear roadway of from thirty-two to thirty-six feet on the approaches, this, I am quite satisfied will be found amply sufficient to take care of the traffic over this bridge for this century.

As for the bridge proper this can be built a good deal cheaper and more substantial by having two spans instead of one, thus relieving the abutments of some of the immense strain which one span would subject them to. By reducing the number of arches on each side of the river, an immense amount of wholly unnecessary and very expensive frills and ornaments will be eliminated. For instance, under section ninety-eight, page seventeen, oft he specification we find the following: "Surface finish: The vertical surfaces of the long arch over the river and certain vertical surfaces of the handrail and other portions generally shown on the plans as requiring the 'ground' finish shall comply with the following. All surfaces requiring the ground finish shall have at least two inches of approved gray granite chips and grit placed next the forms simultaneously with the concrete backing.

"Immediately after the forms are emoved all uneveness, such as board marks, may be rubbed out, two weeks or more after setting the surface shall be rubbed with tools until smooth and even and in any event for a depth of at least one-eighth of an inch, so that the small stones of the concrete shall be split and polished."

One would imagine after reading the above that this bridge was over the Hudson and that the banks were studded with the mansions of multi-millionaires from the Red Mills to Hospital point. Being fully convinced that a bridge and approaches twenty feet narrower than that proposed free of frills, etc., and costing perhaps a little over half, will take care of the traffic at this point for the present century, I again respectfully ask our worthy Mayor and alderman to "stop, look and listen" before they take the plunge.

Yours truly,
J. W. FITZGERALD.

CHIOGGIA THE CENTRE OF RED CROSS OPERATIONS IN ITALY

Interesting Description of Work of Two Red Cross Members in Pretty Italian Village

Chioggia, one of the centers of Red Cross work in northern Italy is not known in this country, but this country is well represented there by two ardent Red Cross workers who are distributing mercy and sympathy with one hand and bread and soup with the other to the war stricken inhabitants and the refugees.

A very interesting description of what they are doing there as well as a detailed account of the village is given in a recent issue of the Chicago Chapter Bulletin of the American Red Cross.

"Three hours by boat from Venice lies the lagoon's ilea Chioggia, Venice's ugly little sister. Sprawling, unsanitary, crowded, this neglected annex of peerless Venice has somehow taken on importance during the eight long months while the Austrian guns have been booming steadily almost within sight across the water. True, the fishing industry by which most Chioggians lived before the war has all but vanished. Most of the lace workers who wound their long threads daily in the shaded loggia are missing. Yet because of one chance addition or another the town's population has remained stationary, until today it rivals that of shrunken Venice, which is nearer by several miles to the front.

All of which gives two American Red Cross workers enough to do. In that isolated place, out of sight of other Americans and of the sound of their native tongue for weeks at a time and always within reach of the enemy airplanes that menace the lagoon towns, a single American Red Cross lieutenant and one district nurse have carried on alone for many months the battle against war-time poverty and disease.

When the little unit of two arrived six months ago a committee of Chioggia citizens was already feeding several thousand people weekly in the communal soup kitchen. Even then many dependents for whom there was no room and insufficient food went half-nourished, while the chill wind that blows in winter across the flat Chioggia sands found numbers thinly clad. Today an American Red Cross Soup Kitchen serves 860 portions weekly of a soup that is a nourishing meal in itself. Into the mixture go such items as these shipped recently from the American Red Cross warehouse in Venice; 1,760 tins of condensed milk, 680 pounds of Texas beef. Group by group, too, children in tatters and their needy elders are being clothed All needy dependents ar entitled to apply for American aid. Under Lieutenant A. R. Chandler's direction a sewing room turns out week by week enough garments, ranging from layettes to black gaberdine more than a score of impecunious soldiers' wives employed and the ragged fringe of the population clad.

Even more vital than the food and clothing, records are the statistics turned over to the Italian medical authorities by the American Red Cross nurse who investigates every street of Chioggia. All the alleys and the crowded disease breeding courts know her, disinfectants in hand with her penchant for soap and water and other simple preventives of calamity. During the melee of war, Chioggians have had no time for hygienic precautions and the death rate tells the story. Cleanliness is Miss Rose Gandolf's austere gospel and it is true that no one but an Italian could preach and practice it so vigorously as she does and keep the unmitigated affection of the Chioggia humtitude, no mater how often she stood between life and death in humble homes. Miss Gandolf satisfies all requirements, for she was born in Genoa. Through many years' residence in American training schools and hospitals she has kept her knowledge of the Italian language and some of its dialects.

Hot Water for Sick Headaches

Headache of any kind, is caused by auto intoxication—which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons called toxins, sucked into the blood, through the lymph ducts, excites the heart which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head producing violent, throbbing pain and distress, called headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick, feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilide, aspirin or the bromides which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drank before breakfast for a while, will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache but will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary canal.

Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar, and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant.

It you aren't feeling your best, if tongue is coated or you wake up with bad taste, foul breath or have colds indigestion, biliousness, constipation, or sour acid stomach, begin the phosphateed hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.

Results are quick and it is claimed that those who continue to flush out the stomach, liver and bowels every morning never have any headache or know a miserable moment.

Ask to see the KEYSTONE VACUUM CLEANER demonstrated. Easy running hand power and fully guaranteed. Special price $9.95

This Spring A New, Delightful Peacefulness Encourages

A REJUVENATION of WINTER---WEARY HOMES

When Spring comes to the ice-bound countries of the far, frigid North and the thawing of the frozen water-ways permits the coming again of the traders to the ports and villages, the primeval Eskimo takes bright beads and gaudy blankets in exchange for his rich furs and useful oils Thereby, he satisfies his COLOR-HUNGER, which is as natural with him and every other human being, as the hunger for the air or food or water or loving kindness. And it's in the Spring, when the sunbeams are brightest and the skies are bluest and the eyes are keenest to see the drab oppressive sameness of long unvaried sights, that we long to freshen up our surroundings by some change of furniture or appointments, that is, we long to satisfy our ARTISTIC and COLOR-HUNGER. VERY PLEASANT AND UNIQUE WAS YOUNG LADIES' BANQUET

In Sunday School of St. Andrew's Church—Capacity Attendance

The banquet and entertainment given in the Sunday school room of St. Andrew's Church last night under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Mission Band, which was addressed by Rev. J. G. Potter, of Montreal, a former pastor of St. Andrew's, was one of the pleasantest and most unique functions of its kind which have been held this season in Peterborough.

Table accommodation was taxed to capacity by the large attendance. The banquet, which commenced at 7.30, was remarkable for the great quantity of good things which were set before the guests.

The Program.

An excellent program was provided for the evening consisting of toasts, able responses, musical numbers and addresses. A number of popular choruses were sung by the assembly which added to the free and easy spirit which pervaded the gathering. The program:

Toast List.

Chairman—W. S. Campbell.
Vice-chairman—E. B. Fowler.
1.—The King—The National Anthem—Solo by Mr. Farr.
2.—Introduction of Rev. Mr. Potter by Rev. Mr. Rowaid—Solo by Miss Richardson.
3.—Rev. J. G. Potter—Rejuvenation —Solo by Miss McLaren.
4.—The Sunday School—Mr. W. A. Richardson; response, Mr. McKone—Solo by Mr. Clark.
5.—Our Church Organization—Past Present and Future—Mr. A. McFarlane; response, Mr. Fraser, managing board; Mr. C. A. Macdonald, Young Men's Guild; Mr. R. M. Glover, Young Ladies' Mission Band; Mr. R. Lees Session.

Choruses.

1.—"Annie Laurie"
2.—"Rule Britannia."
3.—"For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."
4.—"Tipperary."
5.—"The Maple Leaf Forever."
6.—"Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag."
7.—"Bonnie Bonnie Bank O Loch Lomond."
8.—"Somebody Else is Getting It."
9.—"What's the Matter With Father."

Mr. Potter's Address.

The address of the evening was given by Rev. J. G. Potter, a former pastor of St. Andrew's Church. His topic was "Rejuvenation," but before beginning his lecture, proper, he referred to the very pleasant days he had spent in Peterborough in the past and regretted the fact that Mrs Potter was unable to accompany him upon this occasion.

He spoke of several incidents of interest in connection with the church in the days of his ministry here and dealt particularly with the formation of the Daughters of Erin which took place during that time, and the organization of the Young's Men's Guild.

The Emerald Isle.

Mr. Potter referred to Ireland's fine record of the past in noting the passing of St. Patrick's day for another year. He expressed the hope that the wisest counsels would prevail in dealing with her at the present time and that she would enter upon a period of prosperity such as she had never known in the past.

Now that the war had been brought to a victorious conclusion, Mr. Potter thought that in entering upon the period of reconstruction what we need most is to be rejuvenated in such a manner as to make it possible for us to get in line with events as they are and in many cases were in pre war times.

In speaking of the recent war in which the righteous cause triumphed signally, Mr. Potter described it was a victory of right over wrong and of the weak over the mighty. He referred to the noble young men of that congregation who had gone forth to do their part in the great struggle and sacrificed themselves for their country and loved ones.

Value of Purpose.

In this life we should see at an early age what God wants us to see and should accept it as the great purpose of our career and keep working steadily for its final achievement.

Soldiers are not made on the parade ground, but in the trenches. The material is there, but awaits development in the same way as Michael Angelo saw in the rough block of granite the vision of the angel which he intended to create with the application of his genius and the sculptor's chisel. So is it in human life. Visions will produce nothing they must be followed up with action and that in turn must be directed towards a set purpose in order that the fullest measure of success is to be achieved.

New Sunday School.

In proposing and responding to the toast of the Sunday School the speakers referred to the proposed new hall which is to be built in connection with St. Andrew's Church. Mr. McKone made the statement that the matter was at present being considered by a committee and in view of the importance of Sunday School work which he felt bore the same relation to the church that the public school does to the Collegiate, he hoped that when the plans had been finally approved and everything prepared, the church would deal liberally with the officials who will have charge of the construction of the new school rooms.

It was after eleven o'clock before the entertainment was concluded last night but as everyone enjoyed the event immensely the hand of the clock sped unheaded.

Mr. J. I. Allan was the last speaker upon the program and he moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Potter and all there who had been instrumental in making the event such a success. The motion was carried most unanimously. In referring to the banquet and program following it, both he and Mr. R. M. Glover complimented the young ladies of the Mission Band upon the success of their efforts.

There was a great deal of work connected with arranging for and carrying out successfully an entertainment such as that of last night and upon such a large scale. The Sunday School hall was tastefully decorated in green with the Irish flag in evidence and the long tables loaded down with dainties of every description and with their rows of burning candles combined to give the big apartment a most enticing aspect.

KEEP URIC ACID OUT OF JOINTS

TELLS RHEUMATISM SUFFERERS TO EAT LESS MEAT AND TAKE SALTS.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly; keep the feet dry; avoid exposure; eat less meat, but drink plenty of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat and other rich foods that produce uric acid which is absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urin! the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate the uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which helps overcome uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

How Christian De Wet Lost Admiration by Acts That Displayed Treachery

THE recent refusal of the Cape Town Government to issue passports to Gen. Christiaan De Wet and Pieter Grobler, a grandson of President Kruger, who desired to proceed to Paris in order to submit proposals for an independent South Africa to the Peace Conference, recalls the futile effort of these irreconcilables and their confederates, Beyers, Maritz, and Kemp, to break up the Union and establish a republic in the early months of the great war. De Wet, captured in the field and tried for treason, was sentenced to six years' imprisonment, but, with Pieter Grobler, upon whom a sentence of two years was imposed, was soon pardoned for political reasons. It was no time to enforce the rigors of the law against a famous veteran who was still a hero in Boer households, or to make an example of a descendant of Paul Kruger.

No doubt the influence of Gen. Botha and Jan Smuts, who had accepted British rule in the belief that it would be for the welfare of South Africa, was exerted in favor of their old comrade in arms. The truth, of course, was that martyrdom for De Wet would have fomented the rebellious spirit still latent in the Transvaal and Orange Free State. The Transvaal, with a population of nearly 2,000,000, is the richest province of the Union, and it was wise to try conciliation with those Boers whose loyalty was still under suspicion. They were chiefly the older men who had fought in the war of 1899-1902. A good many of the veterans were stanch supporters of Botha and Smuts, but there was an element that gave sullen allegiance to the Empire. It is active enough at the present time to agitate for independence and ask to be represented at Paris. The influence of the two veterans who have been honored by the British Government with high place and who have driven the Germans from Africa is so strong, however, that "self-determination" would doubtless show the Boer people of the Union to be satisfied with the British administration, which is liberal, progressive, and forgiving. The younger Boers understand its advantages, and are proud to be represented by such soldier-statesmen as Louis Botha and Jan Smuts.

Looking back, the rising which brought out De Wet from his retirement is seen to have been an irrational and dishonest enterprise doomed to failure. Maritz, who beguiled De Wet to his undoing, was an unscrupulous and graceless figure. The propaganda of the revolt was a tissue of lies to delude the Boer farmers who were out of touch with true conditions at Cape Town. At first they were allured by the promise that it should be a bloodless revolution. Then they were told that Botha had inspired and would lead the movement. Soon after Christiaan Beyers joined it he was reported to be bombarding Pretoria with German artillery. Maritz was said to be on the Vaal with 30,000 men and 100 guns. But when Gen. Botha took the field the rebellion crumbled like a fungus.

De Wet had had his choice to serve with the Imperial forces in the great war. He might have gone to France, so it was said, with a corps of British and Dutch Africander scouts, but he elected to attack the Government of the Union from ambush. There is no doubt that he could have had a command under Botha or Smuts in South Africa. For his fame it would have been better if the ablest guerrila leader that the world has probably ever known had at least remained in retirement during the struggle. He had been a most romantic figure and was greatly admired by a generous enemy. After the Boer war he was treated with consideration by the victors, and accepted office from them. In the rising of October, 1914, he lost his prestige as a soldier, and in a cause that had little to recommend it from any point of view he cut rather a pitiful figure.

Heat and Sound.

When the temperature is 23 degrees, sound travels 1,090 feet a second and one additional foot a second for each additional degree of temperature. Electricity over a wire where there is no resistance travels 192,924 miles a second.

Copied From Nature.

Ideas for the colors in the best Scotch tweeds are found in the bed of the river Garry, in the Pass of Killiecrankie. Granite, porphyry and jasper are found there in rich reds, grays and greens, beautifully mottled and mixed in finely contrasted colors. The first order of tweeds sent to London in bulk was six pieces of black and white check made in Peebles.

No Return.

We cannot go back. The old places are not the same if we revisit them, the old pleasures have lost something if we try to repeat them, the old groups can never be regathered in completeness of presence and spirit. Life is a kaleidoscope. It holds many beautiful combinations, but when we have turned one out of sight, no effort will bring it back again.

Good and Bad.

A good story concerning De Valera, the Sinn Fein leader, is going the rounds of London.

It appears that recently a certain London newspaper sent a reporter over to Ireland to take shorthand notes of one of his speeches. The audience objected, but De Valera was all smiles and urbanity.

"Let the gentleman remain," he said. "So far as I am concerned, he is at liberty to report my speech verbatim, if it pleases him."

De Valera advanced to the front of the platform. Eyes glistened, ears were all attention, and the reporter's pencil was poised in the air. De Valera bestowed one more benignant smile on the newspaper man, winked wickedly at his audience, and began his speech — in the Gaelic language.—Pearson's Weekly.

Army Coal for Civilians.

To meet the scarcity of coal in England, which is acute in certain localities, an arrangement has been come to between the War Office and the Coal Control Department by which public needs may be met temporarily by drawing on army stocks.

The arrangement provides that where stocks of coal or gas coke exists in army camps above immediate requirements, assistance in fuel supplies may be given to the public from such stocks by mutual arrangement between local Fuel Overseers and the officer in charge of War Office supplies.

Chinese Amazons.

China had women soldier long before they were known in Russia. During the Tae Ping rebellion 1,850 women as well as men served in the ranks. In Nanking in 1853 an army of 500,000 women was recruited. They were divided into brigades of 13,000 each and were commanded by women officers.

Some girls never discover they have hearts until after they are lost.

MAKE HIM TASTE WAR.

French Poilus Suggest Punishment for ex-Kaiser.

A little French weekly, the Cri de Paris, lately received from a group of French soldiers the following letter on the subject of the ex-Kaiser's punishment:

This is how we think the Kaiser ought to be punished:

William II shall wage war until death ensues.

Every day he shall march 15 miles with full pack and equipment, carrying a quick-firing rifle and a load of hand-grenades. He shall wear a trench helmet and never be allowed to take it off.

At the end of his 15-mile march he shall be made to cross marshy ground with water up to his waist.

He shall be made to walk down sodden communication trenches in which telephone wires shall have been artfully arranged so as to entangle him.

He shall spend every night in a narrow trench, in which a few dozen rats shall be kept, and near which there will lie some decaying carcases.

As soon as he begins to doze off a few hand-grenades shall be exploded, as well as a mine, which should throw him bodily some ten yards away.

Every night he shall be made to walk for two hours in the dark across broken ground, and to cross several wire entanglements while carrying cases of hand-grenades.

As for hygiene and comfort, he shall change his underclothes only on the first of each month, so as to become a prey to vermin; he shall be allowed to wash on that day only.

For rations, he shall be entitled to one tin of bully-beef per days, with a quarter of a loaf of bread, and, as an appetiser, some sardines in oil; he shall drink either water or sour wine, half a pint for each meal.

This shall last for 365 days in the year. During the meal hours one might improve his mind by reading aloud to him selected passages from Boche philosophers, in lieu of the customary reading of the communique.

Thus perhaps he might be made to realize the sufferings endured by millions of men who, through his fault, were sent to the slaughter.

No Hindu Cousins.

All able-bodied members of the Hindu family must contribute their labor and earnings, whether of personal skill or agriculture and trade, to the common stock; weaker members, widows, orphans and destitute relations, all must be maintained and supported; sons, nephews, brothers, cousins, all must be treated equally, for any undue preference is apt to break up the family.

We have no word for cousins—they are either brothers or sisters—and we do not know what are cousins two degrees removed. The children of a first cousin are young nephews and nieces just the same as the children of your brothers or sisters. The family affections, the family ties, are always very strong, and therefore the maintenance of an equal standard among so many members is not so difficult as it may appear at first sight.

Moreover, life is very simple. Until recently shoes were not in general use at home, but sandals without any leather fastenings. I have known of a well-to-do middle class family of several brothers and cousins who had two or three pairs of leather shoes between them, these shoes being only used when they had occasion to go out, and the same practice is still followed in the case of the more expensive garments, like shawls, which last for generations, and with their age are treated with loving care, as having been used by ancestors of revered memory.

The joint family remains together sometimes for several generations until it becomes too unwieldly, when it breaks up into smaller families, and you thus see whole villages peopled by members of the same clan. —Bhupendranath Basu in Journal of the Royal Society of Arts.

BRINGING UP FATHER BY GEORGE McMANUS

MANITOBA CHAMPIONS DEFEATED BY TIGERS

Hamilton Piled Up a Five Goal Lead Last Night in the Arena.

Playing under O. H. A. rules, the Hamilton Tigers, champions of the O. H. A. decisively defeated Selkirks the Manitoba champions last night in the first game of the Allan Cup, and will carry a lead of five goals into the second game on Thursday night, which will be played under Manitoba rules. The score was 6 to 1, the Westerners scoring their only goal before the Tigers had penetrated the Selkirk nets. Tigers equalised before the first period was up, and in the second made the count 5 to 1.

Tigers, while winning the game, lost many friends by their crude methods in the final ten minutes when with the score 6 to 1 they started to play dirty. There was no reason for such methods as the Tigers had the game under wraps and their sudden outburst was a surprise inasmuch as they were the aggregation that yelped when St. Patrick's mixed it up with them. They acted like a big bully over a school kid, with Duncan, who as one rooter termed him was a sub and always would be a sub.' Simply going crazy and after being warned once during a mixup in which Green and Duncan both tried to intimidate Jerry Lalamme by bumping into the official, Duncan was banished for the balance of the game. He had been off several times before, and on the last occasion showed hesitation about retiring. The final ten minutes left a sour taste in the mouths of the jammed Arena.

Cup Will Remain

That the Allan Cup will remain in the east is a foregone conclusion after watching last night's game. The Selkirks, outside the first ten minutes when they took the Tigers by storm were never really dangerous and before the first 20 minutes were up it was seen that they were commencing to fare badly. They had very little team play, outside of Simpson and Hughes had no players with any shooting ability. This was their weakest point, as often during the game they were in a position to let go a drive and when they did it lacked steam.

The westerners are probably the youngest team that ever played for the Allan cup, for with the exception of Morrison, Sompson and Hughes all the players are eligible to play junior. Thay all have a fair amount of speed, with Mike Goodman, the speed skater, being their fastest man, but he has not yet learned to utilize his speed to the best advantage in a hockey game. In Simpson they have a grand rusher and a player that possesses a wicked shot, but he is a very weak defence man. Like the rest of the team, he relies chiefly on the poke check to break up a rush, and when it comes to using the body he is lost. The Selkirk defence looked very bad at times the worst being when they allowed Reise to skate right around them and in on top of Morrison for a goal.

Selkirks may have been rated a stronger team than that which represented Winnipeg last year, but they failed to dish up the same clever brand of hockey as furnished by Ypres, and for the first time in years an O.H.A. team were able to win an Allan Cup playing under their own rules. The Westerners failed to spread out in their own player's way. They were extremely weak in checking back and shooting, but were strong for going in for rebounds for shots. Morrison in goal was weak while outside of Simpson and Hughes the rest were mediocre.

The line-up:

Officials—Jerry Laflamme and Robt. Hewitson.

The summary:—

Dog Teams Away On Hudson Bay Contest

The Pas, Man., March 19.—Seven dog teams got away at 8.45 last night for the Hudson Bay dog purse. The sky was overcast and a strong wind was driving the light snow into drifts.

The start was made on the Saskatchewan River, each team having a snowshoe track to start from. His Lordship Bishop Charlebois officially opened the race in the presence of 2,000 people. McKay drew No. 1 position, Campbell No 2, Dysart No 3 Hayes No. 4, Grayson No. 5, Hartridge No. 6 and Stoddard No. 7.

The last seen here of the racers as they disappeared in the darkness showed Stoddard leading, with Hayes, McKay, Grayson, Hartridge, Campbell and Dysart in the order named. McKay rules the favorite.

WOODSTOCK WILL PROTEST RESULT OF LAST U.T.S. GAME

Broken Skate and Cow-Itch Charges Will Be Investigated.

Woodstock, March 18. — Billy Breen, coach of the Woodstock hockey team, arrived home today, and this afternoon President Brophy of the junior team, called a meeting of the executive, at which Breen was present. The circumstances surrounding the happenings at Toronto Arena Saturday night were thoroughly discussed, and after hearing the "cow-itch" broken skate affair first hand from Coach Breen a committee was appointed to confer at once with a lawyer and have a case prepared to be submitted to the O.H.A. executive This statement should be in the hands of the O.H.A. secretary by Thursday morning.

The hockey club officials do not for one minute intend that the dastardly work perpetuated at Toronto Arena to hurt the chances of the Red and White winning the championship to go by default. The fans who have supported the local team will be protected at all costs. Local hockey enthusiasts are not alone in this fight to see justice meted out. Towns in all directions are behind Woodstock in an effort to put down such dastardly attacks. Not only have the executive but prominent citizens of the city been deluged with letters from sportsmen and hockeyists from all parts of the province denouncing the practice perpetrated on Woodstock team at Toronto, stating that if the O.H.A. permit such usage of junior teams to go unnoticed it truly spells the doom of the O.H.A. an association which has been looked upon as one of the fairest sporting bodies in the world.

Reception to the Players

Arrangements have been completed for a public reception and presentation to the members of the junior hockey club, who made such an enviable record during the past season in the junior O.H.A. race. The boys did not win the championship, but the fans nevertheless are still of belief that Woodstock had the best junior team in the O.H.A. this year.

The reception will take place tomorrow night in the City Hall, and will be under the auspices of the City Council and the Board of Trade A parade with the 22nd battalion band leading will precede the City Hall affair. The boys will be presented with wrist watches.

The High Rollers Win From De Laval

Last night in the Business Men's ten pin league at the Water street alleys the High Rollers took two out of three from the De Laval, winning the first game by one pin, and having to roll the 900 mark to win the second. De Laval came back strong in the last game and rolled 920, defeating the High Rollers by 66 pins. For De Laval, Ruiter put up a record single score of 259, which is a record in the Business Men's league. Ruiter, Carter, Fitzgerald and Byers all passed the 500 mark. For High Rollers Solomon hit the maple for 621, and Hayes and Mitzes rolled past the 500 mark. Both teams rolled over 2,800. Scores:

Canadiens Win From Coast Millionaires

Vancouver, March 19.—The Flying Frenchmen of Montreal on Monday night showed Vancouver hockey fans some reasons why they won the National Hockey League championship in the East against such a brilliant team as Ottawa, and left last year's world's champions, Toronto, in third place, when they trimmed the Millionaires in an exhibition game 4-3. It might well have been 10-3, only Hugh Lehman pulled some stops perhaps more sensational than any seen this season. But then, the Millionaires missed some fine looking chances, and Vezina, net tender for the Canadiens, beat them out of several goals in a miraculous manner. The game was an open one, with lots of rushes from end to end, and it was the work of both goalers that kept the score down.

The teams:

Vancouver — Goal, Lehman; defence, Duncan, Griffis; rover, Cook; centre, Taylor; right wing, Stanley; left wing, Harris. Subs—Irvine and Ukalis.

The summary:

First Period.

Vancouver—Taylor—2.00.
Canadiens—Lalonde—4.42.
Canadiens—Berlinquette—8.52.
Vancouver—Harris .40.

Second Period.

Canadiens—Pitre—8.00.

Pats and U.T.S. Play For Memorial Cup

The initial game in the O.H.9. Memorial Cup series between the Patricias of Regina and the University Schools' team, O.H.A. champions, will be played tonight. In the loss for choice last night the Pats won, but contrary to expectations, elected to play the first game under O.H.A. rules which means that the return contest on Saturday night will find the Saskatchewan code in vogue. In the west they do not permit of skating onside while there is no limit as to the number of subs. that can be used. The Pats will probably take the ice favorites tonight, despite the good record achieved this season by U. T. S. The visitors have shown remarkable form at practice, and are rated as the fastest team that ever came out of the West. U.T.S.a may surprise 'em as they have done many another team this year.

Will Investigate City Housing Needs

The Housing Proposal

The G.W.V.A. is using the following propaganda circular in connection with the Government Housing Proposal:

If you are interested in the housing proposal on the other side of this circular kindly answer "yes" or "no" to the following questions and return in the enclosed envelope to the secretary, Peterborough branch, G. W. V.A., 405½ George street, Peterborough:

1.—Is your present home satisfactory?

2.—Have you tried unsuccessfully to find a more suitable house?

3.—Are you renting your present home?

4.—Are you boarding?

5.—Are you living with another family?

6.—If renting, what rent are you paying?

7.—Where are you employed?

8.—Do you own a building lot in the city of Peterborough on which you would like to build a home?

9.—If not, would you be able to pay ten per cent. of the purchase price (or from $200 to $300) in cash as required by the Government plan?

10.—Have you a relative in the army and navy who will shortly return to Peterborough and will, to the best of your knowledge and belief, require a home in Peterborough such as can be secured under the Government plan?

11.—Give relative's name, regimental number and unit.

12.—Where was he employed before enlistment?

Name of party requiring house.

Address.

What It Means.

The Government of Canada has agreed to lend money through the Provincial Government to assist in the erection of houses for returned soldiers and others of small means and a committee of the Peterborough branch of the G.W.V.A. has been instructed to ascertain as far as possible what Peterborough's needs are at the present time in this respect.

The plan includes the erection of houses on lots owned by citizens on lands secured for the purpose by the city or by companies incorporated under the Ontario Housing Accomodation Act, and payment is made by equal monthly instalments like rent including principal and interest.

The minimum cost of each house together with the lot, and interest during construction is not to exceed $3,000. Loans will be for a period not exceeding twenty years at 5 per cent. monthly payments would, therefore, be approximately as follows; repayment in twenty years on $3,000 house, about $20.00 a month; $2,500 house $16.75 a month; $2,000 house, $13.50 a month. Repayment in fifteen years on a $3,000 would be about $24.00 a month; on a $2,500 house, $20.00 a month, and on a $2,000 house $16.50 a month.

The citizen for whom the house is built pays for the lot, or 10 per cent. of the total value of the house down in each and would have possession and could live in the house as soon as it is built. The owner must keep the house in repair and pay taxes and fire insurance. The balance of the loan—whole or part—can be paid off at any time and the owner may sell his interest in the property if for any reasons monthly payments cannot be met.

If interested kindly answer the questions asked on the other side of this circular and return to the secretary, Peterborough branch G.W.V.A. in an enclosed envelope.

No obligation is incurred by supplying the information, but the questions should be answered to the best of your knowledge and belief at the present time.

Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association Housing Committee.

"PRETTY BABY"

If you don't want to go to work "the morning after" whistling the tuneful numbers in Jimmie Hodges' new show, don't go see "Pretty Baby" at the Grand Opera House Saturday, matinee and evening.

Nobody who has seen the latest creation of his latest musical show has escaped the magic of the haunting melodies used in his new production. After the show has hit town you will hear the girl back of the ribbon counter humming. You will go to your office and will find the bookkeeper softly and unconsciously whistling it to himself as he goes over the items. You will hear the phonographs and the player pianos grinding it out as you pass the music stores. The street car conductors will whistle a snatch of some number as he collects your fare or your chauffeur will crank your car to the tune of some number used in the big review. After a while you will begin to get aggravated, then, you will become decidedly exasperated, until, in an unguarded moment, yourself doing it. Then you will get in good humor again and join the gayety of the city of the nation. Howard Myers, Bernice La Barr, Edna Jacques, George Twyman, Joe McAnallan and Norman Coudy will all render numbers in "Pretty Baby," assisted by the famous Jimmie Hodges' "Dixie Chorus" which will have you humming and whistling many days after their engagement here.

Responsibilities Of Young Ladies

MEETING IN MURRAY STREET BAPTIST CHURCH UNQUALIFIED SUCCESS.

The gathering of young ladies on Friday evening last in the Murray Street Baptist Church was an unqualified success.

Miss Marjorie Trotter of Toronto, a specialist in work among young ladies, addressed about seventy between the ages of 15 and 22. Arrangements had been made that they should have supper together at 6:30 o'clock.

The organized classes of Mrs. Stenton, Mrs. W. D. Scott, Mrs. James Wood and Miss Hardill made up the above number.

Miss Trotter spoke for about forty minutes, outlining the responsibilities and possibilities of young girls at this age.

The result of the gathering was an organization of a branch of the Canadian girls in training, with the following officers:

President — Miss Olive Yelland.

Vice-Pres. — Miss Elizabeth Webber.

Secretary-Treas. — Miss Robena Montgomery.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING.

Melbourne, March 19.—The Australian cabinet has approved a plan for the expenditure of $6,500,000 in the extension of vocational training to returning soldiers who were under 20 years of age at the time of enlistment. An earlier scheme for vocational training applied only to those who had no trade before the war, but the new plan takes in all who are eligible under its terms.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

HOLLOWAY — WOOD

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. John's Church yesterday morning at 11.15 o'clock by Rev. Canon Davidson, when Sarah J., daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Wood, Bailieboro, was united in marriage to Dr. W. T. Holloway of this city.

The bride was becomingly attired in a sand colored suit, embroidered in royal blue, with small hat to match, and carried a boquet of [illegible]

Mr. and Mrs. Dickson Hall have returned from New York where Mr. Hall has been making extensive purchases for the spring drive.

Floral Company Secures Contract

The Horticultural Society have accepted the tender of the Peterboro' Floral Company to provide the options for this year.

The membership campaign will be inaugurated as soon as the lists are printed. It is hoped that more interest in the work of the society will be shown than has been the case in the past.

"Final Settlement" At Grand Opera

"The best show Ernie Marks ever had," seems to be the verdict of the theatre going public of Peterborough after seeing "The Final Settlement" staged in the Grand Opera House last night by the Ernie Marks Stock Company.

The vaudeville was especially good and the play was very interesting. Mr. Ernie Marks and Miss Kitty Marks played the leading roles and acquitted themselves with credit. The most convincing evidence of the fact that last night's show pleased the people is that the floor was fairly well taken for tonight's performance at an early hour this afternoon.

Address on "Home And School Clubs"

Mrs. Ada Courtice, who has been identified with social and educational work in Toronto for some time and is a member of the board of education of that city, gave an address in the assembly hall of the Collegiate Institute last night upon "The Work of the Home and School Clubs."

Mrs. Courtice came to Peterborough under the auspices of the Parents' Circle of the Queen Mary School and her address took the form of a most lucid explanation of the system adopted for obtaining that measure of co-operation between teacher and parents which is productive of increased efficiency in educational development.

Mrs. Courtice explained the work as carried on in Toronto, where the movement, which corresponds to that inaugurated by the Parents' Circle of the Queen Mary School here, is undertaken by the Home and School Club.

The movement here is yet in the embryonic state and a great deal of useful information was conveyed in the address of the speaker last night which will be invaluable in the development of the work in Peterborough.

After the lecture, the following musical program was rendered:

Instrumental Duet—Misses Caldwell and Grieve.

Violin Solo — Master Baden Greene.

Vocal Duet—Capt. and Mrs. Park.

Violin Solo—Miss Harrington
